Circuit court of the United States, fifth judicial circuit, southern district of Alabama. In equity. No. 90.

To the honorable the judges of the United States for the 5th judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

Your orators, William Butler Duncan, who is a citizen of the State of New York, and A. Foster Elliot, who is a citizen of the State of Louisiana, file this bill of complaint against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a corporation incorporated by act of the general assembly of the State of Alabama, which is a citizen of the State of Alabama, and which is engaged in business as a corporation so incorporated in the State of Alabama, and against William D. Dunn, who is a citizen of the State of Alabama; George H. Young, who is a citizen of the State of Mississippi; Samuel Williams, who is a citizen of the State of Tennessee; John Reid, j'r, and Robert C. Crawford, who each are citizens of the State of Alabama, and Adrian Iselin, Richard T. Wilson, and Samuel L. M. Barlow, who are each citizens of the State of New York; and thereupon your orators complain and show to your honors that said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was made a body politic and corporate by act of general assembly of the State of Alabama, by an act approved 3d February, A. D. 1848; that said corporation was authorized to locate, construct, complete, and operate a railroad from the said city of Mobile to the west line of the State of Alabama, towards the mouth of the Ohio River, and thereon to transport persons and property for hire and reward; that certain other powers were also conferred upon said corporation to enable it to acquire, hold, and use real and personal property for the purposes of said railroad and its business, and to enable it to carry into operation and effect the purposes of said railroad company about the construction of said railroad and its said business, all which will fully appear by reference to said act of incorporation, a copy of which is hereto attached, and prayed to be taken as a part of this bill of complaint.

Your orators further show to your honors that the scheme of said enterprise was the construction, equipment, management, and operation of a line of railroad for the transportation of persons and property for hire and reward from said city of Mobile to a point at or near the mouth of the Ohio River, with lateral branches through a portion of the territories of the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky; that said corporation so chartered by the laws of the State of Alabama was also chartered by the State of Mississippi, by act of the legislature of the State of Mississippi approved the 17th day of February, 1848; that said corporation so chartered by the acts aforesaid of the States of Alabama and Mississippi was also incorporated by act of the general assembly of the State of Tennessee approved the 28th day of February, 1848; that by act of the general assembly of the State of Kentucky approved February 26th, 1848, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, as incorporated by act of the general assembly of Alabama, was permitted to extend its road into the State of Kentucky, and was thereby recognized as a body politic and corporate in that State, and therein entitled to all the privileges, rights, and immunities, and subject to all such restrictions as were granted, made, and prescribed for the benefit, government, and direction of said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, within the State of Alabama, by the act of said last-named State, approved as aforesaid, 8th February, 1848, entitled "An act to incorporate the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company."

Your orators further show to your honors that by acts of the general assemblies of Alabama and Mississippi approved respectively the 5th day of January, 1850, and 4th day of March, 1850, the said corporation was authorized to borrow money, and make contracts for the loan of money, and to give evidences of debt and securities for the payment of the same by pledge, mortgage, or otherwise, as it should deem necessary and proper.

Your orators attach hereto copies of the several acts hereinbefore mentioned, in a printed pamphlet marked "Exhibit A," and pray the same may be held and taken as a part of this their bill of complaint.

Your orators further show that by the laws of Tennessee and Kentucky the said corporation was authorized and empowered to 2 borrow money, contract loans and debts, and secure payment of the same, by pledge and mortgage of the real and personal property and franchises of said company.

Your orators further show unto your honors that in pursuance of the power and authority so given to it by its said charter and said acts of incorporation, the said corporation has built, constructed, equipped, and is now operating a line of railroad, for the purposes aforesaid, from the said city of Mobile in the State of Alabama, through territory of the State of Alabama, the State of Mississippi, the State of Tennessee, and the State of Kentucky, to the town of Columbus, at or near the mouth of the Ohio River, in the last named State; and has also built or has acquired under authority of its said charter, and is now operating certain branch roads connected with its main trunk or stem of railway; that is to say, a branch of twenty-one miles or thereabouts, extending from Narkeeta, in the State of Mississippi, to Gainesville, in the State of Alabama; another branch of about fourteen miles, extending from Artesia to Columbus, all within the State of Mississippi; another branch, altogether within the State of Mississippi, of about eleven miles, extending from Artesia to Starkville. The said corporation also hold, under a perpetual lease and free of rent, another branch road of about nine miles in length, altogether within the State of Mississippi, from Muldon to Aberdeen, making the total number of miles of railroad, so owned or possessed and operated by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, five hundred and twenty-seven miles.

The said corporation also owns and possesses, as appurtenant to its said line of railway, various lands, tenements, easements, and franchises, and also a large amount of other land, in the aggregate at this time of about one million one hundred and ninety-two thousand four hundred and sixty-four acres, not appurtenant to its said line of railroad, together with a large amount of personal property, consisting of rolling-stock, tools, machinery of various kinds, supplies, and materials for use in its said business, and other articles required in the operation of a line of railroad, of the length and class operated by said corporation; all and singular of this property, real, personal, and mixed, is embraced in and conveyed by the mortgage and deed of trust hereinafter more particularly described.

Your orators show to your honors that on the first day of November, 1853, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in pursuance of its power for that purpose under the charter and acts by which it was incorporated and transacted its business, made, executed, and delivered to Morris Ketchum and John J. Palmer, then citizens of the State of New York, and to William R. Hallett, then a citizen of the State of Alabama, its certain deed of trust and mortgage of all the property then owned by said corporation, excepting portions of land therein and thereby excepted not then yet fully paid for, and certain rights and liens in the State of Tennessee, hereinafter more fully stated; said conveyance was also declared to be intended to convey the future to be acquired rights, interest, and property, and appurtenances of said corporation, on the line of its railroad from the city of Mobile to the mouth of the Ohio River. A copy of said deed of mortgage and trust is hereto attached and made a part of this bill of complaint, marked "Exhibit B;" said deed was recorded as required by law in the several counties and States wherein the property therein described and thereby conveyed was situated.

Said deed of mortgage and trust was made to secure the payment of a large amount of bonds, then made by said company to the extent of six millions of dollars. Said bonds are each for the sum of two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling, according to the currency of the Kingdom of Great Britain, and bear date the first day of November, 1853, and are payable on the first day of November, 1883, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum thereon, payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November during the time said bonds are running to maturity. All of said bonds are of the same tenor and date, and differ only in the number attached thereto. A copy of one of said bonds is attached hereto, for the information of the court, of the form and nature of the obligation, marked "Exhibit C." The interest accruing on said bonds is represented by certificates of interest attached thereto, stating the time of payment thereof, and intended to be cut from said bonds as coupons upon maturity of the interest expressed thereon, and to be surrendered to said corporation on payment of said interest, otherwise to be held as evidence of interest matured and unpaid.

It is expressly declared by the terms of the said deed of trust and mortgage, that said trustees should go into the immediate possession of the lands hereinbefore mentioned, not appurtenant to the said line of railroad, to make sale thereof and invest the proceeds thereof and to create a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds described in and secured by said deed of mortgage and trust, and in case said corporation should make default in the payment of said bonds, or interest, or any portion thereof, and should so remain in such default of payment of the said bonds or interest, for the space of three months after being due and payable, then said parties of the second part, that is, the trustees appointed under said deed, were thereby vested with full authority to take possession and control of all and singular the entire estate and properties of whatsoever name and kind described in said deed, and hold the same for the benefit of any and all such creditors of the corporation, with such other action and disposition as shall be equitable to all concerned, and might sell and dispose of said road, and other property thereby mortgaged, conveyed, or assigned, or so intended, and all benefit and equity of redemption of the said company therein, with the benefit of the company's franchises; all which fully appears by reference to said deed of mortgage and trust, a true copy of which is hereto attached as a part of this bill.

Your orators show that the bonds described in and secured by the said deed of mortgage and trust, were issued by the said corporation and negotiated to parties who advanced valuable consideration therefor, and now are valid and subsisting debts of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, though they have not yet matured. The interest coupons attached to said bonds have from time to time matured, and many of them have been paid.

Owing to the disturbances and interruptions of business, produced by the late civil war, which prevailed in the country through which the said road of said corporation was constructed, the interest which matured during certain years prior to 1870 was not paid. The coupons for interest owing upon the bonds during that time have since been placed on deposit, and in lieu of them, but not in discharge or satisfaction thereof, but as a convenient form of security and evidence of said debt, the said company has issued other bonds, certified by its corporate seal, known, some as interest bonds, others as interest arrear bonds, others as funded interest bonds, others as sterling interest bonds, amounting in the aggregate, and still outstanding, with the sterling bonds first above mentioned and described in the said deed of mortgage and trust, to seven million nine hundred and eighty thousand and two hundred and twenty dollars ($7,980,220.00), or thereabouts, the payment of all which is secured by the deed of mortgage and trust, hereinbefore mentioned, and which your orators charge to be the first lien upon the property hereinbefore and in said deed described. The semi-annual interest upon all these various bonds matured on the same day, to wit: on the first days of May and November in each year; the rate of interest upon all of said bonds, the sterling bonds first named excepted, is eight per centum per annum.

Your orators show that said bonds and securities are held by a great many persons, and have become scattered in the hands of holders in the United States and Europe. Your orators do not know and have no means of ascertaining who are the holders of these bonds and securities.

Your orators further show that the rate of interest agreed to be paid by said company on face of said sterling bonds is six per cent. The said corporation by resolution of its board of directors, after the same had been prepared, to facilitate their negotiation, gave to the parties who purchased the same the option of receiving interest thereon in London, the place of payment named in said bonds, at six per centum per annum, or in New York at the rate of eight per centum per annum. Many of said parties elected to receive payment of interest in New York, and said corporation thereupon caused to be attached to such bonds an agreement to that effect; and thereupon and thereafter interest upon such bonds so certified has been held to be due at said rate of eight per cent., and at that rate interest thereon has been paid. Your orators charge that this change of rate of interest upon said bonds was stipulated for and accepted before any other lien or right had accrued upon the property of the company, described in the mortgage hereinbefore set out.

Your orators show that on 1st day of May, 1874, an installment of interest fell due upon the bonds hereinbefore described; that again on the 1st day of Nov., 1874, a like installment of interest upon said bonds fell due; that neither of said installments of interest were paid at maturity; that the coupons cut from said bonds, and representing said interest were presented to the said company, or to its agents, at the places appointed by it for the presentation of said coupons and the payment of said interest, by the holders thereof, and payment demanded, but payment of said interest was refused, and the same is still due 4 and unpaid, and the said Mobile and Ohio R. R. Co. is now in default in the payment of said interest, which matured on the days before stated; and said company has remained in said default from the said 1st days of May and November, 1874; that the aggregate amount of said installments of interest, and which is represented by interest coupons outstanding and unpaid, in the hands of the holders thereof, is six hundred and thirty-eight thousand four hundred and seventeen 60-100 dollars ($638,417\frac{60}{100}$), or thereabouts, in the currency of the United States.

Your orators show to your honors that at some time not known to your orators, prior to 1st of January, 1863, the said John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett, two of the trustees named in the original deed of trust, died; that Morris Ketchum, the third person named in said trust-deed, has abandoned the trust, and for more than ten years last past has done no act as such trustee; that during that time, and till the 19th day of April, 1875, the said trust has been in the hands of Charles Walsh, of the State of Alabama; George H. Young, of the State of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of the State of Tennessee, who were appointed by judicial proceedings of the court of chancery for the southern chancery division of the State of Alabama, sitting at Mobile, upon the application of said railroad company, in the room and stead of the trustees named in said deed; and they have performed all the duties of trustees under said deed, which it was competent for the trustees to do, without challenge or question; they have been in the possession and management of the lands of the company, not appurtenant to the line of said company's railroad, as provided by the terms of said deed, and have sold portions thereof, and made title therefor.

Said last-named trustees, to wit, Mess'rs Walsh, Young, and Jackson, have resigned their said trusteeship, and your orators are now the trustees under said deed of mortgage and trust, by joint appointment, as directed by said deed of the said Charles Walsh, before he resigned as aforesaid, and the said railroad company. Your orators now hold the legal title to all the property conveyed by said deed, in trust for the uses and purposes and for the parties therein declared, and alone represent the whole of said trust estate.

Your orators further show that at the date of the execution of the deed of trust hereinbefore described, the State of Tennessee, by act of the legislature, had advanced and loaned to the said Mobile and Ohio R. R. Co., or had pledged itself so to do, the bonds of the said State to the extent of one million six hundred and eighty-four thousand eight hundred dollars or thereabouts, and by statute had retained for its security a first lien upon the entire road of said company in the State of Tennessee, including the right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chains, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by said company, as incident to or necessary for its use, lying within the limits of said State, with power in said State to seize and sell, as in the nature of a mortgage lien, the same in default of payment by said company of said principal loan. This right and lien of said State of Tennessee was recognized in the said deed of mortgage hereinbefore described, and said deed was executed, subject to said lien and right, as appears by reference thereto, of which a copy is made part of this bill.

Your orators are informed, and, therefore, on information state that said State of Tennessee did advance and loan to said company its bonds to the amount above stated, under the terms and conditions of the said statute of said State, which authorized the same; and that therefore said State did acquire a lien upon the property of said company within said State, which said statute of Tennessee declared should be a lien prior and superior to that created by said deed of trust, to the amount of the bonds of said State so issued in pursuance of said law.

Your orators further show to your honors, that after the issue of said bonds by the State of Tennessee, the said State, by a general act of its legislature, passed for that purpose, to wit, on the 25th February, in the year 1869, authorized the several railroad companies which had received aid from the State by a loan of its bonds, under said former legislation to obtain a release of the lien of the State upon its property, by the delivery to the State of an equivalent amount of bonds issued by the State. To enable this to be accomplished, the said State agreed to transfer to the holders of such Tennessee bonds, as, with the consent of said railroad companies, might so surrender their bonds, in consideration of mortgage bonds to be executed by such railroad company, its lien upon the property in Tennessee, so that thereafter such bonds of said railroad companies, so issued for that purpose, should be held and taken as standing in the room and stead of the State bonds originally loaned, and should be secured by the lien originally reserved for the protection of said State bonds, being the same continuing liability and debt of such railroad company, but differing only in its form. Your orators show that 5 the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company accepted these proposals and issued its bonds for that purpose to the amount of one million six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars, or thereabouts, bearing date 1st July, 1871, and payable thirty years thereafter, and bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, in July and January, in gold coin, in New York, each bond being for the sum of one thousand dollars, or two hundred and five pounds sterling; and the said bonds, less thirty-four thousand dollars, which have been paid, are now held by sundry persons, who are unknown to your orators, under the terms of this settlement, in the place and stead of the bonds originally issued by said State of Tennessee, and are secured by a lien upon the property, as hereintofore stated, of the said company in the State of Tennessee, and for whose benefit the said lien was declared to be a continuing lien upon said property.

Your orators show that for the protection of these bonds and the preservation of said lien, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, who are both citizens of the State of New York, together with your orator William Butler Duncan, were appointed trustees. These bonds so issued as aforesaid are known as Tennessee substitution bonds.

Your orators attach hereto and make part of this their bill of complaint, marked "Exhibit D," a printed copy of the resolutions of the board of directors of said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, on the 25th May, 1871, whereby this arrangement was authorized, and of the deed executed by said company on 1st July, 1871, whereby the same was consummated and said trustees appointed.

Your orators show that said corporation has failed to keep the covenants it therein made; in this, that it is in default in the installments of interest which matured in July, 1874, and January, 1875, and has failed to provide the sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds, which by its said deed of trust it stipulated to provide; there is now due by the said corporation upon said installments of interest which matured upon these bonds in July, 1874, and January, 1875, the sum of one hundred and twenty-eight thousand four hundred and thirty-six dollars or thereabouts, represented by interest coupons, as in the case of the first mortgage or sterling bonds.

Your orators further show to your honors, that on the fifteenth day of February, 1860, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by deed of that date, conveyed the property therein described, which is the same as that previously conveyed by the deed of trust first above mentioned to Robert E. Baker, of Alabama, who is since deceased, George H. Young, who is a citizen of the State of Mississippi, and Samuel Williams, who is a citizen of the State of Tennessee, as trustees to secure the payment of certain bonds described in said deed, and which were authorized to be issued by certain resolutions of the board of directors of said railroad company. Robert A. Baker, who was named in said deed as one of the trustees therein, has, since the execution thereof, died, and his place has been filled by the appointment of William D. Dunn, who is a citizen of the State of Alabama, and who is now the trustee of said property conveyed by said deed, and is clothed with the title, rights and powers granted by the said deed.

Your orators are informed and believe, and, therefore, show to your honors, that the principal debt secured by the said mortgage, and which is known as the second mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, amounts to the sum of one million four hundred and fifty-three thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight 47-100 dollars or thereabouts, bearing interest at eight per centum per annum, and is represented by several series of bonds issued by the said corporation for different amounts, and which mature at sundry times from 1877 to 1883. Your orators attach to their bill of complaint a printed copy of said second mortgage, marked "Exhibit E," and pray reference thereto as often as may be necessary.

Your orators show to your honors, that said company have failed to meet an installment of interest upon the bonds secured by and described in the said mortgage, which matured on the 1st of March last past, and said corporation still remains in default about the payment of the same—said amount of interest as due and unpaid, on information your orators show to be one hundred and sixteen thousand three hundred and eight 67-100 dollars, or thereabouts.

Your orators show to your honors, that the said second mortgage is of later date to that whereof your orators are trustees, and the rights of your orators to the property therein described and conveyed to the trustees therein, are paramount to the right and title of said trustees and to any rights acquired by any person or party by or under the said second mortgage.

Your orators further show, that on the 1st day of January, 1874, the said railroad company executed a further and other mortgage or deed of trust on all the property described in the said other two mortgages which bear date as aforesaid in 1853 and 1860, to your 6 orator W'm Butler Duncan and to Samuel L. M. Barlow, who is a citizen of the State of New York. The said last named deed of mortgage was made to secure an issue of bonds to the amount of fifteen million of dollars, which was intended to be used to take up and extinguish all the pevious and outstanding obligations of the company, which were secured by liens upon the property of said corporation, and for the purpose of effecting some desirable improvements of the said companies' property.

Your orators show that bonds of the description authorized and described in said deed have in fact been issued by said company to the amount of six hundred and nine thousand dollars, and are now held by sundry persons as security collateral for the payment of debts of the said company not otherwise secured. Said bonds have not yet matured, and are not otherwise liabilities against said corporation than as security as aforesaid.

Your orators attach hereto a part of their bill of complaint, a printed copy of said named mortgage or deed of trust, marked "Exhibit F." They charge that the rights of your orators, and the liens declared by the deed of mortgage and trust executed on the first day of November, 1853, are superior and paramount to the rights of any person or party acquired under the said deed of January, 1874.

Your orators are informed, and on such information state, that all the deeds of mortgage and trust hereinbefore mentioned were duly recorded in the several States and counties therein where the mortgaged property is situated, and as against the said railroad company are all valid and subsisting debts, and liens upon the property herein described.

Your orators further show that in addition to the liens and incumbrances hereinbefore described, the said corporation, on 24th day of March, 1871, executed a deed of mortgage upon the Branch road and property thereto attached, extending from Norkeeta, in Mississippi, to Gainesville, in Alabama, known as the Gainesville Branch, twenty-one miles, which said corporation had then recently acquired, to William D. Dunn, John Reid, j'r, and Robert C. Crawford, all of whom are citizens of the State of Alabama, in trust to secure payment of fifty-three bonds made by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, each for the sum of one thousand dollars, dated the said 24th March, 1871, and payable the 1st November, 1880, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of May and November in each year, which said interest began to run from the first day of November, 1870, and is represented by coupons attached to said bonds. This mortgage constitutes the first lien upon said Branch Railroad; by its terms it is provided the whole principal debt shall become due and payable upon continued default by the company for three months in the payment after maturity of any part of the debt represented either by said bonds or said coupons, and thereupon said trustees are authorized to take possession of said property so conveyed to them for the purpose of foreclosure and sale.

Your orators show that said corporation has made default in the payment of the semi-annual interest due upon said bonds on the 1st days of May and November, 1874, being the sum of four thousand two hundred and forty dollars; and that your orators, while they pretend no right to this portion of the company's property superior to that conveyed by this mortgage and deed of trust, are entitled to any surplus which may remain, after payment of the debt secured thereby, to be applied in payment of the debts for which as aforesaid your orators are trustees under the deed of mortgage first above named.

Your orators allege that such surplus should be so applied, because the said branch railroad is after-acquired property of said corporation, and all such is embraced in the terms of the deed for the enforcement of which your orators are trustees as aforesaid. Your orators attach hereto as part of their bill, marked "Exhibit G," a copy of this last-named deed of mortgage.

Your orators show that in addition to the complication of interests attaching by reason of these subsequent mortgages upon said property conveyed by said deed of trust of which your orators are trustees, and which is paramount to all other claim upon said property, the said Mobile and Ohio R. R. Co. has embarrassed itself by the creation of large debts, by bonds, notes, acceptances, and accounts contracted in the course of its business, some of which have matured, and some of which are at this time being pressed by suits against the company into judgments, and under which threats of levy upon the property conveyed to your orators, and of sale of the same, have been made. Among such liabilities, your orators call the attention of the court to an issue by said corporation of bonds to the amount of one million of dollars, of various sums, and bearing interest at the rate of eight per centum per annum, dated December 1st, 1873, and maturing on the first day of December, 1883, which are known as convertible bonds, and are at the pleasure of the holder convertible into stock at the rate of twenty-five dollars per share in place of one hundred dollars per share, which by law is the par value per share of the stock of the said corporation. The interest upon said bonds is payable quarter-yearly in New York. Some of these bonds by their terms are registered bonds, and pass only upon change registry; some have coupons for interest attached, and pass by delivery from hand to hand. Your orators attach hereto as part of their bill of complaint a copy of the resolutions of the board of directors of said company, marked "Exhibit H," which were adopted by said board November 10th, 1873.

Your orators, from information which they believe to be true, show to your honors that bonds of the description last named, amounting to nine hundred and seventy-seven thousand five hundred and fifty dollars, were on the first January, 1875, outstanding against said company, and from further information which they believe to be true, that the amount of floating or unsecured debt, outstanding against said company, over and above said amount just named, was on said last-named day one million one hundred and sixty-six thousand four hundred and ninety-two 19-100 dollars or thereabouts, composed of liabilities in the forms of notes, acceptances, and open accounts.

Your orators show, from information and belief, that large sums of money, arising from the current income of the business of the company, have been applied to extinguish other similar unsecured debts of the company, to the prejudice of the rights of the said mortgage-bond holders, which your orators are in duty bound to protect, and for whose security the same had been pledged, and which they have the right in equity and good conscience, and by the terms of said mortgage to have so applied, in preference to the claim of any such unsecured debts, and in so doing, the rights of the said cestuis qui trust, have been violated by the said corporation and that their protection requires that the property so pledged should be taken from the possession of said corporation, and be managed, used, and applied as specified and provided for by said deed of trust.

Your orators charge that the right of said corporation to the possession and control of said property, which is covered by the terms of the deed of trust first herein described, has been forfeited by the terms of said deed, and of right should be delivered to your orators, as trustees, and for the purposes of the said trust-deed, and the income and profits thereof be applied in payment of the debts held by the said cestuis qui trust, the holders of the bonds and coupons secured by the said deed of mortgage. Your orators charge that said corporation has made default in payment of the interest which fell due upon said bonds in May and November, 1874, and has so remained in default for a longer period than three months, and is still in such default. The coupons, which represented the interest due and maturing upon said bonds at said dates, were presented to the said corporation and its duly-authorized agents and officers, and payment thereof demanded, but the same was refused.

Your orators show to your honors that they have been called upon by the holders of coupons, and of bonds described in said first-mentioned deed of trust, and have been by them required to demand of said corporation the possession of said property of every kind and description, described in and conveyed by said deed, and to take possession and charge thereof, and proceed and execute the trust therein and thereby declared, for the security and protection of the holders of the bonds and obligations, for which said deed of trust and mortgage was made and executed by said railroad company.

Your orators further show that said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by its board of directors, admit the propriety of the claims of said cestuis qui trust, and the right of your orators to the possession and control of said railroad, and the property attached thereto, and all the property conveyed by said deed of trust, in order to the application thereof, as provided by said deed, and by preamble and resolutions adopted, a copy of which is hereto attached, "marked Exhibit J," and made a part of this bill, directed the vice-president of the company on demand of said trustees to put them in the possession and control of said property, of every kind and name, for the purposes of the said trust, and the security of the holders of the bonds secured thereby.

8 Your orators further show to your honors that in pursuance of the duty imposed upon them under said deed by the demand and instruction of said bond and coupon holders, they have demanded of said corporation that they be let into such possession of said railroad, and all of said property; that this, their reasonable demand, has been assented to, and that on the 8th day of May, 1875, with the assent of said corporation, they took full and formal possession of all of said property, and since that time, and now are by their agents, employees, and servants, in possession and occupancy of the same, and are managing, using, and operating said railroad, and the branches thereof, and all the property they have received, as such trustees under the said deed of trust. Complainants have caused to be prepared, and will produce the same at any moment they may be required, a full list and inventory of the property so received by them, and have furnished to the officers of said corporation for the use and security of said company and all interests, a full copy of the said inventory.

Your orators show to your honors that the steps they have taken with regard to this railroad and property, and what they desire to do, as also the fact of the filing of this bill and the orders and decrees they seek thereon, with a copy of this bill of complaint, have been made known and communicated to Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, co-trustees with your orator Duncan of that portion of said line of railroad and property in the State of Tennessee appropriated to the security of the bonds of said company, known as the Tennessee substitution bonds hereinbefore described.

The same information has been communicated to Samuel L. M. Barlow, co-trustee with your orator Duncan in the deed of mortgage and trust hereinbefore described, executed by said Mobile and Ohio Rail Road Company, on the first day of January, 1874; said parties being so advised, have approved and do approve of the acts and doings of these complainants in the premises, as appears by their written assent; copies whereof are hereto attached, and made part of this bill of complaint, marked "Exhibit K L."

Your orators show that they have named said parties in the beginning of this their bill of complaint, because of the large and important interest which they have or represent in the premises, and in order that they may be informed of the proceedings therein which your orators may take, or which may be ordered by your honors that they may take such action in the premises as they may be advised.

Your orators do not pray process against said parties, Iselin, Wilson, and Barlow, because of their citizenship, which excludes them from the jurisdiction of the court in this cause.

Your orators show to your honors, that the necessary result of the execution of these several mortgages by said railroad company, is greatly to complicate its affairs and create confusion in the administration of its income, and the application of the net profits of its business to the holders of the mortgage debts, according to their priority and rights of payment. This complication is further increased by the existence of the large, unsecured debt which the said corporation has created in the form of bonds, notes, acceptances, and other evidences of debt, amounting in the aggregate to over two millions of dollars, and by the further fact that upon sundry of these claims suits are now pending against said corporation, which have been reduced to judgment, or soon will be reduced to judgment against said company and whereon executions will issue against said company and its property, whereunder portions may be seized to the embarrassment and injury both of said company, and of its creditors who hold liens against its property.

Said complications and embarrassments are further heightened by the general depression of business pervading the country, and largely affecting that portion of it wherein the line of this road is located and operated, whereby the closest economy and most careful management is required on the part of those in charge of said road and property, to realize therefrom any surplus, and prevent the value of the property and franchises from degenerating and depreciating, to the ruin of the security of said bondholders.

Your orators show that to preserve said property and franchises, the said road and branches must be continued in operation, otherwise they will be liable to seizure by the several State governments through whose territory said road is located, and this entails the purchase of supplies and materials, and the employment of labor and skill for the continuance of said business, and requires the payment of large sums of money, all which is still more embarrassed by the fact that portions of said road and property are in distinct jurisdictions, and subject to the laws and authorities of independent States, and by the further fact, that of 9 necessity in the management of such property, of a length in the aggregate of more than five hundred miles, passing through four different States, connected with the business of distinct communities, its business itself composed of the transportation of millions of property in each direction, and for longer or shorter distances, and of the transportation of thousands of passengers, arising from innumerable contracts with individuals, and with other corporations, owning other lines of transportation connecting with the line of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad at its termini, and at intermediate points upon the line of its route, many questions will arise and many claims for breach of contract and for damages to person and property may occur.

Your orators state to your honors that they are in the possession of this railroad and property, with these embarrassments and difficulties connected with their position and the discharge of their duties as trustees, charged with the execution of difficult and delicate trusts; that they need the protection, advice, and instruction of this honorable court. They show that the home of said corporation is the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama, and the southern district of Alabama; that there is its principal office, and the headquarters of its business; there its accounts and books are kept, and where its directors hold their official meetings, and where the offices of its principal officers are kept, within the jurisdiction of the honorable circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama; that the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States for the States of Mississippi, Tennessee, and

Kentucky are over portions only of the property of said corporation, but not over said corporation in its home, and your orators are advised the same will be exercised in a manner subsidiary to that of the honorable circuit court for the State of Alabama; that this is required by consideration of the best interests of all parties concerned, in order that there may be a unity of management over the whole property, so that the same may be devoted effectively to the trusts for which it has been conveyed.

Your orators are advised that this necessary protection of themselves and of said property, and this necessary instruction of themselves from your honorable court can be obtained only upon a bill filed by them, presenting their case with proper parties, in relation to the property so conveyed to them as aforesaid. They make claim to no priority of right over the property and interests which have been conveyed in Tennessee, and are now represented by Mess'rs Iselin and Wilson, as trustees, in connection with your orator, Duncan, and which is applicable to the security of the bonds hereinbefore described and known as the Tennessee substitution bonds. The lien of your orators, trustees as aforesaid upon said property, extends to any surplus which may remain after satisfaction or other discharge of said Tennessee substitution bonds. Admitting that it has a priority under the mortgages, no conflict of purpose exists between the two sets of trustees. Your orators are informed that said trustees of the said property in Tennessee will file their bill of complaint in the honorable the circuit court of the United States for that State and district wherein said property lies, for the assertion of their lien, and the proper administration of that property, and the several proceedings for that purpose, as well as those for the execution of the duties of your orators, can proceed concurrently and for the common purpose of settling the equities of all parties in interest, and disposing of the whole subject as speedily and as harmoniously and inexpensively for the benefit of all persons concerned, as the nature of the case will admit.

To the end, therefore, that said defendants may, if they can, show why your orators should not have the relief hereby prayed, and may, upon their several and respective corporal oaths, and according to the best and utmost of their several and respective knowledge, remembrance, information, and belief, full, true, direct, and perfect answer make to such of the several interrogatories hereinafter numbered and set forth, as by the note hereunder written, they are respectively required to answer, that is to say:

1. Whether said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company did not, at the times and under the dates hereinbefore named, execute the several deeds of mortgage and trust for the purposes hereinbefore named.

2. Whether said corporration is not in default in the payment of interest coupons due upon the bonds issued by said corporation under the terms of the deed of trust and mortgage bearing date on 1st November, 1853.

3. Whether said default has not continued since 1st May, 1874, upon the portion which then matured, and since 1st November, 1874, upon the portion which then matured, and that said defendants may discover the amount of interest so due, in arrear, and unpaid. 10

4. Whether said corporation is not in default, and when it occurred, and for how much, in the interest due upon the bonds known as the Tennessee substitution bonds.

5. And also in default in payment of interest due upon its obligations secured by what is known as the second mortgage, and when it occurred, for how much and how long continued.

6. And also in default in payment of interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgage and deed of trust upon the line of road known as the Gainesville Branch.

7. Whether said corporation is not largely indebted to other persons and parties, who are holders of bonds, bills, notes, and other evidences of debt not secured by specific liens upon property of said company—the amount of said indebtedness—whether it has been promptly paid as it matured, or whether extended in any part, and whether any part thereof remains unadjusted, or is in suit; whether any and what judgments at law or in equity have been obtained, or about to be obtained, against said corporation.

8. Whether said line of railroad and branches, their length and location, in the several States, and the return of the business transacted by said corporation, is not as hereinbefore stated.

9. Whether orators are not in possession of the said line of railroad and branches, and the property described in said deed of trust and mortgage executed 1st November, 1853, as trustees under and by virtue of said deed.

10. Whether said possession of said property was not delivered, and is now held, with the approval and consent of the said railroad company by resolution of its board of directors, as hereinbefore stated.

11. Whether said company is in such position, that from its own resources, income, and profits it can promptly at maturity thereof, pay off and discharge the debts due by it according to the terms of the contracts, whereby said debts are assumed to be paid, or whether in fact it can promptly at maturity pay the same.

12. What is the amount of the bonded and mortgaged debt of said corporation, and how represented and secured?

13. What the amount of the unsecured debt, and how represented?

14. What is the amount gross and net income of said corporation per month since the first day of January, 1875.

Your orators pray your honors that, as trustees aforesaid, they may be confirmed in the possession of the property, assets, and franchises conveyed to the trustees of said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company under and by virtue of the said deed of mortgage and trust executed by said corporation on the said 1st day of November, 1853, and may be, by your honors, confirmed in the control and administration of said property, assets, and franchises described in the said deed, for the purposes of the trusts therein and thereby declared, for the purpose of securing to the creditors of said corporation under said deed of trust, their rights and interest under the same, and also the rights and interests of the persons and parties secured by the other deeds of mortgage and trust executed by the said corporation, and hereinbefore described, according to their priority and their legal and equitable claims, and also for the benefit of the holders of the shares of capital stock of said corporation, according to their respective interests in any surplus which may remain.

Your orators further pray, that their said possession of said property, railroad, and franchises may be protected from all interference by any party or parties whatsoever, except by and with the approval of this honorable court, upon application for good cause to be shown by such applicants—and as the interests of the several creditors under the said several deeds of mortgage hereinbefore stated, and of the stockholders in said corporation, are differently represented; and the property confided to your orators is of great value, in excess probably of the sum of fifteen millions of dollars, and the same is in constant and active use and employment upon an extensive line of railway, extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the Ohio River, through independent jurisdictions, and which is rendered necessary for the performance of the public functions and duties for which said corporation was organized, and for which it must be used to prevent forfeiture of said franchises, 11 and the same consists of great variety, in its nature and value, and the uses to which it has to be applied, your orators pray that they may have the powers of administration and employment about the business of said railroad and property as receivers thereof in a court of chancery; and that your orators in their possession, use, employment, and administration of said property and franchises, may, during the pending of these proceedings, be held and taken as receivers appointed by this honorable court.

Your orators hereby submit to present their accounts to this honorable court as receivers of said property, once every four months, with a statement of their accounts and doings as trustees in possession, and are ready from time to time to account for all property and money which may at any time come to their possession and control, as such trustees; and to give such bonds as the court may require, and pray of this honorable court that they may be allowed to administer the trusts in their hands under the order of the court, and to receive its protection. They pray that they may be allowed from time to time, by petition or motion, to pray the court for instructions and orders, and obtain its protection against interference by any person or party in said property and the management thereof.

Your orators further pray that the several and all the debts described in the several deeds of trust and mortgages in this their bill set out, and all their liens on the estate and properties of the said railroad company, may be ascertained and the several priorities thereof adjusted; that all estate and property belonging to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company covered by said mortgages and deed may be sold, or leased, or otherwise so disposed of under the orders and decrees of this honorable court that the same may be most beneficially used for the good of all parties who have any interest therein, according to their respective rights and equities.

Your orators also pray that they may have leave to apply the moneys received by them during the pending of these proceedings to the payment of necessary supplies, materials, and labor, about the business of the trust, in the operation of said line of railroad, and for the relief of the several creditors of the corporation, according to equity, but always under leave of the court; that they may be permitted from time to time to apply for instructions to aid them in the execution of their trust; and that all requisite and necessary orders be from time to time made and allowed, as will permit to your orators, under the control of the court, the full execution of the deeds of trust aforesaid, and the beneficial dispositions of the property comprised in the same and conveyed and covered thereby, as may accord with the equitable rights of all parties concerned. Your orators pray that the equity of redemption of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and of all parties claiming by, through, or under it, in and to the property, estates, and rights conveyed in and by said deed of mortgage herein first described, may be forever barred and foreclosed, as against your orators and the cestuis qui trust for whom they are acting in the premises, and that your honors will grant such other or further relief in the premises as the nature of the case shall require and to your honors shall seem meet.

May it please your honors to grant unto your orators the writ of subpœna of the United States of America, to be directed to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and to the said William D. Dunn, George H. Young, Samuel Williams, who are trustees of the mortgage executed by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, on the 15th day of February, 1860, and to the said William D. Dunn, John Reid, j'r, and Rob't C. Crawford, who are trustees of the mortgage executed by the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, upon the branch railroad known as the Gainesville Branch, and the property along the line of said branch railroad and appurtenant thereto; and to such other persons as may be necessary or proper persons, when they may be known and become amenable to the jurisdiction of this honorable court, thereby commanding them and any of them, at a certain day, and under a certain penalty to be therein named, to be and appear before your honors in this honorable court, and then and there to answer all and singular the premises, and to stand to, abide, and perform such order and decree therein as shall seem to your honors agreeable to equity and good conscience. And your orators will ever pray.

13 EXHIBIT A.

Charter of Alabama.

An act to incorporate the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama, in general assembly convened, That Jonathan Emanuel, George N. Stewart, Moses Waring, Sidney Smith, John Bloodgood, Miguel D. Eslava, Samuel G. Fisher, Charles Le Baron, John A. Campbell, Archibald W. Gordon, Charles Gascoigne, Philip Philips, John C. Whitsett, and M. J. D. SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the immediate government and direction of the affairs of said company shall be vested in a board of thirteen directors, who shall be chosen by the stockholders of said company in the manner hereinafter provided, and shall hold their office until others are duly elected and qualified to take their places as directors; and the said directors, seven of whom, the president being one, shall be a quorum for the transaction of business, shall select one of 15 their number to be president of the board, who shall also be president of said company. They shall also choose a secretary and such other officers as they may deem necessary, and a treasurer, who shall give bond, with security, to said company in such sum as the said directors may require for the faithful discharge of his trust.

And be it further enacted, That the persons authorized by the third section of this act to open the books for subscription to the capital stock, are hereby authorized, after the books of subscription to the capital stock of said company are closed, or when the sum subscribed shall exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to call the first meeting of the stockholders of said company, in such way, and at such time and place, as they may appoint, for the choice of directors of said company; and in all meetings of the stockholders of said company, each share shall entitle the holder thereof to one vote, which vote may be given by said stockholder in person, or by lawful proxy; and the annual meeting of the stockholders of said company, for the choice of directors, shall be holden at such time and place, and upon such notice, as said company in their by-laws may prescribe.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the directors shall have full power to make and prescribe such by-laws, rules, and regulations as they shall deem needful and proper, touching the disposition and management of the stock, property, estate, and effects of said company, not contrary to this charter, or the laws of this State or of the United States; the transfer of shares, the duties and conduct of their officers and servants; touching the election of and meeting of the directors; and all matters whatsoever which may appertain to the concerns of said company. Said company is also hereby authorized to purchase, receive and hold such estate as may be necessary and convenient in accomplishing the object for which this incorporation is granted, and may by their agents, surveyors, engineers, and servants enter upon all lands and tenements through which they may deem it necessary to make said road, and to survey, lay out, and construct the same, and to agree and which they may intend to make the said road. In case said lands belong to the estate of any deceased person, then, with the executor or administrator of such; or in case of the same belonging to a minor or person non compos mentis, then, with his or her guardian or guardians; or in case said lands be held by trustees of school sections or other trustees of estates, then with such trustees; and the said executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees are hereby declared competent for such estate, or minor, to contract with said company for the right to use, occupy and possess the lands of such estates, minors, or trustees, so far as may be useful or necessary to the purposes of said railroad; and the act and deed of said executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees, in relation thereto, shall pass the title in said land in the same manner as if the said deed or act was made or done by a legal owner of full age; and such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall account to those interested, upon their respective bonds, for the amount paid him in pursuance of such agreement and composition; and if the said company and parties representing lands prefer, they may refer the question of compensation to arbitrators, mutually chosen, whose award, or that of their umpire in case of disagreement, shall rest title according to its terms.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That if the said company cannot agree with the owner of the land through which they desire said road to pass, or with the executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, it shall and may be lawful for the clerk of the circuit court of the county in which the said land lies, on application of said company or its agents, and he is required, to issue a writ of ad quod damnum, commanding the sheriff that without delay he cause a jury of six good and lawful men to be upon such land on a day to be by said sheriff fixed and appointed, and whereof it shall be his duty to give notice to the owner, executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, at least five days before such day if they be within his county, or if not, or if the owner or owners be unknown, then notice shall be given by advertisement to be by said sheriff posted and fixed at the dwelling-house, if such there be, or on a public or conspicuous place, at least five days before such appointed day, and also by advertising the same in some newspaper, published nearest the land, at least three weeks by weekly insertions prior to said day; and then cause said jury, after being duly sworn by said sheriff, or justice of the peace, to make true inquest of the damage 17 that will be sustained by such owner or estate by reason of making said road through such land. If any juror shall fail to appear, or by reason of challenge for cause, or otherwise fail to sit on said inquest, the said sheriff shall fill said jury from the bystanders, and if they fail to render a verdict the said sheriff shall again, on the same or a subsequent day, empannel a new jury or jurors until a verdict be had; such verdict and inquest, regularly certified by such sheriff, shall be returned to the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the county in which said land may be and there remain among the records; and such verdict shall vest in said company the right to occupy and use such land for the purpose of said railroad, on the payment or tender of payment of the damages thereon assessed against such company; and in case of persons absent, or unknown as aforesaid, the placing of the amount of such damages to the credit of the owner, in the hands of the judge of the county court of the county in which such lands may lie, shall be deemed and taken as payment; and such judges shall be liable on their bonds to make due payment of said money on demand.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the sheriff to appoint and hold said inquest within ten days after the receipt of said writ of "ad quod damnum," except in cases of absence aforesaid, in which case thirty days shall be allowed him, and five days in addition are allowed him for every additional jury which he may have under said writ; and for every default therein, the said sheriff shall be fined by the circuit court, at the instance of either party, not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars; and every juror and witness summoned shall be fined not less than ten dollars for non-attendance; of all such fines, as well as costs, the circuit court of the county shall have jurisdiction. There shall be allowed the following fees: to the clerk of the circuit court for every writ of "ad quod damnum," seventy-five cents; for receiving and filing inquest, seventy-five cents; to the sheriff for giving notice, seventy-five cents, besides printer's fees not exceeding two dollars in each case; for holding inquest, five dollars; and for summoning witnesses, twenty-five cents each; to jurors, seventy-five cents per diem, each; which fees are not allowed until a verdict be returned and filed, and shall be taxed in the bill of costs, and paid by the company: Provided, however, That before the application for said writ, the said company may make a tender to the owner or owners of any such land, a sum of money, by them deemed equivalent to the damage to be 18 sustained, and upon refusal to accept the sum tendered, and a verdict for the same amount or a less sum, the costs shall be taxed to, and paid by the owners of, the land upon which inquest is held.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That said company is hereby authorized to construct, erect, build, and use a single, double or treble railway, or road, of suitable width and dimensions, to be determined by the directors of said company, on the line or course by them designated, and also, under the same rules, regulations and restrictions, and with the like privileges and immunities, as are herein granted to the main railroad, to build and construct branch railroads on either side of the said main road, not exceeding thirty miles, and shall have power to regulate the time and manner in which goods and passengers shall be transported, taken, and carried on the same, and shall have power to erect and maintain toll-houses and other buildings for the accommodation of their concerns as they may deem suitable for their interest.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That whenever it shall be necessary for the construction of their single, double, or treble railroad or way, to intersect or cross any stream of water or water-course, or any road or highway, it shall be lawful for said company to construct across or upon the same; but the said company shall restore the said stream or water-course, or road or highway, thus intersected to its former state, or in a sufficient manner not to impair its usefulness, and in all cases where any road or public highway is so located, that said railroad cannot be judiciously laid out and constructed across or upon the same without interfering therewith, in such case or cases said corporation may, by their engineer, cause such road or roads to be changed or altered in such manner that said railroad may be made on the best site of ground for that purpose: Provided, said corporation shall put such road in as good repair as at the time of changing or altering the same.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the company hereby incorporated, from time to time, to fix, regulate, and receive the toll and charges by them to be received, for transportation of persons or property on their railroad or way aforesaid, hereby authorized to be constructed, erected, built or used, or upon any part thereof.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That if any person or persons, will, or shall willfully do or cause to be done any act or acts whatsoever, whereby any building, construction or works of said company, 19 or any engine, machine or structure, or any matter or thing appertaining to the same shall be stopped, obstructed, impaired, weakened, injured or destroyed, the persons so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall forfeit and pay to said company double the amount of damages sustained by reason of such offenses or injury, to be recovered in the name of said corporation, with costs of suit by action of debt.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That the directors of said company may require the payment of the sum or sums subscribed to the capital stock of said company, at such times and in such proportions, and upon such conditions as they may deem fit; and in case any stockholder shall refuse or neglect to make payment pursuant to the requisition of the board of directors, the stock of such stockholder, or so much as shall be necessary, may be sold by the directors of said corporation at public auction, after the lapse of ninety days from the time when the payment became due, and the surplus money, the avails of such sale, after deducting the payments due, and interest thereon, and the necessary expenses of sale, shall be paid over to such delinquent stockholder.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That the property owned by the said company shall at all times be subject to taxation, in the same manner, and to the same extent, as similar property owned by private individuals.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That if the said railroad shall not be commenced in five years from the passage of this act, and shall not be finished within this State in ten years from the time of commencement thereof, then this act shall be null and void.

CHARTER OF THE COMPANY.

An act to incorporate the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and the Tennessee Central Railroad Company.

Whereas it appears to this general assembly, from the memorial of Jonathan Emanuel, president, and George N. Stewart, Sidney Smith, Moses Waring, Cha's Le Baron, and S. Griffitts Fisher, directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Association, that a company has been organized at Mobile in the State of Alabama, for the purpose of constructing a railroad from Mobile to the Tennessee River, and from thence to a suitable point near the mouth of the Ohio River; for which purpose said board of president and directors have applied to this general assembly for the passage of such a law as may be necessary to authorize the construction of said road through the State of Tennessee. And whereas it is deemed a matter of vital importance to this State that a direct communication by railroad to the Gulf of Mexico be established; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the said Jonathan Emanuel, president, and the said Geo. N. Stewart, Sidney Smith, Moses Waring, Charles Le Baron, and S. Griffitts Fisher, directors, and their associates, who shall be the stockholders of said company, and their successors, under the name and style of "The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," are hereby declared to be a body corporate and politic under the laws of Tennessee, with succession for five hundred years, and a common seal, with capacity to and estate of whatsoever nature and quality, and the same to alien, transfer, and dispose of, so far as may be necessary to carry into effect the main object of this charter, which is hereby declared to be the construction, use and maintenance of a railroad from Mobile in the State of Alabama, to some point on the Mississippi or Ohio River, near the mouth of the Ohio, passing through the State of Tennessee.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That said company is hereby declared capable of making all contracts, to sue and be sued, to make by-laws, to appoint officers, servants, and agents, and finally to do all things which may be necessary to carry on the business and object for which said corporation is created. The said company is invested with all the powers necessary for the construction, repair, use, and maintenance of the said railroad, with as many tracks, depots, turnouts, side tracks, landings, warehouses, workshops, and appurtenances as they may find necessary, and is authorized to make all works whatever, which may be necessary or expedient for the proper completion, use, and utility of said road, and to use the same for profit, and make dividends among thes tockholders; to procure, by purchase, gift, or release, or otherwise, such lands and other property as may be necessary for the site of said railroad, or its construction and convenient use, or for the erection and use of depots, warehouses, landings, bridges, or other works connected therewith, and to construct as many lateral roads, with appurtenances connected with said main stem as they may deem proper, not extending more than fifty miles from the main road.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That said company shall be authorized and required to open books for the subscription of shares in the capital stock of said corporation in the State of Tennessee, so as to afford to the citizens of this State an opportunity to take stock to the amount of one-fourth of the capital of said company: Provided, That if said fourth be not subscribed in Tennessee within six months after the books are opened, then it may be taken elsewhere.

SEC. 4. Be it enacted, That the right of way is hereby granted to said corporation to pass through the State of Tennessee with said road, and to use all lands, rock, timber, earth, sand, gravel, water, or other materials which may be found on the route selected, and which may belong to the State of Tennessee, and be necessary for the use of the road, and also to appropriate and use all such lands and materials, being private property, as may be necessary, making just compensation 26 for all private property used, by contract with the parties, or by arbitration with them; and when the parties cannot agree upon the compensation to be made by the company for the use of the road, depots, &c., then the value shall be ascertained by legal proceedings as hereinafter prescribed.

SEC. 5. Be it enacted, That where any lands or right of way may be required by said company for the purpose of constructing their road, and for want of agreement as to the value thereof, or from any other cause the same cannot be purchased from the owner or owners, the same may be taken at a valuation, to be made by five commissioners, or a majority of them, to be appointed by the circuit court of the county where some part of the land or right of way is situated; and the said commissioners, before they act, shall severally take an oath, before some justice of the peace, faithfully and impartially to discharge the duty assigned them. In making the said valuation, the commissioners shall take into consideration the loss or damage which may occur to the owner or owners in consequence of the land being taken, or the right of way surrendered, and also the benefit and advantage he, she, or they may receive from the erection or establishment of the railroad or works, and shall state particularly the nature and amount of each, and the excess of loss or damage, over and above the benefit and advantage, shall form the measure of valuation of said land or right of way. The proceedings of said commissioners, accompanied with a full description of said land or right of way, shall be returned, under the hands and seals of a majority of the commissioners, to the court from which the commission issued, there to remain of record. In case either party to the proceedings shall appeal from the valuation to the next session of the court granting the commission, and give reasonable notice to the opposite party of such appeal, the court shall order a new valuation to be made by a jury, who shall be charged therewith in the same term, or as soon as practicable, and their verdict shall be final and conclusive between the parties, unless a new trial shall be granted; and the lands or right of way so valued by the commissioners or jury shall vest in said compay in fee simple so soon as the valuation is paid or tendered and refused. Where there may be an appeal, as aforesaid, from the valuation of commissioners, by either of the parties, the same shall not prevent the works intended to be constructed from proceeding; but where the appeal is by the company requiring the surrender, they shall be at liberty to proceed in their works only on condition of giving the opposite party court where the valuation is returned, in a penalty equal to double the said valuation, conditioned for the payment of said valuation and interest, in case the same be sustained, and in case it be reversed, for the payment of the valuation thereafter to be made by the jury and confirmed by the court: Provided, that when the land cannot be had by gift or purchase, the construction of the work shall not be hindered or delayed during the pendency of any proceeding to assess its value as aforesaid; nor shall any injunction or supersedeas be awarded by any judge or court to delay the progress of said work.

Sec. 6. Be it enacted, That in the absence of any contract with the said company in relation to lands through which the said road may pass, signed by the owner thereof, or by his agent, or any claimant or person in possession thereof, which may be confirmed by the owner, it shall be presumed that the land upon which said road may be constructed, together with the space of one hundred feet on each side of the centre of said road, has been granted to the company by the owner thereof, and said company shall have good right and title thereto, and shall have, hold and enjoy the same as long as the same be used only for the purpose of the road, and no longer, unless the person or persons owning said land at the time that part of the road, which may be on said land, was finished, or those claiming under him, her, or them, shall apply for an assessment of the value of the said lands, as hereinbefore directed, within five years next after that part of said road was finished; and in case the said owner or owners, or those claiming under him, her or them, shall not apply for such assessment within five years next after the said part was finished, he, she or they shall be forever barred from recovering of the said land, or having any assessment or compensation therefor; Provided, Nothing herein contained shall affect the right of femes covert or infants, until two years after the removal of their respective disabilities.

Sec. 7. Be it enacted, That if any person shall wilfully or maliciously destroy, or in any manner hurt, damage or obstruct the said railroad, or any bridge, or any vehicle, used for or in the transportation thereon, such person or persons so offending, shall be liable to be indicted therefor, and on conviction, shall be imprisoned not more than six nor less than one month, and pay a fine not less than twenty dollars, and shall be further liable to pay all the expenses of repairing the same. And it shall not be competent for any person so offending against the 28 provisions of this section to defend himself by pleading that he was the owner, or agent, or servant of the owner of the land where such destruction, hurt, damage, injury or obstruction was done, or caused, at the time the same was caused or done.

Sec. 8. Be it enacted, That every obstruction to the safe and free passage of vehicles on the said road, shall be deemed a public nuisance, and may be abated as such by any officer, agent or servant of the company, and the person causing such obstruction may be indicted and punished for erecting a public nuisance.

Sec. 9. Be it enacted, That the said company is hereby expressly prohibited from carrying on any banking operations; but may effect insurance on lives and property transported on said road.

rogated in all the rights, privileges, and lien or liens of the State, to the extent of and in proportion to the amount of such indebtedness, with the same rights and privileges the State now has, to the extent of such payment or payments: Provided, The passage of this act shall not decrease the lien of the State upon any railroad of the State, until the entire claim of the State is fully liquidated, or affect the interest of the present bondholders of the State: Provided, That railroad companies which have issued second-mortgage bonds, availing themselves of 32 the provisions of this act, shall file with the comptroller bonds of the same series as those loaned to such company, for which the State holds a first-mortgage lien: Provided, The bonds to be issued by the company under the provisions of this act, shall not have a longer time to run than the bonds of the State thus released and cancelled. (Ib., sec. 8.)

1135. C.—1. That an act entitled "An act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25th, 1869, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to allow any railroad company which may be indebted to the State by reason of the bonds of the State loaned to said railroad company, to pay into the State, in liquidation of the principal of said indebtedness, any of the legally-issued six per cent. bonds of the State of Tennessee outstanding, without regard to series or number; and such payment shall, to the extent made, be a full and perfect discharge of the lien which the State holds upon the property of such railroad company, held by virtue of the bonds of the State issued to such railroad company, whether they be the same bonds or the same series of bonds issued to said company under the act passed February 11, 1852, and acts amendatory thereof, or not. (Act 1869-'70, ch. 47, sec. 1.)

2. That railroad companies issuing their own mortgage bonds under the provisions of the act which this is intended to amend, be allowed to fix the rate of interest which the said bonds of the railroad company are to bear; and all laws in conflict are hereby repealed: Provided, That when said railroad companies owe interest already due, coupons past due shall be taken up by the comptroller or treasurer in discharge of such indebtedness for interest. (Ib., sec. 2.)

NOTE.—Under the foregoing laws, the State of Tennessee has now no lien on any of the lands of the company.

Palmer, of the city of New York and State of New York, and William R. Hallett, of the city of Mobile and State of Alabama, of the second part,

Witnesseth, whereas the legislature of the State of Alabama passed an act of incorporation, approved the third day of February, 1848, creating certain associates therein named, and their survivors, a body politic and corporate, by the name of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and by that name to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, to make and have a common seal, and the same break, alter, and renew at pleasure—vested with all powers, privileges, and immunities which are or may be necessary to carry into effect its purposes and 35 objects—authorized and empowered to locate, construct, and finally complete a single, double, or treble railroad or way from some suitable point in the city of Mobile, in a western or northwesterly direction, to the mouth of the Ohio River, in such route as shall be deemed most expedient, and to transport, take, and carry property and persons upon said railroad or way, by the power and force of steam, of animals, or of any other mechanical or other power, or any combination of them, which said company may choose to apply; and, for the purpose of constructing said railroad or way, the said company is authorized to lay out the road, not exceeding one hundred feet wide, through the whole length; and for the purposes of depots, cuttings, and embankments, and for the purpose of necessary turnouts, and for obtaining stone and gravel, may take as much more land as may be necessary for the construction and security of said road, with permission to make any lawful contract with any other railroad corporation, in relation to the business of said company, and also to make joint stock with any other railroad corporation.

Further, the State of Mississippi incorporated the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by act of its legislature, approved the seventeenth day of February, 1848; the State of Tennessee did also incorporate said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company by act of the legislature, approved the twentieth day of February, 1848; and also the State of Kentucky invested said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with corporate rights by an act of its legislature, approved the twenty-sixth day of February, 1848, constituting the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company a full and complete corporation through the said State, authorized to purchase, hold and dispose of real and personal estate; to borrow

And whereas the said roadway is under contract for the complete work of the road-bed from its respective termini, and in progress of construction, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, parties of the first part, resolved by vote of the board of directors, and in pur-36 suance of the power and authority in said company vested, to raise a sum of money not exceeding six millions of dollars, for the purpose of completing said road viz: the purchase of the iron and laying the same, the necessary turnouts, depots, and equipments; and for the purpose to execute, issue, sell and transfer the bonds of said company in sums of two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling each, of even date with these presents, payable in thirty years from date, each with coupons attached for interest, payable semi-annually; each coupon being for £6 15s. sterling; both the principal and coupons, and interest on said bonds, until paid, payable at the counting house of George Peabody & Co., bankers, in London, England, each of said sterling bonds being the same as one thousand dollars, money of the United States of America, and not exceeding six thousand bonds, each to be numbered respectively from number one to six thousand inclusive, and for security for the payment of said bonds, to transfer to the said parties of the second part, all and singular, all the rights and franchises of said company, together with all its personal property of a fixed character, real estate, including its depots, warehouses, lots in town and country, and especially all lands donated by act of Congress, under date of the twentieth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, transferred in fee-simple to the said company, party of the first part, by act of the legislature of the State of Alabama, approved December first, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one; by act of the legislature of the State of Mississippi, approved January twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two; said lands having been duly selected, set apart and confirmed to said railroad company, party of the first part, and designated by described tracts, as will appear by the act of the commissioner of the general land office at Washington, certified, affirmed, and ratified by the act of the honorable the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, one of the executive departments of the Government of the United States of America, dated Washington D. C., February the fourth, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.

Now, therefore, this indenture further witnesseth, that the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, the better to secure the payment of said bonds, and every part thereof, with interest according to the tenor thereof, and in consideration of the sum of five dollars unto the said company, well and truly paid by the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, at or before the ensealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have granted, trans-37 ferred, set over and conveyed, and by these presents do grant, transfer, set over and convey unto the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, the survivors or successors of them, in fee simple, all and singular of the rights and privileges of every name and kind, as hereinafter set forth, being the first and only conveyance of title, grant, or mortgage, hereby guaranteeing and warranting the described items, assets, and real estate free from all liens or incumbrances done, or suffered to be done, by the said party of the first part. The said items, as set forth, are as follows:

All the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad lying between its respective termini, constructed, and to be constructed, together with all and singular, the railways, rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned, and which may hereafter be owned, by said company, including the said lands donated by act of Congress hereinbefore referred to, and which reference is to be taken as a full and correct description of the lands derived from Congress, amounting, as by the certificate of the Department of the Interior, to 419,528 56-100 acres in the State of Alabama; to 737,130 36-100 acres in the State of Mississippi—total 1,156,658 92-100 acres; saving and excepting therefrom so much as lies in township four south, range one west, of lands subject to entry in the S't Stephens land office, Alabama, being 692 78-100 acres, more or less; saving and excepting also the lots and tracts in the county of Mobile, State of Alabama, outside of the line of the railway, outside of its depots, and outside of the corporate limits of the city of Mobile, being lots and lands derived by private purchase, not yet fully paid for, and not included in the list of lands in Mobile County derived under and by the act of Congress; and saving and reserving the rights and liens that may attach to the roadway and construction thereon, in favor of the State of Tennessee, which will exist and attach as a prior lien by statute of that said State, in the event of said State aiding in the construction of so much of the roadway as lies in said State, viz: one hundred and eighteen miles, which aid is provided for by law of that State, and, if used by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad, the said prior lien in favor of said State will be to the extent of said State aid, not exceeding ten thousand dollars per mile. To have and to hold the said premises, hereinbefore set forth, to the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, their survivors or successors, for the benefit, security, and advantage of the person or persons, or corporations, or any other party who shall 38 or may be holders of the before-described bonds, or any of them, conditioned as follows:

The said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett shall at once have possession and control of the lands donated by act of Congress, and set forth in the before-mentioned certificate of the Secretary of the Interior, of February fourth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, for 1,156,658 92-100 acres, and any other lands that may be obtained for the said company by the present or by future acts of Congress, with authority to devise and determine rules of management of sale, of investing the net proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking fund for the redemption or payment of said bonds; said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett rendering an exhibit and account of their doings on or before the first days of January of each and every year during the period of the trust herein made, to the said parties of the first part. The said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett shall have full authority to appoint an agent or agents to attend to said land business, who shall account for his or their doings to them, paying over to them all the proceeds of sales or rents or profits derived from said lands. It is provided, however, that unless the said railroad company should be in default on any obligations connected with said bonds no sale of said lands shall be made except by and with the advice and consent of said company. 39 said company, for themselves, their successors and assigns, do hereby covenant and agree with the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or their successors, in behalf of the bondholders, that the money received on the said bonds shall be applied in good faith, on the construction and completion of said road, and putting the same into operation.

And on the failure of said company to do and perform any and all the covenants herein agreed the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or survivors or successors, upon the request in writing of any one or more of the bondholders, may and shall take actual possession of all said railroad and the other property and effects of said company hereby conveyed, transferred, and assigned, or so intended to be, and through the agency of such person or persons as they may from time to time appoint, may receive and collect the tolls, incomes, and profits of the same, for the purpose of the security hereinbefore declared, and may sell and dispose of the said road and other property hereby mortgaged, conveyed, or assigned, or so intended to be, and all benefit and equity of redemption of the said company therein, always with the benefit of franchise, and subject to the conditions thereof, at public auction, giving reasonable public notice of the time and place of sale, and as the attorney or attorneys of the said company for that purpose by these presents duly constituted to make and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance for the reals estate in fee simple or otherwise according to the title of said company therein, and good and proper transfer and assignments of the personal property, and out of the money arising either from the income or profits of the said road, and other mortgaged, conveyed, or assigned property, or effects of the sale thereof, after deducting the expenses incurred in carrying on the business of the road, and in keeping the same in repair, together with the costs, charges, and counsel fees incurred in their proceedings, and a reasonable compensation to themselves for their services, in case of such sale, to apply so much of the residue as may be necessary to pay the principal and interest which may be due on said bonds issued as aforesaid, rendering the balance of such moneys, if any shall remain, to said company. And the sale so made shall be a perpetual bar against the said parties of the first part, and the persons claiming by, from, or under them. Provided, however, and it is hereby expressly understood and agreed, that neither of them, the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or their successors or assigns, shall in no manner be liable or responsible for any act of the other, to which he does not ex-40 pressly assent; and that they shall be accountable only for the exercise of reasonable care and dilligence in their management in the premises.

And it is further covenanted and agreed between the said parties that if either of them, the said Ketchum, Palmer, or Hallett, shall at any time or times hereafter die, or become from any cause incapable of acting in the premises, or resign his office under these presents, then the said company and the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or either of them, may select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and shall thereupon make, execute, and deliver all and singular such other and further instruments or assurances as may be necessary to enable such person or persons so selected to act in the execution of these presents. But until such selection of some person or persons to fill such vacancy or vacancies, and the execution of the papers requisite to enable him or them to act, the act or acts of the other shall, notwithstanding such vacancy, be in all respects legal and valid. And it is expressly understood that the conveyance made by this indenture is only on and for the present rights, interest, and property, and in the future to be acquired rights, interest, and property, and appurtenances of the parties of the first part as do or may exist on the line of said railroad from the city of Mobile to the mouth of the Ohio River. And it is hereby further provided, and these presents are upon the express condition, that upon the payment or satisfaction of the principal and interest of the aforesaid bonds, the estate hereby granted and conveyed to Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, their survivors or successors, and the property and effects mortgaged, conveyed, or transferred to them, shall cease and become void; and the said company shall thereupon be fully and immediately reinvested with the same, both in law and equity, and in fact without any entry or other act whatever.

Resolutions of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

At a called meeting of the board of directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, held 25th May, 1871, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas at sundry times heretofore, to enable this corporation to iron, equip, and complete its line of railway through the State of Tennessee, said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of its general internal improvement laws, and of the acts amendatory and supplementary thereto, theretofore passed, and then in full force, loaned to this company, or has advanced for its benefits, bonds of the said State of Tennessee, to the aggregate sum of one million six hundred and eighty-four thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,684,800);

Whereof payment, both of principal and accruing interest, was to be made by this company, as the same matured, and for the security of which payments, of principal and interest, a lien was reserved to said State upon the entire road in the State of Tennessee, including the right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company, as incident to or necessary for its business; and all depots and depot stations, and all the property and assets attached thereto, or belonging to said company, lying within the limits of said State, with power to seize, and in default of payment of the principal, to sell in the nature of a mortgage-lien, as appears by reference to the said statutes of the State of Tennessee;

And whereas by act of the said State of Tennessee, chapter xxxviii, 46 passed at the second session of the thirty-fifth general assembly of the State, entitled "An act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25, 1869, it is among other things enacted that any person or corporation may, with the consent of the board of director of any railroad company, so having received aid under said general internal improvement law, passed 11th February, 1852, and the amends ments thereto, pay off the indebtedness of such railroad company, to the said State, in the mode and manner therein provided, and with the consent of such railroad company upon such payment to be subrogated to all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had, or has, upon said railroad, or its property, and have the same right to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had;

And whereas this corporation is desirous to avail itself of the provisions of said law, and return to said State of Tennessee the like amount of bonds of said State as have heretofore been loaned to it, or advanced for its benefits by an issue of its own bonds, to be exchanged for said State bonds with the holders thereof, and at the same time to secure to the holders of said substituted bonds in good faith all the protection and security which the said State of Tennessee held for its protection and indemnity against loss and damage, by reason of its said loan to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by virtue of the laws of the said State, were no change made in the form of security originally held by said State, according to the true intent and meaning of the act passed 25th February, 1869:

Therefore, be it resolved by the board of directors of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company as follows:

1st. The president of this company is hereby authorized and empowered to cause to be prepared and issued, under the seal of this company, to the amount of one million six hundred and eighty five thousand dollars ($1,685,000), the same to be signed by the president, or in his absence by one of the vice-presidents, and countersigned by the secretary and treasurer, said bonds to be made payable in gold coin of the United States in the city of New York or in the city of London, at the option of the holder; to be each for the sum of one thousand dollars or two hundred and five pounds sterling, and payable on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1901. Said bonds to bear interest at seven per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, or 1st January and July in each year, at New York or London at the option of the holder, and for which interest, coupons or interest-warrants are to be attached to said bonds.

47 2d. That W'm Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, are hereby declared the agents of this company to effect the substitution of its said bonds as above authorized, in place of the said bonds of the State of Tennessee, for the purposes and objects declared in the preamble to these resolutions; and upon and from and after such substitution and as rapidly as the same is effected, the said W'm Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, and their successors, are hereby declared to be trustees for the mutual benefit of this company and of the holders of said bonds, and are hereby authorized to defend and protect the rights conferred on the holders of said bonds by the said acts and laws of the said State of Tennessee and hereby acknowledged and recognized. In case of the death or resignation of any of said trustees the vacancy shall be filled by the joint appointment of the remaining trustees or trustee, and the president of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with the approval of its board of directors; and if all become incapable of acting, new trustees are to be appointed by this company.

3d. This company does hereby declare that it does and will at all times acknowledge and recognize the bonds herein authorized to be issued, when so substituted in the room and place of the said bonds of the State of Tennessee in manner herein and by said act provided, as entitled to, and in fact being a lien, in the nature of a first mortgage upon all the property of this company in the said State, the same precisely as is now declared to exist in favor of the said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of the statutes thereof, in pursuance of which the said loan and advance of State bonds was made to the company.

And this company does hereby covenant to and with the said trustees, their survivors and survivor and successors, that it will in good faith do and perform all things, acts, and deeds necessary and proper, and which it may be reasonably requested to do, for the protection of the rights of the holders of said substituted bonds, and of said trustees for their benefit, according to the true intent and meaning of the said acts and laws of the State of Tennessee hereinbefore referred to and of these resolutions; and further, that this company shall and will annually hereafter, from and after the first day of April, 1873, within three months thereafter, and during each year while said bonds herein authorized are running to maturity, provide and set apart from 48 the earnings of the company a fund of at least one per centum of the amount of said bonds, and will annually faithfully apply said sums of money so set apart, as a sinking-fund to the purchase and gradual retirement of said bonds; and on or by the 1st day of April, 1874, and every year thereafter, till said bonds are fully retired will furnish to said trustees evidence of the performance of this stipulation, as may be agreed on.

Resolved, that the president of this company be, and he is hereby directed, under its corporate seal, to execute and deliver to said W'm Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, as trustees aforesaid, its deed for the uses and purposes herein declared and for the effectual protection and security of the holders of the bonds hereby authorized to be issued, according to the true intent and meaning of these resolutions.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy from the minutes of the board of directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

And, further, unless and until default be made as aforesaid, and until all the first mortgage bonds heretofore issued by the said party of the first part as aforesaid, be exchanged for the consolidated mortgage bonds to be issued under these presents, as herein and hereby provided for, or otherwise retired, nothing herein contained shall in any manner interfere with the sale and disposition of the lands donated to the said party of the first part, by the Congress of the United States, in manner and for the uses and purposes described in the said first mortgage or deed of trust executed by the said party of the first part; but the said parties of the second part shall, with the approval of the said party of the first part, appoint a suitable agent to co-operate in and about the sale and disposition of said lands, as provided in said first mortgage, and under such regulations as said parties of the said second part may prescribe, see to the proper application of the moneys realized from such 65 sales, as provided for in said first mortgage and in pursuance thereof; and upon the exchange or retiring as aforesaid of the said first-mortgage bonds, and the using of the trusts therein heretofore created, then the said proceeds of said sales of said lands are applied to the withdrawal and retirement of the bonds issued under and in conformity to these presents; and of all their doings in this respect, by the said parties and their agent or agents, full records shall be made and kept, and always subject to the inspection of the parties to this indenture. If default shall be made in the payment of the interest upon any of said consolidated mortgage bonds on the demand of the bona fide holders of the coupons representing at least one-fifth of the said bonds secured by this indenture, and ninety days after the said demand, the aforesaid trustees, or the survivor of them, or their successors, shall enter upon and take possession of all the above-described property, franchises and liens of said railroad, and by their agents duly appointed, shall direct the management of the same, collecting all incomes and receipts, and after defraying the necessary and proper expenses of operating the said railroad of the said company, shall pay from the proceeds thereof, all the interest then due and in arrears upon said consolidated mortgage bonds; or the said trustees, in their discretion, may proceed, after ninety days' notice, to be given in one or more newspapers published in the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama, and in the cities of New York and Boston, and London, in England, to sell, at public auction, in the city of Mobile, Alabama, such part of the said railroad company's property as shall be sufficient to discharge all said past due and unpaid interest, selling in the first instance the property of said company other than its lands, roadway, station-buildings, shops and franchises; but if said property shall be insufficient to pay all said past due interest, then, at and under the same notice, to proceed to sell the remainder of the property, roadway, lands, stations and franchises, in such order as said trustees, or the survivor of them, his or their successors or successor, may determine, until the full amount of such over-due and unpaid coupons shall have been realized, with all legal costs and expenses; and after any default shall have been made in the payment of the principal of any or either of the said consolidated mortgage bonds, as aforesaid, for ninety days from the time of demand for the payment of the same by the holders, and upon the demand of one-fifth in amount of said bonds remaining due at the time; then, and in that event, and if so required by the bona fide holders of said amount of bonds, the

enter upon the premises and take possession of the entire property, lines of railroad, and franchises of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and shall proceed, by their duly appointed agents, to conduct the business of the same, and to control its affairs, receipts, and disbursements, until the amount of any past due and unpaid principal and interest on said consolidated mortgage bonds shall have been fully discharged, or in their discretion, the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors, after ninety days' notice, published in the newspapers aforementioned, may proceed to sell, at public auction, all such property, franchises, or such parts thereof, as they may deem sufficent to satisfy and discharge all such claims, and in such order as they, or the survivor of them, or their successors, may determine to be proper.

And it is hereby expressly agreed that any and every sale so made, as aforesaid, shall be a perpetual bar both at law and in equity, against the party of the first part hereto, its successors and assigns, and against all and every person claiming, or to claim, the premises then sold, or any part thereof, by, through, or under it, its successors or assigns. The proceeds of such sale, after deducting the costs and expenses thereof, and the expenses of this trust, shall be, by the aforesaid trustees, applied in the first instance to the discharge of the past due and unpaid interest, and next to the payment of the principal of said bonds hereunder issued, pro rata; and the residue thereof (if any) shall be by them paid over to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Second. The said party of the first part further covenants and agrees that out of its net earnings, that is to say, out of the earnings left after the discharge of all expenses incident to the conduct of its business, maintenance of its property, and the discharge of its obligations on account of interest, to redeem annually one per centum of the entire amount of said consolidated mortgage bonds issued and then outstanding as hereinbefore provided, and in order to determine which of said bonds shall be so annually redeemed, the said party of the first 67 part shall give notice in one or more newspapers published in the State of Alabama, and in at least one newspaper published in the city of New York, and in London, the same to be published for thirty days, of the amount of bonds to be redeemed as required by this deed, of the time and place at which by lot the specific bonds to be redeemed shall be determined; such election of the bonds so to be redeemed by lot, as aforesaid, to be made under the supervision of the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors, and in manner and form as they shall prescribe. Notice for at least thirty days in the newspapers aforesaid shall be given by the party of the first part, certified by the trustees aforesaid of the specific bonds so selected by lot, and then redeemable according to the provisions of this deed; thirty days after which such bonds shall cease to bear interest. The bonds so redeemed to be cancelled under the supervision of the aforesaid trustees, who shall keep a registry thereof by their numbers; and in default of a sufficiency of net earnings for any year to provide such fund for redemption, the deficit thereof shall be made good and employed in the redemption of bonds out of the net earnings of the year or years next succeeding, in which there are such net earnings; and the expenses attending such drawings of bonds, and the publication and notification as herein required, may be defrayed by said trustees out of said sinking fund. Provided, That such redemption of the bonds issued under this mortgage shall begin for and with the fiscal year ending January 1st, 1880.

Third. The said party of the first part further covenants and agrees to deposit with the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York, twelve million five hundred thousand dollars of the bonds herein authorized to be issued, not to be pledged or used in any manner by the party of the first part, except in the manner and for the purpose hereinafter specified, but the same or their proceeds shall be drawn out from time to time, only upon the order of the president of the aforesaid company, countersigned by the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them or their successors; the coupons upon such bonds as remain so deposited to be regularly cancelled by the said party of the first part in the presence of the said trustees, as the same mature. The existing liens upon the mortgaged premises, exclusive of the bonds hereby secured, amounting to a sum not exceeding the said sum of twelve million five hundred thousand dollars, to provide for the payment of which this deposit is to be made.

The said bonds, when and as the same are so drawn out, shall 68 be applied or used under the supervision of the said trustees solely in the acquisition, by exchange or otherwise, as the president and board of directors of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company may arrange, and from time to time may determine, of the aforesaid existing outstanding liabilities of said company, and no greater amount of said bonds shall be drawn out or used than shall equal the amount of such existing liabilities, purchased or acquired as aforesaid, until all of said liabilities, as above set forth, are fully purchased or acquired, the aggregate amount of such liabilities not exceeding as aforesaid the said sum of twelve million five hundred thousand dollars.

And the said party of the first part hereby covenants and agrees with said parties of the second part that the said mortgaged premises hereby conveyed are free and clear of all incumbrances save and except only the aforesaid liabilities, amounting in the aggregate to a sum not exceeding twelve million five hundred thusand dollars. The evidences of such existing indebtedness and liens, as the same are so purchased or acquired, as herein contemplated, to be deposited with the aforesaid banking-house for the further security of the bonds issued under this mortgage, and to be accordingly so endorsed across their face by the said trustees for the time being, until all such outstanding obligations shall have been replaced, substituted, or discharged by the issues under this deed; then the same to be delivered over to the said party of the first part after the same are duly cancelled by said trustees; or the said trustees having, by some proper endorsement thereof, put at end their assignability or negotiability, may deliver the same to the party of the first part, to be held by it as a protection to its title, in such form as may be found proper, so as in no case to interfere with the priority of the lien of this instrument over said indebtedness so purchased and surrendered; and except to the extent of the incumbrances hereinbefore specified, this conveyance is made with general warranty of title by the said party of the first part.

Fourth. The party of the first part shall and will at all times keep, at its general office in the State of Alabama, an appropriate book, to be designated as the "Registry of First Mortgage Bondholders," and any and every holder of the bonds secured hereby shall be entitled to have his name and address, and the numbers of the bonds so held or owned by him, duly inscribed therein, upon the production at said office of such of said bonds as he may, by an endorsement to be made registration such bonds shall not pass by delivery unless the same shall again be registered as payable to bearer, but such registration shall not compel the party of the first part to pay any overdue coupons on any such bonds to the registered owner, but the same may be paid to the bearer thereof.

Fifth. It is further mutually covenanted and agreed that said trustees shall not, nor shall either of them or their successors, be in any manner responsible for the default or misconduct of each other in said trust, nor for the neglect, default, or misconduct of any agent or attorney appointed pursuant to these presents, or for anything in respect to said premises, or the trust hereby created, except personal misconduct or gross negligence in the execution of said trusts.

Sixth. It is further provided and declared, that the said trustees or either of them, or any succeeding trustee or trustee, may at any time hereafter, by an instrument in writing, duly signed and forwarded to the said party of the first part, resign his or their office, and withdraw from the further execution of this trust; and thereupon, or in case at any time hereafter either of said trustees, or any trustee hereafter appointed, shall die, or be removed by a court of competent jurisdiction, or become mentally or otherwise incapacitated to execute the trusts, the president of the company, with the written approval and assent of the holders of bonds (the said consolidated mortgage), secured hereby to the aggregate extent of not less than one-third of the said bonds outstanding and unpaid, may appoint a trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy, and in such case the new trustee or trustees appointed, either while he or they shall continue to be such, shall have and possess, and be subject to the like rights, powers, estates, and duties, as if he or they had been originally trustees hereunder, and, during any vacancy in the trusteeship, the remaining or surviving trustee shall have power to execute the trusts until the vacancy is filled. In default of appointment as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the parties of the second part, or in case of neglect for a reasonable time, then for the party of the first part, to apply to a court in Alabama, having jurisdiction in the premises, for the appointment of a trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy or vacancies, and so from time to time.

And it is further provided and declared, that the due appointment of a trustee or trustees shall be effectual to vest in him or them the appropriate estate, rights, powers, and duties as herein provided in that behalf without any new deed or conveyance; but, nevertheless, the party of the first part hereby covenants, in any and every such 70 case, to make and execute, upon request, any such deeds and conveyances or assurances as may be appropriate for more fully and certainly vesting in and confirming to such new trustee or trustees, such estate, rights, powers, and duties; and in every case of resignation of a trustee, the resigning trustee shall, if requested, make and execute such conveyances or assurances to his successors.

And the said party of the first part further covenants that the party of the first part shall and will well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, unto the holder or holders of said bonds, the principal and interest thereof, as such principal and interest becomes payable according to the tenor of said bonds respectively, and of the coupons thereto attached.

Seventh. It is further provided and declared, that if the said party of the first part shall well and truly keep and perform the foregoing covenants and agreements on its part to be performed, and shall well and truly pay the said bonds hereby secured, with interest thereon, according to the tenor thereof, then these presents shall be void, otherwise to remain in full force.

In testimony whereof the said The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed, and the same to be attested by its president and secretary, the day and year first above written. In duplicate.

That whereas, under and in pursuance of the provisions of "An act to authorize the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to purchase the railroad constructed by the Mississippi, Gainesville and Tuscaloosa Railroad Company," approved March 3, 1871, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company has purchased from the said James Crawford, by deed bearing even date herewith, has conveyed to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company the property hereinafter mentioned and described, for the sum of fifty-three thousand six hundred and one

D. 1870, payable semi-annually, on the first days of May and November of each year from the first day of November, A. D. 1870, and the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company has agreed and is willing and desirous to secure the payment of the said sum of fifty-three thousand dollars, and the interest thereon as aforesaid, by a lien on the property purchased as aforesaid.

Now, therefore, this indenture further witnesseth, that the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, for and in consideration of the premises, and for the further consideration of five dollars to it paid by the said W'm D. 75 within three months after such presentation and demand of payment, then this indenture shall be void and of no effect, and useless, and until the said railroad company shall make default of payment as estate, rights, powers, and duties; and in every case of resignation of a trustee, the resigning trustee shall, if requested, make and execute such conveyances or assurances to his successors.

And the said party of the first part further covenants that the party of the first part shall and will well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, unto the holder or holders of said bonds, the principal and interest thereof, as such principal and interest becomes payable according to the tenor of said bonds respectively, and of the coupons thereto attached.

Seventh. Extract from the minutes.

OFFICE MOBILE & OHIO R. R. CO.,
Mobile, Nov. 10th, 1873.

Whereas this board by resolutions passed on the 18th day of April, 1873, in pursuance of instructions by the stockholders of this company proposed at their annual meeting on the 15th of April, 1873, and adopted by their vote on 17th April, 1873, for the purpose of apportioning among said shareholders property of the company acquired since its organization, but not represented by the stock-certificates theretofore issued, and of equalizing all proprietary interests therein, directed the issue to such stockholders of certificates for additional stock to an amount equal to that then held by them, on condition, however, of a money payment to the company by them respectively of twenty-five dollars for each share of such new stock, to be paid in installments of $5 on 1st of July, 1873; $10 on 1st Nov., '73; $5 on 1st Jan'y, '74; $5 on 1st April, 1874; with interest on such portions as should not be promptly paid at the said dates.

81 And whereas said money payment, while it was necessary to equalize such new issue of stock with that formerly issued, is also of essential importance to the company in order to raise means to meet the obligations of the company for whose payment such unrepresented property of the company is liable.

And whereas a portion of such new stock remains unapplied for, and has been forfeited to the company, while a large portion of said stock has been claimed and payment therefor in whole or in part duly made on the terms heretofore declared, and the interest of the company will be advanced by the realizing by the company at an early day of the full amount of said twenty-five dollars per share not yet fully paid up:

Now, then, to secure this end, and to place all persons who, on or before the first of January, 1874, shall under these resolutions have advanced to this company the said assessment of twenty-five dollars per share of new stock on an equal footing—

1st. Be it resolved that the president of this company cause to 82 be prepared and executed under the seal of the company, in such sums and denominations as may be most convenient, with proper letters and numbers for purpose of record, bonds of this company to an amount in the aggregate not exceeding one-fourth of the par value of the whole issue of new stock which may be issued under these and the former resolutions.

Said bonds shall be dated December the first, 1873, and made payable ten years thereafter, at the city of New York, and bear interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, payable quarter-yearly at the office of Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the city of New York, and may be registered bonds or with coupons for interest attached, at the option of the party to whom said bonds under these resolutions may be delivered.

And the said company, by its president or either of its vice-presidents, may contract for the disposal of said bonds as provided by these resolutions before the same are ready for delivery.

2nd. Be it further resolved that the bonds issued hereunder as registered bonds shall be duly registered in a proper book, and of which the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and bear interest as provided in the foregoing resolution, all under such rules and regulations as the president of this company may prescribe, which said registered bonds may at any time be converted into coupon bonds at the option of the holder thereof upon presentation of the same to Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., at their office in the city of New York.

3rd. Be it further resolved that each and every stockholder who under these resolutions may be entitled to an issue of new stock, and who already has or have paid or on or before the 1st of January, 1874, shall have paid the said twenty-five dollars per share to the company under these or the former resolutions of this board, or his assignee or assignees, shall be entitled to receive therefor the bond of this company provided for in the foregoing resolutions, to an amount equal to the aggregate of the sum so paid by him or them. But said bonds shall 84 only be delivered to said parties upon their surrender to the company or to the trustees hereinafter named for cancellation, all certificates of new stock or of partial payments of new stock heretofore issued to them under the former resolution of this board providing for the issue of such new stock.

4th. Be it further resolved that the holders of bonds issued and received under the foregoing resolutions shall, at any time before the maturity of said bonds, upon the delivery of said bonds to the agents and trustees of this company hereinafter named, and who are duly authorized to act in the premises, be entitled to receive therefor shares of the capital stock of this company at the rate of one share for every twenty-five dollars of the principal of the bond or bonds so delivered up and returned.

5th. Be it further resolved that the president of this company cause forthwith to be prepared certificates for new stock corresponding to the amounts of new stock which each shareholder will be entitled to under these resolutions, which said certificates, when so prepared, the 85 said president shall place in the hands of Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co. in trust, and as trustees for the use and benefit of the holders of the bonds authorized by these resolutions under the terms of the last foregoing resolution. And said Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co. are hereby authorized and empowered, upon the delivery to them of any of the bonds issued hereunder before the maturity thereof, to deliver to said bondholders so surrendering his bonds a certificate of stock at the said rate of one share of stock for every twenty-five dollars of the principal of the bonds so returned, and shall immediately notify the company of every such exchange of bonds for stock. And thereafter the holder of such stock so issued shall be entitled in full to all the rights and privileges of a stockholder in this company to the extent of the stock so issued to him.

All certificates for stock running in the hands of Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., uncalled for at the maturity of said bonds, shall thereupon be by them returned to the company to be cancelled. The certificates of stock authorized by this resolution may be issued with 86 the name of the holder in blank, or to Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., trustees hereunder, as may be found most expedient.

6th. Be it further resolved that each bond issued hereunder shall contain such reference to the stock in whose right it is issued that the said stock can be ascertained and identified.

7th. Be it further resolved that the foregoing resolutions shall in no way interfere with the rights of stockholders to receive their new stock on compliance with the terms of the resolutions of this board heretofore adopted on the 18th day of April, 1873.

MOBILE, May 5th, 1875.

I hereby certify the above to be a true copy from the minutes.

EXHIBIT J.

Extract.—Minutes board of directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company at meeting held in Mobile, April 23, '75.

Whereas, by reason of depression in business from causes beyond the control of this company, the resources of the company have, during the past two years, been greatly lessened, so that the company has been unable to meet and discharge the semi-annual interest-coupons due upon its first-mortgage bonds in May and November, 1874, and the interest coupons upon its Tennessee substituted mortgage in July, 1874, and January, 1875, and the interest-coupons upon its second mortgage due in March, 1875, which said coupons remain unpaid, and may at any time be enforced against the company by the holders thereof; and

Whereas the company will be unable to pay the next accruing interest upon its first-mortgage debt; and

Whereas, in the course of its business, the company has contracted certain unsecured liabilities known as floating debt which it has 88 been unable promptly to discharge at maturity, upon which suits are pending; and

Whereas the business and property of the company extend through four States of the Union, and are subject to the jurisdiction of courts acting under distinct governments at the suit of the creditors of the company, some of whom have already commenced proceedings for the recovery of judgments, and to obtain execution upon their claims, whereby the property pledged in the mortgages will be exposed to seizure and sale, and other complications may arise and sacrifice of property may be made, which property, if cared for, will suffice for the payment of all the just debts of the company without detriment to the just rights of the mortgage creditors of the company;

And whereas, by its deed of mortgage and trust first made, and which was executed the 1st day of November, 1853, the faith of this company is pledged to put the trustees of the holders of the bonds issued under authority of said deed in possession of the property conveyed thereby on demand in default of payment of interest on said bonds as therein covenanted for security against loss upon their said debts and demands; and

89 Whereas the contingency of defaults in payments of interest provided for therein has occurred:

Resolved by the board of directors of the Mobile and Ohio R. R. Co., That the existing trustees of the first mortgage and deed of trust of this company, executed the 1st day of November, 1853, to wit, William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot, be placed in possession of the property conveyed by said deed in trust for the security of the holders of the bonds and coupons described in said mortgage or deed of trust. And it shall be the duty of the vice-president of said company to place, and he is hereby instructed to place, the said trustees in full and actual possession and control of all the property of every name and kind, and each and every parcel thereof, and of each and every article thereof described in or embraced in or covered or covered by the said deed of trust and mortgage executed as aforesaid, to be by said trustees held, used, managed, and applied as trustees aforesaid, to and for the objects, purposes, and trusts disclosed or described in said deed of trust 90 and mortgage upon their demand.

And the vice-president upon so placing said trustees in possession as herein directed, will take from them and their agents and servants full inventory of all the property of every kind so received by them under this resolution.

And from and after the delivery to said trustees as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of each and every officer, agent, employee, and servant of the company to account to, and in all respects to obey the instructions, orders, and directions of said trustees or their officers, agents, employees, and servants for the purposes of maintaining the possession so delivered to said trustees.

And in order to protect and to secure the possession of the said trustees, and to obtain the aid and assistance of the judicial tribunals of the United States, or of the States through which the railroads of the company have been constructed, and on which the property of the company is situated, it is further

Resolved, That the said trustees be empowered and requested to 91 bring suitable suits for the settlement of the affairs of the company, and be authorized to apply for such additional powers as receivers and as trustees administering trust property and funds as may be entirely adequate to attain the objects of these resolutions, and to pursue the rights of the mortgagees, creditors, and stockholders respectively.

And it is further resolved, That in case possession be taken, and that the administration of the property be so conducted, the vice-president of the company shall be authorized and empowered to accept service of all process against the company in any such suits, and that service of process upon him shall be valid and sufficient service, and also that he perform all acts as president of this board, whenever it may be necessary for the company and the board of directors to act adversely to or concurrently with the trustees.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy from the minutes of the board of directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co.

114 Answer of M. & O. R. R. Co. with report of the auditor of said road referred to in answer.

In the circuit court of the United States, southern district of Alabama, fifth judicial circuit, at Mobile.

To the honorable the judges in said court presiding:

The separate answer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendant, to the bill filed by W'm Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliott, trustees, in this honorable court against said corporation, William D. Dunn and others, respectfully shews:

The said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendant, being a cor poration chartered by the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, for answer to the said bill and to so much thereof as it is required to answer, reserving all legal exceptions, answering, says—

1st. That it is true as inquired of in the first interrogatory of the complainants' bill, that it did execute and deliver the several deeds of trust and mortgage at the times and dates in said bill mentioned, for the purposes therein mentioned.

115 2nd. And in response to the second interrogatory in said bill propounded, it answers and says, that the interest due by coupons attached to bonds issued by this corporation under the terms of the deed of trust and mortgage, bearing date on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, has not all been paid, but that as to a portion of said coupons past due there has been a default for want of payment when due.

3rd. For answer to the third interrogatory, it answers and says, that default has continued since May, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, on the coupons then matured, and on the portion due on the first of November, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, since said last mentioned day. The amounts so in arrear and unpaid are stated fully and particularly as called for by said third interrogatory, and referred to in the second interrogatory, and are shown and explained in the schedule 116 of the auditor of this company herewith filed and explained under the heads of answers to interrogatories second and third therein, as taken from the books and records of the company.

4th. To the fourth interrogatory of the bill, it says, that a default has also occurred in respect to the payment of the interest due upon the bonds known as the Tennessee substitution bonds. The amount so in default, and the times when it occurred, are specially stated in said auditor's report, under the proper number of the interrogatory therein mentioned.

To the fifth interrogatory, for answer thereto, this defendant refers to the fifth answer and statement in the said auditor's report, in which the matter of this interrogatory is shewn and set forth.

To the sixth interrogatory this defendant says that the matter inquired of is fully set forth and answered by the said auditor's report as answer six.

117 To the seventh interrogatory, this defendant for answer thereto refers to answer seven in the auditor's report, in which the matter inquired of is shewn.

To the eighth, ninth, and tenth interrogatories of said complainant's bill, this defendant answers in the affirmative.

The statements in the bill referred to in said three interrogatories being true as stated therein.

To the eleventh interrogatory of said bill, this defendant answers, that its business appeared to be promising and prosperous, but that owing to the devastations caused by the late war, the destruction of its road and property constantly repeated, and derangement of its business has been so great, that the enormous expense incurred in reinstating the road and its business since the war to make it promptly serviceable to the public, has so far exhausted its resources, that this, to which 118 has been added the unparallel*led* shrinkage of values, and the depression of business recently, that the company has been unable to meet its engagements and pay its obligations as they matured, and it is now unable to do so, in common with all other like institutions in the country, States, cities, counties, and corporations.

To the twelfth interrogatory, this defendant refers to the twelfth answer in the report of the auditor of the company, herewith filed as aforesaid, in which the information is afforded which is called for by this interrogatory.

To the thirteenth interrogatory, this defendant says, that the amount of unsecured debt, and how represented, appears in the statement of the auditor, numbered for answer to this interrogatory.

To the fourteenth interrogatory, this defendant answers that the amounts set forth in the exhibit of the auditor are disclosed as 119 called for by this interrogatory under the fourteen in said report.

And this defendant for further answer to said bill says, that it admits that it is justly indebted in the amounts shewn by all those bonds, such as have been properly issued under the several mortgages and deeds of trust in said complainant's bill charged and referred to; that the proper holders of said bonds are creditors of this corporation according to their legal effect, and therefore are entitled to payment thereof according to their proper legal right of priority; wherefore this defendant prays that the true right of priority of said creditors may by proper reference, examination, and ascertainment as this court shall direct be settled and determined by the decree of this court as to each respectively, as well as the validity and priority and amounts due to all the creditors of this company.

120 And this defendant further prays that inasmuch as all residue of property or funds which may remain after the satisfaction of all just demands found to be due from the same, will justly belong to this defendant, it prays that the best mode of satisfying said debts and securing such residue and surplus be adopted by the decree of this court, and in order to arrive at the best mode, that a reference and inquiry be ordered to inquire of, ascertain and report to this court the value of all the property and assets of this defendant, and of the different portions and parcels thereof, and also as to the best mode and manner in which the said property and assets can be disposed of to the best advantage and for the benefit of all concerned; and also whether sale of the same should be made, foreclosure decreed of said mortgage, or other mode, or whether the same can be effected by amicable settlement, and the particular terms on which the subject of contro-121 versy can can properly be closed and decreed, so as to save and protect the interests of all parties according to their just rights.

And this defendant having fully answered the said bill so far as it is advised material and necessary to answer the same, prays that such decrees and orders be made in the premises as may be deemed right and proper in equity.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Solicitor for Def'ts.

} In equity.

The answer of William D. Dunn, one of the defendants, to the bill of complaint of William Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliot against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, this defendant, and others, in the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama.

This defendant, saving to himself all benefit of any exception which might be taken to the errors and insufficiencies in said bill contained, for answer thereto, or so much and such parts thereof as he is advised it is material for him to answer, answering, saith, that he admits it to be true that his codefendant, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, is a corporation, duly incorporated as in said bill alleged. 133

2. He is informed and believes, and so admits it to be true, that the said railroad company made and executed the several deeds of trust or mortgages in said bill mentioned and described, and he supposes that the exhibits thereof filed with the bill, purporting to be copies of said deeds of trust or mortgages, are true and correct copies thereof, but for greater certainty he begs leave to refer to the original deeds if necessary.

3. He is informed and believes, and so admits, that said railroad company did make and issue a large number of bonds, to secure the payment of which the said several deeds of trust or mortgages were made substantially as stated in said bill. He does not know the exact number and amount of said several classes of bonds so made and issued, and now outstanding.
134 The complainants having possession and control of the books, accounts, and papers of said railroad company, this defendant supposes that the statements made by them in said bill respecting the numbers and amounts of said several classes of bonds are correct, but for greater certainty he insists that proof be made and an account taken as to the numbers and amounts of said bonds.

4. This defendant, further answering, admits and says that he has been appointed and is now one of the trustees under the deed of trust made by said railroad company, dated February 15th, 1860, commonly called and known as the second mortgage of said railroad company, exhibited with said bill, marked "Exhibit E," this defendant having been appointed as one of the trustees under said deed, in accordance with the provisions of said deed, in lieu of Robert A. Baker, deceased, one 135 of the original trustees named in said deed. This defendant is also the owner and holder of a number of the bonds known as the second-mortgage bonds of said railroad company, secured by said deed; the second-mortgage bonds so held by this defendant amounting in the aggregate to the sum of seven thousand six hundred and seventy-five dollars ($7,675).

5. This defendant, further answering as trustee under the said deed of trust known as the second mortgage, upon information and instructions from some of the holders of the second mortgage bonds secured by said deed, whose right and claim he represents as one of the trustees, as aforesaid, to wit, the Rogers Locomotive and Machine Works and others, says that he does not admit that the bonds mentioned in the complainants' bill, known and described as interest bonds, or those 136 known and described as interest arrearage bonds, or those known and described as funded interest bonds, or those known and described as sterling interest bonds, are part of the debt secured by the first mortgage of said railroad company, or that the holders of the several classes of bonds above mentioned have a lien on the property mentioned in said first and second mortgages, prior or superior to the lien of the holders of said second mortgage bonds; and he, in pursuance of such instructions, insists that if the holders of said several classes of bonds have any lien on said property, it is subsequent and subordinate to that of the second mortgage bondholders.

6. Further answering as trustee as aforesaid, and upon like information and instructions, this defendant denies that said railroad company made default in the payment of the interest on its bonds, in May, 1874, or in November, 1874, as alleged in said bill, and says that the due at those dates, was paid to the holders of said coupons on presentation and demand; and in pursuance of such instructions he desires that said coupons, or the interest on said bonds, which interest became due in May and November, 1874, are a lien on the property of said company.

7. This defendant, further answering as trustee as aforesaid, saith that the complainants, claiming to be trustees under the first mortgage or deed of trust mentioned in said bill, did demand possession of the property of said railroad company embraced in said deed, and the president and directors of said railroad company, recognizing the validity of said claim, did surrender possession of said property to the complainants as such trustees, and they are now in possession of the same.

This defendant does not know, of his own knowledge, and can-138 not say, under oath, whether the complainants were or were not duly and legally appointed trustees under the said first mortgage or deed of trust.

This defendant is informed that some of the owners and holders of the bonds issued by said railroad company, known as its second mortgage bonds, the payment of which is secured by the second mortgage or deed of trust in the bill mentioned, do dispute and deny that the complainants were duly appointed as trustees under said first mortgage or deed of trust, and under such information and under instructions of the said holders of said second mortgage bonds, and in their behalf, this defendant insists that the complainants be required to make due proof that they were duly and legally appointed as trustees under said first mortgage or deed of trust, and prays like benefit of this denial as if the same were specially pleaded.

139 8. This defendant further answering as trustee as aforesaid and under like information and instructions as aforesaid, admits the execution by the said railroad company of the deed dated 1st July, 1871, exhibited with the complainants' bill marked "Exhibit D," to secure the payment of its bonds therein mentioned, commonly known as the Tennessee substitution bonds, but he does not admit that the said deed or the said Tennessee substitution bonds constitute a lien on the property of said railroad company therein mentioned, situate in the State of Tennessee, prior or superior to the lien on said property created in favor of said second mortgage bondholders by the said second mortgage or deed of trust, and he insists that the said second mortgage bondholders have a lien on said property prior and superior to that of the Tennessee substitution bondholders.

140 This defendant further answering, as trustee as aforesaid, and under like information and instructions, denies that the said railroad company made default in the payment of the interest which fell due on any of its bonds in the year 1874, or in January, 1875; on the contrary, he says that the coupons given for such interest falling due at those dates was paid to the then holders of said coupons on presentation thereof, and he insists, on behalf of said second mortgage bondholders, that the holders of the interest coupons so paid off have no lien on the property of said railroad company.

10. This respondent further answering admits that he is one of the trustees under the deed of trust made by said railroad company, dated March 24th, 1871, commonly known as the Gainesville Branch Mortgage, a copy of which, marked "Exhibit G," is exhibited with the 141 complainants' bill, and he insists that he, and his co-trustees therein named, have a prior and superior lien on the property thereby conveyed to them, superior to any lien of the complainants therein.

11. This defendant further answering, saith that he is one of the stockholders of the said railroad company, being the owner of three hundred and eighty shares of the stock of said company, and as such stockholder he is interested in the franchises granted to the stockholders of said company, and in the property of said company, and in the management and disposal of said property and franchises.

12. For answer to the interrogatories in said bill this defendant refers to his foregoing answers to the statements of said bill as containing as full an answer as he is able to make to said interrogatories.

This defendant, as trustee, under two deeds of trust as herein-142 before mentioned, has been made a party defendant to said bill of complaint without any default on his part, and now having answered said bill, he prays to be allowed out of the trust property, or its proceeds, reasonable counsel fees and all his other proper charges and costs in this case.

Circuit court of the United States, southern district of Alabama.

William Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliott, compl'ts,
vs.
The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company & others, defendants.

The answer of William Dickson to the bill of complaint of William Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliott against The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and this defendant and others, defendants in the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama.

1. This defendant, saving to himself all benefit of any exception which might be taken to the errors and insufficiencies in said bill contained, for answer thereto, or so much and such parts thereof as he is advised it is mentioned for him to answer, saith that he admits it to be true that his codefendant, The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, is a corporation duly incorporated substantially as alleged in said bill.

147 2. He admits that said railroad company, on the 15th day of February, 1860, made its deed of trust, commonly known as its second mortgage, whereby it conveyed the property therein mentioned to Robert A. Baker, George H. Young, and Samuel Williams as trustees to secure the payment of its bonds therein mentioned, commonly known and described as the second mortgage bonds of said railroad company, and he supposes the exhibit marked E, filed with said bill and purporting to be a copy of said deed, is a correct copy thereof, but for greater certainty he begs leave to refer to the original deed, if deemed necessary.

He admits that he has been appointed, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, one of the trustees under said deed, in lieu of Samuel Williams, deceased, and he is informed and admits that his co-defendant, William D. Dunn, has in like manner been appointed one of the trustees under said deed, in lieu of Robert A. Baker, deceased.

148 3. This defendant resides at the distance of more than three hundred miles from the city of Mobile, where the principal office and place of business of said railroad company is located. He has no convenient access to its books and papers, and no such knowledge or information as to its affairs and business as would enable him to answer fully the allegations in said bill respecting the business and affairs of said railroad company. He is informed and believes that said railroad company did make several deeds of trust or mortgages to secure the payment of its bonds in said deeds respectively mentioned and provided for, and he supposes that the several exhibits filed with said bill, purporting to be copies of said several deeds, are correct copies thereof, but for greater certainty he begs leave to refer to the said original deeds, and prays that they may be produced and proved for that purpose, if deemed material.

149 4. This defendant does not know and cannot answer whether the complainants have or have not been duly appointed trustees under the deed of trust made by said railroad company, dated November 1st, 1853, commonly known and described as the first mortgage of said company, a copy of which is exhibited with the bill, in lieu of the original trustees therein named; and if it be deemed material to the interests of this defendant or of the second mortgage bondholders, for whom he is trustee, he insists that due proof be made of such appointment. He is informed and believes, and so admits, that the complainants, claiming to have been duly appointed trustees under said first mortgage, have demanded possession of the property of said railroad company, and their claim being recognized by the president and directors of said company, they have been put into possession of said property as alleged in the bill.

5. This defendant does not admit that said railroad company made default in payment of the interest on its bonds, which became due and payable during the year 1874 and in January, 1875, as alleged in the bill. On the contrary, he is informed, and so alleges, that the interest which became due at those dates was paid to the then holders of the interest-coupons therefor, on presentation of said coupons and demand of payment.

150 6. As to the allegations in said bill, to the effect that the several classes of bonds therein mentioned and described as interest-bonds, and as interest-arrear bonds, and as funded-interest bonds, and as sterling-interest bonds, and as Tennessee-substitution bonds, have respectively a prior lien on the property conveyed to secure the payment of second-mortgage bonds of said company, superior to the lien of this defendant and his co-trustees for the benefit of the second-mortgage bondholders. This defendant is advised that such allegations are allegations of matters of law, and not of matters of fact, and that he is not bound to answer the same. He does not admit any such alleged prior liens, and submits those questions to the determination of this honorable court.

7. As to all other allegations in said bill, and the interrogatories in said bill not hereinbefore answered, this defendant says that he has no such knowledge or information as would enable him to answer the same more fully than hereinbefore answered, and he insists that complainants be required to prove the same.

151 This defendant has been made a party defendant as trustee to this suit without any default on his part, and, having fully answered said bill, he prays to be allowed out of said trust property, or its proceeds, reasonable counsel-fees and all other proper charges and costs in this case.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, W'M D. DUNN, George H. Young and others.
} No. 90.

AT CHAMBERS, 6th March, 1876.

This cause has been submitted to the court on the bill, answers, exhibits, replication, and the orders and proceedings in the suit, and a motion has been made by the plaintiffs for the appointment of a master and a reference to him of the pleadings and proofs to make the necessary inquiries and reports, to prepare the cause for a hearing.

153 And after an examination of the matters submitted, and a consideration of the motion, the court orders, that James Gillette be appointed special master for this cause, and is directed to examine the mortgage or deed of trust attached to the bill as an exhibit, and to ascertain and report the railroads, branch railroads, estates, rights, property, movable and immovable included in the terms and conditions of the same and which have come to the possession and control of the trustees, and are subject to the decree of the court in this suit.

2. The court orders that the said master report the mortgages, deeds of trust, agreements, judgments, or other instruments, which create a charge, lien, or encumbrance on the said mortgaged property with the order and priority of each of them, in imposing a charge upon the
154 said property, and entitled to payment from the same.

3. The court orders the said master to report the bonds which are secured by the respective mortgages or deeds of trust, or encumbrances and the amount thereof, and of the interest due thereon, and which form a (present or future) valid claim upon the said corporation, and if the debt exist in any other form than of bonds then that he report the debt which may be due, or may become due, on the said several securities of the said corporation; also the master will report the names of the holders of the securities of the company, which may be presented and proved to him and the sum due to each holder.

4. In taking proofs of the debt the master may receive the original bonds, coupons, or agreements of the corporation as evidence.
155 He may allow to be filed with him sworn copies of the bonds, coupons, or other forms of debt charging the property to be taken before any commissioner of the courts of the United States or other officer authorized by the laws of the United States to administer oaths and to certify depositions with affidavit of their ownership and authenticity. It shall be lawful for the master to designate in the cities of New York, London, Amsterdam, or elsewhere if needed or be found expedient, commissioners of the circuit courts of the United States, or consuls or vice consuls of the United States, to advertise for the proof of bonds and coupons, and to take proofs of the debts according to the forms of the proofs taken of claims in bankruptcy and to prescribe a mode for the identification of the bonds so presented and proved 156 to the said officers. And the said master may appoint persons in other cities to take such proof if in his judgment it may be necessary or expedient. He may also examine the books of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and its officers so as to ascertain with exact-ness the debt due by the corporation which is secured by mortgage or which create liens on the property of the corporation embraced in the mortgage of the plaintiffs.

5. The court orders that if the trustees in the deed of trust of said corporation, dated the 1st day of July, 1871, to wit: W'm Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson should elect to do so to allow them to file within sixty days after the date of the filing of this order a petition to become plaintiffs in this bill and to set up therein their claims as trustees upon the said mortgaged property or any por-157 tion of the same upon their consent to abide the order and the decree of this court; and in the event of their election to do so, the master will take proofs of the debt due on the said mortgage or deed of trust, and shall proceed in reference to the same in the same manner as he is ordered to do in respect to the first mortgage attached to the bill and to the claims under other deeds of trust, mortgage, or other incumbrances before mentioned.

6. The master may advertise in a paper published in Mobile and New York that he is ready to receive the proofs of the debts secured by the mortgages of the company and shall give notice in the said advertisements of the mode of making proofs, and before whom they can be made, and he shall authorize advertisements to be made in London 158 and Amsterdam of a similar description by the officers to be designated for the purpose by him. And the trustees of the several mortgages which have been produced to the court, and the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company are required to aid and to assist the master in collecting the proofs needful to making the report of the amount of the debt due on their respective mortgages and deeds of trust, so that he may be able to perform his duty with promptitude and with accuracy in settling a report for the court.

7. The office of the master must be open for the receiving of proofs in the city of Mobile three days of every week and he may receive proofs every judicial day of the week until the 15th day of October next, on which day the time for taking proofs shall be closed unless the time be prolonged by a special order from one of the judges of the court.

159 8. The master may, during this period, make separate reports to the court of the matters submitted and hereinafter described, which may be filed in the office of the clerk of the court for examination and for exceptions; but no report in reference to the debt so filed shall be confirmed until after the 15th day of October next, and unless it shall have been filed thirty days in the clerk's office.

9. Exceptions to the reports may be filed by the parties to the bill; but should any creditor who shall prove his claim be desirous to contest any other claim proved, and the trustees representing the claim of such creditor shall neglect or refuse to make the exception proposed by the creditor, upon proof that he has made the request of the trustee, 160 and the neglect or refusal by him, the master shall allow of the exception or contestation, and shall report upon it as if made by the trustee.

10. The master shall make up his entire report or reports under this order, on or before the first Monday of December next, and shall file the same on or before that day, and the usual time for examination and exception shall be given after the date of the filing of the report. He may, before making his report, call the parties before him to consider of the draft of the report, and have argument or counsel thereon, and the proofs shall be open to inspection. His report shall embrace the best mode of disposing of the property in case of a sale shall be deemed necessary or proper, and his opinion of the present and prospective value, and he may report the price at which a foreclosure, without sale, may be best accomplished in the interest of all parties.

161 11. The master is at liberty to consider of a plan for the reorganization of the corporation should the creditors of the same agree thereto. Any plan for that purpose presented by three-fourths of the creditors owning the different classes of debt, and supported by a corresponding portion of the holders of stock, he may report, with his opinion thereon. He shall take care to ascertain whether the plan proposed be assented to by the parties interested, to the extent aforesaid, before he accepts it for any purpose.

12. The master will make a separate report of the allowances to be made to the trustees for their services and as compensation, and the allowances for the charges, expenses, costs, and other forms of claim which are set forth in the deed of trust, or which have arisen in the course of the cause.

No. 90.

This cause was submitted to the court on the pleadings and proofs, and upon the orders, decrees, and proceedings in the same, and upon a motion to appoint a master to take an account of the mortgage property and of the mortgages, liens, encumbrances which affect it with a charge, and to state the accounts among the parties so as to prepare the case for a hearing, and farther advance the attainment of the said end, the 164 court orders that James Gillette, the master appointed for the purposes aforesaid to make an examination of the accounts of the trustees from the date of their appointment until the 31st day of December last, and to examine the vouchers in support of the receipts and disbursements, and if need be, to examine the books of the trustees and such witnesses as may be necessary.

An examination will be made of the manner in which any power given by this court, in any order, has been executed, and will report on the accounts and acts of administration and management of the trustees since their entry into possession of the railroad and other property described in the bill and the orders of the court.

165 The master upon completing this report will file the same in the clerk's office and give notice of it by an entry on the order-book.

171 Petition of Cha's Moran et als.

United States circuit court, southern district of Alabama.

William B. Duncan, A. Foster Elliott, as trustees, etc.,
vs.
Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company et als.
} In equity.

To the honorable the judges of the circuit court of the United States in and for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama:

Your petitioners, Charles Moran, Daniel C. Moran, Amédée D. Moran, citizens of the State of New York, respectfully show to your honor that they are the owners and holders of three hundred and sixty-eight thousand dollars of the first-mortgage sterling bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and of thirty thousand dollars of the first-mortgage interest bonds of the said company.

172 And your petitioners further say that a bill of complaint has been filed in this court by William B. Duncan and A. Foster Elliott, claiming to be trustees of the first mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and in said suit certain orders and proceedings have been had; and your petitioners beg leave to refer to the record on file in the office of the clerk of this court, in the aforesaid action, as a part of this their petition.

And thereupon your petitioners aver and say that it appears by the said record, and by the actions of the said W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliott, herein described, that it is necessary and proper for the protection and safety of your petitioners' rights and estate as first-mortgage bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, that your petitioners should be admitted as parties entitled to notice in all the proceedings had by said Duncan and Elliott herein; or that some bona fide first-mortgage bondholder, who has no interest adverse to the rights 173 of the first-mortgage bondholders should be entered as a party to this suit for the safety and representation of the first-mortgage bondholders.

In the present condition of the record in this suit the said W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliott have the entire control and direction as complainants of the legal proceedings herein. Yet, nevertheless, their interests are in many respects adverse to those of the first-mortgage bondholders and their action has been in great part wholly regardless of the rights of the said bondholders they claim to represent, and in some instances has been entirely in the interest of subordinate claimants against the property. All of which appears from the public records and proceedings in this court, and in the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Tennessee, as follows:

In respect to the floating-debt claims, the action of Duncan and Elliott has been in utter disregard of the plainest rights of the 174 first-mortgage bondholders. It appears that about five hundred and fifty thousand dollars of securities are available in the hands of the court, for the satisfaction of the liabilities of the corporation in the just order of priority. Certain holders of floating-debt claims conceived the idea of securing these assets for their own special benefit. Upon the proceedings for this purpose coming before the court for its action, Duncan and Elliott failed to make the slightest opposition to this appropriation of the trust estate. Their sole utterance at the hearing was made through their counsel as follows: "On behalf of the trustees and receivers, Duncan and Elliott, we submit ourselves to such directions as the court may make in the premises." And it appeared in evidence that most of these floating claims had been renewed through W. B. Duncan while representing the stockholders as president of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

175 The scheme to provide for these floating claims in preference to the first-mortgage interest was subsequently defeated through the efforts of Morris Ketchum, aided by some of the bondholders, as appears by the decision of his honor Judge Woods. These petitioners respectfully submit that the above described conduct of these complainants shows the imperative necessity of some unbiassed representation of the first mortgage on the record so that every movement in the progress of the litigation can be promptly notified to the real parties in interest.

But, furthermore, W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliott have absolutely consented to the placing of an inferior mortgage, already the first sterling mortgage, and have agreed to the entry of a decree to that effect in the circuit court of the western district of Tennessee. The decree has been entered, and one hundred and eighteen miles of the road ordered to be sold to satisfy a claim of one million six hundred and 176 sixty-eight thousand dollars and interest. Duncan and Elliott have given their consent to a judgment for the above amount against the trust estate without publicly communicating with the first-mortgage bondholders, but, on the contrary, secretly and clandestinely. W. B. Duncan is one of the plaintiffs in said suit, as trustee for the so-called Tennessee substitution bonds, claiming against the first mortgage. And as to any subsequent efforts of W. B. Duncan to ward off his consent to the said decree, your petitioners submit the record therein as proof of the unability of Duncan and Elliott to fairly or effectually represent the first-mortgage bondholders. For a further statement of this transaction your petitioners refer to the bill of Morris Ketchum to review and set aside the said decree so consented to by Duncan and Elliott as made and connived in fraud of the first-mortgage bondholders.

177 And your petitioners further submit to this honorable court that in and by the last annual report of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliott appear therein as directors of the corporation and W. B. Duncan as president thereof, and in both capacities representing the stock interest in the property against which the present foreclosure proceedings are directed. And in the capacity of president Duncan has issued a circular while he was claiming to pursue the stockholders in this court by foreclosure against their property.

Furthermore, while Duncan claims to act as trustee for the first-mortgage bondholders, he is likewise busily engaged entering a judgment against his cestuis que trust in the capacity of trustee for the Tennessee substitution bonds, placing them in an illegal priority over the first mortgage bonds. In addition, he claims to represent the 178 interest of the consolidated bondholders, an inferior security to the first mortgage, and against which he should be directing the process of the law on behalf of the sterling bondholders. Besides these numerous characters, each one of which prevents the faithful discharge of the other, he has acquired certain powers of the court, under which, as receiver, he claims to represent each and all of the diverse and conflicting liens and priorities on this property. In this effort he is assisted by A. Foster Elliott, formerly in his employ, and subject to his directions.

And your petitioners likewise show that both Duncan and Elliott are wholly irresponsible in a pecuniary point of view, and their bondsmen are two attorneys at law, S. L. M. Barlow and W. W. MacFarland, who are likewise on the bonds of W. D. Shipman, the assignee in insolvency of Duncan and Elliott to the amount of six hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and the total amount of said bonds herein your petitioners verily believe is in excess of their ability to respond over and 179 above their other liabilities.

And, in further proof of the above matters, your petitioners refer to the proceedings of Morris Ketchum, as surviving trustee for the first mortgage bondholders, against Duncan and Elliott, and others in this court, and pray that the same may be taken as a part of this their petition.

And Charles Moran, one of the petitioners herein, likewise says that he has lately conversed with a number of European holders of the first mortgage bonds regarding the affairs of this trust, and your petitioner avers that the said holders are unacquainted with the matters above set forth, and your petitioner, verily believes, from his conversation with them, that the said bondholders would unite in this petition if they were made acquainted with the facts of the case.

And when your petitioners signed a paper in favor of said Duncan and Elliott, your petitioners were entirely ignorant of the 180 foregoing matters, and have only very lately learned the same.

Whereupon, and on account of the foregoing matters, your petioners pray for the appropriate orders directing that they may have notice of all the proceedings had in this cause, and may have leave to adopt such proceedings herein as they may be advised in like manner and with the same force and effect as formal parties to the record herein. And for such other and further relief as may be equitable.

189 Answer of W. B. Duncan et al. to petition of Moran et als.

United States circuit court, southern district of Alabama.

W. Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliott, trustees,
vs. } In equity.
The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company et al.

The answer of W'm Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliott to the petition of Charles Moran, Dan'l E. Moran, and Amedee Moran against them filed in the above-entitled cause.

These respondents for answer say they are informed and believe that said petitioners are the holders of the securities in said petition described, but whether in their own right or not these respondents do not know.

These respondents admit the pendency in this court of legal proceedings by them as trustees of the first mortgage of the Mobile and 190 Ohio Railroad, for the execution of the trusts declared in said deed of mortgage.

The files and minutes of the court will show what orders and proceedings have been taken in said cause. These respondents deny that it appears from said record and by their action in and about said trusts or from any of them that there is any necessity or occasion for any purpose of protection and safety of said petitioners or of any of the holders of the first-mortgage bonds of said railroad company, that such petitioners should be admitted as parties entitled to notice of the proceedings of the respondents in said cause.

These respondents deny that there is any reason or occasion for admitting any person whatever, first-mortgage bondholder or otherwise, as a party to the suit in the interest of the first-mortgage bondholders, or for any change in the parties to the suit.

191 These respondents deny that they have done anything or sought to do anything or knowingly permitted anything to be done in the management of this suit or the administration of the trust property to the prejudice of the holders of the first-mortgage bonds of said railroad company; they deny that their action in any instance has been in the interest of subordinate claims, or that the public record and proceedings of this or any court will establish the allegations of the petition in this respect.

These respondents deny utterly all charges of impropriety of conduct contained in the petition in relation to the floating-debt claims. It is true that the holders of certain claims of this character, that is, of debts of said railroad company either not secured at all or secured by liens subordinate to the first-mortgage, conceived that they had an equity 192 upon assets in respondent's hands superior to that of the first-mortgage bonds and demanded of respondents payment of their said claims. These respondents refused to recognize said demands unless approved by this court. They then availed themselves of the leave allowed by the former order of this court, to apply to the court for instructions as to their duty in the premises, and brought the case to the attention of the court for its directions. Such proceedings were thereon had that a reference of the matter was made to a special master, who reported thereon to the court, and, in consideration of his said report, the court refused to allow the claims so made by the holders thereof and refused to permit their payment from the assets so sought to be applied. These respondents show that all the proceedings in this matter were had before his honor W. B. Woods, the circuit judge of this circuit 193 and district, who then and there presided in the court and was made judicially cognizant of the case and the conduct of these respondents and their counsel in the premises.

These respondents show that in their proceedings in this behalf they acted in good faith in the performance of their duty as trustees in possession, administering the trust under the direction of this honorable court, and their conduct in this behalf, instead of being made a subject of reproach, is an argument in favor of retaining said suit and property under the present management without the interference of either Morris Ketchum or of the petitioners. As to so much of said petition as refers to proceedings alleged to have occurred in the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Tennessee, these respondents say that the charge that they have agreed to a decree in that court plac-194 ing an inferior mortgage ahead of the first sterling mortgage is not true.

It is true a decree has been made in that court directing the sale of the line of railroad in the State of Tennessee for the payment of a lien debt claimed by the holders of bonds known as the Tennessee substitution bonds to the amount of $1,668,000 and interest, or thereabouts. It is not true that these respondents ever gave their consent to that decree or to any judgment for that amount against the trust estate in any manner whatever. These respondents deny that in said cause, or in any manner in relation to said trust estate, have they acted secretly, clandestinely, or in any other manner to the prejudice of the holders of the first mortgage bonds, or with a view to advance against them the claims of subordinate lien holders. On the contrary, this respondent, Duncan, personally conferred with one of the petitioners (Morans), 195 informing him of the fact that said decree had been obtained without his, the said Duncan's, knowledge or consent, and of the steps he had immediately taken to cause said decree to be vacated. It is true that the respondent, Duncan, is one of the plaintiffs in that suit as trustee of what is known as the Tennessee substitution bonds.

The first mortgage in terms declares that as to the property in Tennessee the lien created by it is subordinate to a lien of $10,000 per mile which was reserved to secure the State of Tennessee for advances then expected to be obtained under the legislation of that State in relation to internal improvements.

Advances were so obtained thereby, and thereupon the first mortgage operated a priority of lien upon the property in Tennessee for the security of said advances which the said railroad company became 196 obligated to pay. Subsequently the said corporation came in default in payment of the interest upon said advances which it had assumed to pay, and by agreement with said State, under powers reserved to said State, the corporation recognized the assignees of the State of the original securities and lien, and gave to them by way of the original evidences of debt the bonds of the corporation, and which are known as the Tennessee substitution bonds. To protect this lien, this respondent, Duncan, was appointed one of the trustees.

When said railroad company defaulted on said substituted securities, as well as on its first mortgage bonds, the said bill was filed in Tennessee, and also the bill in this case; said bills were filed in harmony with each other and to obtain a settlement of all priorities by judicial decision and by concurrent action upon bills in the names of parties
197 apparently holding the first lien in the several States (that in Tennessee being declared to be auxiliary to the bill in this cause which was first filed) and by the same counsel, so that upon adjustment of disputed priorities being first had, such decree might be rendered in said causes as might establish the rights of both parties in interest and secure the application of the trust property and its proceeds to the several liens upon the property as they might be declared.

These respondents show that with this purpose in view by the said Duncan and his counsel, steps were in progress in the cause in Tennessee to bring before the court all parties who were entitled to be heard according to the practice established by the law and rules of courts. The time of appearance of said parties had not expired, and said cause 198 was not then at issue, when on the 20th May, 1876, without the knowledge of said Duncan, or the counsel who had filed the bill, and were properly in charge of same, and whose names stood on the record as solicitors and counsel for complainants in said causes, his co-complainants, by counsel, not recognized by this respondent, Duncan, and in the absence of the counsel who had legal charge of said bill, and without conference or consultation with them, and without legal authority, applied for and obtained the decree of sale mentioned in said petition.

These respondents, each of them, and the other defendants, and the counsel who had filed the bill, immediately severally applied to the honorable the judge of that circuit for a stay of said decree, and that it be vacated and set aside; an order of stay was obtained, and said 199 decree has so remained to this date; proceedings to vacate said decree upon the application of said Duncan and of said parties are still pending, and have not been heard by reason of the non-attendance to the date of the filing of this petition of the said circuit judge presiding in said court to hear said application.

A secondary reason favoring the delay thus produced is found in the fact that holders of first mortgage and interest-bonds to the amount of the principal sum of over $3,000,000, with the matured coupons attached thereto, together with holders of said Tennessee substitution bonds to the amount of the principal sum of over $1,400,000, with the matured coupons attached thereto, as well as all the detached coupons on the first mortgages which matured in 1874, amounting to over $700,000, and holders of second-mortgage and other lien securi-200 ties to the amount of the principal sum of over $700,000, with all the matured coupons attached thereto, have agreed upon a plan of readjustment of the securities of said corporation, and have surrendered for that purpose their evidences of right to a committee nominated by themselves.

This scheme of reorganization, if successful, as it is hoped it will be when fully understood, will remove all matters of litigation between the parties, and these respondents have conceived, under the orders of this court, that it was their duty to give parties in interest full opportunity whether to accept it or not and so save needless expense and delay. These respondents have no excuse to make for the conduct of the said co-trustees of said Duncan, they having constantly disapproved and condemned it utterly unjustifiable and for which they are in nowise responsible. This respondent Duncan has not retired from said 201 suit since said action of his co-trustees for no other reason than that he conceived his said position gave him better means of obtaining the stay and setting aside of said decree for the benefit of all parties in interest than he could use if he retired therefrom and ceased to be a party to said record and proceedings.

These respondents deny that there is any reason to be found in the facts of this case why the prayer of the petition should be granted, and show that proceedings by Morris Ketchum cannot add anything to the merits of the application.

These respondents do not deny that they are directors of said railroad company, and that Duncan has remained in the office of president by failure of stockholders to elect president and directors pending 202 these legal proceedings: that he is a trustee of the lowest security created by said corporation; said respondents are also in possession of the trust property, with the approval of this court, as trustees, and under responsibility as receivers.

These respondents show that in none of these positions have they done anything inconsistent with their duty as trustees of the first mortgage; they have faithfully conformed to all the orders of this court, and in all matters of doubt have applied for its instruction and advice. Their accounts and proceedings are now in process of examination under the order of this court, by a special master appointed for that purpose, and will soon be reported to this honorable court for revision.

Your respondents assert that under the former orders of this court they have given such security as has been required, and the same 203 has been approved as directed. Their sureties are abundantly good, and respondents refer to their accounts and the reports of the master thereon to show the honesty and integrity of their administration of said trust property, which they have conducted through the agency of skilled officers and employee's. These respondents know nothing of the conversations alleged to have been had by one of the petitioners with English bondholders, nor the representation by him (Moran) made to them.

These respondents believe that they have the support of nearly all the holders of said first-mortgage bonds; certainly of all who have examined and understand the facts of the case and have come into communication with these respondents.

204 These respondents have heretofore filed against similar proceedings by the said Ketchum certificates of approval by the sundry holders of bonds to the amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

These respondents refer to the proof then tendered to this honorable court, and to the additional proof by them to be now or hereafter produced in proof of the allegations of this their answer and be fully assured they pray said petition may be dismissed, and these respondents be therefrom discharged, with their costs.

206 Answer of A. F. Elliot to petition of Moran et als.

Circuit court of the United States, southern district of Alabama.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN, A. FOSTER ELLIOT, trustees,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et als.
} In equity.

The answer of A. Foster Elliot to the petition of Charles Moran, Daniel E. Moran, and Amedée D. Moran, against this respondent and W'm Butler Duncan, filed in the above-stated cause.

This respondent for answer says, from information he believes petitioners are the holders of the securities in the petition described, but whether in their own right or not, respondent does not know.

He admits the pendency in this court of legal proceedings by himself and said Duncan, as trustees of the first mortgage of the Mobile 207 and Ohio Railroad Company for the execution of the trusts in said deed declared. The files and minutes of this court will show what orders and proceedings have been had and taken in said cause.

Respondent denies that it appears from said record, and by the actions of said trustees in and about said trusts, or from any of them, that there is any necessity or occasion, for any purpose whatever, of interest or protection of the holders of first-mortgage bonds, that said petitioners, or either of them, should be admitted as parties entitled to notice of the proceedings of the trustees in that case. He denies that there is any reason or occasion for admitting any person whatever, first-mortgage bondholder or otherwise, as a party to the suit, in addition to the present complainants, in the interest of the first-mortgage bondholders, or for any change in the parties to the suit. It is already provided by order of the court, that any creditor may appear before 208 the master to contest any other claim, if the trustees fail on demand to make the objection, which may be desired.

This respondent denies that he or his co-trustee have done anything, or sought to do anything, or knowingly have permitted anything to be done, in the management of this suit, or in the administration of the trust property, to the prejudice of the rights of the holders of the first-mortgage bonds of said railroad company; he denies that their action in any instance has been in the interest of subordinate claims, or that the public records and proceedings of this or any other court will establish the allegations of the petition in this respect.

This respondent, for himself and co-trustee, denies all the charges of improper conduct, made in the petition, in relation to the floating-debt claims. It is true, that the holders of certain claims of that character, that is, of debts of said railroad company, either not secured at 209 all, or secured by liens subordinate to the first mortgage, conceived they had an equity, to be paid by said trustees, superior to that of the first mortgage, and demanded payment of their claims. The trustees refused to recognize the claims, unless directed by the court. They availed themselves of the leave allowed by former orders, and applied to this hon. court for instruction in the premises. Such proceedings were had that a reference was made to a special master, who reported thereon.

On consideration of this report, this hon. court refused to authorize payment of said claims. All the proceedings in this matter were had before his honor W'm B. Woods, the circuit judge, who then presided, and was judicially cognizant of the conduct of said trustees and their counsel in the premises. This respondent avers that, in their proceedings in this behalf, said trustees acted in good faith in the performance of their duties as trustees in possession, administering the 210 trust under the direction of this hon. court, and what they did was precisely what their duty called on them to do, and is an argument in favor of retaining said suit and property under the existing management as established by the former orders of his honorable court.

As to so much of said petition as refers to proceedings alleged to have occurred in the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Tennessee, respondent says that the charge that he and his co-trustee have agreed to a decree in that court placing an inferior lien ahead of the first sterling mortgage is not true. It is positively untrue as to him, and he says on information and belief it is not true as to his co-trustee. It is true a decree has been made in that court directing the sale of the road in the State of Tennessee for the payment of a lien-debt claimed in behalf of the holders of the bonds known as the Tennessee substitution-bonds to the amount of $1,668,000 and 211 interest, or thereabouts.

It is not true that this respondent or his co-trustee, so far as this respondent knows and believes, ever gave their consent to said decree or to any judgment for that amount, or any other sum, against the trust estate in any manner whatever; he denies that in said cause, or in any manner in relation to said trust estate, have they, or either of them, acted secretly or clandestinely, or in any other manner to the prejudice of the holders of the first-mortgage bonds, or with a view to advance against them the claim of any subordinate lien holder. It is true that M'r Duncan is one of the plaintiffs in that suit as one of the trustees of what is known as the Tennessee substitution-bonds. The first mortgage in terms declares that as to the property in Tennessee the lien created by it is postponed to a lien of $10,000 per mile, which is reserved 212 to secure the State of Tennessee for advances then expected to be obtained under the legislation of the State in relation to "internal improvement." Advances were so obtained, and thereby and thereupon, as this respondent has been advised, the said first mortgage operated a priority of lien upon said property in Tennessee for the security of said advances, and which the said railroad company became obligated to pay.

Subsequently said corporation became in default in payment of interest on said advances which it had assured to pay, and by agreement with said State, under powers reserved to said State, the corporation recognized the assignees of said securities and lien of the State, and gave to them by way of substitution for the original evidences of debt the bonds of the corporation know as Tennessee substitution bonds.

To protect this lien, said Duncan was appointed one of the trustees.

When said corporation subsequently came in default in pay-213 ment of interest on said substituted bonds, as it was also as to interest upon the first-mortgage bonds, the said bill was filed in Tennessee as also the bill in this cause. Said bills were filed in concert and to obtain a settlement of priorities by judicial decision, and by concurrent action upon bills in the names of parties having the apparent first lien in the several States, that in Tennessee being declared to be ancillary to the bill in this cause which was first filed and by the same counsel; so that adjustment of disputed priorities being first had, such decree might be rendered in said causes as would establish the rights of all parties in interest and secure the application of the trust-property and its proceeds to the several liens upon the property as they might be judicially declared.

This respondent shows that with this purpose in view by M'r Duncan and his counsel steps were in progress in the court of Tennessee to bring in all parties who were entitled to be heard, according to law and.
the rules and practice of the court. The time for the appearance 214 of said parties had not expired, and the cause, as this respondent is advised, was not at issue, when on 20 May last, without the knowledge of said Duncan, without the knowledge of the counsel, who had filed the bill, and who stood of record as the solicitors, and were rightfully entitled to direct the same, the two complainants, Wilson and Iselin, by counsel not recognized by said Duncan, on the last day of the term and in the absence of the counsel who filed the bill, and properly had control thereof, without conference or consultation with them, and without legal authority, applied for and obtained the decree of sale mentioned in the petition.

This respondent, and the said Duncan, and said counsel in charge of the case, were surprised by this proceeding, and immediately upon knowledge thereof applied to and obtained from the hon. the circuit judge, who had granted said decree without knowledge of the facts of the case, an order for the stay of said decree, and it has been so stayed 215 to this date. Proceedings to vacate and set aside said decree at the instance of said parties are still pending in that court by petition for rehearing, as well as by bill of review; but no rehearing or review has been obtained because of the non-attendance of the circuit judge to the date of the filing of this petition, and by whom said decree was rendered. This respondent will produce transcripts of said petition for stay and rehearing and the orders thereon in verification of the statements of this his answer, as soon as certified copies thereof can be had.

A secondary reason favoring the delay thus produced is found in the fact, as respondent is informed and so thereon states, that holders of first-mortgage bonds to the amount of more than half, and to wit, $3,000,000, or thereabouts, of principal, with coupons attached, and over $1,400,000 of Tennessee substitution bonds, with coupons attached, and $600,000 of 2nd mortgage bonds, and $700,000 of other secu-216 rities, have agreed upon a plan of adjustment of the debts of said corporation and for its reorganization, and for that purpose have deposited their bonds and securities with a committee of gentlemen appointed by themselves who now control the same and approve the management of these trustees. Your respondent, from the best information he can obtain, believes that plan will be adopted by a very large proportion of the parties in interest; it has already been accepted largely by more than half the holders of the first, the Tennessee substitution, and the second mortgage bondholders.

This respondent shews that if the scheme be accepted it will remove all matters of litigation between the various bondholders, and he and his co-trustee have conceived that under the former order of the court, it has been their duty to give parties in interest full opportunity to accept the same and so save needless expense and delay.

217 This respondent has no defence to make of the conduct of said Wilson and Iselin in taking the decree as above stated; he has entirely disapproved of it and has condemned it as utterly unjustifiable, but for which he is in no wise reponsible.

This respondent denies that the facts of the case furnish any reason why the prayer of the petition should be granted; he denies that said Ketchum has any standing in the case, or that he can add anything to the merits of the application.

He does not deny that he is a director on said railroad company. He and said Duncan were elected into said board in 1875, and have since so remained by reason of the failure of the stockholders to hold other election pending these legal proceedings. Both said Duncan and himself are in possession of the trust property as trustees of the first mortgage, and this with the approval of this court, and are under responsibility to account as receivers. He shows that in these positions they have 218 done nothing inconsistent with their duties as trustees of the first mortgage; they have in all things conformed to all the orders of the court, and in matters of doubt have applied for its instruction and advice. Their accounts and proceedings have been subjected by order of the court to the examination of a special master appointed for that purpose. Some of them have already been by him reported on and his reports presented to and filed with the court; as directed by the order and under the rules of practice in proceedings and reports by masters in chancery. Other matters are in process of examination by the master, and will be reported on to the court.

This respondent shows that he and his co-trustee have complied with the order of the court, as to bond and security, which have been approved. The sureties upon said bonds are abundantly good. This respondent refers to the accounts and reports of the master to show the honesty and integrity of the administration of this trust-219 fund by himself and his associate, which they have conducted through the agency of educated and skilled officers and employees.

This respondent knows nothing of the alleged conversations between petitioners and English bondholders, nor the representations which were made to them by the petitioners. He shows that certain English holders of sterling bonds, to an amount exceeding a million and a quarter of dollars, did cause examination to be made by an agent of their own into the management by respondent and his co-trustee of this trust property, and have approved the same; and he believes they have the support of nearly all the first mortgage bondholders, and certainly of more than half, who have already accepted the plan of reorganization proposed under the auspices of these trustees, and of all who have examined and understand the facts of the case, and have come into communication with these trustees. These respondents have hereto-220 fore, against similar proceedings undertaken by Morris Ketchum, filed certificates of approval of sundry holders of bonds, to the amount of many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Respondent refers to the proofs then produced to this hon. court, and to the additional proofs to be by him and his co-trustee hereafter produced in support of the allegations and denials of their answers in this behalf; and, having fully answered, he prays said petition may be dismissed and himself discharged, with his costs.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN, A. FOSTER ELLIOTT
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET ALS.
} No. 90. In equity.

In this cause the special master, James Gillette, makes known to the court that he has been unable, within the time allowed him in the order of reference of March last, and the extension thereof granted on the 4th of December, to examine into and report upon the matters referred to him, and that an enlargement of the time be necessary for the performance of the duty in said order assigned to him.

On consideration thereof, and upon application of said master, it is ordered that he have until the 1st day of March next for filing the report or reports required of him, and that the time heretofore granted him be extended to said first day of March from the 1st Monday of February, 1877.

W. B. DUNCAN ET AL., AS TRUSTEES, &C.,
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL.

The petition of Charles Moran, and Louis J. Belloni, and William H. Ross respectfully shows to this honorable court that it appears by the annexed certificate of the special master in this cause, marked Exhibit A, that the time for taking testimony herein has expired, and that the time for the filing of the master's report will expire on the first of March proximo.

That your petitioners had supposed that the time for all acts to be performed by the master had been extended by the order heretofore granted by his honor Judge Bruce, but he was informed to-day by the master that he construed the extension to apply only to the period of filing his report herein.

225 That your petitioners desire to adduce a large amount of testimony before the master, and to be fully heard in argument by counsel before the master, all of which the master states by his annexed certificate cannot be had and performed within the time now remaining.

That your petitioners do not believe it practicable to adduce all the testimony necessary to be presented herein before the first day of May next, and in fact a commission containing a large amount of testimony on behalf of Alexander Duncan reached the master's office after the time which the master states was fixed by previous orders of this court for the taking of testimony.

That your petitioners have not been able to obtain the return of testimony desired by them within the time limited heretofore, although they have used the utmost diligence.

That it will require, as your petitioners believe, from the first day of May to the first day of June next for the hearing of argument before the master on the numerous and difficult questions of fact and law involved in this reference, and for the subsequent preparation of the master's report thereon.

226 Whereupon your petitioners pray that the time granted by the order of reference herein dated the day of , 1876, be extended to the first day of May, 1877, for the taking of testimony, and to the first day of June, 1877, for the filing of the master's report there under, and that the special master herein be required to receive testimony herein until the day first above named and to hear arguments of counsel after that time.

229 Report of special master.—Filed March 14th, 1877.

In the circuit court of the United States, fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN AND A. F. ELLIOT, trustees,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et als.

To the honorable the circuit court of the United States aforesaid:

The special master, appointed by the decree of the court, dated March 6th, 1876, to whom it was referred in the 1st paragraph of said decree "to examine the mortgage or deed of trust attached to the bill as an exhibit, and to ascertain and report the railroads, branch railroads, estates, rights, property, movable and immovable, included in the terms and conditions of the same, and which have come to the possession and control of the trustees, and are subject to the decree of the court in this suit," respectfully reports:

That he has examined the mortgage or trust deed made on the 1st November, 1853, by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which is attached to the bill as an exhibit, and he finds included in the terms and conditions thereof, as the property which the trustees therein named, or their successors in office, were to take possession of in the event that the said company became in default for the payment of its bonds secured by the mortgage, or the interest thereon, or any part thereof, "all and singular the entire estate and properties, of whatsoever name and kind," of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

And he has also examined the books and record of said company and its officers and the record of this cause, and he finds that on the 8th day of May, 1875, the present trustees, W'm Butler Duncan and A. F. Elliot, under the covenants and agreements of the trust, took possession of all the property of said company, consisting of its railroad and railways within the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, including the rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, real estate, rights, privileges, and property, movable and immovable, of every kind and description, and of its assets, income, and tolls.

And on the 29th September, 1875, in obedience to a decree of the court, dated May 19th, 1875, clothing them with the authority and duties of receivers, said trustees filed in court an inventory of the property received.

It appearing that, with the authority of the court, valuable improvements, repairs, and replacements have been made upon the trust estate since May 8, 1875, which should be embraced in estimates or 230 reports made now, the master caused to be filed with him inventories as of the 1st January, 1877, of which a summary is hereto attached as Exhibit A.

The master finds and reports that the trustees now have in their possession or control, under the direction of the court in this suit, the entire Mobile and Ohio Railroad and branches, lying and being in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, which were constructed or in process of construction at the time of the execution of the trust deed, or have since been constructed, renewed, or added to, together with all its railways, rails, bridges, warehouses, fixtures, rights, real estate, and property of all names and kinds, including the lands donated by act of Congress of 20th September, 1850, recited in the trust deed, except such portions as have been disposed of to create the sinking fund expressly provided for in said deed, and including all real estate acquired not described in said deed, but which is nevertheless subject to the decree of this court.

For the better information of the court, from the inventories and his examinations, the master reports in detail, as follows:

Length of road:

Main line: From Mobile, Ala., to Columbus, Kentucky .... 472 miles.

Branches:

Gainesville: From Narkeeta, Miss., to Gainesville, Ala .... 21 miles.

This branch was purchased by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, under act of the legislature of Alabama, approved March 3, 1871, entitled "An act to authorize the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to purchase the railroad constructed by the Mississippi, Gainesville, and Tuscaloosa Railroad Company." A special mortgage on this branch was executed March 24, 1871, to James Crawford for the purchase money, $53,000, and to secure bonds to that amount issued to said Crawford; therefore, to the extent of said lien, said branch is not included in the terms of complainant's deed.

Columbus: From Artesia to Columbus, Miss .... 14 miles.
Starkville: From Artesia to Starkville, Miss .... 11 "
46 miles.

Side tracks .... 48 miles.

Total owned main line and branches .... 566 miles.

231 By the terms of the trust deed of complainants, a reservation is made as to a portion of this property in Tennessee, which reservation is as follows: "Saving and reserving the rights and liens that may attach to the roadway, and construction thereon, in favor of the State of Tennessee, which will exist and attach as a prior lien by statute of that said State, in the event of said State aiding in the construction of so much of the roadway as lies in said State, viz, one hundred and eighteen miles, which aid is provided for by law of that State, and if used by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad, the said prior lien in favor of said State will be to the extent of said State aid, not exceeding ten thousand dollars per mile."

Leased:

Aberdeen Branch:—From Aberdeen, Miss., to Muldon, equipped and operated by Mobile and Ohio, rent free .... 9 miles.

Total operated lines .... 575 miles.

The present value of these constructed lines depend upon conditions which render an estimate impracticable. The master finds from examinations and observations that said railroads have been enhanced in value by judicious repairs, replacements, and additions, under the present management. The estimated increase since 8th May, 1875, being 15 per cent.

RIGHTS.

The rights attaching to the property under control of the trustees are the franchises and privileges secured to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company by the legislation of the several States through which the road passes. They are part of the public law of the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, and of the United States. The titles of the more important acts of legislation are as follows:

Alabama.—"An act to incorporate the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," approved February 3, 1848, and amendatory act of March 4, 1850.

Mississippi.—"An act to incorporate the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," approved February 17, 1848.

Tennessee.—"An act to incorporate the Mobile Railroad Company," approved February 28, 1848.

232 Kentucky.—"An act to authorize the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to extend their railroad from the south boundary line of the State of Kentucky to the Mississippi or Ohio rivers," approved February 26, 1848.

United States.—"An act granting the right of way, and making a grant of land to the States of Illinois, Mississippi, and Alabama, in aid of the construction of a railroad from Chicago to Mobile," approved September 20, 1850; and "An act for the relief of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," approved February 18, 1859; also the State laws transferring the donated lands to the company.

A "compendium" of the laws of the several States through which the road passes, and of the acts of Congress referred to, and the deeds of mortgage and trust made by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, has been compiled by George N. Stewart, its solicitor, and printed. A copy of the pamphlet is filed herewith for information.

ESTATES (LANDS).

The master reports that, under the act of Congress approved September 20, 1850, hereinbefore referred to, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company became possessed of lands in Alabama and Mississippi, amounting to $1,146,648\frac{92}{100}$ acres, less $692\frac{78}{100}$ acres reserved in Alabama. Said company subsequently acquired by purchase other real estate in Alabama and Kentucky, hereinafter set forth. Under the covenants of the trust, a portion of the lands donated by the United States have been sold to create a sinking fund for the extinguishment of the company's bonds issued under the trust deed. There remains of these lands in the possession and control of the trustees January 1, 1877:

Donated lands	1,087,652.97	acres.
Kentucky lands	1,258.50	"
Total acreage	1,088,911.47	acres, valued at $1 per acre.

The trustees report city and town lots, value	$66,127.50
Giving total value, real estate	$1,155,038.97

The trustees also have possession of 99,096.36 acres of swamp and overflowed lands, purchased by the company from the State of Alabama, value not stated, but cost $.

233 PROPERTY MOVABLE AND IMMOVABLE.

There was in the possession of the trustees and receivers on the 1st January, 1877, the following other property:

Locomotives, cars and rolling-stock, estimated value....	$955,800 00
Materials, machinery, tools, utensils, etc., in shops, on road, and in depots and trains....................	425,519 95
Buildings, station-houses, round-houses, turn-tables, platforms, furniture and fixings at stations..............	402,666 70
Total..	$1,783,986 65

which, added to the lands, gives a total value, exclusive of the railroads, of $2,939,025.62, being all the property valued and included in the inventories.

ASSETS, INCOME, AND TOLLS.

These items are the subject of quarterly reports to the court by the trustees and receivers, which are on file, and have been regularly examined and passed upon by the master.

The master reports that all the property embraced in the abstracts hereto annexed as Exhibit A, and all of the railroad and branch railroads now operated as the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and all the assets and income as heretofore reported, are included in the terms and conditions of the trust-deed attached to the bill as an exhibit, and were on the 1st day of January, 1877, in the possession and control of the trustees, W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, and are subject to the decrees of the court in this suit.

Respectfully submitted.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

245 Petition to extend time for taking testimony.

U. S. circuit court southern district of Alabama.

WILLIAM B. DUNCAN ET AL., TRUSTEES, &C.,
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL.

To the honorable the judges of the circuit court of the United States for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama:

Your petitioners, Amedée D. Moran and Louis J. Belloni, j'r, respectfully show to this honorable court as follows:

That they are objectors in the master's office in this cause, having filed objections therein, as more fully appears by proceedings in said master's office, to which they refer as a part of their petition.

That your petitioners are represented in the proceedings in the office of Master Gillette, special master in this cause, by the same counsel who represents Morris Ketchum, the surviving trustee named in the 246 deed securing your petitioners' bonds; that on or about the 27th day of February, 1877, certain William H. Hays, T. Haskins Du Puy, and William S. Pierson, commenced a suit in the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, for the purpose of restraining the said trustee, to whom your petitioners have confided the legal representation of their rights, from proceeding with the execution of his trust, by suits in the circuit court of the United States for the various districts in which the Mobile and Ohio Railroad is located. The purport and character of the said proceeding will more fully appear by a copy of the complaint therein, which will be filed in the office of the clerk of this court as a part of this petition.

That your petitioners' counsel has been busily engaged in the city of New York in respect of the said proceeding, as well as in respect of bills on behalf of your petitioners, and M'r Ketchum, to avoid the effect of a decree taken adversely to their mortgage by a pro confesso judgment against A. F. Elliott, claiming as trustee for the first-mortgage bondholders, and your petitioners have not been able ever with their utmost diligence to proceed with the examination before the master herein.

247 That the time to take testimony before said master expires on the first of April next, and your petitioners desire to adduce a large body of testimony. In its present shape the testimony does not present their case with any fulness, and a great injustice would be done them if they were obliged to proceed to a hearing in the present state of the evidence.

That no term of the circuit court will be held until June next, as they are informed and verily believe, and the time to take testimony in the master's office should be extended until the 20th of April next, which would still leave the master the same time to file his report as is given under the existing orders of court, and thirty days to file exceptions would likewise remain.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that an order may be granted herein, providing for the taking of testimony in the master's office until the 20th day of April, 1877, and extending the master's time to file his report herein until the first day of May, 1877, and for such other and further relief as may be just.

A. D. MORAN.
LOUIS J. BELLONI, J'R.

Solicitor and of Counsel for Petitioners.

248 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Southern District of New York, ss:

Comes A. D. Moran and L. G. Belloni, j'r, who being duly and severally sworn, deposes and says each for himself: That he is one of the above-named petitioners; that he has read the foregoing petition and knows the contents thereof; that the said petition is true of his own knowledge, except as to the matters therein stated on information and belief, and as to the same he believes it to be true.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,
Southern District of Alabama:

WILLIAM B. DUNCAN ET AL.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMP'Y ET AL.

249 Upon the verified petition of Amedie D. Moran and Louis J. Belloni, j'r, and upon motion of Labatt & Aroni, of counsel for petitioners herein, it is ordered that petitioners be allowed to take testimony until the 20th day of April next, and the master in the matter of their application and opposition will suspend the making up of his report until that day, and that after that day no further testimony can be taken by the master on these oppositions or applications.

It is further ordered that as to all other matters the making up of the report, the orders now existing will be continued in force. And the master in the matter of the application and opposition of these petitioners may file his report on or before the first day of May, for exceptions. No further extension will be granted.

250 Report of special master.—Filed April 5, 1877.

In the United States circuit court, fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN AND A. F. ELLIOT, TRUSTEES,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL.
In equity.

To the honorable the circuit court of the United States for the circuit and district aforesaid:

The third paragraph of the decree of the court rendered in this cause March 6, 1876, directs the special master to report:

I. "The bonds which are secured by the respective mortgages or deeds of trust or incumbrances, and the amount thereof, and of the interest due thereon, and which form a (present or future) valid claim upon the said corporation;

II. "And if the debt exist in any other form than that of bonds, then that he report the debt which may be due, or may become due, on the said several securities of the said corporation. Also,

III. "The master will report the names of the holders of the securities of the company which may be presented and proved to him, and the sum due each holder."

Under this direction and in conformity with paragraphs four and six of said decree, the undersigned, as master, gave notice by publication that he was ready to receive the proofs of debts secured by the mortgages of the company, and of the mode of making proofs, and before whom they could be made.

Said notice was advertised in the following newspapers for the periods specified, to wit: The Mobile Register, Mobile, Ala., daily, April 27 to Oct. 15, 1876; New York Times, New York, tri-weekly, July 26 to Aug. 31, 1876; The World, New York, tri-weekly, July 25 to Aug. 31, 1876; Commercial and Financial Chronicle, New York, July 15 to Aug. 12, 1876; North American and U. S. Gazette, Philadelphia, Sept. 21 to Sept. 25, 1876; Columbus Index, Columbus, Miss., weekly, Aug. 4 to Sept. 15, 1876; Whig and Tribune, Jackson, Tenn., weekly, July 29 to Oct. 15, 1876; London Times, London, Eng., Sept. 6, &c.

251 Publications were authorized in London, Paris, Frankfort, and other localities in Europe, under the direction of the consuls or vice-consuls of the United States. Copies and proof of said publications are herewith filed, except that copies of the German and French publications have not yet been received.

The special master attended at the times and places published, for the length of time indicated, except that the sessions in the city of New York, where a majority of claims were held, was continued until the 30th September, and in Mobile proofs were received and filed until the first Monday in February, 1877. Pursuant to the fourth paragraph of the decree of reference, commissioners of the circuit courts of the United States were authorized to take proof of debts, and in London and other cities of England, Paris, France, Frankfort, Germany, and Amsterdam, Holland, the consuls or vice-consuls of the United States were designated "to advertise for the proof of bonds and coupons and to take proofs." The master "prescribed a mode for the identification of the bonds so presented and proved to the said officers."

The master further reports that under the authority given to "examine the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and its officers, so as to report with exactness the debt due by the corporation which is secured by mortgage or which create liens on the property of the corporation," he examined said books and said officers, and now presents in detail the result of the inquiry.

I. "The bonds which are secured by the respective mortgages or deeds of trust, or incumbrances, and the amount thereof, and of the interest due thereon, and which form a (present or future) valid claim on said corporation."

A tabular "Statement from the general ledger of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, of the funded debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, as of March 1, 1877," is hereto annexed as Exhibit B 1, and made part of this report.

The master herewith files for the information of the court a copy of each of the series of bonds above described.

257 II. The debt existing in other form than of bonds which is due or may become due on the several securities of the corporation.

The secured floating debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was the subject of a report filed in court by this master on the 4th March, 1876. The amount then reported as bills payable was $526,061.86, mostly for supplies and money borrowed to pay interest on the funded debt. Its character and amount have not changed since said report, except that by the appropriation, on the part of some creditors, of the collaterals held by them in extinguishment of their claims, the bills payable now amount to $516,061.86, to which must be added, as also secured by pledge of the company's bonds, $19,325.31 Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's overdraft. The face values of the collaterals now outstanding for the security of the floating debt-holders are as follows

First-mortgage interest bonds	$40,000
Second-mortgage bonds	157,800
Convertible bonds	30,000
Consolidated sinking-fund gold bonds	594,000
Total (excluding coupons)	$821,800

A detailed statement of the bonds deposited as collateral, and names of the holders, is herewith attached as Exhibit B 2, and has been verified by personal inspection of the securities by the master. The amounts of first and second mortgage and convertible bonds are included in the totals of the funded debt hereinbefore stated. The amount of consolidated mortgage and matured coupons, viz, $718,740.00, must be added to said funded debt in the event of the appropriation of the hypothecated securities by the floating debt creditors.

Of unsecured floating debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company there appears standing on the books for unpaid labor $603.00, bills audited $3,315.61, total $3,918.61.

There is a debt, consisting of judgments rendered in the courts of the several States through which the road passes, of which no record appears on the company's books, nor is there any evidence before the master showing their amounts or nature, or to what extent they are valid liens. From the best information that has been obtained, viz, an inspection of the records of the several courts by an agent of the trustees, this debt with costs amounted in July, 1876, to $170,000, or thereabouts. It is claimed, however, by the company, that much of this has been satisfied, or otherwise disposed of, though not discharged from the record.

258 III. The names of the holders of the securities presented and proved, and the sum due each holder.

A large number and variety of claims have been presented and proved which appear to be valid liens upon the trust property. They have been classified and arranged under appropriate headings, and are herewith filed in court. Where proof was made embracing different classes of securities, the same were divided. The names of the holders of bonds and coupons, and the sum due each holder, as the same were presented and proved, are fully set forth in Exhibit C, schedules 1 to 10, hereto annexed as a part of this report. Upon all bonds therein reported, the coupon interest is stated to that last maturing.

The aggregate amounts of bonds and coupons of the various series respectively presented and proved are as follows, represented by 482 claimants:

259 The claims existing in other form than of bonds (but which are secured by deposit of the company's sealed obligations), which were presented and proved, and the names of the holders are shown in Exhibit D, hereto annexed as a part of this report. There are 34 of these claims, numbered from 501 to 534 inclusive, amounting, principal and interest March 1, 1877, $310,787.47.

The claims presented, which are not accompanied by satisfactory proof showing them to be valid liens upon the property of the company, are submitted to the court with Exhibit E. They consist of Tennessee tax-certificates, and disputed tax-claims and judgments, amounting to $13,111.84.

Henry Bright, of Northampton, Massachusetts, has filed affidavit showing the numbers and amounts of certain bonds and coupons belonging to him, which were stolen from the vault of the Northampton National Bank, on the 26th January, 1876. None of these bonds claimed have been presented to the master. The affidavit is herewith submitted, marked F.

W. D. Dunn, of Mobile, has filed sworn statement of the company's paper, endorsed by him for its accommodation, and outstanding to the amount of $166,588, to secure which the company's consolidated mortgage bonds have been deposited in the Bank of Mobile. Said statement is submitted, marked G. The amount is included in the the secured floating debt hereinbefore reported.

Since the claims herein reported were filed, a majority of them in number and amount have been transferred to the custody and control of W. H. Hays, W. H. Pierson, and T. Haskins Du Puy, as a committee on reorganization of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. On the 23d January, 1876, said committee filed proofs of $4,297,267.32 of the company's obligations, exclusive of coupons and of Tennessee substitution bonds, or about 60 per cent. of the bonds proved to the master. Since said date, said committee has filed affidavit showing its holdings of the principal funded debt to have increased to $7,736,961.00 out of a total issue outstanding (excluding Gainesville Branch bonds) of $11,492,167.00.

This report, with that heretofore made, embrace all matters referred to the master as to the mortgage liens and property not mentioned in the second paragraph of the decree, as to which a further report will be made.

Respectfully submitted.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

In the circuit court of the United States, fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

W. B. DUNCAN ET AL.
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et al.
} In equity.

To the honorable the circuit court of the United States for the circuit and district aforesaid:

Pursuant to the decree made and entered on the 6th day of March, 1876, in the above-entitled cause, the special master has reported the property included in the terms and conditions of the deed of trust attached to complainant's bill, and which has come to the possession and control of the trustees, subject to the decree of this court, and he has reported, under the third paragraph of the decree, the bonds secured by the respective mortgages of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and the amount of the funded debt, and his proceedings at the sessions held for taking proof of the debts due upon the several securities of the said corporation and the claims presented and proved to him, and the names of the holders of the securities presented and proved and the sum due each holder.

The second article of the decree of reference under which the present report is made is as follows:

"The court orders that the said master report the mortgages, deeds of trust, agreements, judgments, or other instruments which create a charge, lien, or incumbrance on the said mortgaged property, with the order and priority of each of them, in imposing a charge upon the said property, and entitled to payment from the same."

Under this article this master respectfully submits the following report:

Due notice was given to the solicitors of record in the cause, and the solicitors of parties who had filed objections under the ninth paragraph of the decree, of the times and places of executing the reference and of receiving such evidence as might be submitted. The time for taking testimony and for filing report was extended by orders of the court, dated December 4, 1876, and February 7 and 20, 1877, until 267 the 1st of April, 1877, during which period the master was attended by the solicitors of the various parties to the record and of objecting bondholders, and by witnesses. He also had before him the pleadings, exhibits, orders, and records in the cause.

Minutes of the master's sessions and copies of the notices issued, and the testimony before him, are filed in the cause.

The master made a full examination of the books and records of the company, which were freely placed at his disposal by the officers of the company under the orders of its vice-president.

First mortgage.

1. It appears from the pleadings, exhibits, and proofs contained in the record, that on the 1st November, 1853, under the charter and acts by which the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was incorporated, said company executed and delivered to certain trustees, whose successors are the complainants in this cause, its deed of trust of all the property owned by said corporation, and lying between the respective termini of said railroad, constructed and to be constructed, together with all its rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, rights, franchises, real estate, and all other property, real or personal, owned or to be thereafter owned, including certain lands donated by act of Congress, described by said deed, but saving and excepting certain lands in Mobile County not then fully paid for, and saving and reserving the rights and liens which might attach to one hundred and eighteen miles of the road and construction thereon in the State of Tennessee, by statute of said State, in the event of its aiding in the construction of said railway. A copy of said deed of trust is attached to the bill of complaint, marked "Exhibit B."

The purpose of said deed was to furnish a perfect and adequate security in trust for the holders of an authorized issue of bonds, to the amount of not more than six millions of dollars, principal, in sums of £225 sterling each, of even date with the mortgage, payable in thirty years, with semi-annual coupons attached, each being for £6 15s. sterling, principal and interest payable in London. Each of said sterling bonds was to be the same as one thousand dollars money of the United States, and said bonds were not to exceed six thousand in number.

Bonds numbered from 1 to 6,000 inclusive were executed by said company under said mortgage, of which, from the books of the company, it appears 5,976 were issued and 5,609 are now outstanding, amounting, with coupons matured and unpaid and not funded, to the sum of $6,898,941.80. The bonds proved before the master were 4,081, amounting to $4,081,000.00. and coupons matured and unpaid, also proved, amounted to $911,457.73.

It appears that owing to the interruption of business and the 268 deterioration of the road during the civil war, the interest maturing from 1861 to 1867, inclusive, was not paid by said company, nor was the interest fully paid after 1867, up to and including 1869. The coupons, however, under agreements of the company, were placed on deposit in order to secure the mortgage lien which attached to them, the company executing and delivering therefor further bonds, known as "ten year interest," "funded interest," and "interest arrearage" bonds. Some of these series were delivered in Mobile by the company, some through the Union Trust Company of New York, and others, known as "sterling interests," were delivered through Mess'rs C. M. Lampson & Co., of London. It appears from the records and proofs before the master that the original coupons supporting these various series are held in trust by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company as to the series known as "ten year interest," dated November 1, 1866, due November 1, 1876, and as to the series known as "interest arrearage," dated November 1, 1868, due November 1, 1883.

The coupons supporting the "funded interest" bonds, dated November 1, 1868, due November 1, 1883, are held by the Union Trust Company. The coupons supporting the "sterling interests," dated November 1, 1867, due November 1, 1883, are held by Mess'rs C. M. Lampson & Co., of London.

The mode of this arrangement is shown by agreements between the railroad company and first mortgage bondholders in London, in February, 1867, and August, 1868, certified copies of which the master returns with the evidence in the cause, and he also returns certified copies of the agreements or resolutions governing other issues of interest bonds, as the same appear on the records of the company.

The master further reports, as to the sterling bonds of the first issue, that the rate of interest agreed to be paid by the company was 6 per cent.

The company, by resolution of its board of directors, dated January, 1859, agreed to give to certain of the bonds a rate of interest equal to 8 per cent. on one thousand dollars, when received in New York or at the treasury of the company. A certificate was attached to a portion of the bonds which enabled the holders to collect that rate of interest.

While such arrangement or certificate may be binding upon the company and the parties accepting it, the master cannot report it as affecting the rights between parties who hold liens upon the trust property.

The master finds that the deed of trust, dated November 1, 1853, represented by plaintiffs, a copy of which is attached to their bill in this cause, is a first mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and 269 is earliest in date, and establishes a prior lien to any other mortgage upon the property described in it or comprehended under its terms, whether then in possession, or since acquired, being on the main line and branches of the said railroad to the Ohio River, and its appurtenances of every kind or description, and upon the lands included in its terms, whether then in possession, or acquired since, excepting that portion of the said railroad known as the "Gainesville Branch," and with the reservation set forth in said trust-deed as to so much of the main line of said railroad and equipment as exists in the State of Tennessee.

The master has already reported the bonds which were issued and outstanding under said first deed of trust, and also the bonds issued as a substitute for, but not in extinguishment of, the coupons which from time to time matured and were unpaid, which said bonds were known as interest bonds. A full description of all said bonds with a statement of their amounts outstanding, and of the coupons matured and unpaid thereon, as shown on the company's books, will be found in the master's report upon the funded debt and in Exhibit B 1 thereto, the aggregate amount being $9,705,137.96.

The master has also reported the bonds and coupons secured by the aforesaid deed of trust which were presented and proved to him by the holders, and the sum due each holder, in Exhibit C of said report, schedules one to four, amounting to $7,097,516.04.

The master further reports that all of the bonds and coupons embraced in the schedules referred to are included within and secured by the terms of the said first mortgage of the 1st November, 1853, and are a first lien upon the property described therein, excepting so far as the lien of the Tennessee substitution bonds, next herein named, may be established as superior thereto and subject to a further report of the coupons which matured in 1874.

And the master further reports that the interest bonds hereinbefore described are a first mortgage lien of equal amount with the coupons for which they were substituted, and interest thereon from dates of maturity.

Tennessee mortgage.

2. In respect to the reservation contained in the trust deed in favor of the specific incumbrance claimed to exist on the line in Tennessee, being one hundred and eighteen miles within that State, the master has had some doubts as to whether he should make any report.

Mess'rs Duncan, Iselin, and Wilson, the trustees named in the Tennessee substitution mortgage, so-called, have not availed themselves of the permission accorded to them in the fifth article of the decree of reference, to become plaintiffs in this cause, nor did they propound their deed of trust to the master or appear on the reference in response 270 to the various notices sent to Mess'rs Iselin and Wilson, or their counsel, as shown in the master's proceedings. The facts, however, appear in the record in this cause, or in the reports and books of the company.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company borrowed of the State of Tennessee her bonds, to aid in the construction of the railroad in that State, in conformity to the act of the general assembly of that State, dated February 11, 1852, to establish a system of internal improvements, and the amendatory acts upon the same subject.

The act of February 12, 1852, authorized the loan of bonds of the State to railroad companies. The bonds to run not less than thirty, nor more than forty years. They were to bear interest half-yearly, at 6 per cent. per annum. These acts reserve a prior and paramount lien or charge upon the railroads built within the State prior to all other liens, and reserve large remedial powers for the enforcement of that lien and to secure the State from damage from the loan of its bonds, both principal and interest, of which the road borrowing the bonds was to pay.

It appears that the State did, under this law, lend its bonds to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company from time to time as the work of construction progressed, until finally the amount in bonds issued to the company was about $1,296,000.

The law limited the extent of the loan to ten thousand dollars per mile of road.

In consequence of hostilities and deterioration, the railroad company was in default in the payment of interest and in the payment of a percentage for a sinking fund for years, whereby the original debt was increased to the sum of $1,684,800, as appears by the admission of the railroad company, contained in the resolution of the board of directors, dated 25th May, 1871.

The State of Tennessee, to relieve herself of the burden of railroad debts, and to aid the railroads, passed remedial acts on the 25th February, 1869, and subsequently, whereby the railroad company was authorized to issue its own bonds to provide means to procure Tennessee State bonds, and to cancel and surrender them to the State. These new bonds of the company were to be deposited with the comptroller. Whenever State bonds were produced and canceled, the comptroller was to deliver to the company a like amount of its own bonds with an endorsement that the bonds of the company thus delivered should be a first mortgage bond, taking the place of the bond issued by the State.

Printed extracts of the laws of Tennessee, referring to this substitution, are attached to complainant's bill, as Exhibit A, to which reference is made.

271 Under these acts the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company on the 25th May, 1871, by resolutions, authorized the issue of 1,685 bonds of the company, of one thousand dollars each, in gold coin of the United States, or £205 sterling each, payable 1st July, 1901, in New York or London, with interest at 7 per cent. per annum, payable semiannually, and declared Mess'rs W'm Butler Duncan, A. Iselin, and R. T. Wilson, agents of the company, to effect the substitution, and directed the deed of trust made to them, which was made July 1, 1871, conveying all of said road, its property and equipment, lying in the State of Tennessee, to secure the payment of said 1,685 bonds and interest. Copy of the resolution of the board of directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and of the deed of trust referred to, is marked "Exhibit D" to the bill of complaint in this cause.

The master reports that this mortgage or deed of trust, if valid under the reservations of the deed of 1853, attached to the bill, and which are expressed in other and subsequent mortgages of the company and its resolutions, and the reservations in the laws of the State of Tennessee, and the powers granted in the same, is a prior lien on that portion of the line of the railroad within the limits of that State.

But as the trustees have not come before the master, he reports, by consent of counsel who appeared before him, that the case is not in a condition to warrant a report upon the amount, validity, or priority of this incumbrance, and that the proceedings in this case should not be operative to affect the deed of trust to Duncan, Iselin, and Wilson. Should they hereafter appear, the facts are sufficiently shown in the papers in the cause to enable a report to be made.

The master reported in his report, filed 5th inst., the outstanding bonds purporting to be secured by this deed of trust as 1,668, of which there were presented and proved to him by the holders 120 bonds and 2,623 coupons, leaving fo the bonds 1,548 not proven. The names of the holders of the bonds and coupons so presented and the sum due each holder, are given in Exhibit C (schedule 5) of said report.

Second mortgage.

3. The master further reports, that on the 1st day of February, 1860, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by its deed of said date, made in pursuance of resolutions of the company which are recited in said deed, conveyed the property therein described, which is all the property, effects, and income of the road, including that already conveyed to R.
A. Baker, of Alabama, (who is since deceased, and whose place has been supplied by W'm D. Dunn, of Mobile), to George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Samuel Williams, of Tennessee (who is de-272 ceased, and whose place has been filled by W'm Dickson, of Alabama), as trustees to secure the payment of certain bonds described in said deed and recited in the resolutions. A printed copy of said mortgage is attached to complainant's bill as Exhibit E, to which reference is made, and is also propounded in the answer of W'm D.
Dunn, one of the trustees of said second mortgage, filed in this cause.

The master finds and reports that said deed is a second mortgage upon all the property, effects, and income of said defendant wherever lying and being. He has already reported in the funded debt statement the outstanding bonds of the various series issued under this mortgage, according to the books of the company, as amounting, with the coupons matured and unpaid to March 1, 1877, $1,800,133.06, of which the bonds and coupons presented and proved to the master amounted to $1,221,956.66.

The descriptions of the bonds, names of holders, and amounts due each will be found on schedules 6 and 7 of Exhibit C to the report last filed.

Consolidated mortgage.

4. The master further reports that on the 1st day of January, 1874, the said corporation executed a further mortgage on all the property described in the preceding deeds, and vesting all its property and right of property, real, personal, or mixed, and all corporate powers and franchises of every kind and description, in W'm Butler Duncan and Samuel L. M. Barlow, of New York, to secure the payment of a proposed issue of 15,000 bonds of one thousand dollars gold, or £205 sterling each, with interest-coupons attached, payable semi-annually at 7 per cent., which issue was designed to retire all existing bonded indebtedness of the company.

It appears that this mortgage is a third lien upon all the property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, subject in all respects to the prior liens hereinbefore recited.

It has been satisfactorily shown to the master that of the fifteen thousand bonds authorized to be issued of this series, but six thousand were executed, and of these all have been cancelled by the trustees, except six hundred and nine, which were hypothecated to secure the floating debt of the company. Of these there are five hundred and ninety-four outstanding. The particulars are fully shown in the report hereinbefore referred to, and in exhibits thereto B 2 and D.

Gainesville branch mortgage.

5. In addition to the liens hereinbefore described, the defendant corporation on the 24th March, 1871, executed to W'm D. Dunn, John Reid, jr., and Robert C. Crawford, of the city of Mobile, as trustees, its deed of mortgage on the branch road and property thereto attached, known as the "Gainesville branch," extending from a point on the main line of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad to the town of Gainesville, 273 Alabama, being 21 miles. Said property was conveyed in trust to secure the payment of fifty-three bonds made by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, each for one thousand dollars, dated 24th March, 1871, payable 1st November, 1880, with interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from 1st November, 1870, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of May and November in each year.

The master reports that this mortgage was given to secure the purchase money for said branch, and the debt due under it is a first lien thereon, but on no other property.

The trustees thereof have not propounded their claim before the master, but the lien of said mortgage is admitted in the pleadings. None of the bonds have been presented or proved. Coupons amounting to $4,240.00 have been presented and proved. (Schedule 9, exhibit C, of the debt report.)

The debt on this issue, on the 1st November, 1876, was $65,720.00 according to the company's books.

Convertible bonds.

6. The master further reports that said corporation has made a further issue of its bonds, dated December 1st, 1873, and maturing 1st December, 1883, which said bonds are known as "convertible bonds," and appear by resolution and on their face to be convertible into stock at the rate of twenty-five dollars per share in place of one hundred dollars, which is the par value per share of the stock of said corporation. The authorized issue of said bonds was one million of dollars, of which amount the company's books show $476,500.00, issued and outstanding, with an accumulation of interest to March 1, 1877, of $85,770.00.

Of these amounts there have been presented and proved to the master the sum of $275,165.00 of principal, and $44,221.90 of interest, in all $319,389.90. The particulars, with the names of the holders, are shown in schedule 8, exhibit C, of the funded debt report hereinbefore quoted.

The master finds and reports that this issue, in common with all other securities of the corporation, is embraced in the terms of the company's third or consolidated mortgage, which has been described. Said convertible bonds have no other lien than such as said mortgage confers, which is subordinate to all other mortgages described in this report.

Floating debt.

7. The floating debt has been the subject of reports heretofore filed in this cause. To the extent of the principal amount of $535,387.17, and interest thereon, it is a lien upon the property of the corporation; that is, to the extent that it is secured by the deposit of its sealed obligations, chiefly consisting of the bonds of the third or consolidated mortgage. 274 The particulars of this debt, as shown by the books of the company, will be found in the debt report and exhibit D thereto.

The amount proved to the master, with interest to March 1, 1877, was $310,787.47.

Judgments.

8. The master has reported the judgments presented to him in exhibit E of the previous report. The claims therein shown, numbered from one to ten inclusive, are not considered as valid liens upon the trust property, except the following, which the master reports are liens inferior to the mortgages and incumbrances hereinbefore recited.

The claims of John Williams, Norton & Co., W'm D. Wainwright, John Brooks, and J. Y. Keith, and John Brooks and others, for judgments obtained in the several courts of the States through which the road passes; said judgments and increment, amounting to $10,362.10, may be reported as above stated.

The master files this report under the order of the court, dated March 6th, 1876, extended in the orders of the 4th December, 1876, and the 7th and 20th of February, 1877, to settle the order of payment of the classes of debt creating a charge on the property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and to determine the priority of payment among the creditors of the said company as established before him under these orders.

By an order made on the 28th day of March, 1877, the time was extended to the 20th April, to allow certain parties to strengthen their opposition to the allowance of certain claims which have been proved, and until testimony is taken, and the report upon it is made, the report of the debt and the priority of payment will not be complete.

There is included in the debt reported upon the claim of Alexander Duncan for coupons of first mortgage bonds of 1874, held by him. This claim is contested by certain bondholders who have objected to its allowance, and the extension of time referred to in the order of March 28th is for their benefit.

Any confirmation, therefore, of this report should contain a reservation as to the coupons referred to, as well as to the Tennessee lien.

Respectfully submitted.

INTEREST ARREARAGE BONDS.—Series F 1, $1,000; F 2, $500; F 3, $300; F 4, $100. Datė, November 1, 1868. Due November 1, 1883. Issued for unpaid interest upon first-mortgage bonds. Authority: Agreement August 1st, 1868, and resolutions December 2d, 1868.

1st. The agreement heretofore made by said company at London on February 4, 1867, through its former president, Hon. Milton Brown, by which all past due coupons on first-mortgage sterling bonds of said company up to and including the coupons due the first day of November, 1867, were to be funded in interest bonds payable November 1st, 1883, the coupons so funded to be deposited with C. M. Lampson & Co., of London, as collateral security for the payment of said interest bonds shall be carried out, and the bonds issued and delivered to the proper parties, and the same shall be done with all such coupons belonging to parties holding in the United States; and the coupons so funded by holders in the United States shall be deposited with James Tinker and Isaac Knox, of the city of New York, and the said C. M. Lampson & Co. and James Tinker and Isaac Knox shall certify upon interest bonds so issued that coupons have been deposited with them for the amount of such interest bonds, and as collateral therefor; and in the event it shall be found impracticable to fund said coupons with the majority in amount of said first-mortgage sterling bondholders, then the coupons that shall have been funded under this agreement (both with the English and other bondholders), shall be returned to the owners, and the interest bonds given therefor shall be returned to said railroad company, and the foregoing provisions for funding shall be void; and should any dissenting bondholders succeed in enforcing by legal proceedings any rights contrary to the aforesaid terms, then the assenting bondholders are permitted, notwithstanding they may have funded aforesaid, to apply for and have the same relief with the dissenting bondholder, and the coupons and interest bonds aforesaid shall be returned as aforesaid.

2d. The holders of said first-mortgage sterling bonds, and of the interest bonds which have been heretofore issued or which are to be issued under the provisions of article first of this agreement, agree to receive in payment of coupons due May 1st, 1868, and those falling due up to and including those of November, 1869, the first-mortgage sterling bonds of said company, so far as amounts will justify (it being understood 279 that said first-mortgage sterling bonds are each in the sum two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling) and for any sum to be funded not equal thereto, said company is to issue interest bonds, which said interest bonds are to be secured by deposit of coupons in the hands of C. M. Lampson & Co., of London, and Tinker and Knox as aforesaid.

3d. The bondholders assenting to this agreement may nominate seven members of the board of directors of said company until such time as said company shall resume and continue the payment of interest, which persons so designated, the said Murdock, president as aforesaid, pledges all his influence, and that of the other present directors, so far as he can do so.

4th. The bondholders to be authorized to select the auditor of said company to such time as said company shall resume and continue interest payments.

5th. The holders of second-mortgage bonds agree to fund all interest coupons of 1868 and 1869 in interest bonds secured by deposit of the coupons so funded in the hands of C. M. Lampson & Co. for those held in England, and in the hands of said Tinker and Knox for those held in the United States.

6th. A bill in chancery to be filed to the next term or terms of court or courts, as counsel may advise, for the foreclosure of the mortgage given by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad for the security of its first-mortgage sterling bonds, and a decree to be obtained with all possible expedition for the foreclosure of said mortgage according to its terms in favor of the holders of said first-mortgage sterling bonds, they agreeing in the decree to suspend its execution to the 1st of May, 1870, with the condition that said decree shall then be executed unless interest is paid, or it may be executed at any time before the 1st of May, 1870, with the consent of the board of directors of said company.

The decree is to settle the entire equities of the case, and to direct the application of the moneys that may be realized under it, whether from income or sales, and in such way as to preserve and protect the equities of all parties according to their respective priorities.

The bondholders, however, agreeing that the interest due and to become due to the State of Tennessee (and which by statute of that State has a prior lien in so much of said road as is in said State, with power to seize said portion of said road in default of payment), shall first be paid from the income of said road.

7th. A monthly statement of the receipts and disbursements of the road shall be furnished to the said C. M. Lampson & Co., of London, and Tinker and Knox, of New York.

8th. This agreement shall be binding when the majority in amount of the first and second mortgage bondholders shall have assented thereto.

280 9th. The original of this agreement bearing the signatures of the English bondholders shall be deposited with Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Co., London, who shall be authorized to give certified copies thereof to parties in interest, and the copies so certified shall have the same force and effect as the original.

And the original of this agreement, bearing the signatures of the other bondholders, shall be deposited with Mess'rs Tinker and Knox, of New York, who shall give copies as aforesaid, of the force and effect aforesaid.

10th. The respective parties hereby pledge, each to the other, good faith in the execution of this agreement according to its spirit, the object being to enable said company, by the indulgence given, to pay its debts and restore itself to prosperty, while at the same time it secures to the bondholders the ultimate payment of their claims and the preservation of their liens according to their respective priorities.

I certify the foregoing to be a correct copy from the minutes of the board of directors, December 2, 1868.

The president stated that the meeting was called to make the necessary arrangements for the transfer of the Mississippi, Gainesville and Tuscaloosa Railroad to the company by Colonel James Crawford.

The following preamble and resolutions were read:

Whereas, By an act of the general assembly of the State of Alabama, approved March 3, 1871, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company is authorized to purchase from James Crawford the railroad extending from a point on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in the State of Mississippi, commonly called the Gainesville Junction, to the town of Gainesville, Alabama; and the property along the track of said railroad lately belonging to the Mississippi, Gainesville and Tuscaloosa Railroad Company, and the franchises of said company; and it is considered to be the interest of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to make such purchases on the terms hereinafter mentioned;

Therefore, resolved, 1st. That the president of this company be, and he is hereby, authorized to purchase from the said James Crawford, for this company, said railroad property and franchises at the price of fifty three thousand six hundred and one and 97-100 dollars ($53,601.97), with interest thereon from the first day of November last; and, in making such purchase, to covenant and agree for and in the name of this company, to continue said railroad in operation in future as is now done.

298 purchased from said Crawford by a deed of trust to William D. Dunn, John Reid, j'r, and Robert C. Crawford, as trustees, with power to them, or any one or more of them, upon default of payment of said bonds and coupons, or any of them, for three months after maturity, to sell the said property, or any part thereof, at public auction for cash, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the payment of said bonds and coupons eq'ally and rateably; and on any such default of payment each of said bonds shall become presently due and payable.

Resolution Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company relating to the issue of convertible bonds. Extract minutes board of directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. Mobile, November 10, 1873.

Present, Hon. A. Murdock, president; C. E. Rushing, first vice-president; Mess'rs Ja's Crawford, W'm D. Dunn, Jno. Reid, j'r, C. W. Butt, Cha's Walsh, F. B. Clark.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, This board, by resolutions passed on the 18th day of April, 1873, in pursuance of instructions by the stockholders of this company, proposed at their annual meeting, on the 15th of April, 1873, and adopted by their vote on the 17th of April, 1873, for the purpose of apportioning among said shareholders property of the company acquired since its organization, but not represented by the stock certificates theretofore issued, and of equalizing all proprietary interests therein, directed the issue to such stockholders of certificates for additional stock to an amount equal to that then held by them, on condition, however, of a money payment to the company by them respectively of twenty-five dollars for each share of such new stock, to be paid in instalments of $5.00 on 1st July, 1873, $10.00 on 1st November, 1873, $5.00 on 1st January, 1874, and $5.00 on 1st April, 1874, with interest on such portions as should not be promptly paid at the said dates; and

299 Whereas, Said money payment, while it was necessary to equalize such new issue of stock with that formerly issued, is also of essential importance to the company in order to raise means to meet the obligations of the company, for whose payment such unrepresented property of the company is liable, and

Whereas, A portion of such new stock remains unapplied for and has been forfeited to the company, while a large portion of said stock has been claimed and payment therefor, in whole or in part, duly made, on the terms heretofore declared, and the interest of the company will be advanced by the realizing by the company at an early day of the full amount of said twenty-five dollars per share, not yet fully paid up:

Now, then, to secure this end, and to place all persons who, on or before the first of January, 1874, shall, under these resolutions, have advanced to this company the said assessment of twenty-five dollars per share of new stock on an equal footing:

1st. Be it resolved, That the president of this company cause to be prepared and executed under the seal of the company, in such sums and denominations as may be most convenient, with proper letters and numbers, for purpose of record, bonds of this company to an amount, in the aggregate, not exceeding one-fourth of the par value of the whole issue of new stock which may be issued under these and the former resolutions. Said bonds shall be dated December 1st, 1873, and made payable ten years thereafter at the city of New York, and bear interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, payable quarter yearly at the office of Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the city of New York, and may be registered bonds. or with coupons for interest attached, at the option of the party to whom said bonds under these resolutions may be delivered. And the said company, by its president, or either of its vice-presidents, may contract for the disposal of said bonds, as provided by these resolutions, before the same are ready for delivery.

2d. Be it further resolved, That the bonds issued hereunder, as registered bonds, shall be duly registered in a proper book, and of which a duplicate shall be kept at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and of this company, and be transferable in said book at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and bear interest as provided in the foregoing resolution, all under such rules and regulations as the president of this company may prescribe, which said registered bonds may at any time be converted into coupon bonds at the option of the holder thereof upon presentation of the same to Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., at their office in the city of New York.

3. Be it further resolved, That each and every stockholder who, under these resolutions, may be entitled to an issue of new stock, and who already has or have paid, or on or before the 1st of January, 1874, shall have paid the said twenty-five dollars per share to the company, under these or the former resolutions of this board, or his assignee or assignees, shall be entitled to receive therefor the bonds of this company provided for in the foregoing resolutions, to an amount equal to the 300 aggregate of the sum so paid by him or them. But such bonds shall only be delivered to said parties upon their surrender to the company, or to the trustees hereinafter named, for cancellation, all certificates of new stock, or of partial payments of new stock, heretofore issued to them under the former resolution of this board providing for the issue of such new stock.

4th. Be it further resolved, That the holders of bonds issued and received under the foregoing resolutions shall, at any time before the maturity of said bonds, upon the delivery of said bonds to the agents and trustees of this company hereinafter named and who are duly authorized to act in the premises, be entitled to receive therefor shares of the capital stock of this company, at the rates of one share for every twenty-five dollars of the principal of the bond or bonds so delivered up and returned.

5th. Be it further resolved, That the president of this company cause forthwith to be prepared certificates for new stock, corresponding to the amounts of new stock which each shareholder will be entitled to under these resolutions, which said certificates, when so prepared, the said president shall place in the hands of Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., in trust and as trustees for the use and benefit of the holders of the bonds authorized by these resolutions, under the terms of the last foregoing resolutions. And said Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co. are hereby authorized and empowered, upon the delivery to them of any of the bonds issued hereunder, before the maturity thereof, to deliver to said bondholder so surrendering his bonds a certificate of stock at the said rate of one share of stock for every twenty-five dollars of the principal of the bonds so returned, and shall immediately notify the company of every such exchange of bonds for stock. And thereafter the holder of such stock so issued shall be entitled in full to all the rights and privileges of a stockholder in this company, to the extent of the stock so issued to him. All certificates for stock remaining in the hands of Mess'rs Duncan Sherman & Co., uncalled for at the maturity of said bonds, shall thereupon be by them returned to the company to be cancelled. The certificates of stock authorized by this resolution may be issued with the name of the holder in blank, or to Mess'rs Duncan, Sherman & Co., trustees hereunder, as may be found most expedient.

6th. Be it further resolved, That each bond issued hereunder shall contain such reference to the stock in whose right it is issued that the said stock can be ascertained and identified.

7th. Be it further resolved, That the foregoing shall in no way interfere with the rights of stockholders to receive their new stock on compliance with the terms of the resolutions of this board heretofore adopted the 18th day of April, 1873.

301 Resolution of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, relating to the issue of consolidated mortgage bonds, also the deed of trust or mortgage. Extract from minutes board of directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. Mobile, February 18, 1874.

Present, Hon. A. Murdock, president; W. D. Dunn, J. Crawford, C. W. Butt, F. B. Clark, M. Waring, J. Reid, j'r, W. P. Halliday.

The following preamble and resolution were unanimously adopted:

Whereas the present outstanding funded indebtedness of this company consists of several series of bonds, bearing different rates of interest and having different times of payment, and a portion thereof is approaching maturity, it is the opinion of the board that the best interests of the company would be subserved by a consolidation of its entire indebtedness to be funded in a single mortgage of an amount sufficient to provide also for future contingencies.

And whereas, with this view the president has submitted to this board a form of consolidated mortgage, and of a bond, which are as follows, to wit:

This indenture, made this first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a corporation created, organized and established by and under the laws of the States of Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Kentucky, party of the first part, and William Butler Duncan, of the city of New York, banker, and Samuel L. M. Barlow, of the same city, counsellor-at-law, parties of the second part, witnesseth, that whereas the said party of the first part is the owner of a continuous line of railway from Mobile, in the State of Alabama, to Columbus, on the Mississippi River, in the State of Kentucky, a distance of four hundred and seventy-two miles, in addition to certain branch lines, to wit, Columbus, fourteen miles; Oktibbeha, eleven miles; Gainesville, twenty-one miles; amounting in all to five hundred and eighteen miles, and of the franchise necessary to operate the same and all the properties appertaining thereto; and also, certain lands donated by acts of Congress to said company, saving and excepting therefrom such portions of said lands as 302 may heretofore have been sold or conveyed by the said party of the first part; and also, all other lands and real estate owned by the said party of the first part in all the States aforesaid.

And whereas the said party of the first part is authorized to execute a mortgage upon its said road, its property and franchises, and in conformity with such authority it now proposes to borrow money for the purpose of discharging all existing liens upon its property, and for the purpose of completing and equipping its lines, and for the general improvement of its roads, and to these ends its proposes to execute, issue, and negotiate its bonds of the general tenor hereinafter set forth, for an aggregate amount of fifteen millions of dollars, viz, fifteen thousand bonds, of one thousand dollars, or two hundred and five pounds sterling each, dated of even date with these presents, and payable in gold coin of the United States at the maturity thereof, to wit, on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and four, with interest coupons thereto attached, conditioned for the payment of interest thereon semi-annually, at the rate of seven per centum per annum, in gold coin of the United States, or in sterling at the option of the holder, which said bonds and coupons will be in substance and effect as follows, and numbered from one to fifteen thousand, inclusive:

A series of bonds, called convertible bonds, issued under an authority of the board of directors, under date of November 10th, 1873, amounting in the aggregate to.	1,000,000 00

It being hereby distinctly covenanted and agreed that all of said bonds above mentioned, amounting in the aggregate to not exceeding twelve million five hundred thousand dollars, issued and to be issued, are and are hereby declared to be secured as first or prior liens by this mortgage, the new proposed bonds to be issued hereunder for an equal amount being reserved to retire or pay the same as hereinafter expressed.

Now, therefore, this indenture witnesseth, that the said party of the first part, in consideration of the premises and of one dollar to it in hand paid by the parties of the second part at and before the ensealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and in order to secure the faithful payment of all of said bonds, as well as those already issued as above mentioned as those now proposed to be issued as herein set forth, and the interest due and to become due thereon according to their tenor and effect, has granted, bargained and sold, aliened, assigned and conveyed, and by these presents doth grant, bargain and sell, alien, assign, and convey to the parties hereto of the second part and to the survivors of them and their successors, trustees as aforesaid, all the right, title, and interest which the said party of the first part now has or may hereafter acquire in and to its franchises, its entire line of railway constructed as hereinbefore stated, extending from Mobile, in the State of Alabama, through and across the States of Mississippi and Tennessee, to Columbus, on the Mississippi River, in the State of Kentucky, together with all branches thereof constructed or to be constructed, together with the tolls, incomes, rents, issues, and profits thereof, and all real estate, rights of way, easements, fixtures, rolling stock, machinery, tolls, and equipments, and all other personal property thereunto belonging in all of said States, the true intent of this indenture being to vest all and every the property and right of property, real, personal, and mixed, and all the corporate powers and franchises of every kind whatsoever belonging or appertaining to the said party of the first part, or hereafter to be acquired, touching the aforesaid lines of railroad in the said parties of the second part.

To have and to hold the above described premises, property, rights, franchises, and appurtenances to the said parties of the second part, and the survivors of them and their successors, as joint tenants, and not as tenants in common, to the only proper use, benefit, and behoof of them, the said parties of the second part, and the survivor of them, and their successors forever.

305 And the said party of the first part, for itself, its successors and assigns, hereby covenants to and with the said party of the second part, the survivor of them and their successors, that it both shall and will, from time to time, whenever and so often as thereunto requested by the said trustees, the survivor of them, or successors, execute, acknowledge, and deliver all and any such further deeds, conveyances and assurances in the law for the better assuring unto the said trustees upon the trust herein expressed, all and singular, the lands and premises aforesaid, or hereafter to be acquired as aforesaid, as by the said trustees, or the survivor or successors, or their counsel learned in the law, shall be reasonably devised, advised or required, in trust, nevertheless, for the equal benefit and security of all persons or corporations who may be, or who may become holders of the above mentioned consolidated mortgage bonds, without any preference of any one of the said consolidated mortgage bonds over any other or others by reason of priority in time of issue, negotiation thereof, or otherwise; except so far as regards the bonds drawn at the annual drawing held, or hereafter provided, and for the uses and purposes herein declared and expressed.

It is hereby covenanted, declared, and agreed, that the premises, property, rights, franchises, and interest hereby mortgaged or conveyed, are to be had and holden by the said trustees and their successors upon and for the trusts, uses, and purposes following, that is to say:

First. Until default shall be made in the payment of the interest or the principal of any of the consolidated mortgage bonds aforesaid, the said party of the first part shall hold, use, and enjoy all its said property, and shall take and receive the income, earnings, and profits thereof for its own proper use, as fully as if this indenture had not been made. And further, unless and until default be made as aforesaid, and until all the first mortgage bonds heretofore issued by the said party of the first part, as aforesaid, be exchanged for the consolidated mortgage bonds to be issued under these presents, as herein and hereby provided for, or otherwise retired, nothing herein contained shall in any manner interfere with the sale and disposition of the lands donated to the said party of the first part by the Congress of the United States, in manner and for the uses and purposes described in the said first mortgage or deed of trust executed by the said party of the first part; but the said parties of the second part shall, with the approval of the said party of the first part, appoint a suitable agent to co-operate in and about the sale and disposition of said lands, as provided in said first mortgage, and under such regulations as said parties of the second part may prescribe, see to the proper application of the moneys realized from such sales, as provided for in said first mortgage and in pursuance thereof; and upon the exchange or retiring as aforesaid of the said first mortgage bonds, and the using of the trusts therein heretofore created, then the said proceeds of said sales of said lands are applied to the withdrawal and retirement of the bonds issued under and in conformity to these presents; and of all their doings in this respect, by the said parties and their agent or agents, full records shall be made and 306 kept, and always subject to the inspection of the parties to this indenture. If default shall be made in the payment of the interest upon any of said consolidated mortgage bonds, on the demand of the bona fide holders of the coupons representing at least one fifth of the said bonds secured by this indenture, and ninety days after the said demand, the aforesaid trustees, or the survivor of them, or their successors, shall enter upon and take possession of all the above described property, franchises, and lines of said railroad, and by their agents duly appointed, shall direct the management of the same, collecting all incomes and receipts, and after defraying the necessary and proper expenses of operating the said railroad of the said company, shall pay from the proceeds thereof all the interest then due and in arrears upon said consolidated mortgage bonds; or the said trustees, in their discretion, may proceed, after ninety days' notice, to be given in one or more newspapers published in the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama, and in the cities of New York and Boston, and London, in England, to sell at public auction in the city of Mobile, Alabama, such part of the said railroad company's property as shall be sufficient to discharge all said past due and unpaid interest, selling in the first instance the property of said company other than its lands, roadway, station buildings, shops, and franchises; but if said property shall be insufficient to pay all said past due interest, then at and under the same notice to proceed to sell the remainder of the property, roadway, lands, stations, and franchises, in such order as said trustees, or the survivor of them, his or their successors or successor may determine, until the full amount of such overdue and unpaid coupons shall have been realized, with all legal costs and expenses, and after any default shall have been made in the payment of the principal of any or either of the said consolidated mortgage bonds as aforesaid, for ninety days from the time of demand for the payment of the same by the holders, and upon the demand of one-fifth in amount of said bonds remaining due at the time; then, and in that event, and if so required by the bona fide holders of said amount of bonds, the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors, shall enter upon the premises and take possession of the entire property, lines of railroad, and franchises of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and shall proceed, by their duly appointed agents, to conduct the business of the same, and to control its affairs, receipts, and disbursements until the amount of any past due and unpaid principal and interest on said consolidated mortgage bonds shall have been fully discharged; or, in their discretion, the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors, after ninety days' notice, published in the newspapers aforementioned, may proceed to sell at public auction all such property, franchises, or such parts thereof as they may deem sufficient to satisfy and discharge all such claims, and in such order as they, or the survivor of them, or their successors, may determine to be proper.

And in case of any sale, as in either event herein authorized, said parties of the second part shall have power, and the same is hereby expressly conferred, to execute good and sufficient conveyance to 307 the purchaser or purchasers of the same, passing thereunto all right, title, and interest of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the property and franchises so sold.

And it is hereby expressly agreed that any and every sale so made as aforesaid shall be a perpetual bar, both at law and in equity, against the party of the first part, hereto, its successors and assigns, and against all and every person claiming or to claim the premises then sold, or any part thereof, by, through, or under it, its successors or assigns. The proceeds of such sale, after deducting the cost and expenses thereof, and the expenses of this trust, shall be by the aforesaid trustees applied in the first instance to the discharge of the past due and unpaid interest, and next to the payment of the principal of said bonds hereunder issued pro rata; and the residue thereof (if any) shall be by them paid over to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Second. The said party of the first part further covenants and agrees that out of its net earnings, that is to say, out of the earning left after the discharge of all expenses incident to the conduct of its business, maintenance of its property, and the discharge of its obligations on account of interest, to redeem annually one per centum of the entire amount of said consolidated mortgage bonds issued and then outstanding as hereinbefore provided; and in order to determine which of said bonds shall be so annually redeemed, the said party of the first part shall give notice in one or more newspapers published in the State of Alabama, and in at least one newspaper published in the city of New York and in London, the same to be published for thirty days, of the amount of bonds to be redeemed as required by this deed, of the time and place at which by lot the specific bonds to be redeemed shall be determined; such election of the bonds so to be redeemed by lot as aforesaid, to be made under the supervision of the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors, and in manner and form as they shall prescribe. Notice for at least thirty days in the newspapers afore said shall be given by the party of the first part, certified by the trustee.

aforesaid of the specific bonds so selected by lot, and then redeemable according to the provisions of this deed; thirty days after which said bonds shall cease to bear interest. The bonds so redeemed to be cancelled under the supervision of the aforesaid trustees, who shall keep a registry thereof by their numbers; and in default of a sufficiency of net earnings for any year to provide such fund for redemption, the deficit thereof shall be made good and employed in the redemption of bonds out of the net earnings, and the net earnings of the year or years next succeeding, in which there are such net earnings; and the expenses attending such drawings of bonds and the publication and notification as herein required, may be defrayed by said trustees out of said sinking-fund. Provided, That such redemption of the bonds issued under this mortgage shall begin for and with the fiscal year ending January 1st, 1880.

Third. The said party of the first part further covenants and agrees to deposit with the banking-house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., 308 New York, twelve million five hundred thousand dollars of the bonds herein authorized to be issued, not to be pledged or used in any manner by the party of the first part, except in the manner and for the purpose hereinafter specified, but the same or their proceeds shall be drawn out from time to time, only upon the order of the president of the aforesaid company, countersigned by the aforesaid trustees, the survivor of them, or their successors; the coupons upon such bonds as remain so deposited to be regularly cancelled by the said party of the first part, in the presence of the said trustees, as the same mature. The existing liens upon the mortgaged premises, exclusive of the bonds hereby secured, amounting to a sum not exceeding the said sum of twelve million five hundred thousand dollars, to provide for the payment of which this deposit is to be made.

The said bonds, when and as the same are so drawn out shall be applied or used under the supervision of the said trustees solely in the acquisition, by exchange or otherwise, as the president and board of directors of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company may arrange, and from time to time determine, of the aforesaid existing outstanding liabilities of said company; and no greater amount of said bonds shall be drawn out or used than shall equal the amount of such existing liabilities purchased or acquired as aforesaid, until all of said liabilities, as above set forth, are fully purchased or acquired, the aggregate amount of such liabilities not exceeding, as aforesaid, the said sum of twelve million five hundred thousand dollars.

And the said party of the first party of the first part hereby covenants and agrees with said parties of the second part that the said mortgaged premises hereby conveyed are free and clear of all incumbrances save and except only the aforesaid liabilities, amounting in the aggregate to a sum not exceeding twelve million five hundred thousand dollars. The evidences of such existing indebtedness and liens, as the same are so purchased or acquired, as herein contemplated, to be deposited with the aforesaid banking-house for the further security of the bonds issued under this mortgage, and to be accordingly so endorsed across their face by the said trustees for the time being, until all such outstanding obligations shall have been replaced, substituted, or discharged by the issues under this deed; then the same to be delivered over to the said party of the first part after the same are duly cancelled by said trustees; or the said trustees having, by some proper endorsement thereof, put an end to their assignability or negotiability, may deliver the same to the party of the first part, to be held by it as a protection to its title, in such form as may be found proper, so as in no case to interfere with the priority of the lien of this instrument over said indebtedness so purchased and surrendered; and except to the extent of the incumbrances hereinbefore specified, this conveyance is made with general warranty of title by the said party of the first part.

309 to be designated as the "Registry of First Mortgage Bondholders," and any and every holder of the bonds secured hereby, shall be entitled to have his name and address, and the numbers of the bonds so held or owned by him duly inscribed therein, upon the production at said office of such of said bonds as he may, by an endorsement to be made thereon, inscribe in his name as holder or owner; and after such registration such bonds shall not pass by delivery unless the same shall again be registered as payable to bearer, but such registration shall not compel the party of the first part to pay any overdue coupons on any such bonds to the registered owner, but the same may be paid to the bearer thereof.

Fifth. It is further mutually covenanted and agreed, that said trustees shall not, nor shall either of them or their successors be in any manner responsible for the default or misconduct of each other in said trust, nor for the neglect, default, or misconduct of any agent or attorney appointed pursuant to these presents, or for anything in respect to said premises, or the trusts hereby created, except personal misconduct or gross negligence in the execution of said trusts.

Sixth. It is further provided and declared that the said trustees, or either of them, or any succeeding trustee or trustees, may at any time hereafter, by an instrument in writing duly signed and forwarded to the said party of the first part, resign his or their office, and withdraw from the further execution of this trust; and thereupon, or in case at any time hereafter either of said trustees, or any trustee hereafter appointed, shall die, or be removed by a court of competent jurisdiction, or become mentally or otherwise incapacitated to execute the trusts, the president of the company, with the written approval and assent of the holders of bonds (the said consolidated mortgage) secured hereby, to the aggregate extent of not less than one-third of the said bonds outstanding and unpaid, may appoint a trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy, and in such case the new trustee or trustees appointed, either while he or they shall continue to be such, shall have and possess, and be subject to the like rights, powers, estates, and duties, as if he or they had been originally trustees hereunder, and, during any vacancy in the trusteeship, the remaining or surviving trustee shall have power to execute the trusts until the vacancy is filled. In default of appointment as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the parties of the second part, or in case of neglect for a reasonable time, then for the party of the first part to apply to a court in Alabama having jurisdiction in the premises, for the appointment of a trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy or vacancies, and so from time to time.

And it is further provided and declared, that the due appointment of a trustee or trustees shall be effectual to vest in him or them the appropriate estate, rights, powers, and duties as herein provided in that behalf without any new deed or conveyance; but, nevertheless, the party of the first part hereby covenants, in any and every such case, to make and execute, upon request, any such deeds and conveyances or assurances as may be appropriate for more fully and certainly vesting in and confirming to such new trustee or trustees, such estate, rights, powers, 310 and duties; and in every case of resignation of a trustee, the resigning trustee shall, if requested, make and execute such conveyances or assurances to his successors.

And the said party of the first part further covenants that the party of the first part shall and will well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, unto the holder or holders of said bonds, the principal and interest thereof, as such principal and interest becomes payable, according to the tenor of said bonds respectively, and of the coupons thereto attached.

Seventh. It is further provided and declared, that if the said party of the first part shall well and truly keep and perform the foregoing covenants and agreements on its part to be performed, and shall well and truly pay the said bonds hereby secured, with interest thereon, according to the tenor thereof, then these presents shall be void, otherwise to remain in full furce.

In testimony whereof, the said, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed, and the same to be attested by its president and secretary, the day and year first above written.

Secretary.

And in testimony of their acceptance of the trusts herein conferred and imposed, the said trustees have hereunto severally set their hands and seals.

Therefore resolved, That the plan of issuing a consolidated mortgage is approved, and the foregoing form of mortgage and bond is ratified and adopted by this board, and the president is hereby authorized and empowered to execute the mortgage, and to have the bonds prepared in accordance with the forms aforesaid, under the corporate seal of the company, attested by the secretary, and to cause the coupons thereto attached to be properly authenticated, in order that the whole may constitute a binding and valid obligation upon the company.

} On bill, &c.

Exceptions to master's report.—Filed April 6th, 1877.

Come the trustees of the 2nd mortgage of said defendant corporation, defendants in said cause, and L. J. Belloni & Charles Moran, objecting creditors, and except to said reports of said master in said cause, as follows:

1. For that the said master hath not shown by said report that he made publication that he was ready to receive proof of debts secured by the mortgages of said company, and of the manner of making proofs, and before whom they could be made, as required by the orders of said court.

2nd. For that said master in his report "upon the funded debt of the M. & O. R. R. Co. and the debt due upon the securities of the said 315 corporation, and the claims presented and filed, and the amounts due each holder," hath stated coupons matured and unpaid and not funded to Nov. 1st, 1876, and 1st mortgage bonds at $1,289,941.80, including in said sum certain coupons held by Alexander Duncan and others, the validity of which is disputed by exceptions; whereas the said master ought not to have included in said statement any of said coupons so held by said Duncan, but ought to have reported the indebtedness of said company on coupons matured and unpaid to Nov. 1st, 1876, precisely as it existed at said date upon coupons the validity of which was recognized by all the parties to said cause.

3rd. For that the said master in his said report hath stated coupons matured and unpaid to Nov. 1st, 1876, on "10-year interest bonds," at the sum of $202,104.00; on "interest-arrearage" bonds, at $8,448.00; on "funded-interest" bonds, at $155,280.00; on "sterling-interest" bonds, at $152,444.16, including in said various sums certain coupons, 316 held by said Alexander Duncan and others, the validity of which is disputed by exceptants; whereas the said master ought not to have included in said sums any of said coupons so held by said Duncan and others, but ought to have reported the coupons matured and unpaid on said bonds to 1st Nov., 1876, precisely as they were at said date, recognized as valid by all the parties to said cause.

4th. For that the footings of the sterling and coupon indebtedness of said company and interest, bonds, and coupons of said company in said report are incorrect, inasmuch as they include the said coupons so in dispute as aforesaid.

And said exceptants except to the report of said master under decree of March 6th, 1876, filed April 6th, 1877, "upon the mortgages, &c., creating liens or charges upon the trust property and upon the priorities of the same."

1st. For that the said master in and by said report has reported proved before him coupons matured and unpaid amounting to $911,457.73. 317 This sum exceptants state includes coupons held by Alexander Duncan and others, the validity of which is disputed by exceptants.

2nd. For that the said master in his said report and in exhibits C schedules one to four, has reported the bonds and coupons secured by the first mortgage of said company as amounting to $7,097,516.04 and that the same are a first lien upon the property of said company described in said mortgage, except the lien of the Tennessee substitution bonds, if the same be established as superior thereto and subject to a further report of the coupons which matured in 1874: whereas, the said master ought to have stated the said bonds and coupons without including in the total thereof the said coupons of 1874, which exceptants aver are disputed as invalid and not a lien upon the property included in said mortgage.

3rd. For that the master in his said report, hath reported that 318 the "interest bonds described in said report are a first-mortgage lien of equal amount for the coupons for which they were substituted and interest thereon from date of maturity; whereas said master ought to have reported that they are not a first-mortgage lien and not a lien at all upon said mortgaged property; or if a lien, that they are subject and subordinate to the lien of the second mortgage.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN AND A. F. ELLIOT, trustees,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et als.

To the honorable the circuit court of the United States for the circuit and district aforesaid.

The master has heretofore reported under the decree of reference of March 6, 1876, the property included in the terms of the trust deed and in the possession and control of trustees and receivers, plaintiffs in this cause; also the bonds secured by the respective mortgages of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and the funded debt as shown by the books of the defendant corporation and otherwise proved, and the claims presented and proved by the holders thereof, with the amount due each holder.

He also reported the mortgages, deeds of trust, or other instruments creating a charge or lien upon the trust property, and the order and priority of each of them.

Reservation was made in said last report of all conclusion as to the objections filed by Moran Brothers to the Tennessee substitution bonds, and the objection of L. J. Belloni, jr., to the first mortgage coupons of 1874 as any liens upon the trust property. The time for the contestation of said matters was extended by the court on the application of said objectors to the 20th April, 1877. A further order, made on a petition of the Rogers Locomotive and Machine Works, filed by E. H. Grandin, of counsel, also acting for second-mortgage trustees, extended the time for said trustees to adduce testimony in support of their answer to the 25th of April.

The following report relates to these contested matters.

The ninth article of the decree of March 6, 1876, provides as follows:

"Exceptions to the reports may be filed by the parties to the bill, but should any creditor who shall prove his claim be desirous to contest any other claim proved, and the trustees representing the claim of such creditor shall neglect or refuse to make the exception proposed by the creditor, upon proof that he has made the request of the trustee, 322 and the neglect or refusal by him, the master shall allow of the exception or contestation, and shall report upon it as if made by the trustee."

Under this provision, E. L. Andrews, esq., as counsel for L. J. Belloni, j'r, a first-mortgage bondholder, claiming to hold six bonds, presented through the trustees, Duncan and Elliot, on the 25th November, 1876, certain objections to the claim of Alexander Duncan and others, holding first-mortgage coupons of May and November, 1874, which objections were substantially as follows:

That the May and November coupons, 1874, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's first-mortgage bonds were presented at the usual places of payment and were then and there paid to the parties so presenting them, and were surrendered by said parties, and were received by the payors who had heretofore acted as agents of the company about the payment of its coupons, and that said coupons after said payment became inoperative as a claim against said company or as a lien upon any of its property.

Said objections were answered by George N. Stewart, esq., of counsel for Alexander Duncan, claiming that said Duncan was the sole and lawful owner of said coupons for full value paid, and, as such owner, entitled to payment out of the trust property with the mortgage liens appertaining to the bonds of which said coupons formed a part.

M'r Andrews, as solicitor for Mess'rs Moran, of New York, also filed objections to the proof or admission of the Tennessee substitution bonds and coupons as a prior lien, or any lien, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, or any part thereof. Similar objections to the Tennessee lien and to the coupons of 1874 are presented in the answers of the second-mortgage trustees, filed with the pleadings in the cause.

The master gave due notice to the attorneys of record in the main cause and to counsel for objectors, of the times and places of taking proof in regard to said objections and upon all other matters before him, and was attended by the following solicitors: P. Hamilton, of counsel for trustees and receivers; George N. Stewart, of counsel for Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and Alexander Duncan; W'm G. Jones and E. H. Grandin, representing trustees of the second mortgage; and E. L. Andrews, of New York, solicitor for objectors, Moran Brothers and Belloni; E. H. Grandin also appeared as solicitor for objectors.

The master's sessions were held at Mobile, commencing first Monday in December, 1876, and continuing, under various orders and extensions, until April 25, 1877, during which period much testimony was taken, which is herewith returned to the court, together with minutes of 323 the proceedings. Testimony was also taken by commission in London and New York, and is also returned. Under an order dated 18th January, 1877, all testimony taken or to be taken, with reference to priorities of liens, was ordered to be printed, which has been done. Proof was offered with reference to the title of trustees complainants, as denied in the answers of the second-mortgage trustees; and also as to matters pertaining to the organization or reorganizaion of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. As said matters were deemed entirely outside of the scope of the reference, the same were excluded, so far as practicable, and when objected to. Nevertheless, a large part of the testimony taken is of an irrelevant nature, does not pertain to the object presented by the objections, and is not pertinent to any of the matters of liens and priorities referred by the court.

As to the Tennessee substitution bonds, which are claimed to be a lien upon so much of the property as lies in the State of Tennessee, i has been heretofore reported that the trustees of that lien declined to avail themselves of the permission to become parties, contained in the fifth article of the decree of reference, and refused to appear before the master and defend against the objections filed; and it was considered that said matter was not properly in condition for a report at this time.

Counsel for trustees, complainants, and for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, objected to the taking of testimony upon the exceptions of Moran Brothers to the Tennessee claims; but said testimony was taken in full. The master deemed it his duty to receive it under the ninth article of the decree hereinbefore quoted, and under the order of March 28th, allowing objectors further time to take testimony. Said testimony is herewith returned to the court, but without further report.

The only matter left open on which a report is necessary is the claim of Alexander Duncan for the allowance of the first-mortgage coupons of May and November, 1874.

As to this the master reports:

In September, 1876, in New York City, Alexander Duncan, by his attorney, George A. Leete, presented and made proof of his ownership of certain coupons under the first mortgage, which fell due May 1 and November 1, 1874, to the aggregate of eighty-five thousand five hundred and seventy-five pounds sterling of the coupons of the first-mortgage sterling and sterling-interest bonds, and of one hundred and eighteen thousand six hundred and fifty-six dollars of coupons of currency interest bonds. The total amount of the claim in currency, rating 324 the pound sterling at 4.86.65 (under section 3565 Rev. Statutes of the United States), is $535,106.74, exclusive of interest on the coupons from dates of maturity, which is also claimed.

The particulars of this claim, as of all others, appear in the schedules to the funded debt report, filed April 5, 1877, showing the various series of bonds to which the coupons pertain, and the number and amount of said coupons. Said coupons were detached from the bonds uncancelled, and were severally presented to the master for inspection, and were carefully verified as to numbers, amounts, and dates, with the proofs made.

Other coupons were presented for Alexander Duncan and proof made, to which no objections have been filed, except as to those pertaining to the Tennessee substitution bonds, embraced in the issues raised by the answer of the second mortgage trustees and in the objections of Moran. The objections of Belloni pertain exclusively to the coupons which fell due in May and November, 1874, upon bonds issued under or secured by the first mortgage.

The proofs of all of Alexander Duncan's claims were filed in September, 1876, and have been returned to the court with the master's report of April 5, 1877.

The question appears to be whether or not the coupons of 1st May and 1st November aforesaid were extinguished by the sums paid to the holders for them, so as to be no longer securities protected by the first mortgage, or whether they stand in claimant's hands as uncancelled, with all the rights of the mortgage, and as all other coupons due and unpaid.

It is in evidence and admitted that the former holders of said coupons have been satisfied and have no further claim, having received the money coming to them for the same.

The evidence shows that the coupons of 1874 are held uncancelled by Alexander Duncan, and were proved by him before the master as his property. The question, however, seems to be as to the nature and effect of the mode and manner of payment.

As to the mode and manner the evidence is very complete.

For instance, the coupon holders who presented them for payment at the company's offices in Mobile were handed back their coupons after they had been verified or counted by the treasurer or his assistant, and placed in envelopes endorsed with memoranda of the number and amounts, and the holders were told to take them to the Bank of Mobile, where they would be paid. On presentation at said bank to the teller, the coupons were retained by the bank officer and the bank's cheques or money was given for them. The mode and manner of payment in 325 London and New York was not the usual mode. In London the coupons for May, 1874, were taken up on instructions from Duncan, Sherman & Co. by the Union Bank, and for November by the Credit Foncier. In New York the evidence is that they were not paid in the usual manner, and that the holders were informed that they were being purchased and held uncancelled.

It is in proof that the railroad company did not pay them, and supplied no money for their payment. The May and November interest for 1874, on first-mortgage bonds, stands on the company's books as unpaid and in default. It does not appear that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company paid one of those coupons, or that it intended to do so.

It is shown by evidence that the money to take up said coupons was furnished by Duncan, Sherman & Co., out of their own moneys, or from funds furnished by Alexander Duncan and others.

The proof is full as to the intent of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and their agents, the Bank of Mobile, Credit Foncier, &c., with the assent of the company, not to pay or satisfy said coupons so as to extinguish them; ut, on the contrary, their plainly expressed intention was that they should be purchased and remain uncancelled with all the rights that purchasers would have. Their taking up the coupons without extinguishment was with the consent of the company, by the express agreement with its officers that they were to be purchased with all lien rights as existing mortgage security preserved and held until the company could pay them.

It is not shown in evidence that in any instance the company or its officers retained possession of any of these coupons, but they were received from the parties presenting them, by Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s purchasing agents. There is no proof that they have ever been in the possession of the company since the original holders received the money for them and surrendered them to said agencies.

Evidence was adduced to show that a portion of the original owners did not know that the company was not paying. It appears that some did not know and did not inquire. Others did and were fully informed. Payment was not made at the treasurer's counter as usual. It appears that all who inquired were informed of the nature of the payment. There was evidence to show that a written notice was posted up in view in the treasurer's office. The evidence is full that the purchasing agencies and the officers of the company fully understood the transaction. Evidence offered to show that the matter was kept secret failed.

The master conceives that the question does not depend on the fact whether the parties receiving payment knew who made it. It 326 seems that is immaterial to the inquiry. The debtor company consented to the transaction, and the party paying did not intend to extinguish the security, which was a negotiable paper passing by delivery. It is sufficient that the parties most interested, viz, the company owing and the party paying the debt, both concurred in the expressed intent that the coupons should be held as a valid subsisting lien, to make it so in this case. It certainly could not have been intended that the lien should be destroyed. The evidence in the shape of telegrams, correspondence, and instructions passing between Duncan, Sherman & Co. and their agencies in taking up the coupons, and with the officers of the company, prior to the maturity of the coupons, seems to the master to be conclusive as to the intention to preserve the lien, which intention should govern this case.

There was evidence to show that the company could have paid the coupons, if it would, in preference to other debts which were paid, some of which were unsecured. The master is of the opinion that it is immaterial whether the company, by better management, could have paid or not. So long as the company by its own officers was in possession of its property and income, although subject to be taken possession of by the trustees, and although it may appear that it did pay inferior debts, that is not a matter material and should not be allowed to affect the rights of the claimant.

It is undeniable that the defendant corporation did not pay this debt. The coupon-holders received the money, but it was not the money of the company, whose books fail to show the payment of one first-mortgage coupon of May and November, 1874, or since those dates. It was claimant's money which purchased the coupons for full value, and he holds them uncancelled with all the rights and liens of the bonds from which they were taken.

The master therefore finds and reports to the court that the claim of Alexander Duncan for the detached coupons of 1874, which has been objected to on this reference, is a just and lawful claim, and should be allowed, with interest from the time or times when due, as a valid subsisting lien of the same force and effect as other coupons of the first mortgage unpaid, with all the liens applicable to said mortgage.

This report disposes of all matters before the master not heretofore reported upon.

Respectfully submitted.

Objections of L. J. Belloni, Jr., to the allowance of Coupons of 1874.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,

In and for the Fifth Judicial Circuit and Southern District of Alabama.

W. B. DUNCAN AND A. F. ELLIOT.
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, et al.
In Equity.

To the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of Alabama, and to the Special Master Commissioner appointed by the said Court in the above cause:

Objections taken by First Mortgage Sterling Bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, to the proof or admission of the coupons for May and November, 1874 claimed by Alexander Duncan and others.

First. For that the said Coupons of the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company were presented by the then holders thereof, on or about the 1st days of May and November, 1874, at the usual and accustomed places where the coupons of the said bonds had been hitherto paid, and that the said coupons were then and there paid to the parties so presenting them, and were surrendered by said parties and the said coupons were received by the payers thereof, who had theretofore acted as agents of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in and about the payment of its coupons on its First Mortgage Sterling Bonds. And the matters above recited in reference to said coupons transferred in the case of the coupons of the bonds held by this objector; and that no notice or claim was made at or before the time of the payment aforesaid of any purchase of said coupons by any one whatsoever; and no such claim or notice came to this objector's knowledge, nor was the same in any way called to his attention. But, on the contrary, the published notices in the newspapers at the said times announced over the signature of Duncan, Sherman and Company, from whom the above named Alexander Duncan claims title; that the aforesaid coupons would be paid on presentation. And it was in pursuance of such notice of payment that this objector presented his coupons and received payment thereof. And the said coupons, after said payment, became inoperative as a claim against said Company, or a lien upon any of its property.

Wherefore, the said Louis J. Belloni, jr., objects to the reception of any proof of said coupons as a claim or lien, herein, or as a claim or lien of equal rank with the First Mortgage bonds aforefaid.

Second. To the admission of said coupons by the Master herein as a claim or lien upon or against the property of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or to a claim or lien of equal rank with the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, or to any Report of said Master in favor of the admission or validity of said coupons or claims, or secured by liens as aforesaid.

Third. And this objector claims to except to any such admission, proof, or Report herein, and claims leave and direction of said Master for the introduction of proof of the facts set forth in the foregoing exceptions, or to any of the same that are not admitted by any claimants on said coupons.

Fourth. And this objector claims a hearing before the Master, and such other relief as may be just.

Objections of Moran Bros. to Tennessee Substitution Bonds.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.
Southern District of Alabama.

W. B. DUNCAN et al. vs. MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et al.	MASTER'S OFFICE: Objections of Charles Moran, Daniel C. Moran, and Amedee D. Moran, composing the firm of Moran Brothers.

Objections taken by First Mortgage Sterling Bondholders to the proof or admission of the so-called Tennessee Substitution Bonds and Coupons as first or any liens on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad or any part thereof.

First. For that the lien of the State of Tennessee assigned to the Trustees of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, was paid and satisfied by the surrender to the State of its own bonds and the cancellation of the same by the State officials before the assignment of said State lien.

Second. For that the said State Bonds were procured from the then holders thereof by means of the resources or credit of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and through persons acting as agents thereof, and to the profit of the Railroad Company.

Third. For that the lien of the State was not assignable to any one whatsoever.

Fourth. For that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company could not, by force of any deed executed in 1871, confer upon bonds then issued a priority over the First Mortgage Bonds or any other existing lien issued previously.

Fifth. For that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company could not, for its own benefit, and with a view to its own profit, keep alive the extinct lien of the State to aid or sustain its credit upon new obligations.

Sixth. For that the legislation of the State of Tennessee whereby it was attempted to assign its satisfied lien for the benefit of holders of new bonds, was an endeavor to impair the obligation of the contract between the First Mortgage Sterling Bondholders and the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, Seventh. For that the lien of the State of Tennessee was limited by the comtract between the company and the First Mortgage Sterling Bondholders to ($10,000) ten thousand dollars per mile, and cannot, in any event, be made to exceed that amount, with proper interest.

Eighth. For that the holders of the over-due coupons on the State Bonds issued under the State lien who surrendered the same and accepted bonds of the State in lieu thereof, accepted and thereby agreed to rely upon and be satisfied with the credit of the State of Tennessee, and thus relinguished whatever liens they may have possessed under the surrendered coupons.

Ninth. For that the coupons of the so-called Substitution Bonds which fell due before July, 1875, were regularly paid at the places designated by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and in the accustomed manner of payment, and thereupon became cancelled as liens upon the property, and cannot be revived as incumbrances upon the estate.

Tenth. For that the bonds of the State of Tennessee which represented the former lien upon the Tennessee portion of the road bore interest for and only at the rate of six per cent. per annum in currency, and the so-called Substitution Bonds, if valid liens, are not entitled to any greater rate of interest than six per cent. per annum.

Eleventh. For that said Substitution Bonds have a longer time to run than the bonds issued by the State of Tennessee, and the said State Bonds would have become due and payable before the substitution became due.

Twelfth. For that the rights of the holders of the bonds issued in aid of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company by the State of Tennessee have not been relinquished.

Thirteenth. For that the State of Tennessee was constituted by law the trustee and holder of such lien as was created by the legislation of the State, and is still such trustee for any valid claim on said lien, and is the only party entitled to represent said lien before the court.

Fourteenth. For that the said Substitution Bonds do not hold or represent any valid mortgage or lien upon any part of the property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Wherefore, the said Charles Moran, Daniel C. Moran, Amedee D. Moran object to the reception of any proof of said bonds or coupons as liens upon said property or any part thereof and to their admission as said liens.

And to any Report of the Master herein in favor of the admission or validity of said bonds or liens aforesaid.

Such

coupons

And these objectors claim leave and direction of said Master for the introduction of proof of the facts set forth in the foregoing objections and for a hearing by counsel before said Master.

And for such other relief as may be just.

WM. BUTLER DUNCAN et el.
vs.
MOBIE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et al.
In Equity.

United States of America—ss:
Southern District of New York.

A. D. Moran being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That on or abont the 30th day of August, 1876, he served W. B. Duncan, one of the complainants herein, with a copy of the annexed paper, marked Exhibit A, by leaving the same with him.

That the said Duncan, on receiving the said paper, stated to deponent that it was all right; that the Second Mortgage were taking a ~~somewhat~~ similar objection.

That deponent presented a copy of the same paper to Master Gillette, who stated that the decree required service of the same on the complainants, and it was in pursuance of the said direction of the Master that deponent thereafter served Mr. Duncan as aforesaid. About the same time the Master requested deponent to leave a copy of the said paper with him, the Master, to use before the court in case it was necessary, and deponent did then leave a copy with the Master as requested.

That deponent is informed and verily believes that neither Mr. Duncan nor Mr. Elliott has yet taken any action before the Master adverse to the Tennessee Substitution claims referred to in said document, and from the action of complainants as shown by the records in this Court, deponent does not believe that complainants intend to enforce the objections brought to their knowledge as hereinbefore set forth.

That the questions involved in said claims require proof of facts before the Master in order that they may be properly laid before the court.

That for said purpose, and for the more effectual protection of the rights of deponent and his firm as First Mortgage Bondholders objections to said claims are necessary to be filed in their own behalf.

NEW YORK, 30th August, 1876.

James Gillette, Esq.,
Special Master Commissioner appointed by the Honorable Circuit Court of the United States for the Fifth Judicial Circuit and Southern District of Alabama, in the matter of Wm. Butler Duncan, A. Foster Elliot, Trustees, against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company:

Sir—

We hereby give you notice that we as holders of 368 First Mortgage Mobile and Ohio Railroad 6 per cent. Sterling Bonds of £225 each,

30 8 per cent. Interest Bonds, idem of $1,000 each, representing funded interest on above 1st Mortgage Bonds,

1 idem, $500,

7 8 per cent. Mobile and Ohio Railroad 2d Mortgage Bonds of $1,000 each, do protest against the 7 per cent. Gold Bonds of the same company, amounting to $1,685,000 and known as the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, being proved as a First Mortgage on the Tennessee Division of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, as we claim that the First Mortgage 6 per cent. Sterling Bonds and 8 per cent. Interest Bonds take precedence of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, because the claims of the State of Tennessee had been fully liquidated prior to the execution of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, and because the State of Tennessee could not legally confer the right of priority in favor of bonds created in 1870, different in nature and in amount from those advanced by the State.

And we further beg you to take notice that we reserve to ourselves all our legal and equitable rights in the premises.

Yours, Respectfully,

Answer of Alexander Duncan to the Objections and Contestations of Louis J. Belloni, Jr.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
Fifth Judicial Circuit Southern District of Alabama.

DUNCAN & ELLIOT, Trustees, vs THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, et al.	In Equity.

On reference before Special Master, James Gillette under the order of said court.

And now at this day comes Alexander Duncan, who has filed and proved before said Master his claim for coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, as is shown by the said proofs on file on the reference, and who defends against the contestation filed before said Master by Louis J. Belloni, jr., by E. L. Andrews, his counsel, as well on his own behalf as on that of other claimants, of coupons proved and on file with claims similar to his own, and for answer and defence against said contestation and objections, he answering says:

That he, the said Alexander Duncan was, at the time of the filing of said detached coupons, issued by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which he has laid before the said Special Master, and of which he has made due proof, as is shown by the record of this reference the true and legal owner and holder of said coupons, from thence has so continued, and still is the lawful holder and bearer of the same, and is lawfully entitled to payment thereof by said Railroad Company and of each of them, and that he is justly entitled, and insists that the same be reported on this reference as due to him with the mortgage liens of the bonds to which they respectively appertain and with which they were issued; and he further saith that he became the lawful holder of the same for full value paid by him for the same as his property; and he further says that said coupons have not been paid by the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company according to the tenor or effect of said coupons, nor either of them, nor any part of either of them, and he says that they and each of them stand in full force and effect as valid and lawful obligations of said company due to him, this respondent, with all the liens appertaining to the bonds of which they respectively formed part; and this defendant denies the obligations of the said contestant in this behalf to be true as alleged and set forth in the said petition; wherefore, he prays that if material, that said objector be required to make full proof of his said allegations before any such order be made as has prayed, and that the proof heretofore made by him, this respondent, of his said claim and right to the payment of said coupons and of the liens appertaining to the same shall stand in full force.

All which is respectfully submitted.

MINUTES OF A REFERENCE HELD UNDER THE DECRETAL ORDER OF MARCH 6, 1876, BEFORE JAMES GILLETTE, SPECIAL MASTER.

A reference before the Special Master in the above entitled cause, held pursuant to notice under paragraph 9 of the decree of March 6th, 1876, convened on Monday, December 4th, 1876, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Present: the Special Master, James Gillette, and the following Solicitors of record:

P. Hamilton, of counsel representing trustees of the First Mortgage, who are complainants in the bill and receivers;

Wm. G. Jones and E. H. Grandin, representing trustees under the Second Mortgage;

George N. Stewart, counsel for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and E. L. Andrews, Esq., Solicitor for Messrs. Moran Brothers, of New York City, who have filed objections to "the allowance of the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds as entitled to priority of lien, or to any lien, on the railroad property described in the bill," and Solicitor also, for Louis J. Belloni, jr., who has filed objections to the "coupons of the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds of the M. & O. R. R. Co., which became due on the 1st days of May and December, 1874. as liens of equal rank with the said First Mortgage, and as liens upon the property of said company."

And by consent the reference was adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday morning, at 11 o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

TUESDAY, December 5th, 1876.

The reference convened pursuant to adjournment.

Present: the Special Master and the counsel for the several parties, as of the day previous.

Mr. E. L. Andrews, appearing for Messrs. Moran Brothers, of New York City, First Mortgage Bondholders, objecting to the allowance of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, moved for the production of the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company recording the minutes of the Directors in 1870, 1871 and 1872, and also the correspondence of said company or any of its officers, of W. B. Duncan and R. T. Wilson, and particularly any of such minutes or correspondence relating to the Tennessee Substitution Bonds; and also, for a subpœna to issue to A. L. Willoughby, Treasurer, and C. A. Wetton, Auditor.

Mr. George N. Stewart entered his appearance for Mr. Alexander Duncan, and other holders of the First Mortgage coupons of 1874, whose rights are sought to be impaired by the objection filed by Louis J. Belloni, jr.

Mr. P. Hamilton, appearing for the trustees and receivers, who are complainants in the bill, suggested that parties who have filed claims as holders of the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds should be notified of the objections, as preliminary to all proceedings against them.

Mr. W. G. Jones, representing trustees of the Second Mortgage, stated that his clients contested both the liens claimed by the holders of the First Mortgage coupons of 1874 and the Tennessee Substitution Bonds. Mr. E. H. Grandin appearing with Judge Jones, and representing the same interests, made the same statement for his clients.

The point being raised by Judge Jones that certain of the trustees of the Tennessee Mortgage had appeared by counsel on the previous sessions of the Master, and had received notice of these proceedings, the Master stated Messrs. R. H. and R. I. Smith counsel for Messrs. Iselin and Wilson, trustees of the Tennessee Mortgage, had appeared up to a certain time in the proceedings before him, and had received notice in this matter; but in response to the last notice had notified him that they had been instructed by their clients not to appear or to recognize any of the proceedings of the Master in this cause; but to conduct their case before the court in Tennessee.

Mr. Jones argued that under such circumstances further notice was unnecessary.

Mr. Andrews, concurring, argued that the decree required the direct examination of all liens on the property from Mobile to Columbus, Ky., and resisted the suggestion that notice was required to each and every Tennessee bondholder.

Mr. Stewart requested until next day to file answer to the objections of L. J. Belloni, jr., to the coupons of 1874.

The Master stated that two sets of objections were before him, embracing separate matters, to which no answers had been filed, and ordered that the objections of L. J. Belloni to the First Mortgage coupons of 1874 be first considered, allowing until to-morrow morning to counsel to file answer.

Mr. Andrews objected to considering them first, and proposed to take up the objections of Moran Brothers to the Tennessee Bonds.

Mr. Hamilton renewed his suggestion that as the Tennessee trustees declined to appear, the parties who have presented claims have individual rights entitling them to notice.

The Special Master thereupon decided as follows:

Section 9 of the decree of March 6, 1875, governs the matter.

When a bondholder comes outside of his trustee and makes objection to the claim of another bondholder, equity, as well as the intent and spirit of the decree, requires that the bondholder whose claim is attacked should have notice. The trustees of the Tennessee Mortgage by their counsel, having informed the Master that they decline to appear in this court, the matter resolves itself into a contest between bondholders who are equally entitled to notice. It is, therefore, decided that the objections of Messrs. Moran Bros. be not taken up until notice is given in conformity with this decision.

Ordered, That notice issue to the creditors who have filed claims for Tennessee Substitution Bonds, of the contestation filed by Messrs. Moran Bros.

Ordered, That the objections of Louis J. Belloni, jr., to the First Mortgage coupons of 1874 be taken up to-morrow morning, with leave to the counsel for coupon-holders to file answer.

Thereupon, the reference adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

To Nathan Whiting, A. DuMont, Jno. B. Hazard, Wm. H. Ross and Theodore Guesnard:

B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, trustees, vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Special Master Commissioner's Office, Mobile, Ala., Dec. 6th, 1876.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

Marshal's Return.

Received, Marshal's office, December 6th, 1876, and executed same day by serving a copy of the within subpœna upon N. W. Whiting, A. DuMont, J. B. Hazard, T. Guesnard and W. H. Ross.

GEORGE TURNER,
U. S. Marshal.

By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

WEDNESDAY, December 6th, 1876.

The session of the Special Master commenced at 10 o'clock A. M., pursuant to adjournment.

Present: the Special Master and counsel as of the day previous.

Minutes of the previous day read.

On motion of Mr. Andrews, minutes amended so as to show for whom Messrs. R. H. and R. I. Smith had appeared on previous references, and for whom they now declined to appear. The Master stating that they had appeared for Mr. R. T. Wilson and A Iselin, trustees of the Tennessee Mortgage, and the minutes so amended.

Mr. George N. Stewart, as Solicitor for Mr. Alexander Duncan and others, holders of coupons of 1874, filed answer to the objections and contestation of Louis J. Belloni, jr.

The Solicitor (Mr. Andrews) for Moran Brothers, offered the following motion which was concurred in by Messrs. Jones and Grandin, representing the Second Mortgage:

"I move that the reference as to the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, proceed as against W. B. Duncan, one of the trustees thereof, notified of these proceedings, or that default of said Duncan as such trustee be taken."

Motion resisted by counsel for trustees complainant and receivers.

After argument, motion was overruled on the ground that Mr. Duncan was not a party to the record in the capacity of Trustee of the Tennessee Mortgage, but appeared as receiver or custodian of the whole property.

It has been decided already not to go on with the objections to the Tennessee bonds until notice is given to the bondholders themselves.

Ruling objected to by Mr. Andrews, solicitor for Moran Brothers.

Mr. Andrews then moved as follows:

"Motion to issue notice to Wm. Butler Duncan, as trustee of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, to appear before the Master on this reference; and also, to Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, as trustees of the Tennessee Substitution Deed."

Motion of E. H. Grandin for Second Mortgage Bondholders, that Wm. Butler Duncan, as trustee, be notified to appear in his capacity of trustee of the Tennessee Mortgage, and as above.

After argument, the Special Master ruled, That Mr. Duncan, as receiver and complainant in the bill filed in this court, had already been notified of all motions, objections, questions and proceedings before the Master, and has chosen to appear as representing the whole of the trust property. It was ruled on yesterday that the Tennessee Substitution creditors whose claims are contested, are not represented here; therefore, and conformably with the spirit of the decree of reference, that notice should issue to them. The objections of Messrs. Moran were then passed to take up the Belloni objections.

Notice will issue to all the Tennessee Substitution Bondholders who have proved claims, and also, to Messrs. R. T. Wilson and A. Iselin, as trustees. Notice will be given to Mr. Duncan in his capacity of trustee and receiver, but not in his capacity of trustee of the Tennessee Mortgage.

Judge Grandin, on behalf of the Second Mortgage, and Mr. Andrews, for objectors, objected to the Master's ruling.

The objections of Louis J. Belloni, jr., of New York City, a holder of First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, who objects to the First Mortgage coupons of 1874, proved by Mr. Alexander Duncan and others, as a lien, on the Railroad property, were then taken up.

On motion of Mr. E. L. Andrews, subpœna was issued for the following witnesses:

Nathan Whiting, A. DuMont, Wm. H. Ross, J. B. Hazard and Theodore Guesnard, all of Mobile.

Theodore Guesnard being produced and sworn as a witness for objectors, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Andrews, solicitor for L. J. Belloni, jr.:

Q..You were a First Mortgage Bondholder of Mobile and Ohio Railroad in 1874?

A..Yes.

Q..You recollect circumstances of payment the First Mortgage coupons due November 1, 1874? If so, please state them.

A..Those coupons I presented to the Treasurer, Mr. Willoughby; he told me to leave them and to call next day for them. Next day he handed me an envelope; on the back of it was stated the number of coupons, what they were, and the amount due; then he requested me to take the envelope of coupons enclosed to the Bank of Mobile and the teller would pay the same; the envelope was sealed; I handed the teller the same envelope, with my bank book, and he credited my bank account with the amount stated on the envelope.

Q..In regard to the coupons for May, 1874, did the same circumstances transpire, or what?

A..I handed the Treasurer my coupons; he had them examined by his clerk to see whether they were correct; he handed me a check, I think it was on the Bank of Mobile, signed by himself, and requested me to take it to Vice President J. J. Walker and have him countersign the check, which he did, and I deposited the said check in the Bank of Mobile to my credit.

Cross-Examined by Mr. Stewart, counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q..When you went to the office on either occasion, or both, did you see a notice put up there for the information of holders of coupons in respect to the payment?

A..I did not, and never heard of any notice.

Q..How many coupons did you present for payment? for the May payment, 1874?

Objection by Mr. Andrews to the portion of the question as to how many there were as immaterial, as also to the number. [Objection overruled.]

A..Not less than five; I do not know how many exactly, I am certain not less than five.

Q..What were the numbers?

A..I can't recollect the numbers, they appear on the file here.

Q..About what time were they presented; was it on the 1st of May, or after?

A..It was not on the 1st, but a few days after; don't recollect the exact date; my bank book will show.

Q..How many coupons did you present for payment for the November payment, 1874?

A..Not any less than for May.

Q..What were the numbers?

A..I don't remember; the same as the others.

Q..About what time were they presented; was it on the 1st November?

A..I think it was on the 4th of November.

Q..Who was the check payable to?

A..Payable to Theo. Guesnard, I think.

Q..Are you certain that Mr. Willoughby gave you a check for First Mortgage coupons, or if he ever gave you a check was it not for Second Mortgage coupons?

A..I think it was a check for First Mortgage for November, 1874; the only check he gave me for the Second Mortgage coupons was for the previous March.

Q..You do not say that you are certain that the November coupons were paid by check of Mr. Willoughby, but you believe so? can you state the fact with more certainty?

A..The November coupons were paid by different checks, one in gold and one in currency; I had both gold and greenback coupons.

Q..Are you certain of that for November?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..You cannot say that you are certain?

A..To the best of my belief.

Q..I take your answer to be that you cannot say you are certain?

A..To the best of my belief and recollection.

THEO. GUESNARD.

Subscribed and sworn to before me,
this 6th December, 1876.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

May coupons were paid 5th May, 1874; November coupons were paid 17th November, 1874.

THEO. GUESNARD.

Wm. H. Ross being produced and sworn, deposes as follows, in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Grandin:

Q..Were you holder of First Mortgage Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in May, 1874?

A..I was.

Q..How were the coupons paid? What transpired?

A..I first took them to Mr. Willoughby, Treasurer; my recollection is that he put them in an envelope and sent me to the Bank of Mobile, where Mr. Gale gave me

Q..Was not the payment in May made the same way as in November?

A..The May coupons were paid by Mr. Willoughby in checks. Mr. Willoughby drew checks for the payment in May, 1874, or gave me the checks; I don't recollect whether he drew them or not, but I got the payment through him.

Q..You say the gold was paid by check on T. P. Miller, was it check of the Bank of Mobile or Mr. Willoughby?

A..I do not recollect.

Q..Are you certain that in May Mr. Willoughby gave you checks, or did he send you to the Bank of Mobile?

A..I am certain Mr. Willoughby settled with me at the office and gave me checks. The gold interest was paid by a check on T. P. Miller.

Q..Was that check drawn by Mr. Willoughby or the Bank of Mobile in May?

A..I could not say.

Q..Was the check for currency drawn by Mr. Willoughby or by the Bank of Mobile?

A..I can't say.

Q..To whom did you surrender the coupons? to Mr. Willoughby, in May?

A..Yes. They were left with Mr. Willoughby and I never saw anything more of them after he got them.

I don't recollect the amount. There were some sixteen bonds—sterling and interest bonds.

Q..Have you not confused the May payment with some previous one?

A..No sir.

Q..You are certain Mr. Willoughby gave you checks for May, 1874.

A..Yes sir.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

J. B. Hazard produced and sworn, deposes and says: (Examined by Judge Grandin.)

Q. . Did you hold any First Mortgage Bonds in May, 1874?

A. . Yes sir, as trustee and agent. There were several years interest accumulated on them; I was negotiating with the road for the payment of this interest in September, October and November, 1874.

In addition to those bonds, I had $3,000 Mobile and Ohio Railroad Ten Year Bonds, payable, I think, in 1868, and no interest had been collected on them up to 1874, and consequently, considerable interest had accumulated; I had considerable trouble to arrange, and it run through the two months of September and October; they finally concluded they would pay me a part of the interest in cash, and part of it they would issue no bonds for, nor would they pay in cash.

The part they acknowledged they paid in October by giving me a check on some bank—I can't say on what bank it was; they also gave me an envelope, in which there were some coupons—I do not know what coupons they were, and I went to Mr. Gale, of the Bank of Mobile, and he paid me the money; the check I deposited with the Peoples' Bank; the coupons due in May, 1874, and the previous coupons were presented together.

After I had settled what they acknowledged, I arranged with Mr. Walker, Vice President and acting President, for the settlement of the bonds past due and the interest on the First Mortgage Bonds for the time during their suspension; they gave me a note; it was for bonds past due, some coupons on First Mortgage Bonds, and Interest Bonds, they paying me one year's interest on the amount.

That was the settlement up to May, inclusive, 1874. In November, 1874, I went to the office and presented the coupons for payment, and they were passed to Mr. Bull, and he gave me an envelope containing these coupons, and I sent my clerk to the Bank of Mobile with the envelope to collect the amount, and he brought it back some sixteen dollars short: I then took the money back and got my coupons from Mr. Gale and took them to Mr. Willoughby, who corrected the error, and he gave me another envelope with the coupons, and I went to the Bank of Mobile and got my money.

Cross-Examined by Counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q..Was not the May interest paid in the same way by your coupons being sent to the Bank of Mobile in an envelope?

A..I don't know.

Q..How much did your May interest amount to?

A..There was six months' interest on 2,000 Sterling, $800 Arrearage Interest Bonds.

Q..Did you have the coupons for the May interest? Did you present them to Mr. Willoughby?

A..Yes; they were examined and verified; whatever was in the envelope was paid by the Bank of Mobile; I can't say what was in the envelope or what amount the bank paid me; the amount the bank paid me and the amount paid by the company made the total agreed on, but I can't tell what amount each paid me.

Q..Are you not in the habit of keeping accounts of all transactions?

A..Yes; but in this instance, as the bonds did not belong to the store or to me, they did not go on the books, and I am compelled to trust to recollection in this statement.

Q..Are you prepared to say that your May coupons were not paid by and surrendered to the Bank of Mobile?

A..I cannot say; it might have been those, or it might have been some previous ones.

Q..Did you transact that matter so carelessly as not to know?

A..If he had given me different checks it would be impossible for me to recollect what banks he gave them on.

Q..Were you so careless as not to know when you went to the Bank of Mobile what you were to receive?

A..I knew how much I was to receive; the total amount was right.

J. B. HAZARD.

W. B. DUNCAN and A. F. ELLIOT, Trustees,

vs.

THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY.

FRIDAY, December 29, 1876.

The reference proceeded at 11 o'clock, pursuant to adjournment of the 6th December and notice.

Present: Special Master, P. Hamilton, solicitor for trustees and receivers, Geo. N. Stewart for Alexander Duncan and others, holders of coupons of 1874, Wm. G. Jones for trustees of the Second Mortgage, and E. H. Grandin, of counsel for trustees of the Second Mortgage, and representing objectors, instead of E. L. Andrews, their solicitor.

John W. Miller being called and sworn, at the instance of Alexander Duncan, and examined by Geo. N. Stewart, solicitor, deposed as follows:

Q..Are you a partner of the firm of Thomas P. Miller & Company, bankers, of Mobile, and were you such in the year 1874?

A..Yes.

Q..Have you a knowledge of the business of that banking house in the year 1874?

A..Yes.

Q..Please state whether in May and November, 1874, or at either of these times, or at any time in the year 1874, whether or not any checks were drawn or presented to your bank drawn by A. L. Willoughby, Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in favor of any one, payable in gold.

[Witness requests time to examine his books, so as to refresh his memory, and examination suspended for that purpose.]

A..There was one check of two thousand and fifty dollars, and one or two smaller amounts, payable in gold;

I do not know what they were for, nor who they were payable to; I think the deposit was made on the 27th of May and paid on the 30th; the smaller amounts were one check for about a thousand, and some few small checks in May and June or July. The books show about that time two deposits in gold—one for $2,050, which was checked out, and the other. I think, for eleven hundred and odd dollars.

Q..Please exhibit your books showing the deposits and checks for gold in account with said company for said year.

A..I now produce the book.

(Signed) JAMES GILLETTE,

Special Master.

[Statement herewith filed, showing entries in said book as they appear.]

Q..Please state whether any checks were drawn upon you by the Bank of Mobile, payable in gold, during May and November, 1874?

A..Yes: the teller of the bank drew checks on us, and gave the checks to parties for coupons; we cashed the checks; they were gold checks; it was a considerable amount; this was in 1874; my impression is it was for May coupons; we furnished the gold to the banks for that purpose.

Q..Did you have coupons yourselves for collection in that year, and how were they paid?

A..We received coupons for collection from the North in that year; Mr. Gale, the teller of the Bank of Mobile, to whom we presented them for payment, required us to take them to Mr. Willoughby, Treasurer of the Railroad; my recollection is that Mr. Willoughby had to say they were all right and give a memorandum to that effect, after which Mr. Gale paid them.

Q..Have you any knowledge of any payment made by Mr. Willoughby of any coupons for said interest of May and November?

A..I have not.

JOHN W. MILLER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me,
this 29th December, 1876.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

William H. Pratt, being duly sworn, deposes:

Q..Please state whether you are now and was in 1874 President of the Bank of Mobile.

A..Yes, I was and am.

Q..Please state also if you were at that time and are now a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co.

A..Yes, I was and still am.

Q..Please state whether in the year 1874 the said company was able to pay and did pay any of its coupons for interest on First Mortgage Bonds of the company, say payable on the 1st days of May and November of that year.

A..They were not able to pay and did not pay of my knowledge any, either of the May or November coupons; and no funds were provided by the company for their payment.

Q..Please state if you have a knowledge of said coupons being presented for payment and what occurred in respect thereto.

A..In the latter part of April, I suppose April 30th, I received a despatch from Duncan, Sherman & Company of New York, which I can't find now. The despatch was to the effect instructing me, as President of the Bank of Mobile, to purchase for account of whom it may concern the coupons of interest of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company maturing 1st May at $32.50 gold or $36.50 currency, to which I replied by telegraph on same day:

[Copy of Despatch.]

"APRIL 30, 1874.—Duncan, Sherman & Company, New York: Dispatch received. Will purchase May coupons and forward as directed.

" WM. H. PRATT, President."

On the same day I addressed them the following letter:

" Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Company:

"DEAR SIRS—Your dispatch of to-day, directing purchase for account of whom it may concern of the coupons Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, maturing 1st May, at $32.50 gold or $36.50 currency, shall have attention, and will forward you the coupons uncancelled, valueing on your house for reimbursement in accordance with instructions. WM. H. PRATT, President."

Agreeable to said instructions I instructed the Cashier of the Bank to pay to parties who might present the coupons, after they had been presented at and verified at the railroad office, the amount for which they called, upon surrender of the coupons. Said amounts were charged to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Company, and the same reimbursed to the bank by drafts on their house in New York, drawn by the President of the bank.

In November, on November 2d, 1874, the Bank of Mobile received the following letter:

Office of DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., Bankers.
NEW YORK, October 22, 1874.

WM. H. PRATT, ESQ., President
Bank of Mobile, Mobile,

DEAR SIR:—The Mobile and Ohio Railroad not paying her coupons maturing November 1, you may purchase the same for account of whom it may concern, at their ~~full~~ face value, viz:

£6 : 15	$32.50 gold or	$35.50 currency.
£6	29.00 " "	32.00 "
£3	14.50 " "	16.00 "

and those of £6 : 15 from ctf. bonds 40.00 currency, and coupons on Interest Bonds, $40.00. drawing on us for the amount of your purchase, sending forward coupons uncancelled in packages of $5,000 or $10,000.

Please have lists of said coupons made; demand payment of Treasurer of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and if he declines paying let him do so in writing.

We remain, your obedient servants,
DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO.

I hope to be in Mobile on Friday or Saturday of next week.
W. B. D.

Also, another letter was received by the bank, said letter dated October 31st, written in Mobile, instructing the purchase of the coupons; a copy of this letter is also annexed:

Office of DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., Bankers,
MOBILE, October 31, 1874.

W. H. PRATT,
President of the Bank of Mobile,

Dear Sir:—You will please purchase Railroad coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, due November 1, in accordance with the instructions already sent to you from my house (D., S. & Co.) from New York, and for such amounts value on them as instructed. I will advise you on Monday from New Orleans whether I will send you currency for them. Please advise me by telegraph on Monday what amounts are offered on that day.

Yours, truly,
W. BUTLER DUNCAN.

Agreeable to said instructions the coupons for November interest were taken up by the bank as presented, after having been verified at the office of the Railroad Company, and the bank was reimbursed for the same by Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Company. No portion of the coupons were paid by the Railroad Company.

Q..Please state whether any money or means were furnished by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, directly or indirectly, for the satisfaction of said coupons or any part?

A..I know that no money was furnished to the bank by the Railroad Company to provide for the payment of these coupons, and I know of none being furnished to Duncan, Sherman and Company by it for that purpose.

The bank addressed Duncan, Sherman and Company the following letter:

NOVEMBER. 2d, 1874.

Messrs. DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., New York:

By direction of your Mr. Duncan, we are purchasing for account of whom it may concern, the coupons maturing November 1st, Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and in conformity with your instructions 22d October, will draw on your house in reimbursement after exhausting the amount now to your credit with this bank.

The coupons shall be sent you as directed, in packages of $5,000 or $10,000, uncancelled, and with the certificate of the Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, declining to pay same.

Yours, truly,

WM. H. PRATT, President.

Q..Please state if at any time, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad has claimed that said coupons were paid by it or for its account?

A..Never, to my knowledge.

Q..Was or was not the said transaction in respect to the taking up of said coupons approved and sanctioned by the company.

A..It was approved by the Board of Directors.

Q..Do not the said coupons so taken up appear on the books of the company as outstanding?

Objected to by E. H. Grandin, as there is better evidence—namely, the books themselves.

A..To the best of my knowledge there is no record in the books in relation to their payment.

Q..What disposition was made of the coupons taken up by the Bank of Mobile in May and November, 1874?

A..They were forwarded to Duncan, Sherman & Co., uncancelled.

Q..In the taking up said coupons by the Bank of Mobile, did you or the bank, in any manner, act as agents for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A..No; only as agent of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Was any question made to you by any of the holders of said coupons as to the mode and manner of their being taken up?

A..I have no recollection of any questions; certainly no objections were made.

Q..Was there any concealment or withholding of any information by you as to the real nature of the transaction by which the coupons were taken up?

A..There was no concealment; if I had been asked I would have stated that I was purchasing for Duncan, Sherman & Co., or on account of whom it may concern, according to their instructions.

Q..Please state if any commissions were charged for the taking up of said coupons, and if so, by whom, to whom, and what amount?

Objected to, as immaterial and irrelevant.

A..The bank charged a quarter per cent. commission, which was debited to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Can you state whether or not it was generally known that the company was not paying its interest in May and November?

A..That, I can't answer; it is impossible for me to tell how general the information was.

Cross-Examination by Solicitor for Trustees of the Second Mortgage.

Q..Were you a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company during the whole of the year 1874?

A..I was. From the election in March or April, 1874.

Q..Was William Butler Duncan, of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Company, a Director during the whole of that year?

A..Mr. Duncan was a Director and President after the election in March or April.

Q..When did it become known to the Directors that the company would be unable to pay its coupons?

A..Immediately after the installment of the new Board of Directors it was found that the company would be unable to pay the interest that fell due on the 1st of May.

Q..When was Mr. Duncan first elected President of the company?

A..At the first meeting of the new board.

Q..Was there or not any agreement or understanding that Mr. Duncan or his firm would supply money to meet the coupons? If so, what was it?

A..Of my own knowledge I can't say that any negotiations were going on prior to the meeting of the new board. Negotiations were sanctioned by the new board with Duncan, Sherman & Company or William Butler Duncan to meet the payment of coupons falling due on the 1st of May. I don't recollect any agreement. I know of no agreement made by the board, and I presume that it was understood that Duncan, Sherman & Company were to purchase the coupons falling due May, 1874, and hold the same uncancelled for their security. I presume the negotiations were carried on by the Vice President, Mr. Walker, in writing.

Q..What arrangement, if any, and with whom was it made to meet the coupons falling due in November, 1874?

A..Similar arrangements as those made in May with Duncan, Sherman & Company or Wm. Butler Duncan.

Q..[By E. H. Grandin.] What was the total amount of coupons, both for May and November, 1874, that were taken up by the Bank of Mobile?

A..I think about two hundred and twenty thousand dollars.

Q..Did the company make a report to the annual meeting of stockholders in the spring of 1875? If they did, did you, as a Director, assent to it?

A..I think a report was made; I don't recollect if I assented.

Q..Did you or not, as Director, concur in a notice issued just prior to the 1st March, 1875, if any such notice was issued, to the Second Mortgage Bondholders, stating that the company regretted to announce that it would have to default in the payment of its interest for the first time?

Question objected to, being theoretical, assuming a fact, and not relevant, and no such notice is produced.

A..When it was found that no provision could be made for the March interest, 1875, a notice was issued, with the consent of certain of the Directors, of whom I was one, stating that the interest would not be paid at maturity.

The answer is objected to; because there is better evidence of the fact, and is irrelevant.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Owen McMahon, sworn and examined by solicitor for Alexander Duncan, testified:

Q..Please state whether you were bookkeeper in the Bank of Mobile in the year 1874?

A..Yes.

Q..Please state whether you knew of the transaction in said bank by which coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for interest, payable 1st May and 1st November in that year, were taken up from the holders?

A..Yes.

Q..Please state to whom payments were charged on the books of the bank?

A..Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Were any coupons so taken up charged to the account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A..All charged to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Who was it provided the means to pay said coupons to the holders, and who reimbursed the bank for the amount paid for taking them up?

A..Duncan, Sherman & Co. provided the money; the Mobile and Ohio Railroad provided some; they deposited in 1874 some forty-five thousand eight hundred dollars to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Company.

Q..Was any amount paid, or any coupons charged to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A..No; they were charged to Duncan, Sherman and Company, and the coupons were forwarded by express, from time to time; they were not cancelled.

Q..Who paid the commissions to the bank for taking up the coupons?

A..I don't know that the commissions have been paid yet; they have been charged to Duncan, Sherman & Co., since their failure.

Q..How were the gold payments made?

A..By Mr. Gale's check on T. P. Miller & Co.

Q..Were not the coupons surrendered by the holders to the bank on receiving payment?

A..Yes—and they were sent by express to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Did you know at the time that they were being taken up for Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co?

A..Yes—they were purchased for Duncan, Sherman and Company.

SATURDAY, December 30, 1876.

Reference had pursuant to adjournment.

Present: the Special Master and solicitors as before.

Edward B. Gale, a witness called by the solicitor of Alexander Duncan and other coupon holders, being sworn, deposed as follows:

Q.. Were you, in the year 1874, an officer of the Bank of Mobile, and if so, what officer?

A.. I was teller of the Bank of Mobile, am now, and have been since 1856.

Q.. Please state whether you know of the transactions in that bank by which the coupons of the First Mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, payable on the 1st May and 1st November, 1874, were taken up from the holders?

A..I know nothing of any transactions or arrangements made; I only know that I paid the coupons for gold and currency for May and November, 1874, upon such certificates as these which came from Mr. Willoughby, of the Railroad office. [The certificates exhibited and two attached.]

The certificates were presented by the coupon holders. As I understand it, the coupons were presented to Mr. Willoughby, who enclosed them in the envelope, and the parties brought them to me, and I paid on the envelopes with the endorsement on them, by orders of the President.

Q..Were not the coupons surrendered to you by the persons whom you paid?

A..The coupons were enclosed in these envelopes, and were surrendered to me.

Q..In what manner were they paid—distinguishing those paid in currency and those paid in gold?

A..Those that called for gold were paid in gold, and those that called for currency were paid in United States currency; sometimes I gave checks on Miller; if I had the gold I paid in gold, when I had not I drew checks on Miller.

Q..Did you draw checks on T. P. Miller and Company for payment of gold on said coupons or any considerable portion of them?

A..For a considerable portion—I think about seventy-five per cent.

Q..What was done with the coupons after they were taken up?

A..They were charged to Duncan, Sherman & Company and sent to New York. That is my impression—almost certain of it.

Q..By whose instructions did you pay those coupons?

A..By instructions of Mr. Pratt, the President.

Q..To whose account were the payments charged?

A..They were charged to Duncan, Sherman & Company. But I do not know much about that; it was not in my line; the books will show.

Q..About what amount do you suppose was taken up this way?

A..I can't say; it was a large amount.

Q..Do you know who reimbursed the Bank of Mobile for these payments?

A..My impression is that they drew on Duncan, Sherman & Company for the money, but I don't state that with certainty; it was out of my line; the books will show.

Q..Was it made known to you at the time for whose account those coupons were taken up?

A..I am under the impression Mr. Pratt informed me for the account of Mr. Duncan; he read me a letter.

Answer objected to, on the ground that it is incompetect, as hearsay testimony.

Q..Did any of the holders make any inquiry of you as to why it was that these coupons were paid at the bank instead of the Railroad Company?

A..I can't say that they did, only in this way: they would bring their coupons to the bank to get their money on, and I would send them to the Railroad Company; they wanted to know why I would not pay, and I told them they had to take them to Mr. Willoughby to see if they were correct, and he would examine them and enclose them in an envelope, and on that envelope I would pay the money for them, just exactly as they are done here, [referring to the envelope.]

Q..Did you, on any occasion, ever state to any one of the holders that they were paid by the Railroad Company, instead of Duncan, Sherman & Co?

A..I have no recollection of saying any such thing.

Q..Were any of those coupons, within your knowledge, paid by the Railroad Company?

A..I know of none; if they were they must have been put in envelopes like the rest, and the Railroad Company's name marked on them, or the Railroad may have had some sent to them and they collected the money.

Q..Please state whether among the coupons paid in May and November there were any paid to Theodore Guesnard?

A..I think there were; I find two envelopes, but I can't say whether the coupons were paid in May or November. [Envelopes attached.]

Q..Please state whether they were paid in the same manner as the others?

A..All the same.

Q..Please state whether any of those coupons to Mr. Guesnard were paid by a check on the Bank of Mobile by the Treasurer of the Railroad Company?

A..Not at that time: nor were any other coupons paid by check of the Railroad Company.

Q..I understand you to say that no coupons whatever, during May and November, was paid by check of the Company on the Bank of Mobile.

A..Yes—that is my recollection.

Q..Please state whether the payments were made to John B. Hazard and Company by you at the bank for any of those coupons?

A..Yes; four were paid on the 6th May and four in November. [The envelopes herewith.]

Q..Do you recollect how the gold was paid?

A..Either by me in gold or by checks on Mr. Miller.

Q..Were those amounts paid by you or by the company—referring to the Hazard coupons?

A..They were paid by me as Teller of the Bank of Mobile, Q..Please state whether coupons were paid to Nathan Whiting as represented by these two envelopes in May and November?

A..Yes; I am almost certain I paid them in gold over the counter.

Q..Were they paid as the others, on account of Duncan, Sherman & Company?

A..Yes. They were paid and charged to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Company with the rest.

Q..I find six envelopes of payments of coupons to the Bank of Mobile as holder, were they paid the same as the others?

A..They were paid the same as the others. I presume they were sent to the bank for collection by parties from abroad. I am not positive—merely my supposition.

Cross-Examination on behalf of Trustees Second Mortgage by W. G. Jones.

Q..Had not the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company then, and several years before and since, a current deposit account with the Bank of Mobile?

A..I can only say that on reference to the books the Mobile and Ohio Railroad had an account with us always until it was changed to the trustees.

Q..Were the coupons that fell due in 1873 paid at the bank?

A..My impression is they were. I can only tell by looking at the books. [Witness goes to refresh his memory.] I have looked back to 1872, and also from 1873, and find nothing on the book to show that we ever paid any coupons there, though my impression was very strong that we paid them. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad account was closed on the 12th March, 1875, and the Trustees and Receiver's account commenced on the 15th Septembe, 1875, which account is still open.

Q..In paying the coupons in May and November, 1874. did you in all cases make the payment in money, or did you sometimes pass it to the credit of the person presenting them for payment.

A..In some instances I passed it to the credit of the parties. My impression is that I passed the amount of Mr. Guesnard's coupons to his credit on his book.

Alonzo L. Willoughby, a witness called for Alexander Duncan, and sworn, deposes and says:

Q..Were you in 1874 an officer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and if so, in what capacity did you act? Were you in that office before and since?

A..I was, Secretary and Treasurer, before and since.

Q..Please state whether you have been in the habit of paying the coupons of interest for that company for several years previous to 1874 as Treasurer.

A..I have.

Q..Please state, previous to 1874, where and in what manner the coupons were paid.

A..The coupons were paid at my office, also in New York and London.

Q..Were those paid in Mobile paid by you?

A..They were prior to 1874; the coupons were taken up by me and registered and paid.

Q..Were the coupons of 1874 on the First Mortgage Bonds due 1st May and 1st November, paid by said company or by you?

A..They were not.

Q..Please state what occurred in respect to those coupons in May and November, and if they were taken up how it was done, and by whom. In what manner?

A..The coupons due in May and November, 1874, were presented to me at my office for payment by parties claiming to be the owners or agents through the banks who held them for collection, also, through the Express Company. Some were sent direct to me by mail or express. I received the coupons, sorted them in envelopes, describing their contents, and told the parties to present them to the Bank of Mobile, who were paying them. To those parties who sent them by mail, I enclosed them in similar envelopes and sent them to the Bank of Mobile for collection, who invested the proceeds in their checks on New York, which I enclosed to the senders.

Q..Please state, if in any one instance you paid any of the coupons above mentioned at your office?

A..I did not.

Q..Did you ever, in any single instance, give a check, as Treasurer of the Company, to any of the holders of said coupons of May and November, 1874?

A..I did not.

Q..Did you ever, in any instance, give a check or order on T. P. Miller and Company for payment in gold of any of said coupons?

A..I did not.

Q..Are you very certain in respect to the answers to the last two questions, and have you examined your books to that effect?

A..I am certain, and I have examined my books.

Q..Please state, if in any instance, any of the said coupons of First Mortgage for May and November, 1874, were paid by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or any of its agents, with any of its funds, to your knowledge?

A..None were paid to my knowledge.

Q..Please state if you have made an examination as to any check given by you to Theodore Guesnard in payment of any of said coupons in May and November, 1874, either on T. P. Miller & Co., the Bank of Mobile, or any other bank or office, and please state whether or not you can positively state that you never gave such check?

A..I have made examination, and can state positively that I never gave to Guesnard any check referring to the above question?

Q..Please answer the same inquiries as in the last question in relation to any check said to have been given to Nathan Whiting?

A..My answer is the same.

Q..Please answer the same question in relation to any check to J. B. Hazard.

A..My answer is the same.

Q..Have you any recollection as to how the coupons which were presented by said last named parties, and each of them, were paid to them? If so, please state the particulars.

A..They were paid by the Bank of Mobile, like the others.

Q..Please state whether they were presented at your office for payment, and whether or not they were, after verification, returned into the possession of the parties?

A..They were presented like others, and returned to them in envelopes.

Q..Please state who assisted you at the time in the verification and enveloping said coupons?

A..Mr. Wm. M. Bull, who was clerk in my office, assisted me.

Q..Please state whether the parties were informed, and particularly when they inquired, that the company did not pay said coupons?

A..They were so informed.

Q..Please state if any notice in writing was put up in your office in respect to payment of said coupons?

A..There was.

Q..Was there such notice at both periods, May and November?

A..There was no written notice in May; there was in November.

Q..Where was said notice put up or fixed?

A..It was pasted on my counter, in full view of all.

Q..What was the purport of the notice?

The question objected to, on the ground that it is not competent to give the purport of a written notice. The notice must be produced.

A..That the coupons were being purchased by the Bank of Mobile, or at the Bank of Mobile.

Q..Have you said notice or a copy of it; is it in existence, or has it been destroyed?

A..I am not positive, but think it is destroyed. The notice was pasted on the counter and gradually wore out.

t think I ve a copy

Q..Please state if any of said coupons are now in the possession of the company at Mobile or elsewhere, to your knowledge?

A..I have no knowledge of any coupons of 1874 being in possession of the company.

Q..Has the company been called on for payment of said coupons by holders since they were taken up at the Bank of Mobile?

A..They were presented to me as Treasurer, and payment demanded; I declined payment, as the company were not in funds. That is, the coupons taken up by the Bank of Mobile were presented to me by the Bank of Mobile for payment afterwards.

Q..Please state whether or not, by the records of your office, the said coupons stand as outstanding and unpaid coupons?

A..They stand as unpaid coupons.

Q..Has the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company furnished any money of its funds for the payment of the said coupons?

A..Not to my knowledge.

Q..It has been stated that a deposit was made in April, 1874, by you, in the Bank of Mobile, to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Co., of about $45,800. Please state if such were the facts, and explain why that deposit was made, and on what account?

A..I will have to look at my books.

Q..Was the company indebted, or not, to Duncan, Sherman & Co. at the time of such deposit, and was such indebtedness, if any, larger or smaller than the amount of said deposit?

A..My information is only derived from the Auditor as to the books.

Q..Do you know on what account, and why said deposit was made?

A..I remitted on general account.

Q..Was the said deposit made to meet the payment of coupons, and had it any connection with the payment of coupons?

A..No deposit was made to meet the payment of coupons. It was simply made on general account, as I understand it.

Q..Can you state whether, in the year 1874, the company was indebted to Duncan, Sherman & Co., and whether such indebtedness was to a large amount?

A..I don't keep the books, but I understand they were from the Auditor's books, which I had access to.

Cross-Examination, by Solicitor for Trustees of the Second Mortgage.

I have been Treasurer and Secretary of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company since 1865.

Q..Of what books and papers of the company did you officially have the custody?

A..I had possession of the Stock Books, Bond Books, and the General Ledger up to 1870, I believe, when said Ledgers were transferred to the Auditor's office, who was the General Book-keeper of the Company. Stock and Bond Books and my Cash Book have always remained with me.

Q..Were minutes kept of the proceedings of the Directors, and who made and kept them?

A..I did as Secretary.

Q..Are you now in the office or employment under the Trustees and Receivers, and if so, what?

A..I hold the office of Treasurer for the Trustees and Receivers.

Q..Who has now the custody and control of the books and papers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company kept previously to the time it was taken in charge by the Trustees?

A..They are under the control of Mr. DuPuy as agent and attorney for the Trustees and Receivers.

Q..Who was President and who Vice President of the company in 1874?

A..Mr. Duncan (Wm. B.) was President from April, 1874. John J. Walker Vice President from same date. Elected in April, 1874, at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders fixed at third Wednesday in April of each year.

Q..Had the railroad company a current deposit account with the Bank of Mobile, and for what time?

A..Yes, for many years, and up to the neighborhood of the time the Trustees took charge.

Q..By whose direction did you send the holders of coupons in May and November, 1874, to the Bank of Mobile to get the money due on the coupons?

A..I think it was by the order of the Vice President.

Q..Do you not know by what arrangement or agreement it was arranged they should be sent to the Bank of Mobile for payment?

A..I think the arrangement was made by Mr. Duncan, the details of which I am not familiar with. I know that the company were not in funds to pay the coupons and I understood that funds were advanced through Duncan, Sherman & Co. by their friends to purchase the coupons.

Q..Was there or not an agreement or understanding between you, acting as agent or treasurer of the company, with the Bank of Mobile, or its officers, that they would pay the money to the bearers of envelopes inclosing coupons.

A..The Bank of Mobile could not have paid the coupons without a statement from me showing their value, as some sterling coupons were payable in gold, others payable in currency, and there was nothing on the coupons to show whether they were so payable in gold or currency, unless so stated by me. That was all the understanding I ever had with them to my knowledge.

Q..Was there, to your knowledge, any understanding or agreement between the railroad company or its officers, and the Bank of Mobile or its officers, that the bank morandum would pay to the bearer of the envelopes inclosing coupons with your ~~recommendation~~ indorsed thereon the amount indicated by such memorandum?

A..My knowledge and understanding was that the Bank of Mobile would pay the coupons after having been verified by me. I simply used this envelope, having a quantity of them on hand, as a means of describing them. I don't recollect of any particular form or statement to be used, or of any understanding to that effect.

Q..By whom were these envelopes gotten up and prepared, and for what purpose?

A..They were prepared by me and originated with me for my own convenience, and for the purpose of securing coupons from loss after being paid. They were simply used between me and the Auditor to preserve the coupons from loss; similar ones were used by me prior to 1874; they were paid for by the company, like all other blanks.

Q..Were not the envelopes inclosing the coupons delivered by you, with your memoranda endorsed thereon, to the bearers of the coupons, to be by them presented to the bank in order to get the amount of money indicated by the memorandum?

A..They were.

Q..Look at these two envelopes of T. Guesnard. Whose handwriting is the endorsement?

A..In the handwriting of Mr. Wm. M. Bull, who made the figures also; also, making an erasure from $32.75 gold to $32.50, which the Bank of Mobile said they would give—buy them for. That is as far as the gold transaction was concerned.

Q..Did you deliver them to Mr. Guesnard to be carried to the bank?

A..I cannot state whether by myself or Mr. Bull; one of us delivered them, positively, to him.

Q..Were those envelopes retained by the bank or sent back to the company?

A..They were retained by the bank I presume; they were not sent back to me.

Examination by E. H. Grandin, for trustees of the Second Mortgage, and for Mr. Andrews, solicitor for L. J. Belloni, jr., objector:

Q..How were the coupons of years prior to 1874 paid by you as Treasurer?

A..By checks on different banks where I had my deposit.

Q..Was one of those banks the Bank of Mobile?

A..It was.

Q..Were any coupons in 1874 paid in the city of New York; if so, where?

A..I can't swear to the payment of any coupons, but I believe there was some paid by Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the city of New York; I know there was some paid by them as shown by their general account.

Q..Had the company an agency in the city of New York in the year 1874?

A..Not that I am aware of, strictly as an agent. We had a correspondent who attended to its business in New York. My correspondence was with Duncan, Sherman & Co. In a general sense they were agents or correspondents of the company. I am not aware of any power conferred on them.

Q..Had you not in years prior to 1874 given checks to Messrs. Guesnard, Whiting and Hazard & Co. for their coupons?

A..Yes; I believe I have.

Q..Did you as Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company refuse payment of the May and November coupons of 1874 in any instance?

A..I told them when asked that the company were not paying them—that they could go to the Bank of Mobile and get their money, conveying the impression to all that the company was not in funds. That is the impression I intended to convey and believe I did so convey it, because parties went to the Bank of Mobile to collect their coupons instead of coming to me.

Q..Is that all the refusal of payment you made ?

A..It is, according to my recollection.

Q..Will you positively swear that you stated to all parties presenting coupons to you in May and November, 1874, that the company was not in funds ?

A..I cannot positively as to May, but I can as to November, or words to that effect, and referring, also, to the notice pasted up.

Q..Then you do positively swear that you stated to every party that presented coupons to you for November, 1874, that the company was not in funds ?

A..Verbally, I believe I did ; I can swear it to the best of my knowledge and belief, especially to those who asked information.

Q..Did you not, in all cases, tell parties presenting coupons to go to the Bank of Mobile with the envelope enclosing coupons and they would get their money ?

A..I did—with the remark that the Bank of Mobile was paying the coupons—endeavoring to leave the impression that the company was not in funds; I am positive that I told some of them, too.

Q..Did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company announce themselves insolvent in May, 1874, or November, 1874 ?

A..Not to my knowledge.

Q..Was any notice ever given by you, as Treasurer of the company, that the coupons of May and November, 1874, were being purchased by Duncan, Sherman & Co ?

A..No.

Q..Was the notice hereinbefore referred to as pasted up in the office in your handwriting?

A..I am not positive whether it was in my handwriting or Mr. Bull's; I think it was in Mr. Bull's.

Thereupon the session of the Special Master adjourned until Tuesday, January 2d, 1877, at 11 o'clock A. M.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 2nd, 1877.

The session was held pursuant to adjournment, commencing at eleven o'clock A. M. Present: JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master, and Counsel as of previous days.

Cross Examination of A. L. Willoughby resumed by E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for trustees of the second mortgage, and representing E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for L. J. Belloni.

Q. Please state on how large a piece of paper that notice was written.

A. It was written on quite a large piece of paper, as large as a good sized hand bill, about a foot or a foot and a half square.

Q. How much of the space was occupied by the writing thereon?

A. Pretty much all of the space, as the notice was written in blue pencil, I think, in order to make large letters and attract attention.

Q. Do you know and will you swear that any single holder of coupons saw and read that notice?

A. As long as I could not see with their eyes I can't swear it. If I had been there I could not help see it.

391 Q. Whereabouts was that notice pasted?

A. In the opening between the desks.

Q. Describe the desk.

A. It was an opening between two desks—a desk on the right and one on the left of the opening—similar to the openings on a teller's counter of a bank.

Q. Did you in any instance direct the attention of a holder or bearer of coupons to that notice?

A. I think perhaps I did; but as notice was so plain I did not consider it of much use to notify.

Q. The notice was pasted in the opening of the desk. Which side of the opening?

A. It was pasted near the outside of the opening nearest the public, near to the outer edge.

Q. Will you swear that any body saw and read that notice?

A. I cannot for same reason so given in former answer.

Q. Did not John J. Walker, Vice President Mobile and Ohio Railroad, at the time order you to take that notice down?

A. No sir, I do not recollect of receiving any such order.

Q. Do you not know that it was the object of the Board of Directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad, at that time—May, 1874—carefully to conceal the fact that the Company was unable to pay its coupons?

A. No, I have no knowledge—(Same question asked as to November, 1874, and same answer made).

Q. Did not the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company float its promissory notes for money borrowed after May 1, 1874, between that date and 1st November, 1874, and after 1st November, 1874?

(Question objected to by George N. Stewart, Solicitor for Alexander Duncan, as being incompetent and irrelevant).

A. I cannot answer from memory.

Q. Have you any means of refreshing your memory and finding out the facts so as to state them precisely?

(Objected to as irrelevant and incompetent).

A. I think so.

Q. Please do so at your earliest convenience and answer the question at the next sitting of the Master.

(Request objected to as incompetent and irrelevant).

Q. Were not large remittances of money made by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., after May 1, 1874, during the year 1874?

A. I made some remittances but do not recollect the amount.

Q. Have you any means of refreshing your memory on this subject?

A. I think so, but wish to say that the Auditor's department has the books. I do not keep the books.

Q. Was it not understood and agreed between Mr. William Butler Duncan and the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, that he should protect the coupons and have the receipts of the road?

(Question objected to as incompetent),

A. I know of none.

Q. Did not Duncan, Sherman and Company or William Butler Duncan, buy up certain negotiable paper of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and return it to the Company in 1874, in consideration of money remitted that firm or Mr. Duncan by the said Company?

(Objected to by Solicitor for Alexander Duncan, as incompetent and irrelevant).

A. I have no knowledge of any transaction of that kind.

Q. Was not Mr. Duncan or his firm expected to return the coupons to the Company when money was remitted by the Company, and was there not a disappointment felt when he returned the notes of the Company instead of the coupons?

(Objected to for vagueness, incompetency and irrelevancy).

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you not know that Mr. William Butler Duncan in 1874, after May 1, 1874, purchased promissory notes Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company from the First National Bank of Mobile, and paid them into the Company instead of coupons?

A. I do not.

Q. Was not the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1873 and 1874 continually a borrower of money from Duncan Sherman & Co., or William Butler Duncan?

A. I think so to some extent.

Q. Don't you know, Mr. Willoughby, that Duncan, Sherman & Co., or William Butler Duncan, virtually carried the Company from the time of the panic in 1873—down to the first public default of the Company in the payment of interest on any of its bonds?

(Objected to for looseness, vagueness, uncertainty and irrelevancy).

A. I do not.

Q. Was not the individual paper of some of the Directors of the Company given to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or William Butler Duncan, to secure them or him for advances made to take up the coupons of 1874?

A. None, to my recollection.

Q. Were you, as Secretary, present at the meetings of the board?

A. I was not present at all the meetings.

Q. Were you present at the meeting of the board just before the 1st May, 1874, when the subject of paying the forthcoming coupons was discussed?

A. I don't recollect whether I was present or not.

Q. Have you not a recollection, or remembrance, that there was a discussion in a meeting of the board on the subject of paying that coupon and the coupon of the first mortgage sterling bonds due May 1, 1874?

A. I recollect there were discussions on that subject.

Q. Were you present, or did you hear that discussion?

A. I was present and heard discussions in a general way, but paid but little attention to them without they came on the minutes.

Q. State what that discussion was; what was said, as nearly as you can recollect; by whom remarks were made in that discussion, and what conclusion was arrived at by the board.

(Objected to, for incompetency, irrelevancy, and because it was not the best evidence.)

A. As I said before, I do not recollect of discussions unless they go on the minutes. I cannot state what the discussion was. I cannot state who participated in it. I cannot state the conclusion arrived at by the board.

Q. Is there any record of that discussion, or of the conclusion that was arrived at by the board?

A. Yes. Minutes show the conclusions. There is no record of discussions. It would take a short-hand reporter to put down discussions.

Q. What directors were present at that meeting?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Was it not understood among the directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in April, 1874, and in September, 1874, just before the maturity of the coupons in November, 1874, that the actual condition of the affairs of the Company should be kept from the public?

(Objected to, for uncertainty, irrelevancy and incompetency.)

A. I do not know what the directors understood.

Q. Why was not public notice given that the Company would not pay its coupons of May and November, 1874?

(Question objected to for incompetency, and because the witness is not competent to answer it.)

A. I don't know.

Q. Are all the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, before the trustees took possession, extant?

A. As far as I know.

Q. Where are those books? in whose custody are they?

A. In the custody of the different departments, under control of T. H. DuPuy, agent and attorney of receivers.

Q. Then I understand that Mr. DuPuy has the power to produce all those books?

A. I take it so.

Q. You were Secretary and Treasurer when Mr. William Butler Duncan became President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and have been ever since; state, from your best knowledge and belief, whether or not William Butler Duncan has not, since he became President of said Company, controlled entirely the affairs of the Company, just as much as if the railroad was his own property.

(Objected to, for uncertainty, irrelevancy, and because the opinion of the witness was not wanted, but facts only.)

A. I was. I have no such knowledge.

Q. Can you state what director or directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has or have interfered with Mr. Duncan in the management of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad since he became President of the same?

(Objected to, for generality, irrelevancy, and because incompetent.)

A. I know of none.

Q. You have already stated that, in a general sense, Duncan, Sherman & Co. were the agents of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1874. Now state whether or not, in your knowledge, William Butler Duncan did not absolutely control the affairs of the Company in the year 1874—whether all things were not done in that year, according to his directions, from New York, or, when he was in Mobile, personally given.

(Objected to, as being too general, for irrelevancy and incompetency.)

A. I have no such knowledge.

Q. Who, or what director or person, connected in anywise with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in the year 1874, opposed anything that Mr. Duncan wished to be done?

(Objected to, for generality and irrelevancy.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Was there, or not, a committee, consisting of directors of the Company, called the Executive Committee, in the year 1874; and, if so, who composed that committee?

A. There was no such committee, I think.

Q. Was there not one or more directors of the Company charged with executive duty, so as to dispense with frequent meetings of the board?

(Objected to, as to the manner in which the question is propounded.)

A. I know of none, in that sense.

Q. Do you not know that one or more directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in 1874, was or were a committee, or agent, or anything you choose to call it, who, under authority of the board, did regulate and rule the affairs of the Company, without special resolution of the board?

(Objected to, as incompetent, and not the best evidence of the power or authority of any committee.)

A. There was the Vice President and Finance Committee, consisting of John J. Walker, the Vice President; Wm. H. Pratt, Moses Waring and Henry Hall. They were the Finance Committee.

Q. What was the duty of that committee?

(Objected to, as irrelevant, and as not the best evidence.)

A. To have charge of the finances, I take it, as the name indicated.

Q. Don't you know that that committee, either by special authority of the Board of Directors, or in pursuance of its general authority, made an arrangement with Mr. William Butler Duncan, in a hurry, to pay the coupon of May 1, 1874?

(Objected to, as irrelevant, uncertain and incompetent, and not the best evidence.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you, or not, know that John J. Walker, Vice President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, made such an arrangement with Mr. Duncan?

A. I do not.

(Same questions asked as to coupons of November 1, 1874, and same answers given.)

Q. Do you not know, or is it not your belief, that the coupon of May, 1874, and that of November, 1874, was paid by William Butler Duncan, or his firm, or through his or their instrumentality, on purpose to tide over temporary embarrassments of the Company, with the hope and belief that there would be returning prosperity, and that the Company would be able to reimburse Mr. Duncan, or his said firm, or his friends, for his or their advances in respect to said coupons?

(Objected to as involving questions which the witness is not competent to answer, for generality of opinions and incompetency.)

A. I believe that the Company hoped to be able with returning prosperity to redeem those coupons.

397 Q. The question is not as to redeeming coupons. You are asked as to reimbursing Mr. Duncan or his firm, or his friends, for advances. Answer this question?

A. I believe the coupons were purchased and the Company hoped to be able to redeem them when prosperity returned.

(Objected to as being an opinion of the witness.)

Q. Do you not know that Wm. Butler Duncan, or his firm, loaned money to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the purpose of paying the coupon of May, 1874, and the coupon of November, 1874?

(Objected to as incompetent evidence.)

A. I do not.

Q. Was not the idea sedulously inculcated by all concerned in the direction of the Compamy upon the public mind during the year 1874, that the Company was prosperous and would always be able to pay the interest on its bonded debt?

(Question objected to for vagueness, uncertainty, not specific and incompetent.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Did not you repeatedly say so yourself in the year 1874?

(Objected to for incompetency and irrelevancy.)

A. I cannot recollect.

Q. Did you not in 1874, and after May 1, 1874, tell a person or persons that the Company was prosperous and would always be able to pay the interest on its bonds?

(Objected to for irrelevancy.)

A. I don't recollect any particular case, or any case.

(Same question asked and same answers as to November, 1874, and same objections.)

Q. Do you not know that the public, up to the 1st March, 1875, believed the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to be solvent as far as its bonded debt was concerned?

(Objected to for generality and a question the witness could not answer, and incompetency.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you not know, or at least believe, that the bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company believed the Company to be solvent, as to them, until the issuance of the circular letter just before March 1st, 1875, announcing that the Company would make default on the second mortgage coupon due March 1st, 1875?

(Objected to on the ground that it is a question that the witness is not competent to answer. That it assumes a fact not in evidence, and for irrelevancy.)

A. I do not know what the bondholders believe.

Q. The question is not as to what the bondholders believe but what you know and believe yourself?

A. Not knowing what they believed I have no opinion at all.

Q. Was not that circular letter the first notice given to the public that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company could not pay its interest on its bonded indebtedness?

(Objected to on the ground that there is no such circular letter in evidence—the fact is assumed and evidence irrelevant.)

A. I think it was the first public notice.

Q. There was such a letter, was there not? Can you produce a copy of it?

A. Yes. I here produce the copy.

(Copy produced and marked Exhibit 1.)

Answer objected to by solicitor for Alex. Duncan, for incompetency.

Q. Do you not know that Mr. Moses Waring, by authority of the Board of Directors, or the Finance Committee, of which he was one, went around among the holders of the floating debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1874, after May 1, 1874, and arranged for a renewal of notes held for that floating debt, paying a proportion of the same, or at least the interest due thereon, as an inducement for said renewal?

(Objected to for incompetency and irrelevancy.)

A. I know he made such arrangement to the best of my belief, as stated above.

(Copy.)

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
MOBILE, Ala., March 1st, 1875.

To the Holders of Second Mortgage Bonds:

The depression in business all over the country, and especially in the Southern portion of it, resulting, of necessity, in a great decrease of earnings, compels the Board of Directors reluctantly to ask your indulgence on coupons due this day. An increase of earnings from an improved condition of business, with an economical administration of affairs, combined with the assurance of the Board that all receipts will be faithfully applied to the payment of the liabilities of the Company, will, we trust, induce you to give us the indulgence and thereby enable us to protect second mortgage as well as first mortgage bondholders, who have the precedence over you.

The value of our property and its earning power is beyond question, and with the return of prosperity to the country, is ample for the protection of all if we are left free from the embarrassments of litigation.

By order of the Board:

A. L. WILLOUGHBY,
Treasurer.

Exhibit 1 to testimony of A. L. Willoughby.
Filed January 2, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

Thereupon the reference was adjourned until to-morrow morning, January 3d, at eleven o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3d, 1877.

The Session of the Special Master opened at eleven A. M. Present, as before, the Special Master and the solicitors, as herein before named.

Cross-examination of A. L. Willoughby resumed by E. H. Grandin, solicitor for second mortgage trustees, and representing E. L. Andrews, solicitor for Belloni.

Question. Where did Mr. Moses Waring get the money that was paid to the holders of the floating debt to effect this purpose?

(Objected to by Geo. N. Stewart, solicitor for Alexander Duncan, for irrelevancy and incompetency.)

Answer. I paid it, as Treasurer of the Company, to him.

Q. How much money did you pay to him for this purpose?

(Question objected to as incompetent and irrelevant.)

A. I cannot say from memory. I can ascertain from the books.

Q. Can you form a conjecture of the amount? If so, state your conjecture.

(Objected to as before.)

A. The interest was paid in advance on the notes. I can't tell the amount. It was done during 1874.

Q. Have you any means of ascertaining the precise time when it was done?

(Objected to as before.)

A. It can be ascertained from the books.

Q. By whose authority did you pay that money to Mr. Waring?

(Objected to as before.)

A. By authority of the Railroad Company, the President and the Vice President.

Q. Tell me from your best knowledge and belief whether or not the coupon of May 1, 1874, and that of November 1, 1874, were or were not arranged to be paid by Wm. Butler Duncan, in the hope that he would be able to reimburse himself or those who advanced the money to pay the coupon, out of the earnings of the Company?

401 (Objected to as a question which the witness is not competent to answer.)

A. I believe that the Company hoped to be able to make payment for any such arrangement that might have been made. I can't say what Mr. Duncan believed.

Q. Did not the Mobile and Ohio Company, in the year 1874, remit to Duncan, Sherman & Company, or to Wm. Butler Duncan, all of its net income?

(Objected to for incompetency and irrelevancy.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Have you any means of ascertaining the fact?

A. I have not. I do not keep the books.

Q. Who keeps the books. Who has the custody of the books kept in 1874?

A. The Auditor.

Q. Is it true or not that after the Trustees and present Receivers took possession, many of the books and papers of the Company were sold to a junk shop in this city, or anywhere else, or to any one else, whether a junk dealer or otherwise?

A. I have no knowledge of any such sale.

Q. Suppose that the net income of the road for the year 1874 was remitted to Duncan, Sherman & Company, or to Wm. Butler Duncan was it or not ample to cover all advances of Duncan, Sherman & Co. or Wm. Butler Duncan, with respect to the coupons of May and November, 1874.

(Question objected to, for irrelevancy, incompetency and generality.)

A. I am not able to say.

Q. Are you able to give a conjecture on the subject?

(Objected to, as before.)

A. I am not able to give a conjecture.

Q. Did you have any part in making up the annual report of the directors to the stockholders in 1875, in April?

A. I did not.

Q. Was that report printed? If so, can you produce a copy?

A. It was. I can.

Q. Do you believe, or have you any idea, that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was generally believed to be insolvent as to its bonded debt, prior to the issuance of the circular just before 1st March, 1875?

(Objected to, for incompetency and irrelevancy.)

A. I did not believe so. I have no idea what the impression of the public was.

Q. Do you not positively know to the contrary?

A. I do not.

Q. Were you not enjoined in 1874, by the Vice President or some of the directors, or the Finance Committee, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, to proclaim to the public that the Company was solvent and would continue to pay its interest on its bonded debt; I refer now to a period of the year from the 15th of April to the close of the year?

(Objected to, for irrelevancy and incompetency.)

A. I was not.

Q. Will you say, on your oath, that you conveyed, or attempted to convey, the impression to any bondholder, in the year 1874, that the Company was unable to meet its interest on its bonded debt out of its net income?

(Objected to, for irrelevancy.)

A. I don't believe I ever did, as I never kept the books.

Q. Do you, or will you, say, on your oath, that any one of the directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in 1874, regarded the Company as insolvent as to its bonded debt, or contemplated the approximate bankruptcy of the Company?

(Objected to, as being irrelevant, and as a question which the witness is not competent to answer.)

A. I do not know the impressions of the directors.

Q. Do you not know that all the directors wished for and all that William Butler Duncan wished for, in 1874, was to tide over what they conceived to be a temporary embarrassment, and that the Company borrowed money for that purpose?

(Objected to, for incompetency, irrelevancy, and as a question which the witness is not competent to answer.)

A. I do not.

Q. Do you not know, or at least believe, that the paying of the coupons in 1874 was simply a contrivance of the Board of Directors, on the demand of William Butler Duncan, for the purpose of making things smooth in the public eye; it being understood all the while that William Butler Duncan, or his firm, was merely a lender of the money to take up the coupons?

A. I do not know.

A. L. WILLOUGHBY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3rd day of January, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Peter Hamilton, called as a witness for Alexander Duncan and other holders of the coupons of 1874, being duly sworn, says, in answer to questions propounded by George. N. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether or not, in the year 1874, you were connected with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in any capacity.

A. I was not connected with the Railroad Company, except under a general retainer, at that time.

Q. Please state whether or not you were the holder of first mortgage bonds, or agent for others holding them, and did you present any coupons for payment in May or November of that year; if so, state all you may know in relation to the payment of said coupons, or the manner in which they were disposed of in that year.

A. In behalf of my wife and others I held nine sterling bonds and seven interest arrearage bonds. On or about the 1st May, 1874, I presented their then maturing coupons to the Treasurer of the Company. He requested me to leave them until he could examine them. I did so. I called, probably the next day, when Mr. Willoughby handed me the coupons back in an envelope, with some memorandum of numbers, and I think my name was written on the envelope, and told me to carry the coupons to the Bank of Mobile and I would get the money for them. This was different from the former mode of collecting the interest, and I enquired whether the railroad was paying its interest. The information I received was that the Bank of Mobile was buying the coupons for Mr. Duncan, or his firm, or associates. I carried the envelope with the coupons to the Bank of Mobile, and presented them to Mr. Gale, the teller, who gave me the money for them, giving me a check on T. P. Miller & Co. for the gold portion. The occurrence with regard to the November coupons was very much the same, the only difference that I remember being this: that, to my question whether the same thing was being done then as in May, Mr. Willoughby—my recollection is—raised my arm, which was on the counter, and directed my attention to a notice which was lying on the counter, stating that the Bank of Mobile was buying, or purchasing, or taking up, the coupons—I don't remember the precise language of it.

Q. Do you recollect of seeing, also, a written notice, pasted upon the glass door on entering the Treasurer's office, that the coupons were being paid by the Bank of Mobile, or being taken up by the bank?

A. It may have been so; I don't recollect.

Q. Do you know of any fact tending to establish that the coupons of the first mortgage bonds, during May or November, 1874, or any part of them, were paid by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or with funds furnished by said Company for that purpose? If so, please state your knowledge to that effect.

A. I know of no such fact.

Cross-examined, by E. H. Grandin, one of the solicitors of the trustees of the second mortgage, and also representing E. L. Andrews, solicitor for L. J. Belloni:

Q. Did you not know before you went to Mr. Willoughby with the coupons, all about the arrangement for paying, or purchasing them, as you may be pleased to call it?

A. I knew nothing of any arrangement on the subject, whatever.

Q. Why did you ask Mr. Willoughby whether or not the Company was paying its coupons?

A. Because in former collections, he always paid me by a check on one of the banks, as Treasurer of the Company.

Q. Are you employed or retained as solicitor for Mr. Alexander Duncan?

A. I represent the trustees of the first mortgage, and so 405 far as consistent with that employment, and only so far, I represent Alexander Duncan, or the first mortgage coupons—the detached coupons of 1874.

Q. Are you employed or retained as solicitor for Alexander Duncan?

A. (Answer repeated.)

Q. Have you not been assisting Colonel Stewart in this enquiry?

A. The questioner has seen what I have done.

Q. Is that all the answer you will make to the question?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you not anxious to have the coupons proved by Alexander Duncan declared a lien on the railroad or other property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

(Objected to, as immaterial, irrelevant. and not proper to be answered.)

A. I have no particular anxiety on the subject.

Q. In your capacity as solicitor for Duncan and Elliot, have you not acknowledged that the coupons proved by Alexander Duncan are a lien on the railroad and other property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company prior to the liens of encumbrances junior to the first mortgage?

(Question objected to, as irrelevant.)

A. My professional acknowledgments are expressed upon the record.

Q. Did you not frame or draft the Bill of Complaint in this cause for the foreclosure of the first mortgage?

A. The original draft was prepared by me.

Q. Does, or not, that Bill of Complaint embody your views as a lawyer in reference to the equities of this case?

(Question objected to, as being irrelevant and improper.)

A. The counsel has no right to put the question.

Q. He nevertheless puts it, and requests you to answer it.

(Objected to, as before.)

A. The witness will make no other answer.

Q. Please state whether or not Mr. William Butler Duncan, one of the complainants in this cause, and one of the receivers of the railroad property now in the custody of this Court, is not now upholding the claim of Mr. Alexander Duncan in these coupons.

(Objected to, as the record gives higher evidence on that question, and for irrelevancy, as to the rights of Alexander Duncan, and also for generality and indefiniteness.)

A. I believe Mr. William Butler Duncan thinks that the claim of Alexander Duncan upon these coupons is legitimate and should be sustained. I do not know of his doing anything to uphold them any more than other claims alleged by the holders to be secured by the first mortgage. So far as I know he is acting in good faith to all parties in interest.

Q. Is it your opinion as a lawyer that a trustee for bondholders is acting in good faith when he endeavors—supposing the case—to create a lien to the extent of nearly a million of dollars, the effect of which creation is, and must be, inevitably, to reduce the value of the bonds of his cestui que trust at least ten per cent.

(Objected to, as irrelevant, and as an improper question to be answered by the witness.)

A. My answer is, the counsel has no right to my opinion as a lawyer; that is not testimony. But I should think, if a trust were created in favor of bonds and interest, and any holders of interest coupons under such trust claimed they were due and unpaid by the debtor, that it were perfectly right for the trustee to do all he can that their respective rights might be judicially determined by the court having jurisdiction of the trust.

Q. Do you not know that Mr. William Butler Duncan is actually engaged in promoting the claim of his father upon the fund in this cause?

A. I believe Mr. Duncan is doing all he can that the claim of his father may be fully presented to the court, for its adjudication upon its merits, whatever they may be shown to be. I do not know of his doing anything more.

P. HAMILTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this
3rd day of January, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Thereupon the reference was adjourned until to-morrow (Thursday) morning, at eleven o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 4th, 1877.

The hearing before the Special Master was resumed at eleven o'clock A. M., pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel, as heretofore.

A. L. Willoughby, recalled by E. H. Grandin, of counsel for trustees of the second mortgage, and representing E. L. Andrews, solicitor for L. J. Belloni, objecting first mortgage bondholder; and the cross-examination of said witness resumed, he testified as follows in answer to questions propounded to him by said Grandin:

Q. Mr. Willoughby, you made affidavit on the 6th day of April, 1876, before N. W. Trimble, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of Alabama, of course I won't ask you whether that affidavit is true. I have not the slightest doubt of it, since you swore to it.

(Objected to—The affidavit not being shown the relevancy cannot be seen.)

A. I made an affidavit on or about that time.

Q. Was or was not that affidavit made in a proceeding by Morris Ketchum against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and others, and does it not form a part of the record in that proceeding in this Court?

A. I think so.

Direct examination resumed by Mr. Stewart, solicitor for Alexander Duncan & Co.

Q. Mr. Willoughby, on pages 26 and 27 of your cross-examination, mention is made of your telling every one who presented coupons what is therein stated as to mode of payment, please state what is the meaning of your answer and whether you intend it to be that you gave the information to every one who presented coupons, literally speaking, or to those only with whom you did converse on the subject?

(Question objected to by counsel for Mr. Belloni and Trustees of the second mortgage, on the following grounds: that it is incompetent for a witness to state the meaning of an answer to a given question and to state what he intended the answer to be. The answer speaks for itself and the witness is bound by it.)

A. My answer is, that to those who asked for information I gave them the information that the Company were not paying their coupons. I believe that I intended to convey the impression to all that I saw or conversed with. I was not present all of the time. While I was absent to dinner or on business, Mr. Bull, my clerk, was in the office, who attended to those calling. I do not mean to be understood that I conversed with every person, literally, who presented coupons.

Q. Please state what was the reason for which you expressed the opinion on your cross-examination, that persons must have seen the notice in writing put up by you, and state also if there was not a notice in writing put up on the glass door through which every person had to pass who came to your desk, besides the notice on your desk.

(Objected to on the following grounds:

1. The question assumes a fact that is not in evidence, that Mr. Willoughby put up a notice.

2. The question refers to a new notice, in writing, and it is incompetent for the witness to give any evidence respecting that notice without producing the same or accounting for its non-production.)

A. For the simple reason that the notice was so conspicuous and plain and pasted in such a place, and in full view, that I do not see how it was possible not to be seen. There was a similar notice about the same size, conspicuously pasted on one of the glass doors to the entrance to the office.

(The answer objected to in that the witness uses the word "similar" characterizing the notice which he says was put up on the glass door.)

Q. On pages 38 and 39 you speak of the agency of Duncan, Sherman & Co., (in your cross-examination,) please state, if you know, what was the extent of such agency, if any, what were the terms of the authority granted, and whether it was by any written evidence?

A. I don't recollect of any written evidence or terms and I do not know the terms or extent of the authority. I consider them agents in a general sense.

Cross-examination resumed.

409 Q. With whom did you converse on the subject of the paying of the coupons by the Bank of Mobile? Name any party, holder of coupons, to whom you gave notice verbally that the Company was not in funds.

A. It is impossible for me to particularize after such a lapse of time. As I said before, to those who asked for information I gave it.

Q. Did you, in any instance, call the attention of any coupon bearer to either of the notices you swear were put up?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Name the instance; give the name of the party whose attention you called to either notice.

A. The same answer as before: lapse of time.

A. L. WILLOUGHBY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this
4th day of January, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Cross-examination of A. L. Willoughby resumed by E. H. Grandin, solicitor for trustees of the second mortgage, etc.

Q. Who wrote the affidavit you made on the 6th day of April, 1876, filed in this Court in the case of Morris Ketchum against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, et al.

(Objected to for irrelevancy.)

A. I wrote it.

Q. Did you not have the assistance of a lawyer in writing it, and if so, what lawyer?

A. I was in Mr. Hamilton's office when I wrote it.

Q. Did not Mr. Peter Hamilton assist you in drawing up that affidavit.

A. Not directly.

Q. Did he do so indirectly.

A. He may have done so as far as the phraseology is concerned.

A. L. WILLOUGHBY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this
4th day of January, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

William M. Bull, a witness called by the solicitor of Alexander Duncan and other holders of the coupons of 1874, being sworn, says, in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether you were in the employment of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the year 1874, and in what capacity.

A. I was a clerk in Mr. Willoughby, the Treasurer's office.

Q. Please state if you assisted Mr. Willoughby, and have a knowledge of what transpired in the Treasurer's office in respect to the coupons of first mortgage bonds falling due May and November, 1874; if so, please state in what manner they were disposed of, and whether you assisted in making up the records of the office at those times in respect to said coupons.

A. I assisted in verifying and recording the coupons. They were generally received by him at the counter, and were passed from there to me for examination and verification. After being verified they were placed in an envelope, their contents noted on the back of an envelope as per the printed description on the envelope. They were then either returned to the Treasurer, subject to his disposition, he being in authority, and in case of his absence they were returned by me to the parties interested. When I instructed the parties interested, it was to go to the Bank of Mobile, which would pay them, as the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company could not, as it had no funds. If the instructions were not in that literal language, it was in words to that effect. I cannot say that I gave this instruction in all cases, as there were sometimes fifteen or twenty applicants at the office for examination of their coupons—upon the request of Mr. Pratt, of the Bank of Mobile, to Mr. Willoughby, the examination of the coupons was made by me—but I tried to convey the impression to these applicants surrounding me that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company could not meet the interest, and that the coupons were to be presented at the Bank of Mobile, and if the Bank of Mobile paid them, it was to retain them.

Q. Please state whether or not any notice or notices were put up to notify parties presenting coupons in that office.

411 A. Not to my knowledge, in May, 1874. In November there was.

Q. Was there more than one?

A. There was one notice, a large placard; if I recollect aright it was on one of the glass doors.

Q. Do you recollect of any at the desk of the Treasurer?

A. This same card may have fallen from the glass door and been placed upon the desk temporarily, or upon the platform between the desks. At any rate the placard was generally placed in a prominent place, so that most every one could see and read it if they wished.

Q. Do you know what became of said notice or notices, if now in existence, or if a copy exists?

A. I think it is not now in existence, and no copies.

Q. Please state what was the purport or substance of said notice.

A. I cannot recollect the exact phraseology, but it was such as to instruct or inform those interested in the coupons of the first mortgage that the Company could not pay them, but that there were others who would buy them, or words to that effect; and all letters written to parties outside of Mobile distinctly stated that the Company could not pay its interest, and that the coupons, at the time this notice was placed up, were purchased—that's the identical word—by the Bank of Mobile.

Q. Please state whether or not, in all cases, coupons presented were returned to the parties presenting them, and if in any single instance, any of those coupons were paid and taken up by the Company in the Treasurer's office.

A. The coupons were always returned to parties, and not one coupon was paid by the Company, or at least by Mr. Willoughby, the Treasurer, that I know of.

Q. Please state if any check whatever was given by the Treasurer to any coupon holder, due at those dates, for payment of the same.

A. Not one check was given, that I know of, and as shown by his check books, which I have examined.

Q. Please state if you have any recollection of the presentation of coupons of those descriptions by Mr. Theo. Guesnard, and as to how they were disposed of.

A. I have. They were disposed of just as before described, same as the others.

Q. (Same question as to the coupons presented by Nathan Whiting and J. B. Hazard & Co.)

A. I have of Mr. Whiting but in one payment; which payment it was I do not recollect. I have no recollection as to Mr. Hazard.

Q. Can you state that neither of those parties were paid by check?

A. Not to my knowledge; and in fact, to no one.

(Admission. Counsel for trustees of second mortgage and Mr. Belloni admits that no check, commonly so-called, was given by the Treasurer, Mr. Willoughby, on the Bank of Mobile for any coupons presented to him for payment either for May 1st, or November 1st, 1874.)

Q. Please state whether any of said coupons of May or November, 1874, have ever, to your knowledge, been surrendered to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

A. Not one, to my knowledge.

Cross-examined, by E. H. Grandin, of counsel for trustees of the second mortgage, and representing E. L. Andrews, solicitor for Mr. L. J. Belloni, objecting first mortgage bondholder;

Q. Did you not write the notice, that is alleged to have been put up, to holders of coupons?

A. Either Mr. Willoughby wrote it, or I did, which one I do not know. I can't rememember whether I wrote it.

Q. You have testified that the notice is lost and cannot be produced; state the contents of that notice very exactly, according to the best of your recollection.

A. The exact phraseology I do not recollect. I cannot give the contents exactly.

Q. You have stated that you tried to convey the impression that you stated in your examination in chief you tried to convey; name any party to whom you tried to convey that impression.

A. I can't particularize any one.

Q. Do you not know that Major Walker, the Vice President of the Company, ordered Mr. Willoughby to take down the notice, or placard?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you not say, the other day, in the Master's office, that you wrote the notice, and that the notice stated that the coupons would be paid at the Bank of Mobile?

A. I do not recollect that I positively stated that I wrote the notice. I may have so stated. I did state that the coupons were paid at the Bank of Mobile, and they were.

Q. What is your age? Are you in the employ of Mr. DuPuy or Mr. Duncan? If so, what office do you fill in such employ?

A. Thirty-four. In the immediate employ of Mr. Wetton, Auditor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Q. You have stated that no coupons have been surrendered of May and November, 1874; do you not know that instead of coupons, promissory notes of the Company have been surrendered?

A. Not to my knowledge.

WILLAM M. BULL.

Subscribed and sworn to before me
this 4th day of January, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

C. A. Wetton, a witness, called by George N. Stewart, solicitor for Alexander Duncan and other coupon holders, being sworn, says:

Q. Please state whether in 1874 you filled the position of Auditor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and during what portion of the year.

A. For no portion.

Q. When did you become Auditor?

A. January 11, 1875.

Q. Are you now Auditor, keeping the accounts of said Company, and of the trustees and receivers thereof?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you a full knowledge of the business affairs of said Company, and of the books now being kept, and of those of the Company before you came in said office?

A. I have a full knowledge of the business affairs of the Company, and of the trustees and receivers, as shown by the books.

Q. Have you full access to those books, and have you carefully examined them, so as to be fully acquainted with the business transactions appearing therein?

A. I have full access to the books, and have carefully examined them whenever occasion required.

Q. Please state whether the coupons, for interest on the first mortgage bonds of the Company, falling due in May and November, 1874, appear on the books of the Company to be outstanding and unpaid, or whether they have been paid.

(Objected to, on the ground that it is incompetent for the witness to state what appears on the books of the Company without producing the books, or accounting for their non-production.)

A. They are an outstanding liability on the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. On the reports made by you to this Court, are said coupons embraced in the list of outstanding liabilities, and are they within the list reported of unpaid interest?

(Objection. There is better evidence of what the reports made by the witness to this Court contain than anything he can now state from recollection. That evidence is on the files of this Court, and it is in the power of the solicitor asking the question to produce it to the Master.)

A. They are.

Q. Please state, from your examination of the books, whether or not said reports are accurate and correct, as shown by the books.

(Objected to, on the ground that it is not competent for the witness to bolster up his reports. His reports speak for themselves, and are to be tried by the books, whenever we can get them in evidence.)

A. They are correct, according to the books.

Q. Please state if in those books, after full examination, there is any payment of said coupons, or of any part, by the Company.

(Objected to, on the ground that it is not competent for the witness to state the contents, or any part of the contents, or anything whatever that appears in those books, without producing them, or accounting for their non-production.)

A. There is no entry on the books showing the payment of any coupon interest on first mortgage bonds maturing May and November of 1874.

Q. Have you in your custody the vouchers for payments made by the Company from 1873 down?

A. All the vouchers found in the office on January 11, 1875, are in my custody.

Q. Please state whether among those vouchers are to be found any of said coupons as vouchers, or are any such coupons in any office of the Company, that you know of, or have they been, as coupons taken up by the Company?

(Objected to, on the grounds that it is involved, and calls by indirection for a fact that ought to be brought out from the witness by direct question. I allude to that part of the question which relates to the payment of the coupons. The objection goes to irregularity of the question.)

A. There are no coupons which matured May and November, 1874, to be found in my office, nor are any of them to be found in any office of the Company, so far as I know, nor have any of them ever been taken up, so far as I know.

Q. Please state whether from these books remittances appear to have been made to Duncan, Sherman & Co. in the year 1874, or since, having any connection with the said coupons, or the payment of them.

(Objected to, on the ground that it is incompetent for the witness to state what appears on the books. It is the duty of the counsel putting that question to produce the books, if he wants the contents thereof.)

A. According to the books and the records, no such remittances were made.

Q. Please state whether, in 1874 and since, Duncan, Sherman & Co. were indebted to the Company, or the Company indebted to them, as shown by said books.

(The same objection as before.)

A. The books show a considerable balance in favor of Duncan, Sherman & Co., during 1874 and since.

Q. Is not the indebtedness to Duncan, Sherman & Co. still unpaid?

A. It is.

Q. Has not the indebtedness of the Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co. been continual from 1874 to the present time?

A. It has.

Q. Did you make up the report of the affairs and accounts of the Company in April, 1875, which was published?

A. I did.

Q. Can you produce a copy of said report? If so, please do so.

A. I can, and here produce it.

(Report attached as Exhibit No. 1.)

Q. Please state whether said report is correct, so far as your knowledge and belief extends.

A. It is.

Q. Please state whether the statements now produced of the account current between the Company and Duncan, Sherman & Co., as taken from your books, are correct.

(Objected to, on the ground that the question calls for something that appears on the books. The books themselves must be produced.)

A. They are.

(Accounts attached, as Exhibits Nos. 2 and 3.)

Q. It appears from the evidence of Mr. McMahon that a deposit or deposits was or were made in the Bank of Mobile, amounting to $45,800, or thereabouts, in 1874, by the Company, to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Company. Please state to what account said sums so deposited appear on the books, as charged, and whether on general account or otherwise, and does it appear in the statements filed.

(Objected to on the same ground as previously stated. The question calls for contents of books which ought to be produced.)

A. They were charged to Duncan, Sherman & Company. They were charged in general account and appear in the statements I have filed.

Q. Please state, if within your knowledge or information any sum or reimbursement has been made to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or any one else, by way of payment, satis-

417 faction or reimbursement by the Company on account of said coupons of May and November, 1874, from the books of your office or in any other manner.

A. None that I am aware of.

(Question and answer objected to on the same grounds as those previously expressed.)

Cross-examination, by E. H. Grandin, counsel for trustees of second mortgage, etc.

Q. State what railroads you were connected with before you were employed by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and state who employed you to come into the service of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

A. New York and Harlem Railroad; St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute; Erie Railway, and I was elected by the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. Is there any record of your election by the Board of Directors, and is it usual for an Auditor of a railroad to be elected by the Board of Directors thereof. On the contrary, is not the auditor of a railroad generally appointed by the President thereof?

A. I am informed by the Secretary that such a record is on the minutes. It is not unusual. Auditors, however, are generally appointed by the President and the appointment confirmed by the Board of Directors.

Q. Were you not appointed and brought down to Mobile by Wm. Butler Duncan, President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

(Objected to as irrelevant and does not go to prove whether Alexander Duncan is entitled to these coupons or not.)

A. I was notified by Mr. Duncan to meet Col. Rives and himself at his office in New York, and my appointment was then approved by the general manager.

Q. Who was general manager?

A. Col. Rives.

Q. You say your appointment was approved by the general manager—who made your appointment that was so approved?

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. Mr. Duncan.

Q. Where are the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and are all the books kept by said Company before the trustees of the first mortgage took possession, now existing. If so where are they—who has them and who can produce them?

A. All the books in the Auditor's department Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company on January 11, 1875, are still in existence and in my immediate care. The Receiver can produce them.

Q. You speak of books in the Auditor's department on January 11, 1875. That is not an answer to my question. Please answer it.

A. I can only answer as to the books found in the office when I took charge of it.

Q. Are you able to state whether or not all the books appertaining to the Auditor's department Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, before the trustees took possession, were in the office when you took charge of it or are now there?

A. All the books from January 11, 1875, are there, and in my care, and prior to that date they are as far as I know.

Q. Do you not know that certain books and papers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, after the trustees took possession, were sold as waste paper, or junk, to the keeper of a junk shop in the city of Mobile, or elsewhere?

A. I do not. None were so sold to my knowledge.

Q Who kept the books of the Company before you became Auditor and who was your predecessor in that office?

A. I have the same book-keeper that was employed by my predecessor, Oliver S. Beers.

Q. Were not your reports to this Court made after consultation with the President of the Company and Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan, Receiver in this cause?

A. They were not. They were made from the books and trial balance of the general ledger.

Q. Do you know, or have you any means of stating, what promissory notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company were taken up by Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan, with funds of the Company, in the year 1874?

A. I cannot answer the question from memory. The statements filed as Exhibits show.

419 Q. What statements do you allude to?

A. The debit and credit statements of the general account Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q. How does it happen that these statements or accounts of Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York, are made out on forms of Duncan and Elliot, trustees and receivers Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. Simply as a matter of convenience.

Q. Who made them out?

A. The account was stated by my book-keeper and copied by a clerk in my office.

Q. That is not an answer.

A. I am unable to give any other answer.

Q. Are you able to say where the person who made out these statements got his information?

A. From the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. Then these statements are simply copies from the books?

A. They are copies substantially of the entries.

Q. Are these statements correct?

A. They are correct according to the books.

Q. I see by these statements that on the 30th day of April nearly one hundred thousand dollars, or perhaps quite that sum, was paid by Duncan, Sherman & Co. for account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, to sundry parties in the city of New York, on notes and drafts. State, if you can, why that money was not applied to the payment of the coupon due the very next day instead of being paid to holders of the floating debt of the Company.

A. I do not know.

Q. I see that on the 30th May, 1874, there was a payment to R. Sage, of New York, of $30,000, and on the same day there were sundry payments of notes, interest on notes, drafts, due bills, etc., amounting, in the aggregate, to something like one hundred thousand dollars—whose money was that?

A. I do not know. I do not think it was money, I think it was account.

Q. I see that on the 30th June, 1874, there were notes paid to Perkins, Livingston & Post; Russell Sage; G. A. Smith; Burnham, Parry & Williams, aggregating over $85,000, for account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, by Duncan, Sherman & Co. Whose money was that?

A. I do not know.

Q. Looking through this account or statement, as you call it, commencing 30th April, 1874, and running down to the 22d January, 1875, I find payments by Duncan, Sherman & Co., for account of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co., amounting in the aggregate to $927,041. I do not find in the statement that any of that money was paid for interest on the bonded debt of the Company, except some small payments made November 26, but I do find the great bulk of this large sum was paid to floating creditors, and on sundry other accounts, and some of it was paid on the 14th day of September, 1874, for interest on convertible bonds. Are you able to explain why this is so?

A. I believe such payments or renewals were made to avoid the absorption of collaterals by the holders of the Company's paper.

Q. Please state the difference between these two statements, Nos. 2 and 3.

A. Exhibit No. 2 is Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s credits; Exhibit No. 3 is Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s debits.

Q. Then it appears by Exhibit No. 3 that Duncan, Sherman & Co. received from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, from the 30th April, 1874, to the 5th January, 1875, the sum of $910,017 31, and it appears by Exhibit No. 2 that, including the balance stated to be due to them on the 30th April, 1874, down to the 22d day of January, 1875, they paid out the sum of $927,041. Do you believe these statements to be a correct showing of the accounts of the Company with Duncan, Sherman & Co?

A. I do.

Thereupon the reference was adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, morning, at ten o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 5th, 1877.

The Session of the Special Master convened pursuant to adjournment. Present: the Special Master, and Counsel as of the day previous.

Cross Examination of C. A. Wetton resumed by E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for trustees of the second mortgage, and representing E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for L. J. Belloni, objecting bondholder.

Q. Why do you not produce the books. Where is the custodian of the books. Are you the custodian?

A. I have no authority to produce the books. They are simply in my care. The attorney and agent of the Receivers is the custodian.

Q. State specifically what books and papers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company were sold by you to the keeper of a junk shop, and by whose authority they were sold.

(Objected to as irrelevant and not specific as to time.)

A. No books or papers pertaining to the Auditor's department of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company have ever been sold by me to a junk dealer in Mobile or elsewhere.

Q. That is not an answer to my question; please answer it.

A. I have never sold any and have never been authorized to dispose of any.

Q. Did you not state yesterday, in the Master's office, that you had sold some waybills and papers of no value, to the keeper of a junk shop?

A. I may have done so.

Q. Are you not certain that you did so?

A. I believe I did.

Q. What waybills and papers were they that you sold to the keeper of a junk shop?

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. Refuse paper gathered from the waybill room and from the stations along the line of the road, usually disposed of yearly in every well regulated Auditor's department in the United States.

Q. You have not answered my question, please do so. I did not ask you the practice in well regulated Auditor's departments. When I ask you that question it will be time enough to answer it. Answer the question that I put to you.

(The defendant claims that the witness has the right to justify himself in his answers as to any act of his which he is required to disclose.)

A. Old waybills and refuse paper.

Q. Is that the only answer you are able to make to my question?

A. It is.

Q. Do you consider it good practice in well regulated Auditors' departments of railroads to sell or destroy any papers whatever having reference to the business of a railroad Company.

(Objected to as irrelevant to the issue now on trial.)

A. I do. All papers relating to line accounts, after a certain time has elapsed.

Q. Are you certain that among the papers running into line accounts that you sold to this junk dealer there were not some vouchers for claims against the railroad Company?

(Objected to as immaterial.)

A. I am almost certain there was not—under the general instructions given.

Q. Has not some claim been made against the railroad Company—a claim of old date—which was paid, according to the recollection of the Treasurer, Mr. Willoughby, and did you not look for the voucher, and if so, did you find it?

(Objected to as having no relation to the present controversy.)

A. There may have been. I don't know.

Q. Try and remember, and answer my question.

A. I cannot remember any particular instance.

Q. Who was the junk dealer to whom you sold those papers?

A. I can give the name by referring to the record.

Q. Can you not give the name without referring to the record? If so, give it.

A. I think it was Locke & Son.

423 Q. Do you not know that it was Locke & Son?

A. I do not know. I speak from memory.

Q. Whereabouts is their junk shop?

(Objected to, as immaterial.)

A. I don't know.

Q. Have you ever been there?

A. I have not.

Q. Did you ever have an interview with the keeper of that junk shop; if so, where?

A. I never had an interview with the keeper of the junk shop.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Locke, or his son; and did you ever have any transaction of any kind with them, or either of them; if so, when or where?

A. I may have seen them on the street; but I should not have known them from anybody else with whom I had no acquaintance.

Q. That is not a full answer to my question; please answer it fully.

A. I can make that more full. I had business with them.

Q. State what business you have had with them; when, and where.

(Objected to, as immaterial to this controversy.)

A. Business relating to the sale of refuse paper. I think once in 1875 and once in 1876, but I am unable to give the exact dates without referring to the records of my office. In Mobile. The business was transacted through one of my clerks.

Q. Did you ever personally see Mr. Locke or his son?

A. I have no recollection of it.

Q. What clerk was it through whom you transacted your business with Locke & Son? State his name and residence.

(Objected to, as immaterial, and tending to useless prolixity of examination.)

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Are you able to state whether he is now living?

A. He is, so far as I know.

Q. Do you not know he is now living?

A. I believe he is, and in my office.

Q. Do you not know his name?

A. I can't remember the name of the clerk I appointed to perform that specific duty.

Q. Did you appoint a clerk to perform that specific duty?

A. I did; one of the clerks in my office.

Q. Then I understand you say that no one was expressly appointed to perform that specific duty, but the clerk who did perform it was one of the regular staff of your office?

A. He was one of the regular clerks in my office.

Q. How many clerks have you in your office?

A. Nine.

Q. Are they all men? If not, state how many women clerks you have.

(Objected to, as immaterial.)

A. They are all men, so far as I know.

Q. One of those clerks transacted that business with Locke & Son; which one was it?

A. Speaking from memory, it was C. M. Shepard.

Q. Where is C. M. Shepard at this present time?

A. I don't know.

Q. Is he not in your office in Mobile?

A. I don't know.

Q. Is he not in the employ of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. He is.

Q. Is he not in the Auditor's department of the Mobile and Ohie Railroad Company?

A. He is employed in the Auditor's department.

Q. Have you not sent him away from Mobile on duty connected with your office, or for any other reason?

A. I have not.

Q. Has anybody done it, to your knowledge?

(Objected to, as immaterial.)

A. No one.

Q. Then you positively swear that you do not know where Mr. Shepard is?

A. I stated that I did not know where he was at that precise moment; nor do I.

Q. Do you know where he is?

A. I believe him to be in my office, but I do not know.

Q. State the nature of the transaction you had with Locke & Son, through the agency of this clerk.

A. I directed him to find some paper dealer who would purchase the refuse paper which had accumulated, and to obtain for it the best possible price, which he did, and proper vouchers were made for the purchase money and the amount paid into the treasury. The transaction was the sale of refuse paper. Speaking from memory, one hundred and thirty or forty dollars worth. Can't state exact amount without reference to records.

Q. Refresh your memory and report to the Master.

Q. Did you not order all station agents along the line of the railroad to send to you all the papers in their respective offices, and did they not do so, and were not those the refuse papers that you have spoken of?

(Question objected to, as having no relation to this controversy.)

A. I did; the order was generally complied with; and they formed a part of the papers which were sold.

Q. You stated yesterday something about remittances made to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or William Butler Duncan, in 1874; who called your attention to that subject, and requested you to look at the books with reference to said remittances?

A. I don't remember who called attention to it, or that it was called.

Q. And yet you did look at the books, with special reference to said remittances?

A. I believe Mr. DuPuy requested me to make an abstract of Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s general account for 1874. I cannot state positively.

Q. Is that the only answer you will make to the proceeding?

A. I am unable to understand that I can make a more definite answer.

Q. What indebtedness of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or William Butler Duncan, is still unpaid?

A. I am unable to state positively, as the interest on the balance has not been computed for some time. The books will show.

Q. Who assisted you in making up the report of the affairs of the Company in 1875?

A. The clerks in my office.

Q. Who wrote the Report of Directors for year ending December 31, 1874?

A. I made the draft of it, from the books and records.

Q. Do you mean to say that you wrote this report, marked Exhibit No. 1, filed January 4, 1877?

A. I wrote the first draft.

Q Who wrote the second draft?

A. I do not know that a second draft was written.

Q. I read in this report the following:

"The holders of the unpaid coupons have, however, thus far withheld from hostile proceedings against the Company, thus manifesting confidence in the management, as also confidence that, with renewed prosperity, the net results of the business would be appropriated to their payment. It is imperative that this policy should be rigidly adhered to."

Who wrote that?

A. I wrote the first draft of that paragraph—not in those exact words. It may have been amended somewhat by the President and Vice President.

Q. Is there any statement in that report, or, as far as you know, in any published report or statement made by authority of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, that the coupons of 1st May and 1st November, 1874, were not paid by the Company?

A. There is. It has been produced.

(Referring to the report of December 31, 1874.)

Q. You refer to this line in small type: "Coupons matured and unpaid, $735,415.32"?

A. Yes; in connection with the report and the signatures of the directors.

Q. And you also refer to the language I have embodied (in a preceding question), taken from the report?

A. I do. The report shows.

Q. Is there a single word in this report, in your judgment as Auditor of a railroad company, which does convey, or is calculated to convey, to bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, that the coupon of May 1, 1874, and that of November 1, 1874, had not been paid by the Company?

(Objected to, as opinion of witness is immaterial—the report showing for itself.)

A. Speaking from an Auditor's standpoint, I should say there was.

Q. Was this report printed in the usual form; and if not, why not?

(Objected to, as that is a question for the President and Directors to answer, and not the Auditor.)

A. It was not. The annual reports had previously cost much more than the President was willing should be incurred. They printed it in cheap form.

Q. Were you present at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1875?

A. I was not.

Q. Are you able to state whether Mr. William Butler Duncan was present; or Mr. John J. Walker, Vice President, was present?

A. I am not.

Q. It appears by the report of 1875, which is in evidence, that the net revenue of the Company, for the year ending 31 December, 1874, was $707,865.04; what was the amount of interest on the first mortgage bonds for that year, and why was not the net revenue appropriated for the payment of that interest; what was done with that net revenue?

A. According to the books it was applied to the payment of pressing liabilities, as the statement of "cash resources" and the disposition thereof shows. The interest was about $740,000.

Q. The report speaks of the investment of the proceeds of the sales of lands in bonds to a certain extent; state, if you can, why those proceeds were not paid to the bondholders for their coupons.

(Objected to, as not affecting the rights of Alexander Duncan.)

A. By the terms of the deed of trust the proceeds of sales of lands must be applied to the retirement of first mortgage bonds.

And thereupon the reference was adjourned until to-morrow (Saturday) morning, January 6, 1877, at ten o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 6th, 1877.

The session of the Special Master opened pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel, as heretofore.

Cross-examination of C. A. Wetton continued, (by E. H. Grandin):

Q. State who are the officers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; who are the employees of the Receivers of the property of said Company now in the custody of this Court; name each one of them—I mean the heads of departments in the office at Mobile.

A. The officers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company are: Wm. Butler Duncan, President; T. H. DuPuy, Vice President; A. L. Rives, General Manager; A. L. Willoughby, Treasurer; C. A. Wetton, Auditor; C. L. Fitch, General Freight Agent. The same heads of departments are employed by the Receivers.

Q. State the aggregate of salaries paid to these officers.

(Objected to, as irrelevant.)

A. I cannot state from memory.

Q. What is your own salary?

(Objected to, as irrelevant.)

A. Three thousand dollars per annum.

Q. What is the salary of T. Haskins DuPuy, Manager for Receivers?

(Same objection.)

A. Six thousand dollars per annum.

Q. Who fixed that salary?

A. I do not know.

429 Q. You have named some of the employees of Receivers in this case; but it seems to me you have forgotten to name one. I will refresh your memory. Is Mr. Moses Waring employed by the Receivers; if so, in what capacity, for what purpose, and what is his salary?

A. You asked me as to the heads of departments employed by Receivers; Mr. Moses Waring is not the head of a department.

Q. You are right. My question was limited to heads of departments. I now ask you to state whether or not Mr. Moses Waring has been employed by Receivers in this case; and if so, when, for what purpose, and what salary is being paid to him or has been agreed to be paid to him for the service he is performing.

(Objected to, as irrelevant, and not specific as to time.)

A. He was employed some time in 1875. He has charge of tax matters. Salary, three thousand dollars per annum.

Q. Do you consider—I ask you as an expert and an experienced auditor of railroads—that such an officer for such a purpose has been needed during the receivership in this case?

A. I do.

Q. Give me your reasons for that opinion.

A. I believe he has saved to the trust property a large amount of money.

Q. Who appointed him?

(Objected to. The question has no relation to the issue before the Court.)

A. I do not know.

Q. Who has the power of appointment of officers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, under the present regime?

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. No officers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company are appointed under the present regime.

Q. What is the present regime of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. The railroad is managed by the Receivers, acting as officers of the United States Court.

Q. Do you not know that Mr. T. Haskins Du Puy, as general agent for Receivers, appointed Mr. Waring to that office?

A. I have no knowledge on the subject.

Q. The organization of the Company is kept up, is it not. The Directors hold meetings and make reports, do they not?

A. I believe it is. I have no knowledge as to meetings as to the Board of Directors, or whether they made reports of such meetings.

Q. Do you know who sent to me this morning a copy of the "annual report of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, for the year ending December 31, 1875, purporting to have been printed in New York—Evening Post Steam Press, 208 Broadway, corner Fulton street, 1876."

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. I do not.

Q. Do you, or not, know who made those pencil marks on either side of the names of the Directors who are there named?

A. I do not.

Q. State whether or not, as a matter of fact, the organization of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company is not kept up, and whether in despite of the road being in the custody of the law, the Company does not make reports to its Stockholders.

A. I believe it is, and I believe it does.

Thereupon the session adjourned until Monday, January 8, 1877, at half past ten A. M.

JAMES GILLETTE,
Special Master.

MONDAY, JANUARY 8th, 1877.

The Reference met pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel of the days previous.

Cross-examination of C. A. Wetton, resumed by E. H. Grandin.

Q. State what officers are employed by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, irrespective of Receivers appointed by the United States Court.

A. None.

431 Re-direct examination by George N. Stewart.

Q. You have produced a statement of the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. for the year 1874, in which large sums appear to be debited and credited. Please state whether all those debits and credits were for money actually passing between the parties or whether a large portion of the debits and credits were charges and credits of sums properly chargeable, but where no money actually passed, such as cases of renewals of notes or drafts, debited and credited where the amounts were not paid or received in money. Please explain their nature.

A. A large portion of the debits and credits of the general account of Duncan, Sherman & Co., as shown by Exhibits No. 2 and No. 3, is for renewal of notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. The old notes were charged by Duncan, Sherman & Co. as paid, as well as the renewal interest, in cases where it was paid and not added to the face of the old note. The new note would then be shown on the credit side of the account. The account is princicipally made up of such items. At that time but little money passed.

Question by E. H. Grandin:

Q. When a note was renewed, was or was not the back interest paid in cash by Duncan, Sherman & Co. on account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

A. In some cases it was; and in others back interest was added to the face of the old note and a new note made therefor: For instance, July 13, 1874, Gallatin National Bank. See entry in debit statment.

C. A. WETTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this
8th day of January, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

EXHIBIT NO. 1,

TO TESTIMONY OF C. A. WETTON.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.

REPORT AND ACCOUNTS FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31st, 1874.

Presented at the Twenty-seventh Annual Meeting of the Stockholders, held in the City of Mobile, April 20, 1875.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The following statements exhibit the operations of the Company, for the year ending 31st December, 1874.

Revenue from Freight	$1,838,923 52
" " Passengers	429,630 86
" " Mails	61,727 40
" " Express	60,737 50
	$2,391,019 28
Expenses	1,683,154 24
Net Revenue	$ 707,865 04

As per comparative statement hereunto attached, it will be seen that while the decrease in the revenue has been equal to 14.6 per centum the decrease in the working expenses has been equal to 16.8 per centum as against the preceding year.

The decrease in the business of the road as compared with the previous year, of $410,108 10, is in a measure the result of the general depression of business throughout the whole country, which has been particularly severe upon all Southern enterprises. Yet, notwithstanding all this, it is believed that, had the extension of your line from Columbus to Cairo been made in time to prevent the construction of a direct opposition line from the last named place to Jackson, your revenues for the year would have shown very favorably, as compared with any preceding year's results.

The road bed and equipment have been maintained in fair condition—(see statement of A. L. Rives, General Manager and Chief Engineer). The expenditures have been limited to the actual necessities, and the strictest economy enjoined in every department of the Company's service.

Since the 1st of January, 1875, the system of paying the employees of the Company in 30 day warrants, which the employee's wants compelled him to sell at a discount, has been abandoned, and your labor is now paid promptly in cash; the current supplies, also, are now purchased, as far as possible, for cash; both of which changes will result to the great advantage and economy of the service.

Further efforts are now being matured for diminishing the expenses and increasing the receipts.

The general balance sheet of the Company is submitted herewith. Owing to the complicated method of presenting the statements of former years, it is difficult to make a reliable comparison with that of 1873. Your attention is, however, called to the following changes:

The cost of road, etc., shows an increase of $823,703. This is caused by charging this account with the balances to the debit of the several branches, and also with the balance to the debit of the so called "Improvement Account." These branches are now virtually completed and their several construction accounts closed. All outlays on them are now charged to operating expenses.

The proceeds of the sales of lands having been invested in bonds, and the said bonds cancelled, in accordance with its trust, the Donated Lands' account shows a reduction of $93,266 09 in the estimated value.

This department is now under the control and management of Mr. Murdock, the late President of the Company, who reports that the prospect of sales in the future is most excellent: during 1874 there were no sales of any consequence. These lands represent 1,192,464 acres, exclusive of the other small parcels.

Materials on hand show a decrease in value of $176,745 41 as against the previous year, which is to be accounted for by the amount of old material sold as stated, the amount used in the construction of the Oktibbeha branch over and above the amount charged against the construction of the said branch, the purchase of new supplies at lower rates than formerly, and by the shrinkage in values since 1873.

The Funded Debt with the matured and unpaid coupons, and the Floating Debt, as per Exhibits herewith, represent every ascertained liability of the Company up to and including the interest which matured January 1, 1875. Your attention is called to the statement of the cash resources of the Company during 1874, and their disposition, as per Exhibit, also attached. Had it been possible to foresee the actual course of the Company's business, so different from the promise of the later months of 1874, the policy of your Directors would have been more strictly followed at an earlier date. The holders of the unpaid coupons, have, however, thus far withheld from hostile proceedings against the Company, thus manifesting confidence in the management as also confidence that with renewed prosperity the net results of the business would be appropriated to their payment. It is imperative that this policy should be rigidly adhered to.

The foregoing, with the accompanying exhibits, is believed to be a true and correct statement of the financial condition of the Company on the 1st day of January, 1875, and of its operations during the preceding year.

Special Master.

TESTIMONY OF MOSES WARING.

Moses Waring, a witness called by George N. Stewart, Solicitor for Alexander Duncan, and sworn and examined, says:

Q. Please state whether you are a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and were so in 1874.

A. I was elected a Director to fill a vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Humphries, of Mississippi, January 27, 1874, and was appointed on the Finance Committee February 10, 1874.

Q. Please state whether you have full knowledge of the financial transactions of the Company from the time of your election and appointment on said Finance Committee.

A. I have a general knowledge of the finances, being a Director and every day in consultation.

Q. Have you not, yourself, as a member of the Finance Committee, transacted a great part of the financial business of the Company ?

A. I have transacted a good deal of the business of that kind.

Q. Please state whether the Company paid the coupons for interest on the first mortgage bonds falling due in May and November, 1874, or any part of them ?

A. They did not pay any interest 1st May, 1874—the Company did not—on the sterling bonds. They did not pay in November either.

Q. Has the Company paid any of said Coupons since ?

A. They have not paid any since. They stopped payment in May 1874.

Q. Was any money borrowed by the Company from any one to pay them with ?

A. No money was borrowed that I know anything about. They were paid, but not by the Company. There was no arrangement made or any security given for any money.

Q. Were any of said coupons paid or any money furnished by the Company to any one for that purpose?

A. No.

Q. Please state whether or not in May and November, 1874, or at either time, the Company had moneys sufficient or were able to pay said coupons?

A. They did not have the money and were unable to pay.

Q. The subject of renewing the floating debt of the Company by you has been mentioned; please state what transactions were had by you in that respect.

A. I took charge of the floating debt paper after I was elected; that is, all that was payable in Mobile. All that was maturing here in Mobile I attended to and arranged for.

Q. Was there a large amount of floating debt paper falling due in 1874?

A. Yes; there was a large amount.

Q. Please state what was done with it; was it paid or renewed?

A. It was renewed, at short intervals, by payment of a small portion of the principal and the interest from January on to the spring of 1874; in the spring of 1874 the paper was then renewed until the following fall, by payment of interest, and, in some cases, a curtailment; in the fall of 1874 the paper was then renewed again, from its maturity, for twelve months, by payment of interest, which the Company paid.

Q. Why was this floating debt renewed; did the Company have means to pay it?

A. It was renewed because they did not have the means to pay it, and keep the road running.

Q. Were suits threatened by the holders unless they were so arranged?

A. There were, I think, two suits brought: that paper was not renewed at all. I did not hear of any person threatening the Company. The people generally acquiesced, as the best they could do, to get their interest, with the prospect of getting their principal in twelve months, on my explaining to them that the Company was out of funds, and 449 that litigation would not bring the money. There was one other piece of paper not renewed, but it was not sued on; I think it was for about twelve hundred dollars.

Q. Enquiry has been made in this examination as to your salary as member of the Finance Committee, and as to the duties devolving on you as such; please state what those duties were.

A. I had all the paper to renew; to see all the different parties in relation to it, and it took pretty much all my time. And then matters of different kinds have been placed in my hands for settlement and compromise.

Q. Were those duties arduous; and did they present many difficulties to be overcome; did they involve large transactions?

A. Yes; they were very difficult to arrange, and very large in amount. I think there were six or seven hundred thousand dollars of floating paper; I don't know the exact amount. I do not think they could have been renewed at all, except by my personal exertions, and they would have involved the Company in a great deal of litigation, had they not been renewed.

Cross-examination, by E. H. Grandin, of counsel for trustees second mortgage, &c.

Q. Was not money paid by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in the year 1874, to some of the Directors for endorsing the Company's notes?

A. No, sir: not after I went there. There was nobody paid for putting their name on paper.

Q. Please state the amount of reduction in the Company's taxes that you have obtained in the last few years.

A. A saving by settlement and compromise of taxes of about twelve or thirteen thousand dollars—it may go as high as fourteen thousand; I can't recollect the exact figures. Previous to my going there there was no one to render any detailed statement of the taxes, or value the property in a proper manner. The city taxes for 1875, on the property of the Company in the city, were assessed without my knowledge, on $300,000, which I got reduced to $80,000, and the taxes were paid by compromise at $1,200 for 1875. For the year 1876 I rendered the valuation of the property at $80,000. It had been assessed for years at $300,000.

In answer to question by Special Master:

I have also effected a reduction in the State and County taxes, for the years 1874 and 1875, on all the property in Mobile county, except as to the lands donated by Congress, which is in dispute.

M. WARING.

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Alabama.

WM. BUTLER DUNCAN AND ANDREW F. ELLIOT, TRUSTEES, &c.,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY.

Cross-interrogatories to be propounded to such witnesses as shall be produced before a United States Commissioner authorized to take depositions in the city of New York, on the part of Alexander Duncan and his assigns.

First Cross-Interrogatory.

If, in answer to the second interrogatory, you refer to any memoranda or entries, state if they are in your handwriting. If your handwriting or not, state when such memoranda or entries were made, and state whether you do not testify entirely from those memoranda or entries.

Second Cross-Interrogatory.

If you state, in answer to the third interrogatory, that you gave any notice to the persons from whom you received the coupons, state in what manner such notice was given. Was it not merely a notice in writing or point posted in some place of business? If you relate any conversations with the persons aforesaid, state what those persons from whom you received the coupons said.

Third Cross-Interrogatory.

If, in answer to the third interrogatory, you state what equivalent you gave for the coupons, or by whom and under what circumstances the money was furnished, state also what rate of exchange in New York and Mobile there was, or its average rate during the time you received the coupons. If not without, then state if you could answer the question by reference to any memorandum or entry, or any document giving the rates of foreign exchange.

Fourth Cross-Interrogatory.

Also state whether any difference between the face of the coupons and the amount paid to the parties from whom they were received was not charged for commission for payment at a place other than where they were due, and for interest during time required to remit coupons to Mobile, and for expenses for remittance, or for any of above items.

Fifth Cross-Interrogatory.

If, in answer to the fifth interrogatory, you state that any of the coupons of May and November, 1874, were so received from abroad, state if such coupons are now claimed to be owned by Alexander Duncan, and if not by him, by whom?

EDWARD L. ANDREWS,
Solicitor of Counsel for Objector.

Sir : Take notice that the foregoing are cross-interrogatories to be propounded to such witnesses as shall be produced before a United States Commissioner authorized to take depositions in the city of New York, under and by virtue of a commission issued by James Gillette, Special Master in the above entitled cause, dated December 15th, 1876. Deposition of George Boyd.

In the Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of Alabama, at Mobile.

WM. B. DUNCAN AND ANDREW F. ELLIOT,
vs. } In Equity.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO., ET ALS.

On Reference to James Gillette, Special Master.

In the matter of the claim filed by Alexander Duncan for allowance of certain coupons proved before the Master.

DEPOSITION OF WITNESSES.

NEW YORK, December 30, 1876, 2:30 P. M.

George Boyd, a witness of lawful age, a witness produced before me on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, and by me propounded to him, deposeth and saith—

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. I was in the employ of Duncan, Sherman & Co. during the whole of that year.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. I had to do in the year 1874 with buying coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, maturing at each of the dates inquired of. I was instructed by the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. to purchase these coupons maturing at those dates, and to hold them uncancelled as my vouchers for such checques. I was instructed to pay these as they were presented and give checques. I told the parties presenting them that we were not paying them, but were purchasing them; then I counted the coupons, entered the number of the coupons and their value on an envelope, showing the total value of what the party brought me, and then on the cover of the envelope I put the number of the checque that was given for these coupons and entered the same, and made a copy of that on the stub of my checque, so that one had to correspond with the other. I was the coupon clerk and transfer clerk of Duncan, Sherman & Co., having the entire charge of the entire payment and transfer of these coupons, and as such clerk I gave my checque on Duncan, Sherman & Co. for the amount, which I paid for these coupons. I was acting in this matter for Duncan, Sherman & Co., and by their directions. I cannot state the extent of those purchases.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory he saith:

A. The equivalent that was given was in every instance a checque for the amount of the coupons. My invariable rule was to state to all the persons that we were not paying them, but purchasing them, such being my instructions. The checques were my checques.

4. In answer to the fourth interrogatory he saith:

A. There was no account kept with me. None came to me but what I paid for.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories he says:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory he says:

A. I have not referred to any memoranda or entries.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. The notice was given by me verbally to the persons from whom I purchased the coupons. The persons from whom I received the coupons would come in and ask, "are you paying these coupons?" I would say, "I am not. I am purchasing them." There was no general conversation. They would pass them in and say, "pay them," or "give us a checque for them."

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I cannot answer that question.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. It appears to me that there was some discount made later on the time of payment. I had nothing to do with it. What I mean is, that I think there was a small charge for the January coupons. There was none for the May, July or November, and I am not positive as to the other.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I have not said that there were any received from abroad, and I know nothing about that.

GEORGE BOYD.

By me reduced to writing in the presence of the witness, and from his statements, and after having been to him carefully read, by him subscribed and sworn to, this 30th day of December, 1876, before me.

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner
Southern District of New York.

Adjourned to January 2, 1877, at 2:30 p. m.

Deposition of Wm. Butler Duncan.

New York, January 2, 1877, 2:30 p. m.

William Butler Duncan, a witness of lawful age produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, and being by me duly examined on the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, deposes and says as follows:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he says:

A. I was the senior member of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and was acting as the senior member of that firm.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he says:

A. The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. had to do, in the years 1874 and 1875, with the getting together and acquiring the ownership of the coupons maturing at the dates mentioned in the inquiry. Previous to and at May, 1874, my firm was largely interested in the securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. I was applied to to take the Presidency of the Road at that time. The directors also applied to my firm to advance large sums of money to meet the indebtedness of that company, and also to meet the interest which was about to mature on the 1st of May, 1874. My firm was at that time in considerable advance to the company, and agreed in the latter part of April, 1874, that they would purchase the coupons about to mature on the 1st of May, and not press the company for payment then. The company offered and did assign to me, for the protection of my firm for past and future indebtedness, the claim they had upon the United States Government. I produce a copy of that assignment, to be made part of annexed to my deposition. (It is marked Exhibit A.) Accordingly my firm instructed the clerk in whose charge the matter was put, to purchase such coupons from those presenting them at their face value, at the same time instructing such clerk to notify parties inquiring that Duncan, Sherman & Co. were purchasing such coupons, and that the company had not the means at that time with which to meet them. The conclusion my firm arrived at to purchase these coupons had only been reached a day or so previous to the 1st of May, and much anxiety had been evinced by holders of the coupons to know whether they would do so. In the same manner we telegraphed to our correspondents in London, the Union Bank, requesting them to purchase the coupons maturing at that date, to reimburse themselves by charging our account with the cost of the same, and to transmit the coupons so purchased to us uncancelled. These instructions were sent them by telegraph, as up to the last moment it was hoped that the company might in some manner provide the means themselves. At the same time we notified our correspondent, the Bank of Mobile, at Mobile, that they might purchase the coupons maturing May 1, 1874, at their face value, transmitting same to us uncancelled, and drawing on us in reimbursement of the cost. The same course was pursued with reference to the coupons which matured on the 1st of July, 1874.

The facts I have mentioned were of course known to the directors of the company, and, I believe, to the trustees of the mortgage bonds. I am certain they were known to one of the trustees at least.

In November, 1874, my firm made arrangements with the Credit Foncier of London, to obtain advances from them for the purpose of purchasing the coupons maturing at that date. The Credit Foncier were instructed to purchase such coupons and forward the same to my firm uncancelled, on receiving reimbursement from my firm for the cost thereof. The coupons were purchased in New York also and in Mobile by the Bank of Mobile.

The same course was pursued also with the coupons which matured on the 1st of January, 1875.

No commission was or has been charged by us to the company, and no moneys have been received by Duncan, Sherman & Co. from the company on account of such coupons. All the coupons maturing at the dates before mentioned were subsequently transferred to Alexander Duncan in consideration of receiving from him the cost thereof, which he paid to said firm.

The foregoing facts in relation to the purchase of the coupons were stated to any inquirers, and were well known to all those who were conversant with the affairs of the company. The directions given were by me as senior member of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

In reference to the extent, I have procured copies of the accounts from the books of Duncan, Sherman & Co., which I produce, to be annexed and made part of my deposition, and which give the details thereof and indicate that they were in regard to the purchase of those coupons at the respective dates. The copies produced are correct copies of the accounts in the books.

(They are marked Exhibit B.)

3. In answer to the third interrogatory, he says:

A. The equivalent given appears in the accounts, copies of which I have submitted, partly by payments of sterling in London through the Union Bank and the Credit Foncier, and partly by payments by Duncan, Sherman & Co. here, and by the Bank of Mobile at Mobile, at a rate per coupon given by Duncan, Sherman & Co. We reimbursed the Union Bank by directing them to charge their outlay in purchasing these coupons to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. We remitted to the Credit Foncier the amount which they had advanced for our account in the acquisition of such coupons, and we paid the drafts of the Bank of Mobile drawn by them in reimbursement for the purchase of such coupons; and for such coupons as were purchased over our own counter, we cashed the drafts of the clerk who, under our instructions, purchased the same. All these payments were respectively charged to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company coupon purchasing accounts, of which I have handed in a copy. As I have before stated, I had frequent conversations with the holders both before I determined to purchase and at the time of purchasing such coupons, stating generally the condition of the company; its inability to meet its interest; its cash. I endeavored to obtain advances for account of the company from several parties. I would name Mr. William H. Hayes who was at that time interested in the securities, and through Mr. William W. Clark and George T. Bonner.

Messrs. Clark and Bonner were brokers who knew many of the holders of the securities, but was unsuccessful in obtaining assistance through them for account of the company. There was no concealment with reference to the affairs of the company; its financial condition was well known to all those who cared to inquire; the non-payment of the coupons for the year 1874, and January, 1875, was well known and was distinctly referred to and mentioned in the report of 1874, a copy of which is produced to be mailed and annexed as part of my deposition.

(It is marked Exhibit C.)

I have reason to believe that the parties who purchased the coupons in London and Mobile, notified inquirers that they were purchasing the coupons for Duncan, Sherman & Co

I instructed my clerks to give this notice to the parties, and I gave the notice to the parties who spoke with me personally.

4. In answer to the fourth interrogatory, he says:

A. An accurate account was kept of the payments made on account of such purchase, a copy of which I have produced and annexed, marked B. A list of the coupons so acquired was also made and given to Mr. Alexander Duncan on transferring the coupons to him. The correctness of such list has been certified to by the Special Master, before whom the coupons have been proved by Mr. Alexander Duncan.

5. In answer to the fifth interrogatory, he says:

A. The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. did not receive any coupons maturing at the dates mentioned, for which they did not give an equivalent in cash. Those that were received from abroad and from Mobile were paid for as stated in my answer to the previous interrogatories, and the details of such payments are mentioned in the accounts submitted and the considerations for them. In further answer to the inquiry contained in the fifth interrogatory, I state that my firm did receive such coupons from abroad upon the considerations already stated, and which also appear in part and are referred to in certain telegraphic dispatches sent at the times they respectively bear date, and of which the following are copies: No. 1 was sent by Duncan, Sherman & Co., April 28, 1874, to A. L. Willoughby who was then the Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; No. 2 was sent on the same date by Duncan, Sherman & Co., to Col. Walker, the Vice President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; No. 3 was sent April 30, 1874, to William H. Pratt, then the President of the Bank of Mobile, by Duncan, Sherman & Co.; No. 4 was sent by Duncan, Sherman & Co., October 21, 1874, to A. Murdock, then a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and Land Commissioner of that company at London where he then was; No. 5 was sent on the same date to the Union Bank of London by Duncan, Sherman & Co. The following are copies of these dispatches:

No. 1. Duncan to Willoughby, Treasurer, April 28, 1874. Will telegraph you on thirtieth if interest can be arranged. Sterling coupons payable on face in London only, therefore will be purchased by us here or at Mobile for our account at 31.50 gold and collected. Otherwise parties can present in London as agreed on coupon. Certificate and interest forty dollar coupons are payable Mobile when we telegraph funds are provided; would ask Bank of Mobile to buy them for our account and draw on us for amount, sending coupons forward uncancelled. Does this meet approval.

No. 2. Duncan to Col. Walker. Ask Pratt if his bank will, if instructed, arrange to purchase for our account coupons presented in Mobile value on us, forwarding coupons uncancelled.

No. 3. Duncan, Sherman & Co. to Pratt, April 30, 1874. Please purchase for account of whom it may concern coupons maturing May 1st, paying sterling coupons not exceeding $32.50 gold, or $36.50 currency. Do better if you can, sending coupons uncancelled to us. Your drafts against same shall meet due honor.

No. 4. Duncan to Murdock, cable, October 21, 1874. Ask Union Bank to refer November coupons to Credit Foncier who will purchase them at face value. See Credit Foncier, explain coupons, report if understood.

No. 5. Duncan to Union Bank, cable, same date. Refer holders November coupons Mobile and Ohio to Credit Foncier who have arranged to purchase same. The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. had previously, in November, 1873, advanced to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to enable them to meet the interest maturing November 1, 1873, and January 1, 1874, the company agreeing to remit the same out of earnings and from any other sources at their disposition. Duncan, Sherman & Co. made during the whole of the period extending from 1873 to May, 1875, frequent and large advances to the company for the general purposes of their business. The remittances made by the company during 1874 to Duncan, Sherman & Co. and deposited by the company with the Bank of Mobile to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Co., were in payment to Duncan, Sherman & Co. of the moneys advanced by them to meet the coupons of November, 1873, and January, 1874, in accordance with the agreement made by the company with Duncan, Sherman & Co. at the time of taking up said coupons, and somewhat for the purpose of transmitting funds to Duncan, Sherman & Co. for the general purposes of the company; and any such remittances on deposits as were not applied to redeeming the coupons of 1873, we appropriated under the explicit direction of the company at Mobile. Notwithstanding such remittances and deposits, Duncan, Sherman & Co. were in advance to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in large amounts, ranging from twenty thousand dollars to one hundred and fifty thousand during the whole period of 1874, and even in May, 1875, when the company's property passed into the hands of the Receiver, the company owed and still owes Duncan, Sherman & Co. the sum of twenty thousand dollars without any reference to any claim under the coupons maturing in and since May, 1874, which have never been paid or pretended to be paid by the company.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories, he says:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory.

A. The memoranda and accounts submitted in answer to the second interrogatory were made at the times at which they respectively bear date, and are not in my handwriting, though made by my instructions. I do not testify entirely from these memoranda. Independently of them I know the fact that Duncan, Sherman & Co. purchased the coupons as stated; that the Bank of Mobile, the Union Bank and the Credit Foncier, purchased the coupons at the request of for account of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and were reimbursed by Duncan, Sherman & Co. for the purchases in the manner before stated.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory.

A. The notice given by me to holders of the coupons was oral. Holders who applied before the date of maturity expressed great anxiety with reference to whether they could get the money for the coupons, many of them urging upon me to purchase the same, and many holders on presentation were told by me the fact that the company was not paying the coupons, but that Duncan, Sherman & Co. were purchasing them. They urged on me the safety of doing it, inasmuch as the company were a security beyond any peradventure; that the business of the country would undoubtedly enable the company to meet them before long, and whereas the inability on the part of many small holders to obtain the value of their coupons would cause much distress, being secure we could advance the amount to them without risk.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. The rates of exchange between Mobile and New York varies at different seasons from a quarter discount to a half premium, but it is usual in buying in New York small amounts payable in Mobile to deduct about half per cent. to cover expenses of collection, without reference to the rates of exchange ruling. In the accounts submitted there appear deductions at several places of such per centage, but such deductions were not received by Duncan, Sherman & Co. from the company, nor has it been paid by the company. Duncan, Sherman & Co. have not charged the railroad company any commission on the coupons, concerning which the inquiry is now made, but on the contrary, have paid the Credit Foncier and the Union Bank the commissions they charged Duncan, Sherman & Co. for purchasing the said coupons for their account.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory he says:

A. Any difference between the face of the coupons and the amount given to the person from whom they were purchased, was not charged for a commission for payment at a place other than where they were due, but was charged for the expenses of transmission and collection, which the purchaser would have to incur in remitting and collecting the same.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory he says:

A. The coupons referred to in the fifth interrogatory have heretofore been claimed to belong to Alexander Duncan, but it is now claimed that William H. Hayes, W. S. Pierson and T. Haskins Du Puy have acquired an interest therein under a printed agreement of readjustment of the said securities, a copy of which I produce, to be annexed and made part of my deposition.

(It is marked Exhibit D.)

W. BUTLER DUNCAN.

By me reduced to writing in the presence of the witness, and from his statements, and after having been read to him, by him subscribed and sworn to this 2d day of January, 1877, before me.

Deposition of Angus Mackintosh.

New York, January 9, 1877, 9 a. m.

Angus Mackintosh, a witness of lawful age, produced before me on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, and by me propounded to him, deposeth and saith:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory, he saith:

A. I was principal correspondent and confidential clerk in the house of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory, he saith:

A. Acting under instructions of Duncan, Sherman & Co. in 1874, I wrote various letters having relation to their getting together and acquiring the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company maturing on the dates mentioned in the interrogatory, and gave at various times directions and instructions to the clerks having in charge the taking up of the coupons and the keeping of the accounts relative thereto.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory, he saith:

A. An equivalent in cash was in every case paid by checque to the parties presenting and surrendering the coupons approximating to their face value, less in some cases, where the coupons were due and payable in Mobile, a small charge to cover actual cost of collection and transmission of proceeds to New York. It was well understood in the office that the coupons were purchased by Duncan, Sherman & Co. and to be held uncancelled, and that they were not paid so as virtually to cancel and extinguish them. I myself by direction of my principals the said Duncan, Sherman & Co. so instructed their coupon clerk, and directed the book-keeper in whose ledger the accounts were kept, to open the same as "Mobile and Ohio Railroad Coupon Purchase Account," of the several dates or words to that effect. I have at various times during the year mentioned, 1874, had conversation with parties presenting these coupons wherein I informed them that Duncan, Sherman & Co. were purchasing the coupons and were not paying them. I am unable at this distance of time to recall the dates on which such conversations were held, or the persons with whom I conversed, but believe they were in most cases strangers to me. The instructions to the Union Bank of London, the Credit Foncier and the Bank of Mobile, were to the same effect, namely: that they were to purchase the said coupons for account of and transmit them uncancelled to Duncan, Sherman & Co., which was done. The Union Bank of London and the Credit Foncier were reimbursed for their outlay on account of these coupons by remittances of bills of exchange and other valuables made to them by Duncan, Sherman & Co. The Bank of Mobile drew on Duncan, Sherman & Co. at sight for the equivalent of the coupons purchased by them at the time of transmitting the uncancelled coupons, and the drafts accompanied by the uncancelled coupons were duly paid by the drawers on presentation.

4. In answer to the fourth interrogatory, he saith:

A. Full accounts of such purchases of coupons were kept in the regular office ledgers of Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the form indicated in the preceding reply. I am unable to annex any copies of the accounts, not having access to the books of the firm.

5. In answer to the fifth interrogatory, he saith:

A. No coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company of the maturities mentioned were received by Duncan, Sherman & Co. or myself, from any source whatever, without the payment of a full equivalent therefor as stated in my third answer. Various parcels were received from abroad, from the Union Bank of London and the Credit Foncier, to whom remittances were made as stated in the third answer. Others may have reached the house from other foreign correspondents, but all such were undoubtedly remitted for in like manner.

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. My answer to all the interrogatories are of necessity somewhat general, being made entirely from memory. I having had no late opportunity to refer to the books of Duncan, Sherman & Co. But my recollection is quite clear that the coupons mentioned were purchased by Duncan, Sherman & Co. directly and through the agency of the Union Bank of London, the Credit Foncier and the Bank of Mobile, all of whom were reimbursed by Duncan, Sherman & Co. as aforesaid.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory, he saith;

A. I have no recollection of any special printed or written notice being given as to the purchase of the coupons. Several persons were notified by me orally that the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. were purchasing the coupons. I do not recall any special reply or remark made by the persons I so informed.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I do not recall the rate of exchange between New York and Mobile at the time the coupons were purchased. This usually varies from half discount to half to three-quarters premium, according to the season of the year. But I know that the precise equivalent paid was charged in the several "Coupon Purchase Accounts," no more, no less.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. The difference between the face of certain of the coupons and the amount paid for them to the seller, was as before stated a bare margin to cover the cost of collection in Mobile and the transmission of funds to New York when they should be collected finally.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory:

A. I have no information on which to base a reply.

A. MACKINTOSH.

By me reduced to writing from the statements of the witness, and having been read to him, by him subscribed and sworn to, this 9th January, 1877, before me.

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner
Southern District of New York.

Deposition of John J. Walker.

New York, January 12th, 1877, 1 p. m.

John J. Walker, a witness of lawful age, produced before me on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, and by me propounded to him, deposes and says:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. I was Vice President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company during 1874, and was not in any other business.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. My only connection with the coupons referred to was as Director and Vice President of the Company, and my agency in relation to them was confined to efforts in my official capacity to effect some arrangement through Mr. Duncan in New York by which the credit of the company could be protected against the default of payment of interest coupons from resources outside of the resources of the company, which were inadequate to that end.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory he saith:

A. I received no coupons either individually or officially, and therefore gave no equivalent for any.

4. In answer to the fourth interrogatory he saith:

A. I kept no account of any coupons, as I received none.

5. In answer to the fifth interrogatory he saith:

A. I received none of such coupons either officially or individually; I did not do as stated in this interrogatory.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories he says:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. My testimony is from recollection merely, as I have no access to papers and records here, and my belief is that I made no memoranda or entries relating to payment of said coupons, having, as before stated, received none.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. My only recollection of any notice of the kind mentioned is a present impression that, under instructions from the Board, the Treasurer of the Company was directed by me to put up a notice at his desk, that the coupons would be purchased at the Bank of Mobile, of Mobile, and that he was merely to verify the coupons when presented at his counter, and refer the holders to the Bank of Mobile. I do not, however, remember the precise language of such notice, but only that the intention of the Board was that the Treasurer should notify holders of coupons that they would be purchased at the Bank of Mobile in accordance with an arrangement made by Mr. Duncan with the President of the Bank—the Company being unable to meet the interest in May, 1874, owing to the great shrinkage of business owing to the commercial paralysis following the panic of 1873, effected an arrangement with Duncan, Sherman & Co., who agreed to raise the means to purchase the coupons with their lien rights as an existing mortgage security, with the understanding that, for a reasonable length of time, no step would be taken to enforce payment in order to allow the company time to redeem. Duncan, Sherman & Co. carried this out through the Bank of Mobile, and I believe their correspondents in London, and my information and belief was, that the whole amount used for the purchase of the coupons was furnished by Mr. Alexander Duncan. All of which was done with the full assent of the company, and the belief of myself and the directors was, that the coupons so purchased were of themselves a sufficient security to Mr. Duncan for the amount furnished by him for the protection of the credit of the company.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. As before stated, I gave no equivalent, and cannot answer the question in regard to the rate of exchange in New York and Mobile.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. The arrangement with reference thereto was made by Duncan, Sherman & Co. with the Bank of Mobile, and I had no personal knowledge of the details, nor any present recollection of the terms.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I received no coupons from abroad, nor did the company, that I am aware of. I desire to add, that the foregoing testimony is given from recollection merely, and that I do not feel confident in the accuracy of my memory, unaided by any reference to official papers and records on file at the office of the company in Mobile. On one point, however, my memory is very distinct, namely, that whatever irregular technicalities if any (which I do not believe) may have attached to the mode of purchasing the coupons, it was the clear desire and intention of the Board of Directors that the existing lien rights of the coupons as a mortgage security, should enure to the party who furnished the money to save the credit of the company.

JOHN J. WALKER.

By me reduced to writing from the statements of the witness, and having been by me read to him, by him subscribed and sworn to, the 12th day of January, 1877, before me,

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner,
Southern District of New York.

Exhibit A to Testimony of W. B. Duncan.

Know all men by these presents, that whereas the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company are justly entitled to divers large sums of money to it due from the Government of the United States, on various demands which are under adjustment and settlement before the proper departments of said Government, the amounts due on said demands not yet being fully ascertained, nor the same audited;

And whereas, William Butler Duncan, of the city of New York, has made advances of monies on account of, and for the use and benefit of, said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and at its special instance and request, and has furthermore agreed to make further large advances of monies for the use and benefit of said company, and at its special instance and request:

476 Now therefore, for and in consideration of the premises, and for the purpose of repayment to said Duncan of the sums so advanced, and of the reimbursement of all sums which he, the said Duncan, may hereafter pay in advance on account of said company, and of all disbursements and expenses made, and to be made, by him on account of said company, and for its use and benefit, and at its request; the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has assigned, transferred and set over to the said William B. Duncan, all the said debts, dues, claims and demands which it has, and all sums of money values and things which it may lawfully claim of and from said Government of the United States, and all which on adjustment may be found due from said Government, and payable to said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, on any, all, and every account whatsoever; and the said company does hereby assign and transfer the same by these presents. And the said company does hereby give and grant to said William B. Duncan full power and authority to receive, demand, settle, release, compromise, receipt for, discharge, close and adjust all accounts in respect to said demands of every description whatever above stated or intended to be, and to return all proceeds thereof to his own use.

In witness whereof, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has caused the corporate seal of said company to be hereto affixed, and this instrument to be countersigned by its Vice President, acting as President, and by its Secretary, at Mobile, on this 28th day of April, 1874.

(Signed)
{L. S.} J. J. WALKER,
Vice President and acting President.

Secretary.

Exhibit C to testimony of W. B. Duncan is the Report of the Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1874, printed in Part 2 of this Record.

Exhibit D to the Testimony of W. B. Duncan.

Agreement for the Readjustment, &c., of the Securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co., dated Oct. 1, 1876. Wm. H. Hays, Chairman, Wm. S. Pierson, T. Haskins DuPuy, Committee of Reorganization: Office, No. 11 Pine Street, New York.

Memorandum of Agreement and Transfer, made the first day of October, 1876, by and between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a corporation by that name existing under the laws of Alabama, and operating also under the laws of the States of Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky respectively, party of the first part, and the various other parties whose names are subscribed hereto, being creditors of said company, some holding security as hereinafter specified and others unsecured, each subscriber for himself and neither for the other, parties of the second part, and William H. Hays, of the city of New York, William S. Pierson, of Windsor, in the State of Connecticut, and T. Haskins Du Puy, of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, parties of the third part:—

And whereas, Owing to a succession of misfortunes, the said corporation has fallen into arrear in the payment of its bonded and other indebtedness, to such an extent that proceedings for the foreclosure of mortgages executed by it are now pending, which proceedings have gone to an advanced stage, and are still being pushed, and, in addition, the day of payment named in some of its mortgages is near at hand:—

And whereas, Differences and disputes have arisen between the different classes of holders of the securities and evidences of debt issued by said company, which differences and disputes, if persisted in, are likely to lead to protracted litigation, and to the sacrifice or deterioration of the property of the said company, and to great delay in the resumption of regular and legitimate operations on its road; and it is therefore deemed expedient that a scheme should be devised, to be assented to by the various classes of claimants upon the said company, for the harmonizing and compromise of their respective claims, without ending the corporate existence or corporate powers of said company, and without putting an end to or limit upon its corporate privileges:—

And whereas, The secured indebtedness of the said company now exists in the form of bonds and coupons secured by mortgage liens, as specified in the schedule hereto annexed, and as appears by the books of the company, exclusive of interest on said coupons:—

And whereas, In addition to said mortgage indebtedness, judgments have been recovered against said company, which are claimed to constitute liens upon some of its property, subject to its mortgage indebtedness, but a large part of which judgment indebtedness is presumed by lapse of time and otherwise to have been in fact satisfied; and in addition thereto, the said company owes a considerable amount of floating or unsecured indebtedness; and the undersigned, holders of claims of the various classes against said company, as well those specified in the said schedule hereto annexed, as judgment creditors and unsecured creditors, have agreed to compromise and compound with said company upon the said company's issuing new securities for all the said indebtedness in the manner hereinafter agreed upon, to the end that if practicable said foreclosure suits may be discontinued and the property affected thereby restored to the custody and control of the said company under the conditions of this agreement, and the stipulations accompanying the same:—

But whereas, It is understood by said creditors that if such scheme shall be found to be impracticable because not assented to by a sufficient number of creditors, or for other reasons, that then the said foreclosure proceedings shall be prosecuted to either a sale or a strict foreclosure, and a purchase or acquisition of the property of the said company consummated for the benefit of the subscribers hereto, who are such creditors as aforesaid, and that a new corporation or corporations shall be created, and new securities issued for the benefit of such creditors.

Now this memorandum witnesseth, that the said parties hereto have covenanted, agreed and transferred, and do hereby covenant, agree and transfer to and with each other in manner and form following, that is to say:—

First.—The said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins Du Puy, are hereby constituted assignees in trust, agents, managers and attorneys of the said parties hereto, who are creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or holders of any of the securities specified in said schedule hereto annexed, for the purpose of receiving the several demands of said creditors who become parties hereto, and of realizing, converting, managing and controlling the same, for the purposes, in the manner, and with the powers hereinafter specified.

Second.—Each of the parties hereto, being a creditor of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company at the time of the execution of this instrument, assigns, transfers, delivers, and makes over to the said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins Du Puy, all the evidences of debt issued by said company, and claims against said company, now held by such subscriber hereto, whether in the shape of bond, coupon, note, judgment, open account, unliquidated demand, unpaid voucher or otherwise, to be held by the said Hays, Pierson and Du Puy, as such assignees, agents, managers and attorneys, in the manner and for the purposes and upon the trusts so hereinafter declared concerning the same. Upon this instrument being subscribed by all the creditors of said corporation, holders of evidence of debt issued by said corporation, or of other claims against the same, the said assignees, agents and attorneys shall have and hold the claims and evidences of debt of such creditors with full power and authority to cancel, surrender, release and discharge all such evidences of debt, claims, and demands, so transferred to them, upon receiving from said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company new evidences of debt and securities to the extent and in the manner hereinafter provided.

Third.—Upon the request of the said Hays, Pierson and Du Puy, or their successors, the said corporation hereby agrees to execute and deliver, or cause to be executed and delivered, to the said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson and T. Haskins Du Puy, or their successors or appointees, new bonds and obligations or acknowledgments of indebtedness secured respectively by a new mortgage and trust deed to be made by said corporation as hereinafter provided, and containing such stipulations and clauses for the security of the creditors of said company as the said assignees and attorneys shall advise and require, not in conflict with the provisions of this agreement.

Fourth.—The said new mortgage shall be called the first mortgage, and shall constitute a first and primary lien on all of the main line of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad, lying at and between the city of Mobile and the city of Columbus, in the State of Kentucky (exclusive, however, of the several branches now possessed or to be acquired or constructed, those now possessed being known as Aberdeen branch, Columbus branch, Starkville branch, and the Gainesville branch), covering all and singular the chartered rights, railways, sidings, turnouts and all connected therewith, bridges, fences, warehouses, depot and office buildings, machine shops, tools, iron, timber, and all materials necessary in the repair of the road, rolling stock or machinery, and all wood and coal and other materials necessary in running said road, and all fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned, and which may be hereafter owned by said company, and which shall be necessary to the business of said company, or for the purpose of carrying freight and passengers upon said main line; but not including any lands granted to said company by any State, or by the United States, nor lands which may be situated apart from the line of the road, and not actually required for the use or running of the road. The said trust deed shall be in the form, and shall have the effect and operation of a conveyance in trust to trustees, of the lands granted to said company by any State or the United States, as well as all lands belonging to the company and not necessary for the operation of the railroad of said company, and also so much of the net income of said company as shall remain after payment of current expenses, cost of maintenance, improvement and repairs, and interest on said new first mortgage, and on the debentures, as hereafter more particularly specified.

Fifth.—The first mortgage mentioned in the last preceding paragraph shall be made for the security of the holders of the present outstanding issue of first mortgage bonds of said corporation, and of the coupons issued with said first mortgage bonds, whether such coupons are now detached from such bonds or are now attached thereto, and for the benefit and security of the holders of the issues known as the sterling arrearage interest bonds, the funded arrearage interest bonds, and the coupons detached from or attached to such bonds, matured and unpaid, and also for the benefit and security of the holders of the issue known as the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, and coupons detached therefrom or attached thereto, matured and unpaid, all upon an equal footing as to grade of new security, (provided such holders become parties to this agreement, and transfer the securities held by them respectively pursuant hereto,) and for the purpose of providing funds for necessary expenses and outlay under this agreement. The total amount of principal money secured by bonds issued under the new first mortgage is to be seven millions of dollars, payable in the City of New York, in gold coin of the United States, on the first day of December, in the year 1927, bearing interest payable in lawful money of the United States, in the following manner: Two per cent. on the first day of December, 1877; two per cent. on the first day of June, 1878; three per cent. on each first day of December and June thereafter; and the bonds to be issued under said first mortgage may be in sums of either $1,000, $500, $300 or $100 each, and shall have negotiable interest warrants or coupons attached thereto payable in New York. But the holders of the present first mortgage securities are to be interested in the new securities issued under the new first mortgage, as next hereafter stated; that is to say:—

Sixth.—Each subscriber hereto, who shall have transferred to the said assignees, agents and attorneys a first mortgage bond of said company, shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to four hundred and forty dollars for each one thousand dollars, or each £225, of the principal sum payable upon such bond so transferred, in a bond or bonds, to be issued under the said new first mortgage hereinabove provided for, to be taken at par; and every subscriber hereto, who shall have so transferred first mortgage coupons of said company heretofore issued (provided the due date originally mentioned therein shall not have been later than the first day of November, 1877,) shall receive an amount equal to the value of such coupons, as below estimated, in a bond or bonds, to be issued under said new first mortgage hereinabove provided for, each such coupon to be estimated for this purpose as being worth, and as securing the payment of, thirty-six dollars, except coupons maturing November 1, 1877, which shall each be estimated as worth only six dollars; and each holder of sterling interest bonds who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and shall have transferred his bonds in pursuance hereof, shall be entitled in lieu of each bond so transferred, to a bond or bonds, for the principal sum of four hundred and forty dollars each, to be issued under said new first mortgage for each £200 of the principal amount of the bonds so transferred by him under this agreement; and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with any such sterling interest bond, (provided the original due date named in such coupon shall not be later than the first day of November, 1877,) shall be entitled in lieu thereof to a bond or bonds to be issued under such new first mortgage for the amount of the coupons so transferred, valuing each such coupon at the sum of thirty-six dollars, except coupons maturing November 1, 1877, which shall be valued at only six dollars; and each holder of bonds generally known as arrearage interest bonds, who shall have become a subscriber to this instrument, and shall have transferred his bonds pursuant to the terms hereof, shall be entitled to a bond or bonds to be issued under said new first mortgage for the principal sum of three hundred and ten dollars for each $1,000 of the principal amount of the bonds so transferred, and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with such arrearage interest bonds, (provided the original due date of such coupons shall not have been later than the first day of November, 1877,) shall be entitled to new first mortgage bonds for the amount of the coupons so transferred, valuing each such coupon at thirty-six dollars, except that coupons of which the original due date was the first day of November, 1877, shall be valued at six dollars each; each holder of bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds, who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and who shall have transferred his bonds as aforesaid to said assignees and attorneys, shall receive in lieu of the bonds so transferred a bond or bonds to be issued under said new first mortgage for the par amount of $626 for each bond so transferred, and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with any such Tennessee Substitution Bonds, (provided the original due date of such coupons was not later than July 1st, 1877,) who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and who shall have transferred his coupons to said assignees and attorneys, shall be entitled in lieu thereof to receive a new first mortgage bond or bonds for the amount of his coupons so transferred, estimating each such coupon at thirty-six dollars, except the coupons maturing July 1, 1877, which shall be valued at only thirty dollars each.

Seventh.—The trust deed hereinabove provided for shall be in part for the security of the same class of present creditors who, as above agreed, are entitled to be secured by the said new first mortgage, to the extent of the difference, as below stated, between the amount of new bonds to be issued to them or for their benefit, as above provided, and the principal amounts of the bonds now outstanding and transferred by them respectively, and also for the benefit of the remaining creditors of said company who shall become parties to this agreement and become entitled to the benefit thereof; and to that end it is now provided—

Eighth.—Each bond now held by any such present first mortgage creditor as last aforesaid for the principal sum of one thousand dollars gold or lawful money, or for the principal sum of £225, £205, or £200, shall, for the purpose of ascertaining such difference, be estimated as worth one thousand dollars; and each bond payable in dollars, gold or lawful money, for a less sum than $1,000, shall be estimated at its face, without interest, and each bond payable in sterling money for less than £200 shall be estimated at the rate of five dollars for each pound sterling of principal money payable by the terms of such bond. And after charging to each subscriber hereto who shall have transferred bonds as above agreed, the principal amount of the bonds to be issued to him as above provided in the sixth paragraph, not taking into account any bonds issued in lieu of coupons transferred under said sixth paragraph, he shall be entitled to a preferred income and sinking fund debenture or debentures, of the first series to be issued under said trust deed, as hereinafter provided, for the difference between the principal sum of the new first mortgage bonds so charged to him and the principal sum of the bonds so transferred valued as above provided.

Ninth.—The preferred income and sinking fund debentures issued under said trust deed may be in sums of $1,000, $500, $300, or $100 each, and shall not have any interest coupons attached thereto, and shall not be payable absolutely, but only out of the sinking fund hereinafter provided; and shall be registered and shall be transferable only on the books of the company, at the office of the company, in the City of New York, and shall not otherwise be transferable, and shall be issued in successive series, the first series to be known as first preferred income and sinking fund debentures, the second series to be known as second preferred income and sinking fund debentures, the third series to be known as third preferred income and sinking fund debentures, and the fourth series to be known as fourth preferred income and sinking fund debentures, and such debentures shall be so expressed as that interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum shall be payable thereon yearly, that is, on the first day of February in each year after the year 1878, upon the conditions herein specified, that is: on or before the first day of December, in the year 1878 and each year thereafter, said company shall ascertain as closely as practicable the net earnings of such company remaining after paying the expenses of the corporation, cost of maintenance and proper repair, and the interest on the new first mortgage bonds, up to the first day of September next preceding, that being the end of the fiscal year; and in case there shall remain on such first day of December a residue of earnings for the year ending on the first day of the September next previous, and if it shall then be ascertained that up to the first day of September next preceding that first day of December, the earnings of said company, after making provision for such expenses, interest, and the proper maintenance of the property in good order, leave any sum applicable to the payment of interest on such debentures, then such net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest on said first preferred income and sinking fund debentures, not exceeding seven per cent. in lawful money of the United States, and such application and payment shall be made on or before the first day of February in the next succeeding year; and after payment of interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the first series, what remains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest on said debentures of the second series at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum; and after payment of interest at that rate on said debentures of second series, what remains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the third series; and what then remains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the fourth series; but in case the earnings of any one of such years shall not be adequate to the payment of seven per cent. interest for that year on all or either series of said debentures, then the deficiency shall not have any claim upon the net earnings of any succeeding year. And the net earnings shall only be applicable to the payment of interest on either series of debentures in case such earnings shall amount to at least one per cent. or a multiple of one per cent. on the total amount of the debentures belonging to such series, so that fractions of net earnings exceeding such one per cent. or a multiple of one per cent., need not be included in the payment of interest for that year, but shall be carried to the credit of the earnings for the succeeding year.

Tenth.—The aforesaid second preferred income and sinking fund debentures shall be issued for the benefit and security of that class of the present creditors of said corporation, who are known as second mortgage bondholders, all to be upon the same footing with each other as to security and priority. Each second mortgage bond of said company, and each coupon thereof, now outstanding shall be considered as of the par value represented on its face in currency, provided the due date originally specified therein shall not have been later than the first day of March, 1878, except coupons maturing March 1, 1878, which when for $80 on their face shall each be estimated as worth only twenty dollars, or in that proportion for any coupon of any smaller amount than $80. Each holder of a present outstanding second mortgage bond or coupon of said company, who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and shall have transferred his bond or coupon pursuant to the terms hereof, shall be entitled to receive dollar for dollar for the principal of his bond and coupon so transferred as aforesaid, in a second preferred income and sinking fund debenture.

Eleventh.—The said debentures of the third series shall be for the benefit and security of the holders of the present outstanding bonds of said corporation, known as convertible bonds, and shall be for an aggregate amount sufficient to represent the aggregate amount of now outstanding convertible bonds, and the interest thereon up to the first day of June, 1877. Each holder of a convertible bond who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and shall have transferred his bond as and in the manner aforesaid, shall be entitled in lieu thereof to a debenture of the third series, for the par amount of the bond so transferred, estimating the same at its face value in currency, and the accrued interest on such convertible bond, to be computed up to the first day of June, 1877, shall be replaced by a debenture of the third series for the actual amount of such interest up to that date.

Twelfth.—The said debentures of the fourth series shall be for such amount as said assignees and attorneys shall determine to be necessary for the purpose of satisfying such judgment and unsecured indebtedness of the said company as they shall deem to be morally obligatory, in their discretion, so far as the same shall be held by subscribers to this instrument who shall have transferred their claims to the said assignees and attorneys, subject to adjustment by said assignees and attorneys, but the same shall not exceed the sum of the face value of such judgments or indebtedness, and no unsecured or judgment creditor shall be admitted as a subscriber to this instrument, nor entitled to the benefit thereof, for any amount exceeding that which may be adjusted and allowed to him by said assignees and attorneys; and each such judgment and unsecured creditor who shall so become a party hereto, shall be entitled to a debenture of the fourth series for such sum as said assignees and attorneys may adjudge to be justly due to him.

Thirteenth.—In case all the holders of the unsecured or judgment indebtedness of said corporation shall not have become parties hereto, or shall not have assented to the adjustment of their claims by the said assignees and attorneys, and the reduction thereof to the amount which said assignees and attorneys shall deem to be justly and equitably due thereon, then said assignees and attorneys, instead of cancelling and surrendering all of said mortgage bonds now outstanding, transferred to them under this agreement, shall hold said mortgage bonds or so much thereof as may in their discretion be necessary for the security of the new securities against said unsecured and judgment indebtedness, except that the new mortgage and trust deed issued by said corporation shall have priority over such old mortgage bonds; but such original mortgage bonds shall be held by the trustees in the new first mortgage, in trust for the benefit of the holders of the new securities of the said corporation, according to their order and priority, prior to and to the exclusion of, the unsecured and judgment creditors who shall not have assented to this agreement. And each of said present mortgage bonds transferred under this agreement and held by said trustees, as before stated, shall be stamped by the assignees and attorneys with the following words: "In pursuance of the terms of agreement made between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and its creditors, bearing date October 1, 1876, this bond is not negotiable, being held subject to the provisions and for the purposes mentioned in said agreement."

Fourteenth.—The said assignees and attorneys shall not be authorized to cancel or surrender any of the existing obligations or evidences of debt of the said corporation, transferred to them under this agreement, unless all the present holders of the mortgage securities of said company shall have become parties to this instrument, and transferred the securities held by them on or before the first day of March, 1877, or at or before such time as the said assignees and attorneys shall have fixed, as in their discretion they may, by successive extensions of not more than sixty days each; nor until said corporation, or its stockholders, through legal and proper action of its stockholders, if such action be necessary, or otherwise according to law, shall have entered into an adequate and sufficient arrangement or agreement with said assignees and attorneys, and with the holders of said debentures, enabling the holders of such debentures or the trustees under said trust deed to vote at elections for directors of the said company, and irrevocably represent such stock or a majority thereof, at all stockholders' meetings until such debentures shall be extinguished; and upon that privilege of representation being acquired by and vested in or secured to the trustees in said trust deed, or to the holders of the said debentures, by the proper and legal action of such corporation or its stockholders, and upon all the new mortgages and securities above called for being issued, then such cancellation and surrender may be fully completed and consummated (except in the contingency provided in paragraph 13 of this agreement,) and the property and management of the corporation may be restored to it, and said foreclosure suits may be discontinued.

Fifteenth.—Any surplus of new securities created under this agreement, not required for the satisfaction of the claims of existing creditors, may be applied and appropriated by said assignees and attorneys to the payment of the expenses of making this agreement and carrying the same into effect, as well as the expenses of said foreclosure suits; and the said assignees and attorneys, as tranferees and assignees of the subscribers to this instrument, shall have the same rights and relations to the foreclosure suits now pending, and to the complainants in said foreclosure suits, and to the receivers in said suits, and to the funds in their hands, which the subscribers to this agreement now have or would have if they continued to be holders of the bonds and claims subscribed hereto, and shall be entitled to the same share of the proceeds of the present management of the property of said company, and to the same share of the proceeds of the sale of such property which their assignors would have upon a discontinuance of said foreclosure suits, or upon an accounting, or upon a sale or distribution of the proceeds; their several assignors to be considered, in relation to such proceeds, as being upon the same grade of priority and security, as between and among each other, upon which the provisions of this agreement would place them in relation to the new securities to be issued by said company.

Sixteenth.—In case a sufficient number of subscribers shall not be obtained to this agreement on or before the time prescribed herein, to put it within the power of said assignees and attorneys to carry into effect the foregoing clauses and stipulations of this agreement, then this agreement shall be binding upon the subscribers thereto, provided it shall have been subscribed by holders of at least a majority in amount of the existing first mortgage indebtedness and Tennessee Substitution Bonds of said company, as recited in the schedules hereto annexed; and thereupon said assignees and attorneys shall have power and authority to appropriate the bonds, coupons, moneys (if any), and evidences of debt which shall have come into their possession, under the provisions of this agreement, towards the purchase of the property of said railroad corporation, under such decree or decrees of foreclosure as shall be obtained in said pending suits, and shall have power and authority, and it shall be their duty, to aid the complainants in said suits in speeding said suits to their conclusion, by decrees of foreclosure and sale, or of strict foreclosure, in the interest and for the benefit of the subscribers to this agreement, and they shall have power to turn the securities, received by them under this agreement, into court in payment for said property, upon the purchase thereof by them upon the foreclosure; and in the event of its becoming necessary for the protection of the interest of the parties subscribing hereto, that any cash or other payment than the securities in their possession should be made into court, said assignees and attorneys shall have the power to make such payment for the account of and at the risk of the parties subscribing hereto, or by obtaining the amount thereof upon the security of the bonds and coupons in their hands; and shall likewise have power to apply for and receive dividends upon the bonds and coupons received by them under this agreement from the funds in court in the hands of the receivers, or of any master or marshal or clerk or otherwise to the same extent as the original holders of the bonds and coupons retained and held by them would have been; and while no authority is given to them to make any subscribers hereto personally responsible for the payment of any debt incurred by them, they are authorized with the assent of the trustees of the present first mortgages, or a majority of them, to pledge the bonds and coupons in their possession for the purpose so far as necessary of obtaining means to expedite and bring to a conclusion this compromise or said foreclosure suits.

Seventeenth.—The parties subscribing hereto and transferring any evidence of debt or claim according to the terms of this instrument, shall be entitled to certificates, specifying their contributions respectively and their interests respectively to and in this agreement and the benefits thereof; and each certificate shall be transferable and deliverable to bearer without a transfer being required to be made in any book or in writing, and shall represent on its face the securities deposited therefor.

Eighteenth.—Upon the purchase of the property of said company by said assignees and attorneys at any sale or sales under decree of sale or strict foreclosure, it shall be their duty to avail themselves of any existing law in either of the States of Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi or Kentucky, or to procure legislation, so far as may be necessary, for the purpose of creating a new corporation or new corporations to which it shall be their duty to transfer the property so purchased by them as early as practicable upon receiving from such new corporation the new bonds, debentures, mortgage and trust deed hereinabove specified for the same amount which would be required to carry the above proposed compromise into effect, such mortgage and trust deed to be made to one or more trustees in each case to be selected by said assignees and attorneys, and to be properly framed for the security of the several classes of creditors to be benefited thereby; and so far as the evidences of debt to be issued under such new mortgage or trust deed, whether by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation, shall not be required to be issued or delivered in exchange for securities which shall have come into and remained in the hands of such assignees and attorneys under this agreement, such surplus securities shall be sold, or so much thereof as in their judgment may be necessary for the purposes hereinafter named; and the proceeds thereof, and also any sums received by them in cash from the receivers, or from any officer of the court, shall be applied, in the first place, in repaying any sums advanced, or procured to be advanced, by said assignees and attorneys for the purpose of meeting the expenses of said foreclosure suits and of carrying this agreement into effect, and the expense of making such purchase and reorganization; and then the surplus, if any, remaining from such disposition of such new securities, as well as any new securities which may remain unsold or undisposed of, and any sums realized by said assignees and attorneys from the receivers or managers of said property in said foreclosure suits, or from the management or running of the road, shall be accounted for by said assignees and attorneys to said new corporation, which said new corporation is to consist of and be created by the subscribers to this agreement, so far as they are entitled to the benefit of the same; and said new corporation, or said existing corporation, in case the compromise above specified shall be carried into effect, shall be considered as subrogated to all the rights of the subscribers to this agreement for the purpose of calling the said assignees and attorneys to account. The said assignees and attorneys shall be allowed out of the fund, for compensation for their services and responsibility, such amounts as shall be reasonably just according to the character of such services and responsibility; but there is no personal responsibility on the part of any subscriber hereto for any part of such compensation; and said assignees and attorneys, and their necessary clerks, book-keepers, and their employees of any grade or description, shall be entitled to a lien upon the new securities and upon the cash received by said assignees and attorneys, and the cash proceeds of such of the same as they are authorized to dispose of, for their compensation, liabilities and disbursements, whether absolute or contingent, until their account shall have been duly and properly settled with such organization; and such existing corporation, or such new corporation or corporations, as the case may require, shall, before payment of interest on any of the new securities, assume and pay any excess of such compensation, liabilities and disbursements above the amount realized by said assignees and attorneys from funds in their hands.

Nineteenth.—The subscribers hereto, who shall respectively have transferred to said assignees and attorneys their several claims, provided such claims shall remain under the control of such assignees and attorneys and available for the purpose of purchasing the property now mortgaged in said foreclosure suits, shall be interested in the property after such purchase and so long as the title thereto remains in said assignees and attorneys, as beneficiaries and cestui que trust, in the same proportions, and shall have the same relative rights and interests, as against each other, as in the new securities to be created under this agreement.

Twentieth.—The trust deed hereinabove provided for, whether executed in pursuance of the compromise above agreed upon or by a new corporation or corporations to be created after a foreclosure, shall contain provision for the creation of a sinking fund for the benefit of the holders of said debentures in the order in which the interest on such debentures is as above specified payable.

Such sinking fund is to consist of the proceeds of all lands owned, and which may hereafter be owned by said company, with the exception of such as are covered by the above mentioned first mortgage, and with the exception of the railway, rails, bridges, fences, warehouse and other fixtures, rights, privileges and real estate belonging to the above mentioned branches, but including all lands not so covered but conveyed to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company by any State or by the United States. The trustees under said trust deed are to have power of sale over said lands from time to time, and such trust deed shall contain clauses properly framed conveying to the trustees under such deed the same powers of sale in respect to the lands conveyed thereby as are possessed by the trustees under the now existing first mortgage; and the first mortgage to be created under this agreement is not to apply to or cover such lands, and the proceeds of sales of said lands are to be free from the lien of said new first mortgage, and are to constitute a fund for the exclusive benefit of the holders of said debentures. But such new trust deed shall also contain a provision by way of covenant, declaration, grant or otherwise, as said assignees and attorneys may direct, in substance and effect that the amount of principal and interest payable upon said debentures shall constitute a lien upon the railway property of said existing corporation, or of said new corporation or corporations, as the case may require, to such an extent that in case of a foreclosure of said new first mortgage and a sale thereunder, the trustees in said trust deed, for the benefit of holders of said debentures according to their order and priority, shall be entitled to the surplus proceeds of such sale next after payment of said new first mortgage, to the amount of the aggregate principal sum due on such debentures, and so that in case any lien upon said railway property, or any part thereof, shall arise, subsequent to the making of said trust deed, by the act or sufferance of such existing or new corporation, and such subsequent lien shall be enforced to the extent of depriving said existing or new corporation of the possession of such railway property, or any part thereof, then the trustees in said trust deed may enter into possession of such part of said railway property, and sell the same, clear of all subsequent liens, for the benefit of holders of said debentures according to their order and priority, or may exact redemption and payment in full of the principal amount of such debentures before surrendering such property to such subsequent lienors; and said trust deed shall also contain proper covenants and securities, for the ascertainment and application of the income of the property of said existing or new corporation and its successors, as the case may require, according to the provisions of this agreement; and there shall also be paid into the sinking fund all the interest accruing on debentures bought for the sinking fund, until all the debentures shall have been bought, satisfied or extinguished; and there shall also be paid into the sinking fund a further amount equal to the dividend which may hereafter be declared upon the capital stock, now existing or hereafter to be created, of such company, which dividend shall not be declared or paid except an amount equal thereto is also paid in at the same time out of the net revenue into the sinking fund.

The trustees making sales of said lands are to deposit the proceeds thereof in the Bank of the State of New York, in the City of New York; or such other depository as the trustees in said trust deed may select in the said City of New York; and each six months, that is on the first days of May and November, the trustees shall advertise, in the cities of Mobile and New York, stating the amount so deposited and at the disposition of the sinking fund, and asking for tenders therefor in the first series of said debentures then outstanding, awarding the amount so deposited to the holders of debentures, tendered at the lowest grades of price, in succession. In default of any bids or tenders therefor at less than par, the trustees shall thereupon draw by lot a sufficient number of debentures of the first series, then outstanding, to absorb such deposits, and shall apply such deposits to the purchase of the debentures so drawn by lot at par. After purchase of the said debentures of the first series, the said sinking fund shall be applied in like manner, and by the same means, to the purchase of each other of the said several series of debentures in succession.

Twenty-first.—In case a prosecution of said foreclosure suits to a sale or to a strict foreclosure is found to be necessary, and it shall also be found necessary to create a new corporation or corporations, then the capital stock of such new corporation or corporations shall be fixed at not exceeding the sum of ten million dollars, to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be in the first instance issued to said assignees and attorneys as a part of the funds in their hands for the purposes of this agreement; and they shall so place a majority of such stock as to secure to the holders of said debentures directly or through the trustees in said trust deed the control of the management of the corporation; and any surplus of such new stock remaining after that disposition of it, and after the trust under said trust deed shall be fully executed, shall be treated in like manner with any surplus bonds, or other securities, to be issued by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation or corporations, under the provisions of this agreement.

Twenty-second.—Bonds, securities, claims and evidences of debt, transferred to said assignees and attorneys under the provisions of this agreement, shall be deposited at the option of the parties transferring the same, either in the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. in the City of New York, or in the Bank of Mobile, at Mobile, in the State of Alabama, or with C. M. Lampson & Co., in the City of London, or at the Frankfurter Bank Verein, in the City of Frankfurt, or with Lombard, Odier & Co. in the City of Geneva, who shall respectively be authorized to give therefor the certificates above provided for, or their receipts exchangeable for said certificates; and the securities so deposited shall remain in the several depositories subject to the order of said assignees and attorneys until the same shall be required for cancellation, surrender, exchange, or delivery into court by said assignees and attorneys, or for other purposes of this agreement, in which case the same shall be transmitted from the depositories thereof to such attorneys and assignees, either at the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., in the City of New York, or at the Bank of Mobile, in the City of Mobile, as said assignees and attorneys may direct, from which depositories the same may be taken by said assignees and attorneys when required for any or either of the purposes aforesaid; and securities and cash funds received by said assignees and attorneys, under the provisions of this agreement shall be deposited by them, either in the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., in the City of New York, or in the Bank of Mobile, in the City of Mobile.

Twenty-third.—In case of a vacancy in the office of assignee or attorney under this agreement, arising from death or resignation of either of the parties, or from his incompetency to act, the vacancy may be filled by the unanimous agreement of the trustees acting under the existing first mortgage of said corporation and the remaining assignees and attorneys under this agreement.

Twenty-fourth.—The said assignees and attorneys shall have an office in the City of New York, and shall keep regular accounts and books of account, showing their transactions, which shall be open to the inspection of certificate holders at reasonable times during business hours; and a majority of said assignees and attorneys shall be competent to transact business at any meeting of which all three of the assignees and attorneys shall have been notified, and any substituted assignee or attorney, duly appointed pursuant to the provisions of this agreement, shall have the same power, authority and control which his predecessor had; and all the provisions of this agreement, and all the powers conferred thereby, shall apply to and be vested in such assignee and attorney so far as his predecessor had such power, or was subject to such provisions; but so far as any discretionary power is conferred by this agreement, no such discretion shall be or can be used without the consent of all the attorneys and assignees acting at the time under this agreement, and each assignee and attorney shall be responsible only for his own acts and not for the acts of others; and neither assignee or attorney shall be responsible for any error of judgment, nor for any error or negligence of any subordinate officer or agent unless such officer or agent shall be employed or continued in employment negligently by such assignees and attorneys.

Twenty-fifth.—The new securities to be issued by said

Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation or corporations to be created under the terms of this agreement, shall be in the first instance delivered by the said company to said assignees and attorneys, or their successors, who shall deposit the same in the said The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., or in the said bank of Mobile, and no subscriber hereto or his successor in interest shall be entitled to any portion of such new securities except upon a return or surrender to said assignees and attorneys at one or other of the said places of deposit of the certificate or certificates held by such subscriber. In case, in the original distribution of the new securities to be issued in pursuance of this agreement, any party shall become entitled to a fractional part, less than $100, of a bond or debenture, a certificate therefor may be issued, which, when united with other fractional certificates, so as to make an entire bond or debenture, for either one of the even amounts in which said bonds or debentures are above authorized to be issued, may be funded in such bonds or debentures of even amounts, as the case may require.

Twenty-sixth.—The assignees and attorneys acting under this instrument are hereby invested with full power and authority to execute the provisions of this plan; to supply any and every defect, in any and every case which is unprovided for in its terms, and to do anything and everything that is proper in their judgment to carry out its provisions.

Twenty-seventh.—The said assignees and attorneys may, in the transaction of business, call themselves "The Committee of Reorganization of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company," and when acting in that name, shall be considered as acting as attorneys, agents, managers and assignees under this agreement. In the adjustment of their accounts they shall be allowed such payments and expenditures as shall have been made by them in good faith, in the belief of the necessity of making such payments and expenditures for the benefit of the subscribers hereto, and for the purpose of carrying this agreement into effect.

Twenty-eighth.—All bonds, securities and evidences of debt, &c., transferred under this agreement, shall be in the first instance deposited for the purposes of this agreement in one or the other of the depositories herein named, or in others selected as authorized by this agreement; and all new securities to be issued by the present corporation, or by a new corporation, shall, in like manner, be deposited with one or the other of said depositories, to be by such depository distributed to the parties entitled thereto, under the order and with the assent and approval of the assignees and attorneys; and in the transmission of either the present or future securities in fulfillment of this agreement, the assignees, attorneys and depositories, using due diligence, may, in their discretion, insure or otherwise protect such securities at the expense of the fund, and in case of loss shall be relieved from liability.

Twenty-ninth.—Any duplicate or other copy of this agreement which shall be subscribed by any holder of the said bonds, securities, liens, claims, judgments or stock, and delivered to and accepted by said assignees and attorneys, shall have like effect as if such signatures were herewith subscribed.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals, or otherwise attested the same as the case may require:

NAME AND ADDRESS.	CLASS OF BONDS, &c.	AMOUNT.

Schedule Annexed.

First Mortgage Bonds.

1. Sterling Bonds, £225 each, (by deed of trust stated as "each of said bonds being the same as $1,000,") issued 1853, due 1883.

2. Arrearage Interest Bonds, B & C, £200 or £100 each, issued 1867, due 1883.

3. Interest Bonds, O P Q, $1,000, $500, $200 each, issued in 1866, due 1876.

4. Arrearage Interest Bonds, F, F1, F1, F2, F3, F4, $1,000, $500, $300, $100 each, issued 1868, due 1883.

5. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, (Tennessee substitution), £205 or $1,000, issued 1871, due 1901.

6. The Interest Coupons on the above First Mortgage issues appear by the books of the company to have been paid up to and including those which matured January 1, 1874, leaving outstanding and unpaid all the conpons on the above issues which matured on or after May 1, 1874.

The foregoing principal and interest to be exchanged for first mortgage bonds and first preferred income and sinking fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

Second Mortgage Bonds.

Several issues, L, R, S, T, Rr, Ss, Uu, $1,000, $500, $300, $100 and irregular amounts, issued in 1867, 1871, 1872, 1873.

The Interest Coupons on the above Second Mortgage Bonds appear, by the books of the company, to have been paid up to and including those which matured March 1st, 1874, leaving outstanding coupons on above Second Mortgage Bonds from and including those which matured March 1st, 1876. The principal and interest of these to be exchanged for 2nd preferred income and sinking fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reoganization.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS.

Secured next after the above mentioned first and second mortgages by a mortgage known as the Consolidated Mortgage; also by a deposit of the stock of the M. & O. R. R., 4 shares for each $100, in trust. Of these bonds, there were issued in irregular amounts $977,550, but of this issue there remain unused by the company $471,000. The interest upon these bonds appears, by the books of the company, to have been paid up to and including that which matured December 1st, 1874, leaving outstanding, unpaid, the interest from that date. The principal and interest of these convertible bonds to be exchanged for 3rd preferred income and sinking fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reoganization.

CONSOLIDATED MORTGAGE.

These bonds have been issued only to a very limited amount, as security to previously unsecured creditors, to give to them, as far as lay in the power of the company, a lien upon the property of the company, after the lien of the first mortgage, Tennessee Substitution, Second Mortgage and Convertible Bonds, above enumerated; the original issue was contemplated to be $15,000,000, for the purpose of consolidating all the previous issues, but none were issued beyond the above amount, and the amount so issued was intended to cover all the floating and otherwise unsecured indebtedness except judgments against the company. In the scheme of reorganization they are not recognized.

FLOATING DEBT AND JUDGMENTS.

The total amount of judgments outstanding appears by the records of the several counties through which the railroad runs, to be about $170,000, but from various considerations it is inferred that many of them have been settled, or for other causes are no longer a claim against the company. The receivers are now engaged in examining into this matter. The total amount of floating debt outstanding, exclusive of interest, appears by the books of the company to amount to $538,702.78, (Aug. 1st, 1876).

This may be increased by other unsettled claims, or reduced by realization of securities pledged. The principal and interest of judgments and floating debts is to be exchanged for fourth preferred income and sinking fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

Deposition of William H. Hays.

NEW YORK, January 15, 1877.

William H. Hays, a witness of lawful age produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, by me propounded to him, deposeth and saith:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. I was a holder of them. I cannot say what amount. I should say I had somewhere from $20,000 to $25,000 of the first mortgage.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. I do not hold any of such coupons. I sold them to Duncan, Sherman & Co. at their face value, although I believe that they deducted a small discount; I think a half per cent.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory he saith:

A. It was known to me that the coupons referred to were not paid by the company, and that it had not the means to pay these coupons. I obtained the knowledge I possessed upon the subject from the fact that I was applied to by Mr. Duncan to unite with his house in providing means to purchase these coupons, so that the company should not be pressed for payment at that time. I offered, as I had done on previous occasions, to assist them; but finally, just previous to the 1st of May, 1874, I was informed by Mr. Duncan that his house had determined to purchase the coupons, and that they were assisted in so doing by means furnished by Alexander Duncan. I urged upon Mr. Duncan the safety of his house in doing this—that the coupons would be abundant security for them. I told Mr. Duncan at the time that I was willing to unite to a moderate extent in advancing, providing that the coupons would be retained by me as my security, which I considered perfectly good. I had no coupons which matured in July or in January, but in November I possessed the same amount if not a larger amount of the first mortgage bonds, 524 and in like manner I knew, from my own knowledge, being a director in the company, that the company had not the means to pay the coupons at that date, nor had they paid the coupons the May previous, and I was informed by Mr. Duncan that he was again purchasing the coupons which matured then.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories he saith:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. As already stated, I urged upon them the safety that they would have in purchasing said coupons, as the coupons were abundant security for any amounts that might be advanced upon them—feeling myself that I was willing to do the same thing.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I obtained such knowledge from the fact that I was a director in the company, as well as a large bond-holder and stock-holder. It was known to all those interested whom I met. I did not obtain the knowledge by written communication.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. In the city of New York, at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I knew that the company had not the means to meet them. I knew that it was under very heavy engagements, and its revenue was already largely pledged for previous advances. At the same time, I felt that if by any means the coupons could be so arranged as not to press the company for payment at that time, that with the revival of the business, which we had every reason to look forward to, the company would be enabled to pay them.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. On account of the depression of business of the summer of 1874, they had not been able to pay the coupons of May, and I still felt that if they could be further held, and the same relief could be granted to the company for a time for the coupons of November 1st, 1874, that it would be able to redeem and pay all these coupons.

6. In answer to the sixth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I have no coupons of July, 1874.

7. In answer to the seventh cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I have no coupons of January, 1875.

A. H. HAYS.

By me reduced to writing from the statements of the witness, and in his presence, and after having been by me read to him, by him subscribed and sworn to, the 15th day of January, 1877, before me,

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner,
Southern District of New York.

Deposition of Adrian Iselin.

New York, January 15, 1877.

Adrian Iselin, a witness of lawful age, produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed by me propounded to him, deposes and says as follows:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. In my position as banker I represented the holders, both of sterling and interest bonds and of the Tennessee Substitution bonds at that time, of which I held the coupons for collection, they amounted to about 600 coupons.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. I do not hold any of the coupons of these dates, except of those coupons of the 1st day of January, 1875, of 526 which I hold 1,177 at $35 each, namely: $41,195 00, gold. The coupons of May and November, 1874, I sold to Duncan, Sherman & Co. My collecting clerk returned to my office and mentioned that he was told at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., at the counter down stairs where the coupons had been paid previously, that they were not being paid there, but that if he went up to the cashier's office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., they would buy them. The coupons of the 1st July, 1874, we held for some time for account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. subsequently paid us these coupons with interest. We held them at their request. The coupons of the 1st of January, 1875, we at the request of Duncan, Sherman & Co., agreed to purchase as presented. We purchased and still hold the amount of coupons before referred to, namely: 1,177 coupons of $35 each, which matured 1st January, 1875. Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. agreed to reimburse us for these coupons so bought, but have not yet done so.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory, he saith:

A. It was known to me that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad had not the means to pay its coupons and was trying to borrow money to do so, and I understood that they succeeded through the instrumentality of Duncan, Sherman & Co. in making arrangements to take them up.

In answer to the cross-interrogatories, he saith:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I obtained knowledge of the condition of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company from its officers. I was also a considerable creditor of the company and conversant with its affairs.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. All I know is that I got the money from Duncan, Sherman & Co. I know what became of the coupons from the fact that I parted with them to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. In the City of New York, at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I have answered this in my previous answer.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I have answered this in my previous answer.

6. In answer to the sixth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I have answered that in my previous answer.

7. In answer to the seventh cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I have answered that in my previous answer.

ADRIAN ISELIN.

By me reduced to writing from the statements of the witness and in his presence, and after having been read by him, subscribed and sworn to this 15th day of January, 1877, before me,

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner
Southern District of New York.

Deposition of George J. Bonner.

New York, January 15, 1877.

George J. Bonner, a witness of lawful age, produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed, by me propounded to him, deposeth and saith as follows:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. I was a holder for account of other parties of the said bonds to the amount of upwards of $30,000 of the first mortgage sterling bonds. These bonds were entrusted to me by the owner to collect the coupons for them, or otherwise to care for their interests.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. I am not the holder of any such coupons. I only had the coupons of May and November, 1874, to my recollection, and I sold them to Duncan, Sherman & Co. on or about the 1st day of May, 1874, and the 1st of November, 1874. I think I sold them at half per cent. discount. I sold them at a small discount—half per cent. I think.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory he saith:

A. I understood that the coupons were being bought by parties, as the Railroad Company had not the money to pay them. Mr. Duncan, of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., endeavored before May, 1874, to induce me, and through me my friends, to advance moneys for the purchase of the coupons of that date. I endeavored to oblige Mr. Duncan by obtaining advances for that purpose, but failed in doing so. Being very anxious to know whether the coupons would be paid, and knowing that the full amount necessary to pay the coupons had not been subscribed, I went to Mr. Duncan one or two days before the 1st of May, 1874, and was then informed by Mr. Duncan that he had obtained the whole of the money necessary to buy the coupons in one amount from one party, who I was afterwards told was Mr. Alexander Duncan. I understood at the time the parties advancing the money to cash those coupons were to retain them as security, and would not press the company for their immediate payment.

In answer to the cross-interrogatories he says:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I expressed much gratification at the fact of the getting of the money for the coupons.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I knew and know nothing about the coupons, but I have always supposed that they were still in the hands of the parties who advanced the money to buy them. I did not obtain such knowledge through a written communication, but through conversation with parties interested.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. In the city of New York, at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co., at the dates named.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. I have already stated all I knew.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. A few days before the coupons of November, 1874, fell due, I called upon Mr. Duncan and asked him if they would be paid. He informed me that the company had not the money to pay them, but that they would be bought or arranged for in some way.

6. And in answer to the sixth cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. Nothing whatever.

7. In answer to the seventh cross-interrogatory he saith:

A. Nothing whatever.

G. J. BONNER.

By me reduced to writing from the statements of the witness, and in his presence, and after having been by me read to the witness, by him subscribed and sworn to before me, the 15th day of January, 1877.

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner,
Southern District of New York.

Deposition of Otto Plock.

New York, January 16, 1877.

Otto Plock, a witness of lawful age, produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed by me propounded to him, deposes and says as follows:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory he saith:

A. We were the holder and representative of several parties for a considerable amount of first mortgage bonds, exceeding a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory he saith:

A. I do not hold any of the coupons enumerated. All the coupons due May and November, 1874, were sold by us to the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., at 99½ per cent., a half per cent. discount.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory he saith:

A. It was known to me that they were not paying the coupons referred to. The provisions made to give the money for the coupons was known to me to have been made by third parties, who had agreed to purchase the coupons. I got the knowledge first direct from Mr. Duncan, at his office, in April, 1874, and he told me that he was ready to purchase the coupons. Mr. Bonner repeatedly asked us to join in making the necessary advances to buy these coupons and hold them as security until the company would redeem them. I perfectly recollect also that Mr. Duncan said to me, that it was not a great risk, as the coupons would continue to run as a lien equal to the first mortgage of the company.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories he saith:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I declined to join in the advances, and do not remember having made any other remark.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. We parted with them to Duncan, Sherman & Co. We believed that they were held by them. That was our belief at the time. We did not obtain our knowledge through written communication, but through oral.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. At the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., New York.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. We knew that the company was not able to meet the coupons, because we were applied to to aid them to do so.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. We knew that the conpons of May had been purchased, and we also understood at that time that they were again being purchased.

6. In answer to the sixth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. If we had any of these coupons at those dates, I think we cashed them at Messrs. Iselin & Co.

7. In answer to the seventh cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. If we had any of the coupons of those dates, I think we cashed them at Iselin & Co's.

OTTO PLOCK.

By me reduced to writing in the presence of the witness and from his statement, and after having been by me read to him, by him subscribed and sworn to before me this 16th day of January, 1877.

JOSEPH GUTMAN, Jr.,
United States Commissioner
Southern District of New York.

Deposition of Abraham Murdock.

New York, January 16, 1877.

Abraham Murdock, a witness of lawful age, produced on the part of the claimant, having been by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, in the matter of controversy herein, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories hereto annexed by me propounded to him, deposeth and saith as follows:

1. In answer to the first interrogatory, he saith:

A. I was the agent of holders to the extent of about $20,000 of the bonds, sterling and interest arrearage bonds.

2. In answer to the second interrogatory, he saith:

A. I hold no such coupons now. Those that I had were purchased by the Bank of Mobile, on account of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

3. In answer to the third interrogatory, he saith:

A. It was known to me that they were not paying them. I was a director in the company. I knew that the company was at that time unable to pay them from its own resources, on account of the shrinkage of business. I got my knowledge from being a director in the company.

And in answer to the cross-interrogatories, he says:

1. In answer to the first cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I derived my knowledge from my connection and general and intimate knowledge of the condition of the company. Nobody had to tell me anything about it.

2. In answer to the second cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. My knowledge was obtained from the President of the Bank of Mobile, who told me that he was purchasing them for the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

3. In answer to the third cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. In Mobile, State of Alabama, at the Bank of Mobile.

4. In answer to the fourth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. My recollection is very distinct about the May coupons. It was known to me that the company was unable te pay them, and that Mr. Duncan had agreed to raise the money and purchase the coupons himself.

5. In answer to the fifth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. At the time the November coupons fell due I was in London, and these coupons were being bought there by the Credit Foncier. I received a telegram from Mr. Duncan requesting me to confer with the Credit Foncier, and explain to them the character of the coupons, so that they might know what was to be purchased. I did call on them and explained to them the character of the different coupons that were included in the arrangement of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

6. In answer to the sixth cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I know nothing about those; I held none, and was at the West at the time.

7. In answer to the seventh cross-interrogatory, he saith:

A. I know nothing about them. I held none of them. I was in Europe.

A. MURDOCK.

Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliott, plaintiffs, against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company et al, defendant.

George Holland Milford, of Hill Side, Surbiton, in the county of Surrey, England, General Manager of the Union Bank of London, Princes street, in the city of London, aged fifty years and upwards, being duly sworn to speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, doth depose and say as follows:

Second.—To the second interrogatory he saith: Yes. The Union Bank of London paid the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company maturing on the first of May and the first of July, 1874, under instructions from Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New York, on their credit and under their responsibility, holding the coupons uncancelled on their account. The Union Bank of London had no communication with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Third.—To the third interrogatory he saith: The coupons were sent to Duncan, Sherman & Co., from time to time uncancelled under registered cover.

Fourth.—To the fourth interrogatory he saith: No money was advanced on account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; it was advanced on account of Duncan, Sherman & Co., to whom alone the Union Bank of London looked for reimbursement. The coupons were in the first instance posted to a special account in the name of Duncan, Sherman & Co., which was subsequently closed by transfers of cash from their general account.

Cross-Interrogatories.

First.—To the first cross-interrogatory he saith: The Union Bank of London acted in accordance with instructions received by cable, a copy of which, dated April 28th, 1874, I hereunto annex, marked A, and a letter dated New York, May 29th, 1874, a copy of which I also hereunto annex, marked B. The Union Bank of London were instructed to pursue a like course with regard to the July coupons—in proof of which I hereunto annex, marked C, copy of telegram dated June 30th, as confirmed by their letter dated 30th June, 1874.

Second.—To the second cross-interrogatory he saith: I am not aware of any enquiries having been made when the coupons were left for examination; if such enquiries were made, the answer would have been that we, the Union Bank of London, received our instructions from Duncan, Sherman and Company.

Third.—To the third cross-interrogatory he saith: The coupons were received from time to time by the various cashiers of the Bank, or their assistants; and as it is the custom of the Union Bank of London to continually change the duties of their employees, it is quite impossible for me to answer this interrogatory more definitely.

Deposition of James Hume Webster.

James Hume Webster, of Keith Lodge, Upper Norwood, in the county of Surrey, England, Managing Director of the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, of number 27, Clements Lane, Lombard street, in the city of London, England, aged years and upwards, being duly sworn to speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, doth depose and say as follows:

First.—To the first interrogatory, he saith: I know an institution called the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, whose registered office is in London. It carries on a financial business principally in the way of advancing money against securities.

Second.—To the second interrogatory, he saith: My present relation to the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, is that of Managing Director. I was not in the service of that company on the first day of January, 1874. I entered its service on the fifteenth day of January, 1874, as Managing Director, which office I have held without intermission from that date up to the present time.

Third.—To the third interrogatory, he saith: The Credit Foncier of England, Limited, during the year 1874 became possessed of some coupons issued by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, maturing the first day of November, 1874, and the first day of January, 1875. The said Credit Foncier of England, Limited, between the dates of the seventeenth day of October, 1874, and the twenty-ninth day of December, 1874, became possessed of coupons maturing in November 1874, amounting in gross to £19,701 (nineteen thousand, seven hundred and one pounds sterling), less income tax £143.1-9 (one hundred and forty-three pounds, one shilling and ninepence), leaving a net value of £19,557.18-3 (nineteen thousand, five hundred and fifty-seven pounds, eighteen shillings and threepence sterling). These coupons were received from day to day between those dates. The Credit Foncier of England paid the face value for the said coupons less the income tax, amounting to £19,557.18-3 (nineteen thousand, five hundred and fifty-seven pounds, eighteen shillings and threepence sterling), to the parties themselves, and £143.1-9 (one hundred and forty-three pounds, one shilling and ninepence) to the Government for the income tax. The Credit Foncier of England received coupons towards the end of December, 1874, which matured on the first day of January, 1875, amounting to a gross value of £872.10-6 (eight hundred and seventy-two pounds, ten shillings and sixpence sterling) less income tax of £3.1-9 (three pounds, one shilling and ninepence sterling), leaving a net value of £868.11-6 (eight hundred and sixty-eight pounds, eleven shillings and sixpence sterling), but the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, did not pay these bills on and after the first day of January, 1875. The coupons were received from persons or companies in two lists, whose titles or names are now shown to me written on a paper writing hereunto attached and marked Exhibits D and E. On the payment of the said coupons they were forwarded under cover and uncancelled to Duncan, Sherman & Co. of New York. The coupons which matured in November, 1874, were forwarded by the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, in letters bearing date the 20th day of April, 1875, and the 22d day of April, 1875, copies of which are hereunto annexed, marked F. and G. The reason of the amounts in these two letters being larger than the amount paid during 1874 as mentioned aforesaid, is that the letters contained some coupons maturing on the first day of January, 1875, which were paid by the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, between that date and the 20th and 22d days of April, 1875.

Fourth.—To the fourth interrogatory, he saith: The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. of New York instructed the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, to get possession or to purchase the coupons maturing on the first day of November, 1874, and on the first day of January, 1875, as per their letter to the Credit Foncier, dated the tenth day of October, 1874, a copy of which is now shown to me and marked H hereunto annexed. This letter will explain what instructions Duncan, Sherman & Co. gave the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, concerning the purchase and receipt of the said coupons. The Credit Foncier of England replied by cable message to Duncan, Sherman & Co. confirming their (Duncan, Sherman's) letter to the said Credit Foncier of England, Limited, which letter is dated the tenth day of October, 1874, as stated aforesaid. The Credit Foncier of England, Limited, by a letter to Duncan, Sherman & Co., dated the twentieth day of October, 1874, acknowledged and confirmed Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s letter of tenth day of October, 1874. I attach hereto, marked I, a copy of said letter which also contains copy of the cable message from the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, to Duncan, Sherman & Co., and which is hereinbefore referred to in this answer. The Credit Foncier of England, Limited, fully complied with the instructions contained in the letter of Duncan, Sherman & Co., to them of the tenth day of October, 1874, concerning the purchase of the said coupons. On the receipt of this letter, the Credit Foncier of England placed a notice in their office to the effect that they were prepared to purchase, at their face value, the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which matured on the first day of November, 1874, and the first day of January, 1875. In compliance with this notice the public tendered the coupons which they held, and received in exchange therefor from the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, a ticket bearing, as is usual in such cases, a number corresponding to the number on the schedule of the said coupons lodged by applicant, after being left two or three days at the company's (the Credit Foncier of England, Limited,) offices for examination, the owners or their servants called again and handed in the said ticket which they had received for the coupons and were delivered a cheque for the face value, less income tax, in the case of those people residing in England and for the gross amount in the case of those residing abroad. The coupons were subsequently returned to Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York, uncancelled. I annex to my depositions a copy of the correspondence marked K, from No. 1 to 44, between the Credits Foncier of England, Limited, and Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New York, relative to the coupons referred to in these interrogatories.

Fifth.—To the fifth interrogatory, he saith: The Credit Foncier of England did not receive any funds from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the purchase or payment of the coupons in question, but paid them solely on Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s account, who reimbursed them for the amount so paid.

Cross-Interrogatories.

First.—To the first cross-interrogatory he saith: The names of the clerks of the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, who received the coupons falling due on the first day of November, 1874, and the first day of January, 1875, were Frederick Everett and John Avery. The said Frederick Everett drew all the cheques for the payment of the coupons, and these cheques were signed by the usual officials of the Credit Foncier of England, Limited. These cheques were delivered by the said Frederick Everett to the persons who applied for payment of the same, and produced the Credit Foncier of England's ticket for the deposit of the coupons with the Credit Foncier.

Second.—To the second cross-interrogatory he saith: I was not present when the coupons referred to in the last interrogatory were received or paid. I can only state that nothing would transpire on such an occasion beyond the handing over of a ticket by the clerk who received the coupons in exchange for the same when they were left for examination, and that on their respective owners or their agents calling for their money the said ticket was returned to the clerk, and a cheque would be handed to the bearer of the ticket, payable to the order of his principals for the face value of the coupons, less income tax.

Third.—To the third cross-interrogatory he saith: The names of the persons or their principals to whom the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, paid the coupons described in the preceding interrogatories are set out in two lists hereunto attached, marked D and E, and referred to in my answer to the third interrogatory in chief; I am unable to state the names of the actual persons to whom the coupons were paid, but only the names of their principals.

OFFICE OF DUNCAN, SHERMAN & Co., Bankers,
New York, October 10, 1874.

The Credit Foncier of England, (Limited),
No. 27 Clements Lane, London:

Dear Sirs—Confirming our respects of 3d inst. and referring again to your favor of 18th ult., we do not see that the credit as issued by you the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, under our guarantee, can be availed of at present, but desirous that some business should result from the frequent negotiations our Mr. Grain had with you when in London, we beg to suggest the following:

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad have maturing on the first day of November about $300,000 of interest coupons on the first mortgage bonds and the first mortgage interest bonds. In anticipation of their receipts, they desire us to provide for the same which we are quite willing to do by purchasing the coupons and holding the same unpaid and uncancelled. The security is unquestioned, as upon the demand of these coupons the possession of the road can be entered upon if it should become necessary to adopt such a course.

We are willing to avail of a credit on you for the purchase of these coupons, both in London and here, or in London only. About £20,000 are usually presented in London. You may retain the coupons uncancelled in London, and we will similarly hold such as we pay here for account of the credit, the whole to be under our guarantee.

We should avail of the credit by sixty day sight bills on you, and for such amounts as you purchase in London we should remit you cable transfers.

This credit would be to us direct and would bear a commission of half per cent. to you each sixty days. We agreeing not to bring you in cash advance, but to cover at maturity with sight exchange when redrawing.

As time will not permit our receiving your reply by mail since the coupons must be purchased 1st November, we shall be glad to hear from you by cable.

We remain, &c.,

(Signed) DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO.

Dear Sirs—Confirming our last letter of the 7th inst. we have to acknowledge the receipt in due course of yours of the 2d, 3d, 6th, and two of the 10th idem. The contents of the three first named have been noted, but call for no special reply.

To your two letters of the 10th inst., we this afternoon sent you the following cable dispatch in cipher:

"Agree to full credit yours tenth, you keeping New York coupons for account of credit cable instructions, how we must act respecting London coupons."

In confirming the above message, we beg to say that it is understood according to the terms of your two above mentioned letters of the 10th inst., that we are willing to grant you a credit for the purchase both in New York and London, of collecting about $300,000 of interest coupons maturing on the 1st November, 1874, of the first mortgage bonds and the first mortgage interest bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, of which coupons about £20,000 are usually presented in London. The coupons presented in London are to be retained by us uncancelled, and you are similarly to hold such as you pay in New York for account of the credit.

Awaiting the receipt of your cable message,

We are, dear sirs, yours, very truly,

Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company—Acceptance Credit for £50,000.

Proposed Letter of Guarantee from Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York, to the Credit Foncier of England, Limited, London:

In consideration of the profits and commissions accruing to us, arising from our position as financial agents for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and further, you having agreed to divide with us your commission under this credit, we are willing to guarantee your company that the credit dated 18th September, 1874, for £50,000 sterling, which you have granted to that railroad, will be availed of according to the terms therein expressed (copy of which is on the other side hereof), and that your company will not be called upon to come under any cash advance during the currency of the credit; and we ourselves personally further undertake, and do hereby guarantee, that at its maturity the credit will be duly closed by the railroad company, or ourselves in case of their default.

[Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. to copy on the back of their letter of guarantee, the letter from the Credit Foncier granting the credit.]

London, E. C., 18th September, 1874.

Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York:

Dear Sirs—Referring to the various conversations we have had with your Mr. Grain, we now enclose a letter addressed by us to the "Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," granting them an acceptance credit for one year of £50,000 (fifty thousand pounds), and you will notice that the credit is granted wholly dependent upon our receiving from you a letter of guarantee.

Such letter of guarantee we have drafted in conjunction with your Mr. Grain, and enclose copy herewith.

If you do not like this form of guarantee, you are at liberty to alter it, but it must remain a practical undertaking that the said credit of £50,000 will be carried out by the railroad company as asked for, and also an undertaking from your own goodselves that it will be closed at the expiration of the twelve months.

It is also understood that the commission of one per cent. for each sixty days' acceptance is to be divided equally between you and ourselves, and that the drafts upon us under this credit will receive your own protection and not be placed in the open market.

We propose that the security in respect of this credit, viz: £100,000 seven per cent. consolidated mortgage bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company should be sent by you to London, and lodged either with Messrs. Smith, Payne & Smiths, or the Consolidated Bank, Limited, subject to our joint order, and we shall be glad to have from you the form of receipt you wish given by the bank.

Should this credit not be used by the aforesaid railroad company, it is understood that they are to pay us a commission of one-quarter per cent. (say £125), in which case please collect the same and place it to our credit with you.

Faithfully, yours,
For the Credit Foncier of England, Limited.
(Signed) JA. HUME WEBSTER,
Managing Director.

P. S.—We have the pleasure of handing this letter to your Mr. Francis H. Grain personally. JA. H. W.

Dear Sirs—We beg to acknowledge receipt of your message of 20th inst.:

"Repeat in English fifth, sixth, seventh, eighteenth words; Heimreath suit decided favorably."

To which we replied on 21st idem:

"Yours, you, keeping, must."—Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

We have to acknowledge, also, the receipt of your telegram in cipher of the 24th instant, but inasmuch as several of the words were not clear to us, and as we desired to be perfectly certain in regard to your instructions, we thought it only prudent to telegraph you to repeat the entire message in English. We received your reply yesterday afternoon as follows:

"Will next week cable deposit with you £10,000, and further amounts as advised of purchase of November coupons. Murdock will give details of coupons. Have told Union Bank to refer holders to you."

And beg to thank you for the same. If equally agreeable to you, we think, as on each side we have had to ask for a repetition in English, and as the concoction and deciphering of a cipher message involves some time and trouble, it would be preferable, in all ordinary cases, to cable in English.

Of course, should occasion arise when secrecy is desirable, the cipher can then be employed, and in such instances, if it be necessary to employ a prefix to show that the message is in cipher, then let the first word in every case be "Africa." Faithfully, yours, (Signed) W. BAILEY, Secretary.

OFFICE OF DUNCAN, SHERMAN & Co., Bankers,

To the Credit Foncier of England, Limited:

Gentlemen—We have instructed the Union Bank to refer parties holding Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company coupons due 1st November, and presenting the same to them for payment to you, stating that you will purchase the same at their face value.

Simple notice as follows at your coupon desk will be all sufficient:

"Coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, due November 1, 1874, of £6 15s., £6, and £3 each, will be purchased at their full value."

This is sufficient notice to the parties holding the same that the coupons are not paid by the company, which is the position we wish maintained until reimbursed for the advances.

In the meantime we will cable you these instructions, and also cable funds to meet the purchases made in sums of £5,000 and £10,000 each, as advised by you. This is necessary, as it is quite uncertain what amount of coupons will be presented in London and what here. Last May the amounts purchased in London were about £15,000 only of the whole £60,000. Your cable advice to us to remit for coupons paid shall be promptly responded to by wire.

We remain your obedient servants,
(Signed) DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO.

We have cabled Mr. Murdock, late President of the company, now in London, to see you personally.

"Always remit us as suits yourselves best," in pursuance of which we have now the pleasure to hand you eight bills at sixty days' sight, amounting as per accompanying specification to twenty-two thousand, three hundred pounds, with which please do the needful (£22,300).

P. S.—The remittances by this mail are for account of this specific credit, which please, for regularity's sake, designate as No. 1. We shall not redraw against this credit till a late date.

For your information the Mobile and Ohio road report their business assuming proportions equal to before the panic, though the year 1874 has been a very severe one for them in common with all roads in this country, especially in the South; up to October their loss in gross receipts was over $400,000;

In October,	1874..........	$242,000,
	1873..........	218,000,	increase $24,000
In November,	1874..........	287,000,
	1873..........	236,000,	increase 51,000

The economies forced upon all roads from necessity will, on an improved business, yield hereafter greater net results.

MOBILE, April 23.

Credit Foncier, London :

The directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company beg to inform the holders of their bonds that the unexampled falling off in earnings, resulting from business depression general throughout the country and which will probably continue till another crop is assured, deprives the company of the ability to meet the May interest at its maturity. All the earnings of the past business season have been applied to arrears of pay rolls, to current supplies, to necessary improvements of the road and to other matters which are strictly in the interest of the bondholders. All our labor and current supply bills are now paid as far as practicable in cash. The directors recognize the fact that the bondholders have the first claim on property, and that it is imperative upon the direction to apply all the earnings of the road to the interest in the strict order of equity. With this assurance the directors invite the confidence of the holders of the mortgage liens to enable them to make some acceptable proposition upon a substantial basis which will permit the continued development of the property in the interest of all concerned.

For details of the application of the earnings of the past year, the directors beg leave to refer to the annual report of the company.

By order of the Board.

J. H. Webster, Esq.,
Credit Foncier of England, Limited, London:

Dear Sir—I intended before leaving for Mobile to advise you of the determination arrived at by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with reference to their coupons, but find it impossible to do so until I can meet the directors on the spot, and look very carefully into their affairs. I do not see any prospect, however, of their being able to pay their coupons due 1st May next, but will advise you from Mobile of the decision arrived at, and if it is determined to allow the coupons to default, I shall probably suggest that the bondholders be asked to appoint a committee to look into their affairs. The value of the property must afford ample security for its bonded debt, which, in the aggregate, is less than $25,000 per mile, and first mortgage less than $20,000 for a finished and equipped road. Its management is honest; expenses are reduced to the lowest point; but at the same time its business has fallen off very greatly, owing to the depression of business generally and the political agitation of the South. This cannot last, and while the people there are economizing, and so for the moment spend but little, either in travel or in other use of the roads, these very economies will in the end work to the advantage of the property.

The annual statement, which will be published May 1st, will show its financial condition, and that with the increased business which we have every right to expect, it can earn sufficient to pay the interest upon all its securities. There is, of course, the danger that an attempt may be made to force the road out of the hands of the directors, but if so, every means will be taken, and I think with success, to protect the security-holders.

Should such be the case, a full statement will be laid before said security-holders, and their judgment asked as to what course should be pursued.

I remain, yours very truly,

(Signed) W. BUTLER DUNCAN.

The depression in business through the section is universal, and its effects on all the Southern roads alike.

E. H. GRANDIN.

The subpœna duces tecum should be to produce all papers and books, with the minutes of the Board of Directors of said corporation, defendants, in reference to the transaction whereby the said Company took up the bonds issued in aid of the construction of its railroad by the State of Tennessee, and attempted to substitute therefor its own bonds, commonly called Tennessee Substitution Bonds.

SUBPŒNA.—In the Circuit Court of the United States, Fifth Judicial Circuit and Southern District of Alabama.

W. B. DUNCAN, ET AL.,

vs.

THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO., ET AL.

On Reference before the Master.

To T. Haskins Du Puy:

You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned, Special Master in the above entitled cause, at his office, in the United States Court Room, in the City of Mobile, this 21st day of February, 1877, at 12 o'clock M., and then and there to testify, and the truth to say, according to your knowledge, in the matter of W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, Trustees, vs. the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and others, wherein Messrs. Moran Brothers, of New York City, have filed objections to the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds.

And you will bring with you "all the papers and books, with the minutes of the Board of Directors of said corporation, defendant, in reference to the transaction whereby the said Company took up the bonds issued in aid of the construction of its railroad by the State of Tennessee, and substituted therefor its own bonds, commonly called Tennessee Substitution Bonds."

Attest, this 21st February, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Marshal's Return.—Received Marshal's Office February 21, A. D. 1877, and executed upon the same day by serving a copy of the within Subpœna upon T. Haskins Du Puy.

By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

In the Circuit Court of the United States, Fifth Circuit and Southern District of Alabama.

WM. BUTLER DUNCAN, ET AL., TRUSTEES,

vs. } In Equity.

THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO., ET ALS.

Before the Special Master, James Gillette, on Reference.

WEDNESDAY, February 21, 1877.

Present, the Special Master and Counsel, as follows: P. Hamilton, representing trustees, complainant and receivers; Geo. N. Stewart, representing Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendant, and Alexander Duncan and holders of coupons of 1874; E. H. Grandin, of counsel for Trustees Second Mortgage; and E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for Moran Bros., objecting bond-holders.

T. Haskins Du.Puy, a witness called at the instance of counsel for Moran Brothers, and counsel for Trustees of the Second Mortgage, being duly sworn, says in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Have you the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for 1870 and 1871? If so, produce them.

A. They are in their proper place in the general office of the Company.

Q. Have you control of them?

A. As Vice President of the Company I have.

Q. Will you, in obedience to the subpœna of the Circuit Court, produce the minute books above referred to? Please answer the question directly.

A. I will answer in my way.

Q. Question repeated.

A. I am under the advice and control of counsel, and will do as they direct me to do.

Motion by Mr. Andrews, to strike out the answer as not being responsive to the question.

Motion by Mr. Hamilton, to strike out the question.

Decision reserved.

Q. Mr. Du Puy have you produced the books and papers required of you by the subpœna duces tecum of James Gillette, Special Master, dated February 21, 1877, in the cause of W. B. Duncan et al., vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, pending in this court, either in this court-house building or in this Master's office. I will ask you for a categorical answer—yes or no.

A. I received the subpœna about five minutes before I came down, and I had no time to get the books or no knowledge of what books were wanted, or what parts of books were wanted. The general recital of the subpœna would take a wheel-barrow load of books.

Q. Then it appears, Mr. Du Puy, that you knew sufficiently well what books were required by the subpœna of this court to be able to state what their quantity and bulk would be. Is that not so?

A. I can read the subpœna as calling for the minute books.

Q. Have you got that minute book.

A. Not in this room.

Q. Is it in this court-house building?

A. No; nor could I have brought it into this building and been in time to obey the summons of the Master.

Mr. Andrews: Motion to adjourn for one hour to give the witness time to produce the books called for.

Mr. Hamilton, of counsel for trustees and receivers, asked the witness if he had examined the books so as to be able to know which and what parts have reference to the matter named in the subpœna?

A. I have not.

Q. Have you ever heretofore been notified that you would be required to bring such books?

612 A. I have not.

Q. How long would it take to make such examination?

A. I can't say. I can't do it in an hour or two hours. I can do it with all diligence, but cannot say how long it would take.

Question by Mr. Andrews. Have you not seen the deed executed to Duncan, Iselin and Wilson, for the claims known as the Tennessee Substitution bonds, and don't you know or believe that that deed was dated in 1871, and that the minutes called for by this subpœna related to meetings of the board during or about that year?

A. I have no recollection of ever having seen that deed and consequently could have no knowledge of what particulars were referred to in the subpœna. I have no recollection of ever having seen the deed, and I can't have any belief on the subject.

Q. Do you believe that deed was executed in 1871?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you not sign a paper addressed to the creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or to that address in substance, in which you advised and recommended the First Mortgage bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to exchange each one thousand dollars First Mortgage bond, or Sterling bond £225, for a New Mortgage bond for $440 and for a balance in debentures, and the balance of which New Mortgage was to be allotted to the Tennessee Substitution bonds, the deed securing which you have just said you never saw, or did not remember to have seen or did not know the date thereof? I ask a categorical answer.

[Mr. Stewart, on behalf of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, objected to the question for irrelevancy. If intended as a cross-examination, it is improper. The question has no relevancy to the issue on trial, whether he did present such a paper or not.]

The Special Master.—If the books and papers pertaining to the Tennessee matter are what are wanted, the question is irrelevant. The witness has stated on oath that he had not time to produce the books required. It is within the Master's knowledge from the time of issuing the subpœna that he had not. If counsel can agree as to the time, to which this reference will adjourn, an adjournment will be in order.

Mr. Hamilton moved for an adjournment until Monday.

Mr. Andrews objected to an adjournment for so long a time, stating that one hour was ample time to give the witness to produce the books, and he moved for a subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins Du Puy to produce the Minute Books of 1870, 1871 and 1872, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, returnable in one hour.

Mr. Stewart, objecting, said: If we have time to make examination so as to discriminate what parts pertain to this controversy and what parts do not, the subpœna will be obeyed cheerfully.

Mr. Andrews argued that all books in the possession of the trustees of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company pertain to this controversy, and are held by them as the agents of his clients the bondholders, and that he had the right to examine any and all books or any part of the same.

Mr. Stewart: As to all transactions recorded in those books which have no relation to this controversy, witness is advised that he is not bound to produce the same, and therefore will act accordingly.

Mr. Grandin: Who is the judge as to what is pertinent?

Mr. Stewart: The witness is the judge, the authorities sustain that.

Mr. Andrews renewed his motion for a subpœna duces tecum, returnable in one hour, which was refused.

Mr. Andrews: I move for a subpœna duces tecum, returnable in two hours.

614 [Objected to by Mr. Stewart on the ground that the time is too short.]

Special Master: Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews: Motion for the Minute Book of 1871 in two hours.

[Objected to by Mr. Stewart.]

Special Master: Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews: Motion for subpœna, returnable in three hours. (Mr. Andrews stated that he would leave the city to-night, also his associate counsel.)

[Objected to by Mr. Stewart.]

Special Master: Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews moved for the production of that Minute Book at any time during the present day, before 10 o'clock P. M.

Mr. Stewart objected, on the ground that the parties have no right to the books, but to only such parts as relate to the subject under reference.

Special Master: Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews moved for a subpœna for the production of the contract of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with Duncan, Iselin and Wilson, in reference to the purchase of Tennessee State bonds, returnable in three hours or any time during the day, in the discretion of the Master.

Ordered that the witness produce the described paper without further notice at 5 o'clock P. M., to which time reference adjourned.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

WEDNESDAY, Feb'y 21, 1877, 5 o'clock P. M.

Reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and counsel as before. Present also the witness, T. Haskins Du Puy, who submitted the following return in writing in answer to the notice hereinbefore directed to him:

MOBILE, ALA., February 21st, 1877.

James Gillette, Esq., Special Master, &c.:

Dear Sir—I have examined the Minute Book of the Mobile and Ohio R. R., from April, 1870, to November, 1872, and I can find no entry thereon of any contract or agreement by resolution or action of the President and Board of Directors, in reference to the Tennessee Substitution bonds named in the subpœna served upon me this morning, excepting the resolution and indenture of deed of trust, published in the pamphlet, containing the mortgage of the company.

I have examined the papers in the President's vault, together with his letter books for the year 1870 to 1872. I have called for the Minute Book of the Executive Committee for the same time, and find that all such minutes were discontinued after August, 1870—neither the papers in the vault—nor the letter books of the then President show that any contract of the Mobile and Ohio R. R. with Duncan, Iselin and Wilson, in reference to the purchase of Tennessee State bonds, is in my keeping.

I have used the best exertion capable in the limited time assigned me, to discover such contract, if such contract were made.

All the information I have or can find upon the subject, is contained in the resolutions and deed hereinbefore mentioned.

Yours, truly,
T. HASKINS DU PUY,
Vice President M. & O. R. R.

Mr. Stewart filed the following objection:

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by its solicitor, objects to the examination of any and all evidence of any description in respect to the subject of the Tennessee Substitution bonds, because the trustees of the Tennessee Substitution bonds are not before the court or Special Master, and, therefore, they having omitted and declined to become parties to this proceeding or submit to the jurisdiction of the court as to them, and as there is no authority to compel their appearance in this investigation, they would not be bound thereby, and therefore this proceeding would be unavailable and without legal jurisdiction or effect.

GEORGE N. STEWART,
February 21, 1877. Solicitor M. & O. R. R. Co.

In the matter of the petition of Moran Bros., now before the Special Master, Mr. Hamilton, not as representing the Tennessee Substitution trustees, but in the name of trustees of First Mortgage, unites in the objection of Mr. Stewart.

P. HAMILTON.

Received and filed February 21, 1877, 5 P. M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Examination of T. Haskins Du Puy resumed by Mr. Andrews.

Q. Are you not the attorney and agent in fact of the trustees and receivers in this cause.

A. I am.

Q. (By Mr. Hamilton). Are you not also Vice President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. I am.

Motion by Mr. Andrews, that a subpœna issue, returnable at 12 M. to-morrow, on T. H. Du Puy for the production of the Minute Books of the Directors and of the Executive Committee, from 1870 to 1872, both inclusive; for the telegram books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and letter books for the same period, and for such minutes, letters and telegrams for the same period, not in the form of books, and for resolutions (or copies of the same) of the Directors and Executive Committee, not in the form of books.

The motion concurred in by counsel for the Second Mortgage trustees.

[Objected to by Geo. N. Stewart, on the ground that the subpœna must be confined to what is desired in connection with the subject.]

Ruling.—The Master grants the subpœna, returnable at 12 M. to-morrow, for the books and papers in question, so far as the same pertain to the question now under consideration, viz: the bonds known as the Tennessee Substitution bonds.

Mr. Grandin moved, in behalf of the trustees of the Second Mortgage, the production of the same books, the production of which was moved for by E. L. Andrews by a subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins Du Puy, returnable to-morrow at 12 M., and stated "I base my motion on the express terms of the order of reference to the Master, made on March 6, 1876, in this cause, and also on a subsequent order enlarging the time for the taking of proofs.

Ruling.—The Master grants the subpœna, returnable at 12 M. to-morrow, for the books and papers in question, so far as the same pertain to the question now under consideration, viz: the bonds known as the Tennessee Substitution bonds.

Mr. Grandin moves further for the books and papers of the Company for 1874 and 1875, in order that he may ascertain if they contain evidence applicable to the issues made by the answer of the trustees of the Second Mortgage to the bill of complaint in this cause. A subpœna is desired to the attorney in fact of the trustees, returnable at 12 M. to-morrow.

Ruling.—The motion is refused, on the ground that this is not a general inquiry into the issues presented by the pleadings in the case, but this proceeding at this time is limited to the inquiry into the Tennessee lien.

Mr. Andrews then presented the following motion in 618 writing: "After the declaration of counsel in Court, that portions of the books called for would be sealed, I move for the production of the books named in my previous motion, without any qualification in the subpœna." Which motion for a subpœna was refused by the Master, except the subpœna be qualified by limiting the books to be produced to the question of the Tennessee lien, which is the subject matter of to-day's reference.

Thereupon, E. L. Andrews, counsel for Moran Bros. and objecting bond-holders, and E. H. Grandin, of counsel for trustees of the Second Mortgage, object and except to each and every ruling of the Master on this reference.

The reference then adjourned until Thursday, February 22d, at 12 o'clock M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

THURSDAY, February 22, 1877.

The reference was resumed, pursuant to adjournment.

Present, counsel as of the day previous. There being no further business presented, reference adjourned subject to be reconvened on application of counsel, or on notice from the Master.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN, ET AL., TRUSTEES,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO., ET ALS.

Friday, March 23, 1877.

The session of the Master convened at 12 m., pursuant to adjournment and notice in the matter of the objections filed by certain holders of the First Mortgage Bonds of said Railroad Company, and at the instance of Trustees of the Second Mortgage, to the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds, and to the allowance of the First Mortgage Coupons of 1874, as entitled to priority of lien or to any lien upon the railroad property.

Present—Special Master and following Counsel: P. Hamilton, representing W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, Trustees and Receivers, Wm. G. Jones and E. H. Grandin, representing trustees of Second Mortgage, E. H. Grandin also representing E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for objecting bondholders, and T. Haskins DuPuy, witness, summoned at the instance of objecting bondholders.

Motion by Mr. Hamilton, that reference be postponed on statement received from Mr. Geo. N. Stewart, Sol'r M. & O. R. R. Co., that he could not be present owing to his being in attendance on the Circuit Court, Mobile County, waiting for the trial of a cause against the Railroad Company set for this day.

Objection by E. H. Grandin, on the ground that Mr. Hamilton is present, and Mr. Stewart's presence is not necessary in the examination of Mr. DuPuy.

Objection overruled and reference adjourned until 10 A. M. to-morrow.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

SATURDAY, March 24, 1877, 10 o'clock, A. M.

Reference proceeded pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Master, Counsel and witness as of the day previous; also, George N. Stewart, Solicitor for Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and for Alexander Duncan.

Minutes of the proceedings of yesterday read and approved.

E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for trustees of Second Mortgage, submitted the following motion to amend minutes of last session:

I move that the minutes of the sitting of 21st February, 1877, be so amended as that it shall be made to appear that a separate objection and exception were made by Counsel of Trustees of Second Mortgage to each and every ruling of the Master pending the examination of T. Haskins DuPuy.

E. H. GRANDIN, of Counsel.

Motion granted and proposed amendment allowed.

George N. Stewart, of Counsel for Committee on Reorganization of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, filed the following objection and protest:

To the Special Master, James Gillette, in the proceeding now pending before him in respect to objections so far as they may be presented and admitted on the part of the Counsel representing the Second Mortgage Bonds in the reference in the case of Duncan & Elliot vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, et al., under order of the Circuit Court of the United States, Mobile:

624 The Committee on Reconstruction—that is to say, Wm. H. Hays, Wm. S. Pierson and T. Haskins DuPuy, by their Counsel, shew to the Special Master, and in fact, say, that there have been transferred to them as trustees and that they now hold and lawfully represent Second Mortgage Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, to the amount of $841,061.54, with agreements signed investing them with the right to $40,000 more,' all which they have right to control in this cause as such. That they object to the prosecution of the proceedings by way of objections now under consideration in respect to said Second Mortgage Bonds, to the extent of the interest and control they now have over the same, and protest against the continuance of said proceeding at their instance or expense, and give notice and claim that they do not and will not hold themselves responsible for any cost or expense in relation thereto, and claim that all such cost and expense shall be at the charge of the parties or persons who may prosecute the same. Of all which they hereby give notice so that the same may be made of record in this investigation.

GEORGE N. STEWART,
Of Counsel for said Committee.

Mobile, March 24, 1877.

E. H. Grandin objects to the filing of said objection, on the following grounds:

1. It is incompetent for the Master, under the order of reference to receive anything that does not come under the denomination of pleadings and proofs, and the paper offered is not within either denomination.

2. That the paper offered is a paper in terrorem, and while it does not frighten any body, is impertinent, and therefore ought not to be filed.

3. No person, not a party to the record in this cause, has any right to make any protest or motion in reference to the same, without the leave of the Court first had and obtained, and the parties offering this paper are not in any sense parties to the record and have not any such leave.

4. The paper ought to and would be utterly useless for any purpose, even if allowed to be filed, because, although it may be true that the parties on whose behalf it is offered do represent the number of Second Mortgage Bonds that they pretend to represent, yet, it would be and is still the duty of the trustees of the Second Mortgage to insist upon their defences to the bill of complaint set up in their answer, and would be and is still the duty of this Master to receive evidence tending to support those defences, and this too, even if the trustees were requested thereunto by only one bondholder holding only one bond.

T. Haskins DuPuy, witness, sworn and examined by E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for the trustees of the Second Mortgage.

Q. Have you got with you in pursuance of the Subpœna the Minute Books of the Directors and of the Executive Committee of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, from 1870 to 1872, both inclusive? the telegram books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and the letter books of said Company for the same period, and such minutes, letters and telegrams for the same period not in the form of books, and resolutions or copies of the same not in the form of books, so far as the same pertain to the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds?

Mr. Hamilton objects to the examination of any matters in reference to the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, as the trustees of that lien are not before the Court, and they are necessary parties to any proceeding concerning the validity of their lien.

Judge Grandin, in answer to the objection of Mr. Hamilton, says: That on the ground stated by him that the trustees are not before the Court, he, Judge Grandin, deems that any inquiry into the validity of the lien of Tennessee 626 Substitution Bonds before this Master, would be coram non judice, and therefore, he does not proceed with the examination of the evidence brought before the Master by Mr. DuPuy in this matter.

(The reference proceeding as to the First Mortgage Coupons of 1874, held by Mr. Alexander Duncan and others.)

Q. Have you the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1874?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you be so good as to direct the Master's attention to any evidence in those minutes showing any action of the Board of Directors in reference to raising money for the payment of the First Mortgage Coupons of May, 1874, and that of November, 1874?

A. Page 393, minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors, held at Mobile, 28th April, 1874, at which were present, John J. Walker, Vice President and President pro tem., Henry Hall, A. Murdock, Wm. D. Dunn, Moses Waring, Wm. H. Pratt and A. J. Gillespie, Directors—the following resolution appears:

"Resolved, That the net earnings of the Company, after payment of the current expenses, be pledged for repayment of advances obtained by the President for the purpose of meeting the May interest, and that the Floating Debt in the shape of bills payable, be extended so far as practicable, to next winter, and that credits so extending shall be secured by pledge of consolidated bonds in the hands of Bank of Mobile, or at such other bank or place as may be determined by the Vice President, in trust, at the rate of 75 cents." Which stands attested by A. L. Willoughby, Secretary.

On pages 430 and 431 of the minutes of November 5th, 1874, the following entry appears, which the Counsel for Alexander Duncan asks shall be spread on the minutes.

"OFFICE OF THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD CO.;
Mobile, November 5th, 1874.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company was held this day.

Present, Wm. B. Duncan, President, J. J. Walker, Vice President, Messrs. W. D. Dunn, W. H. Pratt, W. P. Halliday, A. J. Gillespie, M. Waring, A. Foster Elliot.

The Finance Committee submitted a report through their Chairman, the President, which, on motion, was received and ordered to be spread on the minutes.

The Committee to which was referred the question of the Finances of the Company, with power to act, have to report:—First, That continued depression of business during the first nine months of the year 1874, so far diminished the gross receipts, as to render it impossible for the Company to meet to any material extent, its maturing indebtedness. For the same reason, the Company has been unable to pay the interest coupons which have matured since February last. These coupons are now held by the parties who purchased them, and who have demanded and now demand payment therefor. The total net earnings of the Company for said nine months, which by the statement, appear to be between $300,000 and $325,000, have been appropriated to the reimbursement of coupons matured previous to Februay last, and held by the purchasers and to the payment of the class of claims against the Company which was essential to the preservation of friendly relations with connecting roads, and to reduction of the floating debt. It is the opinion of this Committee, that nothing should be permitted to interfere with the payment of the coupons and interest upon the bonded debt of this Company at the earliest moment, and that the entire receipts of the Company after the payment of the labor, supplies and expenses incident to, and necessary for the efficient operation of the road, shall be appropriated towards the payment of the coupons and interest; and more especially, as upon this policy being pursued, they have every reason to hope that the holders of the past due and to become due coupons and interest on the bonded debt will withhold pressing their just demands. Confident in this being accepted as the true policy of the Company, the President has not hesitated to authorize such expenses as are absolutely necessary for the safety of the operation of the road to be made; and such indebtedness which has been incurred since the first of May last, should be protected at all hazards, as the restoration of the credit of the Company for its necessary operating expenses is essential to the economical working of the road.

Your Committee is well aware that the bills payable of the Company have already been renewed, with the hope that the business of the country, and consequently of the road, would have so far recovered as to have permitted, ere this, a payment of at least, a portion of such paper, but from circumstances entirely beyond their control and beyond their power to avert, this the Company is unable to do.

Therefore, your Committee report that they have instructed the officers of the Company to give to the holders of the coupons, the assurance that this policy shall be carried out, and they recommend that the holders of the maturing obligations of the Company be communicated with, and that they be asked to renew the same as they mature, for the period of twelve months, at eight per cent. per annum, interest payable in advance.

The rapidly improving business of the road, and the continued, and if possible, increased economy in its management, gives confidence that another year will see the property and its results in a much more favorable condition, and, perhaps, admit of a negotiation of the securities of the Company at favorable rates—a result which it was hoped could have been reached this year—but has been prevented by the general distrust in all railroad enterprises.

Your Committee would also recommend that the holders of the paper of the Company, secured by pledge of securities, should be given the option of purchasing such securities, on terms to be agreed upon, and that any securities of the road at the disposition of the Company, be also disposed of and applied to the settlement of the floating indebtedness of the Company.

All which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed,) WM. H. PRATT,
HENRY HALL,
M. WARING,
W. BUTLER DUNCAN,
Committee of Finance."

GEORGE TURNER, U. S. Marshal.

By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

TUESDAY, March 27th, 1877.

The reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel as of the days previous.

Nathan Whiting sworn and examined, in answer to questions by Counsel of Trustees of Second Mortgage, says:—

Q. At the times in the year 1874 that you presented your coupons cut off of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's Sterling and Interest Bonds to the Treasurer Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for payment, did you or not, see any written notice in the office, or was or not any verbal notice given to you by the Treasurer or other person employed in the office, that, or to the effect that, or conveying the impression that the Company was not paying its First Mortgage Sterling Coupons, but that the same were being purchased by any person or persons?

A. I have no recollection of seeing any notice in the office. My coupons were handed to Mr. Willoughby, and when they were returned to me, I am pretty sure he never said anything about any one buying them, but referred me to the Bank of Mobile to get my money.

Q. When, to your knowledge, did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company first make default in the payment of its First Mortgage Coupons?

A. The first I heard of it was 1st May, 1875.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart, counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q. Had you ever collected any coupons of the Company before 1st May, 1874?

A. Yes.

Q. How were they paid to you, and by whom, previously to that time?

A. They were paid by check, either from Mr. Willoughby or through his instructions, on the Bank of Mobile for the money.

Q. On those previous occasions when you got the check for the payment, did you not surrender the coupons?

A. Yes; to Mr. Willoughby, the Treasurer.

Q. Did you, in 1874, notice the difference in the mode of payment from that heretofore?

A. As near as I recollect, I got a check from Mr. Willoughby in May, 1874. I have a recollection of it in November, that the coupons were given to Mr. Willoughby for a few days, and returned to me in an envelope, and I was directed to go to the Bank of Mobile.

Q. Did you make any inquiries of Mr. Willoughby why it was that your coupons were returned to you?

A. I do not remember making any.

NATHAN WHITING.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 27th March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

William H. Ross, called by Counsel for Trustees Second Mortgage, testifies as follows:—

Q. At the times in the year 1874 that you presented your coupons cut off of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's Sterling and Interest Bonds to the Treasurer Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for payment, did you or not see any written notice in the office, or was or not any verbal notice given to you by the Treasurer or other person employed in the office, that, or to the effect that, or conveying the impression that the Company was not paying its First Mortgage Sterling Coupons, but that the same were being purchased by any person or persons?

A. I recollect nothing of that sort. I saw no notice that the coupons were to be purchased. I never heard of such a thing.

Q. When, to your knowledge, did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company first make default in the payment of its First Mortgage Coupons?

A. My recollection is that it was May, 1875.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. Did you collect any of those coupons previous to the year 1874?

A. Yes; I did for several years.

Q. Please state who paid them, where they were paid, and how they were paid.

A. My recollection is that they were paid by Mr. Willoughby, the Treasurer, and I think by check on the Bank of Mobile, but I won't be positive about it.

Q. Did you not, on receiving check or payment, surrender the coupons to Mr. Willoughby?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the difference in the mode of payment in 1874 from previous payments strike you?

A. My recollection is, that it did, and I remarked upon it and I was told that the Company had made arrangements with the Bank of Mobile to pay those coupons.

Q. Who told you so?

A. I don't recollect. It was some one in the office of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Q. I understand you to have stated that the coupons were returned to you in 1874, and not taken up by Mr. Willoughby?

A. Yes; they were taken by Mr. Willoughby and checked, then put into an envelope and I was requested to take them to the Bank of Mobile for payment. The paying teller, Mr. Gale, paid me in currency for the interest payable in currency, and offered me the currency at a rate for the gold coupons, which I declined, when he gave me a check on T. P. Miller & Co. for the gold. I surrendered the coupons to the teller.

WM. H. ROSS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 27th day of March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

James B. Hazard called by Counsel for Trustees of the Second Mortgage and examined, says:—

Q. At the times in the year 1874 that you presented your coupons cut off of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's Sterling and Interest Bonds to the Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for payment, did you or not see any written notice in the office, or was or not any written notice given to you by the Treasurer or other person employed in the office, that, or to the effect that, or 634 conveying the impression that the Company was not paying its First Mortgage Sterling Coupons, but that the same were being purchased by any person or persons?

A. I saw no written notice there, and Mr. Willoughby told me to take my coupons to the Bank of Mobile and they would be paid.

Q. When, to your knowledge, did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company first make default in the payment of its First Mortgage Coupons?

A. On the 1st of March, 1875, on the Second Mortgage Bonds; on the 1st of May, 1875, on the First Mortgage. I learned in the latter part of April that they would not be paid.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. Had you collected any coupons previous to 1874?

A. On $800 of Interest Coupons. I had collected them sometime previous to 1874.

Q. In what manner and by whom and where were those previous coupons paid?

A. My recollection is, that I took them to the office and that they were paid there.

Q. Did the difference in the mode and manner of the payment of coupons in 1874 attract your attention?

A. No; I thought nothing about it.

Q. Did you make any question as to why it was that the coupons were given back to you.

A. In October, 1875, I presented coupons for several years back. In my previous testimony I omitted to state that I collected in May, 1874, $32 due on the 1st of May, 1874. Now, I speak in reference to two Sterling Bonds, with coupons for several years back, which came to my possession in August or September, 1874. They, the coupons, were settled by the Railroad Company. For those previous to May, 1874, they settled by giving me a note for part, and cash or check for the balance, and at the same time, they gave me an envelope containing coupons, with directions to take it to the Bank of Mobile for payment, and the coupons were paid there. This was either in the latter part of October, or early in November; I believe in the latter part of October.

Q. You stated you collected $32 for coupons due in 1874. State how they were paid, when, where and by whom?

A. My recollection is, that they were paid at the Bank of Mobile.

Q. Were they not paid by delivering you the coupons in an envelope to be paid there?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Did you make any inquiries as to why it was that the coupons before 1874 were paid by the Company, and those for 1874 sent to the Bank of Mobile?

A. I made no inquiries.

JAMES B. HAZARD.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 27th March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Hugh Monroe, a witness called by Counsel for Trustees of the Second Mortgage, and sworn and examined.

Q. Were you a holder of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Bonds in 1874? If you say yes, what description?

A. I was. Some of them were Sterling Bonds and some Interest Bonds.

Q. Did you or not present coupons cut off of the bonds you held in May and November, 1874, to the Company for payment, and were they paid?

A. Yes; I took the coupons to Mr. Willoughby and he put them in an envelope. My recollection is, that he said he would send them down to the Bank of Mobile, and that Mr. Gale would put them to my credit.

Q. At the times in the year 1874 that you presented your coupons cut off of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's Sterling and Interest Bonds to the Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for payment, did you or not see any written notice in the office, or was or not any verbal notice given to you by the Treasurer or other person employed in the office, that, or to the effect that, or conveying the impression that the Company was not paying its First Mortgage Sterling Coupons, but that the same was being purchased by any person or persons?

A. I don't think I was told anything about it. I saw no notice and was told about none.

Q. When, to your knowledge, did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company first make default in the payment of its First Mortgage Coupons?

A. In 1875.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. You spoke of sending your coupons to Mr. Gale, does that relate to May or November Coupons, 1874?

A. My impression is they were both sent down. I know the first ones were.

Q. Did he put them in an envelope?

A. He did. I saw him do it. I think put my nameon it.

Q. Why was it you did not take them yourself, as others did?

A. I suppose he did not have them ready that day. He said he would take them down himself or send them down. I got the envelope afterwards at the Bank of Mobile, and opened it and handed the coupons to Mr. Gale, who entered them on my bank book.

Q. Did Mr. Willoughby tell you that to save you the trouble of calling again, that he would send them to the Bank of Mobile?

A. I don't think he did the second time.

Q. Did you receive any money or check from Mr. Willoughby either of those times for the payment of those coupons?

A. Neither.

Q. Had you, previous to the year 1874, collected coupons of the Company for those bonds?

A. Yes; always by Mr. Willoughby's checks, then on Bank of Mobile or Mr. Miller.

Q. Did you not on those previous occasions surrender the coupons to Mr. Willoughby?

A. Yes, and those also.

Q. Were the previous coupons ever put in envelopes and sent to the Bank of Mobile?

A. They were always put in envelopes, but I suppose they were not sent to the Bank of Mobile.

Q. Did the difference in the mode and manner of payment in 1874 from what had been previously practised attract your attention?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any inquiries why this difference was adopted?

A. I understood arrangements had been made by the Bank of Mobile to pay them. In fact, I was told so by Mr. Gale.

Q. Did you learn from him what were the particulars of that arrangement?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you make any inquiries as to the particulars?

A. I don't know that I did; I might have heard conversations.

HUGH MONROE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 27th March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

James H. Masson, a witness called by E. H. Grandin and sworn, says:—

Q. You are the President of the First National Bank of Mobile?

A. Yes.

638 Q. In the year 1874 was or was not the First National Bank of Mobile the holder of promissory notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company? If so, what date in that year?

A. Yes; I think we held them the whole year.

Q. Do you remember what notes they were?

A. I don't remember the amounts; I suppose it was the floating debt. The Railroad drafts or acceptances on Walsh, Crawford & Co., New York. It was part their acceptances, and part renewals of their acceptances.

Q. Were those drafts or acceptances held by your bank taken up in due course?

A. No sir; I don't think any of it was ever paid to the Bank by the drawer or drawees.

Q. State what disposition the bank made of all this paper?

A. We held about $100,000; I sold it and traded it off in any shape that I could, until I reduced my line down to about $20,000.

Q. To whom or to what party or parties did you trade or sell this paper in so reducing your line?

A. I sold a great deal of that paper to the brokers here. I believe I traded and sold some in New York; I believe I traded some with Mr. Duncan. I traded or exchanged it with the brokers whenever I could. I was about eighteen months handling that paper.

Q. How much of that paper did you sell or trade Mr. Duncan?

A. I exchanged twenty-five thousand dollars of the paper for twenty-five thousand Mobile County Bonds.

Q. When was that?

A. I think it was some time about the middle of 1874.

Q. Is that all the paper that went from your bank to Mr. Duncan?

A. That is all I know anything about. Then, I exchanged about $15,000 or $20,000 of the paper with Mr. Pratt, for Oktibbeha County Bonds.

Q. Those were good bonds, were they not?

A. No; I did not think they were worth much. We considered it about an even thing.

Q. The rest of the paper you traded off with other parties?

A. Yes; we swapped it off for chips and whetstones, and some of it at quite a sacrifice.

Q. Are you able to say or not, or do you not know whether Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan got any of the rest of the paper from the parties to whom you traded it?

A. I do not think he got one dollar of it.

Q. Did the paper that you traded with Mr. Duncan for these County Bonds bear the endorsement of your bank?

A. No; it was exchanged for the bonds on its own merits. We never endorsed any railroad paper.

Q. Do you know what specific pieces of paper you traded for the bonds?

A. I don't think I could show. I think there is no record on my books. The denomination of the paper was somewhere in the neighborhood of $37,000, I think.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. I understand you to state that you exchanged with Mr. Duncan about $25,000 of paper for a like amount of County Bonds.

A. Yes.

Q. What is your recollection of the then market value of Mobile County Bonds?

A. It's pretty hard to recollect. I suppose nominally 80 or 90 cents. The paper also sold at depreciated value. We considered it about an even exchange.

Q. Please state, if you have any knowledge, that the Mobile County Bonds which you received belonged to the Railroad Company, or that the Company had any interest in them, and were they not traded to you as the private property of Mr. Duncan?

A. I'm pretty well satisfied the Railroad had nothing to do with them; for Mr. Duncan's agent had tried to sell them to me a long time before. They were a lot of fifty bonds of one issue that had been in the hands of Duncan, Sherman & Company for years.

Q. Please state whether or not, so far as you know, that the said exchenge was a private transaction between Mr. Duncan and yourself, with which the Railroad Company had nothing to do?

A. I never knew but Mr. Duncan in the transaction, knew nothing about the Railroad, and did not think it had anything to do with it.

Q. Did you in the year 1874, or your bank, hold coupons for interest of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, due in May and November. (The witness testifying at the instance of Mr. George N. Stewart.)

A. The Bank of Mobile paid us some coupons in that year. I don't remember their exact amount–a small amount. I have a dim recollection that some were paid at the Bank of Mobile.

Q. Do you know who paid them?

A. No. I know nothing about it personally; my runner collected them.

Q. Did you have information in 1874 that the Railroad Company could not pay its coupons, and that they were taken up by others, and not paid by the Railroad.

(Objected to by Judge Grandin.)

A. I knew it from street talk and conversation with the Directors, but I had no official notice from the Company of that fact.

Q. Please state if before the interest of that year became due, you were not apprised that the Company would not pay the coupons for want of means, or had you any information that the Company would pay them.

A. I can only say what I said before; I never got any official notice, but the street talk and what some of the Directors said at the bank made me pretty sure that the interest would be passed.

Q. I presume that you are attentive to the bond and stock market, and make yourself pretty familiar with the condition of affairs.

A. Yes.

Cross-examination by Mr. Grandin.

Q. What was the market value of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Bonds at the 1st May, 1874, up to the 1st January, 1875?

A. 1st May, 1874, the Bond commanded a pretty fair price. The First Mortgage Sterling Bonds in May, 1874, must have been worth eighty odd cents. The latter part of the year not so much.

Q. State the market value First Mortgage Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in November, 1874.

A. I think after the coupon was off they declined to 70 or 75 cents. The Certificate Bond was worth a little more I think.

Q. You have stated that the value of your holdings was reduced while you held the paper by payments on account of the paper.

A. When the paper fell due it was reduced by partial payments, so that a $5,000 piece of paper was reduced to about $3,700.

Q. Who made those partial payments on that paper to your bank?

A. I think the Railroad. I think it was in the year 1874. In the fall of 1873 and the year 1874.

Q. So that your bank received in cash from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company about $30,000 in the year 1874,

A. I could not have received that. On interest paid and partial payments and all, I think I got about $21,000 or $22,000. For full particulars, I would have to look at my books.

JAMES H. MASSON, Pres't First Nat'l Bank.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 27th March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Henry Hall, a witness summoned at the instance of E. H. Grandin, Counsel for Second Mortgage, says:—

I was and am a member of the Finance Committee of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company about the 1st May, 1874, and down to the present time.

Q. Name your associates on that Committee.

A. Wm. H. Pratt and Moses Waring.

Q. Was not Mr. Duncan a member of that Committee?

A. I never heard that he was. I suppose he was ex officio member. I don't remember whether he was or not.

Q. Did the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in the year 1874, about the middle of that year, own any Mobile County Bonds and Oktibbeha County Bonds?

A. In my knowledge they did not own any Mobile County Bonds and Oktibbeha County Bonds.

Q. Do you know what disposition was made of the Oktibbeha County Bonds?

A. A portion of them were under hypothecation with the Bank of Mobile, a portion with a Bank at Cairo. I think those hypothecations were made before I became connected with the road. I cannot state when they were taken out from under hypothecation.

Q. Can you state whether or not Mr. Pratt had control of any of those bonds?

A. I cannot.

Q. Do you know anything about the purchase by Mr. Duncan or Mr. Pratt of the promissory notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company from the First National Bank of Mobile?

A. The First National Bank sold a great deal of the railroad paper in the summer of 1874, generally doing so through brokers. I know of no purchase by Mr. Pratt. The sale of $25,000 made in New York for Mobile County Bonds in exchange, was represented by the broker there to have been made to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. Please state as to the sale of $25,000 of paper, whether that transaction was on account of the Company or the Company had any connection with it?

A. The Company had nothing whatever to do with it.

Q. Did the Company own any Mobile County Bonds, or have any interest in any manner in the bonds given in said transaction?

A. Not to my knowledge. I never heard of their having any interest in it.

Q. Please state if it was not the fact that the Oktibbeha County Bonds were pledged by the Company with the option on the part of the pledgees to take the same, and was not that the result?

A. Many of them were handled in that way. In reference to those pledged at the Bank of Mobile and Bank of Cairo, I can't remember. I cannot answer positively; I believe that was the result.

Q. Please state whether or not Mr. Pratt was the President of the Bank of Mobile at that time?

A. He was.

(Examination in chief by Mr. Stewart.)

Q. You have stated you were a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company from the 1st May, 1874. Please state whether the Company paid any of the coupons due 1st May and 1st November, 1874?

644 A. They were not paid by the Company nor with funds of the Company.

Q. Please state by whom they were taken up?

A. The coupons presented here were taken up by the Bank of Mobile.

HENRY HALL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 27th March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

The Master announced that conformably with the order of the Court dated February 10th, 1877, extending the time for taking testimony herein to the 1st day of April, 1877, and the period for filing the Master's Report to the 10th of April, he would sit daily, up to and including Saturday, March 31st, for the purpose of receiving such evidence as the parties might desire to lay before him touching the matters referred in the decree of reference in the cause dated March 6th, 1876, and the issues presented thereunder.

Thereupon, the session adjourned until to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

WEDNESDAY, March 28th, 1877, 11 A. M.

Reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel as of the days previous; Alonzo L. Willoughby, witness, recalled and examined by E. H. Grandin of Counsel for the Second Mortgage Trustees.

Q. In the report of the Board of Directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year ending December 31, 1874, there is a statement of the cash resources of the Company for that year, and the disposition thereof. Look at that statement! Tell me, if you can, what County and Convertible Bonds there were that realized by sale thereof, $93,850, which appears to be one of the cash resources of the Company for that year.

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart as being irrelevant to the subject of the objections of Louis Belloni.)

Mr. Grandin stated that he was not appearing now for Mr. Belloni, but for the Trustees of the Second Mortgage. He, however, volunteers to appear for Mr. Andrews, who is Solicitor for Belloni, and to elicit the truth, if possible, for the information of the conscience of the Court.

(Question still objected to on the ground of irrelevancy and the matter not being before the Master.)

A. Most of the County Bonds were of the County of Oktibbeha, Mississippi, and two or three were of Lowndes County, Mississippi. The Convertible Bonds were of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. There were no Mobile County Bonds.

Q. State, if you can, to whom the County Bonds were sold?

A. I cannot at present, from memory.

Q. As to the Convertible, to whom were they sold, and the price, and through whom?

A. I cannot state.

Q. Can you ascertain and state on Friday morning?

A. I cannot state in regard to the Convertible Bonds, as the transaction did not go through my department. I think it can be found on the Auditor's books.

Q. Look at the same statement but on the other side "Expenses," you see an item, interest coupons matured and paid in 1874, $197,970.70. Be good enough to say what interest coupons those were?

A. They were interest coupons on various bonds maturing prior to 1874, as well as I can recollect. The Auditor makes these statements from his books. I do not keep the books of accounts.

Q. Can you throw any light on any of the items in the same statement, particularly the items of interest paid to secure renewal of floating debt, and to prevent proceedings against the Company on the part of holders, $118,346.97; sundry amounts paid in settlement of old judgments, cattle claims, &c., $10,764.92; and paid on account of floating debt to prevent sacrifice of securities belonging to Company, $281,948.85; also, Auditor's warrants to January 1st, 1875, $172,447.96, or must I apply to the Auditor for the light that I want?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to for irrelevancy, for the reason that the general accounts of the Company cannot be gone into in this investigation. These are not in issue.

By Mr. Hamilton—Not only that, but because they are transactions of the Company when the Board of Directors were in full possession of its assets, railroad and management, before possession was taken or demanded by the Trustees, all of which matters are foreign to this reference.

A. I cannot, beyond the Auditor's statement.

Cross-examined by Geo. N. Stewart, Counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q. State, if you please, whether there were coupons of the Second Mortgage due on the 1st March, 1874, and whether they were paid by the Company.

A. I think they were.

Q. You have spoken of $197,970.70 of coupons paid in 1874; was not the amount of those Second Mortgage coupons paid on the 1st March, included in that amount?

A. It includes the payment of the Second Mortgage coupons which were due on the 1st March, 1874, they being of the class of annual coupons.

Q. Were there any coupons due on the 1st January, 1874, due by the Company?

A. I cannot state from memory.

Q. Please state whether or not coupons due before 1874, and payment of which had not been called for, were not, in some cases, paid in 1874?

A. I cannot state the details.

Q. Were any of the coupons falling due on the First Mortgage 1st May and 1st November, 1874, paid by the Company?

A. They were not.

Were any of those coupons of May and November, 1874, First Mortgage, embraced in that item of $97,970.70?

A. No.

Examination in chief by Mr. Stewart, Counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q. Please state whether Duncan, Sherman & Co. were creditors of the Railroad Company on the 1st May, 1874?

A. Yes.

Q, Was the amount due them large or small?

A. Large.

Q. Please state whether Duncan, Sherman & Co., or any members of that firm, were Stockholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company on those dates, 1st May and 1st November, 1874? (Objected to by Mr. Grandin.)

A. I think they were.

Q. Can you state the amount of stock held by Duncan, Sherman & Company?

A. I cannot state from memory.

A. L. WILLOUGHBY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 28th day of March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Thereupon the reference adjourned until Friday morning, at 11 o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Haskins DuPuy, for the production of the stock books and stock registers and stock transfer books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the years 1873 and 1874, and also any other books and papers in his possession as agent of Receivers, showing by and to whom proxies to vote on stock were given in those years.

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart as involving matters not in issue in this investigation, and not pertinent to the issue.)

Objection sustained.

Mr. Grandin objects to the ruling of the Master.

Motion by Judge Grandin for a Subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy for the correspondence, telegrams and entries in telegram books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and its officials, with Wm. Butler Duncan and Duncan Sherman & Co., and any one representing him or them in reference to the coupons on the Company's bonds which fell due in November, 1873, and January, 1874, and also for all books and papers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company containing entries in reference to any advances or claims of Duncan, Sherman & Co., or Wm. B. Duncan, or any one else acting for them or him in the years 1870, 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874 and 1875.

Objected to by Mr. Stewart as being too comprehensive and not appearing to be relevant to the issue before the Master.

Objection sustained.

The ruling of the Master objected to by Judge Grandin.

Motion by Judge Grandin for a Subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy, for the production of the general ledger or any special ledger of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1870, containing the accounts of the Company with Wm. Butler Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., and also for the production of the correspondence of the Company, and telegrams and the telegram books of the Company for that year, containing copies of correspondence by telegram with the same parties; and motion for the books, correspondence and telegram books for each succeeding year down to end, including 1875.

Objected to as being too general, not pointed to any specific matter in issue in this examination, and for irrelevancy.

Objection sustained.

The ruling of the Master objected to by Judge Grandin.

Motion by Judge Grandin for a Subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy, for the production of all correspondence or copies of the same between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and its officials and attorneys on the one side, and Charles Walsh, Alexander Jackson and George H.

650 Young on the other side, in reference to a change in the trusteeship of the First Mortgage, in the year 1875; also, for the production of all papers and resolutions of the Directors of the Company in reference to the same, and also for the production of all papers or copies of the same in reference to the connection of Duncan and Elliot with the trusteeship of the First Mortgage in April and July 1875; also, for the annual report of the Directors for the year 1873.

All these motions for Subpœnas duces tecum for T. Haskins DuPuy, are made by E. H. Grandin on behalf of the Trusstees of the Second Mortgage, and also as representing E. L. Andrews, Esq., Solicitor for the objectors in this cause.

The last motion for Subpœna objected to by Mr. Stewart for being too broad, fishing in its character, irrelevancy to the subject in hearing and not pointing to any specific matter appertaining to the issue.

The objection sustained by the Master and ruling objected to by Counsel.

A. L. Willoughby recalled, added the following to his testimony of Wednesday.

In regard to the County and Convertible Bonds: The County Bonds consisted of (Oktibbeha County)....$6,250
(Town of Starkville) 1,250

Total,......$7,500

which bonds were paid at par to Powers and job contractors who built the Oktibbeha Branch known as Starkville Branch.

In regard to the stock inquired for by Mr. Stewart, Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. and Wm. Butler Duncan appear the owners prior to and during the year 1874, of 9109 shares.

C. A. Wetton recalled by Counsel for Trustees of the Second Mortgage, submits a copy of the General Account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, from April, 1873, to April, 1874.

Mr. Stewart objects to the introduction of the account as irrelevant, and swelling the record unnecessarily.

(Account filed, marked Exhibit D.)

Q. Mr. Wetton, look at the statement of the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and state whether it is or not a true statement of said account as appears by the books in your department?

A. Yes.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart.

Q. Mr. Wetton, we wish to know what was the indebtedness of the Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co. on the 1st May, 1874, and 1st November, 1874. Does the balance of $41,104.80 represent the whole of the indebtedness of Duncan, Sherman & Co. on the 28th February, 1874?

A. No.

Q. In what other sum was the Railroad Company liable to Duncan, Sherman & Co. at the time, and how?

A. In the additional sum of $150,000 secured by notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., and accepted by them, and also secured by $210,000 of Convertible Bonds.

Q. Did that indebtedness continue until after the 1st May and 1st November, 1874?

A. Yes.

Examined by Judge Grandin.

Q. How do you know that the Company owed ~~[illegible]~~ Duncan, Sherman & Co. outside the statements in the account.

A. The $150,000 I have just indicated as a liability of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., is shown by the statement filed. It was a credit by loan on general account. The firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. loaned the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Com-

652 pany one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on general account, for which they were secured by notes of the Company which they held against the Company for the amount so loaned.

C. A. WETTON.

Counsel for Second Mortgage offers in evidence the petition of complainants in this suit to the court in reference to the floating debt and the Master's report on the petition.

(Objected to for the reason those papers are a part of the record in this cause and their introduction here is unnecessary.)

Objection sustained.

P. Hamilton called as a witness for Trustees Second Mortgage.

Judge Campbell and myself are counsel for complainants in this cause. I was present at the argument upon the exceptions to the Master's report on the floating debt.

Q. Do you remember what you said to the court on that subject.

A. Yes, in substance.

Q. Was not the following the substance of all that you and your associate counsel stated to the court in that argument: "May it please the court, on behalf of the trustees and receivers Duncan and Elliott, we submit ourselves to such direction as the court may see fit to make in the premises."

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart as irrelevant to this investigation.)

Objection sustained, answer taken subject to exception.

A. No; what occurred was something like this: The complainants had not filed any exceptions to the Master's report. Judge Jones, on behalf of the floating creditors, desired to treat that non-action as an admission by the counsel for complainant of the propriety of the report. To that I rose and objected, stating in substance, in the presence of my associate, that the application by petition of the trustee's complainant to the court was an application under the orders of the court theretofore made for instruction as to their duty upon the facts set forth in the petition. That, therefore, the report by the Master on that petition was not such a proceeding as required exceptions on the part of the trustees to it. The said trustees had not felt at liberty to recognize the demand of these floating creditors, and therefore had brought it to the attention of the court for its instruction to them, as they were authorized to do by its orders. To this view of the case the presiding Judge assented, and thereupon Judge Jones no longer insisted upon the ground at first assumed, and thereupon I stated in substance that the facts of that claim being now before the court on the petition, the report of the Master and the evidence returned by him, the trustees submitted themselves to the decision and instruction thereon.

Q. Is not Mr. George N. Stewart who appears before the Master for Alexander Duncan's claims, the same Mr. George N. Stewart who appears for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

A. Yes.

Q. Is Alexander Duncan, the claimant, the father of Wm. Butler Duncan, one of the complainants in this cause?

A. I am not acquainted with Mr. Alexander Duncan, but I understand he is the father of Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan.

P. HAMILTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

George N. Stewart called, answered for himself, as follows, to the same questions asked Mr. Hamilton.

In relation to the occasion of the report on the floating debt, I was present in court. My relation in the case was:

I was the general Solicitor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and had been a long time previous, to which was added the duty of attending on behalf of the trustees to the running business of the road in matters occurring along the route, but had no concern as counsel for the trustees in the matters of litigation subject of this suit. When the question came up on the exception made by Mr. Andrews to the report on the floating debt, I spoke to Mr. Duncan on the subject. He said he could take no part in that question, and Mr. Hamilton acted in that sense; the precise language he used I do not recollect, but he took no part in the debate. I myself felt interested for the company in the matter, because there were a great many collateral securities held by floating debt creditors which would be sacrificed. Mr. Jones argued the matter for the floating debt creditors and perhaps for other counsel. I afterwards presented a written argument in the interest of the Company on account of the collaterals involved and in support of the report. As to my position in relation to Alexander Duncan, there is no conflict of interest between Alexander Duncan and the Company. The Company admits fully his right to the coupons in contest as shown by the report on that transaction in this investigation in 1874, and therefore I feel free to press the claims of Alexander Duncan as the company yields its full assent to the same.

Question by Judge Grandin: When you say that the Company admits fully Alexander Duncan's right to the coupons in contest, whom do you mean by the Company?

A. I mean the officers representing its interests and its records from which I draw my instructions as its counsel.

Q. Is there any record of the Company expressly sanctioning the right of the Company to these?

A. The report on the minutes of the Company for 1874, of which a copy is on file in this investigation, I think shows it, and the answers of the Company filed in this court I think show it, and all the instructions I have had corroborate the same position.

Q. From whom did you get your instructions?

A. From the Vice President of the Company who has generally attended here in the absence of the President, to its affairs?

Q. Do you mean Mr. Du Puy?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever get any such instructions from Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan?

A. In all my conversations with Mr. Duncan that state of the question was fully understood and assented to and undisputed. I do not recollect any particular instructions, but all general intercourse was to that effect.

Q. Then it amounts to this, that you and Mr. W. B. Duncan thought alike as to Mr. Alexander Duncan's rights?

A. As to Mr. Duncan's thoughts I infer it to be so from his conversations, and as to my own, I consider it to be very clear with respect to the rights of Alexander Duncan, from all the information I have and from the full proof in the cause.

Q. Were not your instructions from Mr. Du Puy founded upon your opinion as general Solicitor of the Company as to the rights of Alexander Duncan.

A. As to the instructions from Mr. Du Puy I have to say he is very apt to have his own opinions when he gives them. That I certainly did in my intercourse with him, and from my knowledge of the facts, so express myself to him. But as I again say, he is very decided in his own opinions.

Q. Are you or not instructed by any officer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or by the so-called trustrustees and receivers to admit as the attorney for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company that your client, Alexander Duncan, has a right to the coupons proved by him before the Master as purchaser of the same.

656 A. In all papers drawn up by me having full knowledge of the facts, and having had the same before any connection with Alexander Duncan, I would always answer according to the truth and justice of the case as I understood it, submitting the same to the officers of the Company for their attestation, knowing that there was a concurrence of opinion with my own without asking for instructions, expecting my understanding of the facts and rights to be approved and assented to by the officers of the Company who were required to attest the same.

Q. Question repeated.

A. I think I have answered this question substantially by my statement. I understand my position to be in conformity with that of the officers controlling the Company, and therefore consider myself so instructed as to which I presume there is no denial or dissent.

Q. Then this is the situation. You, on your own responsibility, admit for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company the claim of Alexander Duncan, and you infer the assent of the Company to its admission from the silence of its officers.

A. That is not my position. My position is that from the facts of the case the right of Alexander Duncan is complete, as to which in law and fact I have no doubt. I have always so advised before any connection with Mr. Duncan as a client. Such was the concurrent position taken by the directors and officers, and was therefore in conformity with their acts and declarations as the records will show.

Q. What records will show, the records of the cause or the records of the Company?

A. I have referred to the report of the transaction on the minutes, to answers of the Company, and I refer to the books of the Company, by which it appears that the coupons were not paid; by the evidence taken in this cause by the investigations made by the Master of the books of the Company and all the records to which I have access, all concurring to the same result.

Q. Will you be kind enough to refer me to any record of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, showing or tending to show that the coupons of May and November, 1874, were not paid by the Company, but were purchased by Alexander Duncan.

A. I have referred to the records on this subject, including the records in this cause.

Q. Question repeated.

A. That is all the answer I have to make at present from memory without further examination.

Q. Don't you know that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company never in any way, shape or form, notified its stockholders or bondholders in public notorious manner that its coupons of May and November, 1874, were not paid by it with its own revenues but were purchased?

A. That question I cannot answer. I know of no publication to that effect. I knew that from the fall of 1873 it became very doubtful how long the Company could continue to pay its coupons, and from all the information I had, I did not know whether the May coupons would be paid or not. I expected a stoppage of payment, but I do not know how far other persons had information on this subject. I know of no publication to that effect.

Q. Did you have any information as to the financial condition of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the month of December, 1873, the early months of 1874, which was not contained in the published report of the Company for the year 1873, and accessible to the bondholders and stockholders?

A. I had very little knowledge of the financial condition of the Company, as it did not enter in my department of business. I made no questions generally on that subject, and the finances did not come under my notice. I knew that the Company was heavily indebted and embar-

658 rassed, the times becoming very difficult. Persons were constantly asking me if the interest on the bonds were to be paid. I could not answer the question. In New York, in October, 1873, I discovered a good deal of conversation going on in respect to the finances of the Company, and I put the question to Mr. Duncan whether the coupons would be paid. He said he could not tell, but hoped they might be. I had no further knowledge on the subject. I knew that it was in contemplation to endeavor to obtain a renewal of the notes of the floating debt which were to fall due soon after. As it was said they could not be paid.

Q. Do you or not remember that the annual report of the directors to the stockholders for the year 1873 showed a net income for the year of $904,862.99.

A. I cannot recollect the figures. There was every year a surplus over expenses, and that year, I suppose, as well as the rest. If I am right, I believe the net revenue never was equal to expense and interest on the debt.

Q. Who retained you as counsel for Alexander Duncan.

A. Mr. Bangs, of New York, with whom I corresponded on that subject.

Q. Is or is not Mr. Bangs the attorney of Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan?

A. I don't know his exact relation. He has been attorney in this proceeding.

GEORGE N. STEWART.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of March, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Thomas P. Miller, a witness called by Counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees, and affirmed, says:—

Q. Did your firm, in 1874, receive coupons of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for collection?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you collect them and remit the proceeds to your correspondents?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you, in any instance, inform correspondent to whom you remitted proceeds of coupons that his coupons were not paid by the Company, but were purchased by some one else?

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart as irrelevant.)

A. I don't recollect.

The witness directed to examine his letter books and ascertain the facts, and make answer on a future day.

Thereupon, on motion of Counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees and objectors, the reference adjourned until Monday, April 2d, 1877, at 12 M.

United States Circuit Court, Southern District of Alabama, In Equity.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN, ET AL., TRUSTEES,

vs.

THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO., ET AL.

MONDAY, April 2d, 1877, 12 o'clock M.

Session resumed pursuant to adjournment, and under the order of Hon. W. B. Woods, Circuit Judge, dated March 28, 1877, allowing until 20th April, 1877, to Moran Brothers and L. J. Belloni, to adduce further testimony on their contestations. Present, the Special Master and Counsel as of the days previous.

E. H. Grandin submitted the following motion:

I move for an order by the Master, authorizing the taking of testimony as to the matters in contestation before the Master, before any United States Commissioner in the City of New York or elsewhere, on notice given by the Solicitor of L. J. Belloni, or of Amedie D. Moran to F. N. Bangs, Esq., of Counsel for Alexander Duncan, in New York; and that such testimony may be taken either viva voce, or in any other manner that may be agreed upon between the Counsel of the respective parties, expressed in writing, and that such testimony shall be returned to the Master on or before the 20th April, 1877.

E. H. GRANDIN,
for E. L. Andrews, Sol'r for Belloni and Moran.

April 2d, 1877.

Counsel for Duncan and Elliot, Trustees, and Counsel for Alexander Duncan, consent to the issuing of such order, provided it is limited to the terms and scope of the order of Judge Woods of the 28tb March, 1877.

Ordered as follows:

Special Master's Office,
Mobile, Ala., April 2, 1877.

Under the decretal order of Hon. W. B. Woods, Circuit Judge, dated March 28, 1877, upon the petition of Amedie D. Moran and Louis J. Belloni, Jr., extending the time to take testimony upon the matter of their application or opposition until the 20th day of April next, and upon motion this day made by E. H. Grandin, representing E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for Belloni and Moran, and by consent of counsel: It is ordered that testimony as to the matters in contestation upon the ojections filed by Louis J. Belloni and A. D. Moran, may be taken before any United States Commissioner in the city of New York, or elsewhere, on notice given by the Solicitor of said Belloni and Moran to F. N. Bangs, Esq., of Counsel for Alexander Duncan, in New York, and that such testimony may be taken viva voce, or in any other manner that may be agreed upon between the Counsel of the respective parties expressed in writing. It is further ordered, that Alexander Duncan or others, whose claims are objected to, may take testimony in their behalf upon notice, the same in all respects as is allowed objecting parties. And it is further ordered, that all testimony taken under this order shall be restricted within the limits prescribed by the order of the Hon. W. B. Woods, of the 28th March, 1877, and that all such testimony taken under this order shall be returned to the Master on or before the 20th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Motion by E. H. Grandin for a Subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy, agent of the receivers in this cause, and proved to be the custodian of the books and papers of the insolvent defendant corporation, requiring him to produce before the Master forthwith, all correspondence or copies of letters or telegrams, and originals of correspondence or telegrams, between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company or any officer thereof, and William Butler Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the year 1874, in reference to the coupons of the First Mortgage Bonds maturing 1st May and 1st November that year, and also in reference to all remittances made during that year by the Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Objected to by Mr. Stewart, as this subject has already been passed upon by the Commissioner on previous motions, and also, as being a requirement appropriate to a call for discovery and not for a call for evidence; as being general, not specific, irrelevant, incompetent testimony, not proper to be allowed, and that the papers called for are not in possession of the witness as agent or attorney of the receivers as alleged, and because the same is too broad and comprehensive. Objection is made on the part of Alexander Duncan.

The Subpœna duces tecum for correspondence and telegrams relating to remittances to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or Wm. Butler Duncan is denied, except in so far as such telegrams and correspondence pertain to the question at issue.

The Counsel objects to the restriction contained in the preceding order of the Master, and insists that he has a right to all correspondence and telegrams as called for by his motion.

Motion by E. H. Grandin for Subpœna for J. W. Holmes, returnable to-morrow at 11 A. M.

Subpœna issued.

W. B. Duncan sworn and examined, says in answer to questions propounded by counsel for Objector Belloni.

Q. When did you become a director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and how long have you been a director?

A. I became a director in 1871, and have remained a director ever since.

667 Q. In whose name did a majority of the capital stock of the Company stand in 1872? If you can't answer from memory, please refresh your memory by looking at the stock book which is in your custody.

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart, counsel for Alexander Duncan, for irrelevancy, as having nothing to do with this controversy.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded, to which ruling counsel for objector excepts.

Q. By whom and in whose names was the majority of the stock voted in 1872 at the annual meeting? Were not proxies given for a portion of that stock? If so, to whom? If you cannot answer from memory, refresh your recollection by looking at the stock and transfer books now in your custody as receiver. If those proxies for 1872, if there were such proxies, were voted by the persons to whom they were given, under the direction or request of Wm. Butler Duncan, or any person requesting to act for him, or Duncan, Sherman & Co., please state the names of the persons giving such instructions or making such requests, and also the names of the persons so voting on the proxies; also were not proxies, and if so, what amount of stock voted on the annual election of 1872 at the request of Wm. Butler Duncan, or some one indicated in the preceding paragraph of this question, for certain persons indicated by Duncan.

(Objected to by counsel for Alexander Duncan as entirely irrelevant.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded.

To which ruling objector's counsel excepts.

Q. How many shares of stock stood in the name of W. B. Duncan, in that of Andrew F. Elliott, and in that of Wm. Watts Sherman, Francis H. Grain, Alexander Duncan, George A. Leete, and Duncan, Sherman & Co., at the time of the annual election of 1872? Refresh your memory by looking at the stock books for that year, and answer the question. I ask the same question in reference to each of the years 1872, 1873, 1874 and 1875 respectively.

(Objected to for irrelevancy as to all, except as to Alexander Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., in 1874.)

Objection sustained and the ruling excepted to.

Q. What commissions or charges in any and all respects, were made for loans or procuring loans to or from the Company by yourself or Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the years 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874 and 1875? I mean the average per centage. If you cannot state from memory, refresh it by looking at your books and answer.

(Objected to as irrelevant to the question before the court.)

Objection sustained and ruling excepted to.

Q. When did A. Foster Elliot first became director in the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and when did you first become President?

A. In April, 1874.

Q. What changes were made in the Board at the annual meeting for 1874, and at whose suggestion were such changes made?

(Objected to as irrelevant and incompetent.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded.

Ruling excepted to.

Q. Did not Wm. H. Hays, Wm. H. Pratt, Moses Waring and Henry Hall, become directors of the Company at the annual meeting of 1874, and were they not put into the Board at your suggestion or that of some one acting for you?

(Objected to as irrelevant and incompetent testimony.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded.

Counsel excepts to the ruling of the Master.

Q. Is not the Wm. H. Hays, who then became a director, the same Hays who is named in a scheme of certain 669 parties in reference to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, annexed to the deposition of yourself under the commission issued by the Master herein, and were not W. H. Hays, W. H. Pratt and Moses Waring continued as directors at the annual meeting in the year 1875, and if so, at whose instance were they so continued; was it not at your instance, or at the request of some one acting for you?

(Objected to as incompetent and irrelevant, as against the rights of Alexander Duncan.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded.

Ruling excepted to.

Q. Is not the First National Bank of Mobile now and has it not been, from 1874 inclusive, down the present time, a depository of a portion of the funds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and of the funds in this cause?

(Objected to for irrelevancy.)

Objection overruled.

A. It is not now, and I have no recollection of its having been a depository of the funds of the Company or of the trust. It may have been temporarily so, but I have no recollection.

Q. Did not Mr. Beers, the Auditor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in March, 1874, write to you that the floating creditors were absorbing the revenues of the road?

(Objected to as irrelevant and not the best evidence.)

Objection sustained and answer excluded.

Ruling objected to by counsel for Belloni.

Thereupon, reference adjourned until to-morrow at ten o'clock A. M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

TUESDAY, April 3, 1877.

Reference met pursuant to adjournment. Present, Counsel as heretofore.

Examination of W. B. Duncan resumed by E. H. Grandin.

Q. Look at the report of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for 1873, and state whether it does not contain the following under the head of Floating Debt: "The policy of your directors is to retire it at the earliest possible momoment, and their efforts are being especially directed to that end."

(Question objected to by Mr. Stewart for irrelevancy, and if the object is to arraign the conduct of the Board, or any of its members or their proceedings, that subject is not in issue; the right to do so is denied, and, therefore, the question is scandalous and impertinent.)

The counsel for the objecting bondholders objects to the language of the objection as scandalous and impertinent.

A. The extract from the report in the question of the counsel appears in the printed copy of the report for that year.

Q. Did not the annual report for the year ending December 31, 1873, show net receipts after deducting expenses from the gross receipts of $904,862.99?

(Objected to, as the question whether the Company had the means to pay the coupons or not is not material to the subject of whether they did pay them or not. The subject being matter of a public report, the witness may answer or not as he thinks proper.)

A. Such an entry appears upon the printed report of that Company for that year.

Q. Look at Statement A to the same report, and say whether or not it shows in the condensed balance sheet the following entry: "Coupon interest: Coupons of First Mortgage Bonds in 1873, $710,656.50; coupons of Second 671 Mortgage Bonds paid in 1873, $125,383.09, making a total of $836,049.59?"

(Objection by Mr. Stewart as before.)

A. That entry appears.

Q. Does not the same statement contain the following item: "Interest paid on floating debt, $117,527.98"?

(Objected to as irrelevant to the issue.

A. It does.

Q. Does not the same balance sheet contain the following under the head of floating debt: "Bills payable maturing in 1874 and 1875, $1,018,882.45; call loans, New York and Mobile, $147,412.40"?

(Objected to as before.)

A. It does.

Q. Was it not at the annual meeting at which the report and statements referred to were rendered, that you were made President of the Company?

(Objected to for irrelevancy, not material to this controversy.)

* * * * * * * *

A. I do not know whether it was or not. I was not present.

Q. Did the report of 1874—

* * * * * * * *

(Objected to as not the best evidence, the report itself is the best evidence.)

Objection sustained. Said report is printed in part 2, of this testimony.

Q. When did you or your firm, Duncan, Sherman & Co., first claim to officers of the Company that Mr. Alexander Duncan was the owner of these coupons?

A. In May, 1874, we claimed that he was interested in the coupons.

Q. Is that the whole answer?

A. Yes, with reference to the coupons maturing in May, 1874. The Company were aware of his interest in the successive coupons as they matured.

Q. When did Mr. Duncan make the first payment to Duncan, Sherman & Co. on account of said coupons, if he ever did make any such payments; and when did he make the succeeding payments, if he ever made any such?

A. The funds were provided by Mr. Alexander Duncan at the time of or in anticipation of their purchase by Duncan, Sherman & Co., or through their instructions. He did make such payment in that manner, and for the entire cost of the coupons.

Q. What day, or about what day in May, 1874, did Mr. Duncan become possessed of the coupons?

A. If by possession you mean interested in or having any lien thereon, he became so possessed at the time of their purchase or shortly thereafter.

Q, I mean manual possession, either by himself or his agent?

A. If Duncan, Sherman & Co. may be considered his agent in holding these securities for his account, he held them at that time.

Q. Are you able to tell the price in the market of New York of Mobile and Ohio Sterling Bonds, with or without the certificate on the first day of each month in 1874, and of the first days of each month in the year 1875, from January 1st to June 1st inclusive, if so, please state it?

(Objected to as irrelevant, and not bearing upon the question of the payment or non-payment of the coupons.)

A. I am not.

Q. Is the W. H. Hays who testified under the commission issued by this Master, the same Hays who is referred to in the item of Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s account with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, April 30, 1874: "Paid note W. H. Hays & Co., $40,000"?

A. He is.

Q. (Same question as to G. T. Bonner, as to entries of the same date): "Paid note $10,000 and $133.33"?

A. He is.

Q. What is the meaning of the following entry (page 59, part 2), November 26, 1874: "Interest on Tennessee Substitution Bonds $10,832 33." Was that an amount paid by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, through your firm, to bondholders of that kind for interest due July 1, 1874, or January 1, 1875?

(Objected to as having no relation to the coupons now under consideration.)

A. It may have been a remittance on account of previous advances made on account of Tennessee Substitution Bonds, but without reference to the books I cannot answer definitely.

Q. Is not the G. A. Leete, named in the entry 30th and 31st December, 1874, the same Leete who is agent of Alexander Duncan, who proved certain coupons in this case?

A. He is the same George A. Leete who loaned the money there in stated and who proved the account.

Q. What is the meaning of the entry, December 31, 1874: "Interest collected on Company bonds, $1,021?"

A. Simply a counter entry, interest account having been previously charged with the amount. It represents the interest collected on the various securities of the Company, belonging to the Company.

Q. What charge per year or month, or otherwise, for forbearances of money did Duncan, Sherman & Co. make to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. That depended on the value of money at the time advances were wanted. It varied from simple interest to a higher rate. Sometimes it went as high as 1 per cent. a month. But at such times the Company could not have got the money at any rate, certainly not, except at a very much higher rate than that.

Q. Is not $75,000 of First Mortgage Sterling Bonds the entire interest of Alexander Duncan in the bonds of this road. If not, what is his interest in the bonds and what class of bonds?

(Question objected to as it relates to the present time, and therefore has no bearing on this controversy. The record in this case shows the amount of bonds proved by him and the date when proved.)

Objection sustained, the witness not obliged to answer, and answer excluded.

Ruling excepted to by Mr. Grandin.

Q. In your testimony taken in New York, contained on page 16, part 3, of the proceedings of this reference, you testify "a list of the coupons so acquired was also made and given to Mr. Alexander Duncan on transferring the coupons to him, the correctness of such list has been certified to by the Special Master, before whom the coupons have been proved by Mr. Alexander Duncan." When and by what instrument, and after notice to what attorneys, did the Special Master so certify?

A. The Special Master in New York received the coupons, compared the same with the list submitted, and the representative of Mr. Duncan made proof thereof before him.

Q. Please look at this book and state whether it is a correct copy of the "Proceedings of the Twenty-Sixth Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, held in the city of Mobile, April 21, 1874"?

A. I believe it is. I was not present however.

Judge Grandin offers the book alluded to in evidence, and requests that the Master mark it as an exhibit and attach it to Mr. Duncan's evidence as an exhibit. He does not require the printing thereof.

Mr. Stewart, on behalf of Alexander Duncan, objects to the report as relating to matters which transpired before the originating of the subject of this controversy, and that it is irrelevant and immaterial to the determination of this issue and encumbering the record with voluminous and useless matter.

(Objection sustained, the report appears to have no relevancy to the objections filed by Mr. Belloni.)

Objection withdrawn, and the report is therefore considered in evidence subject to all legal exceptions.

Q. Was not the letter you addressed to the Master in reference to the objections to Alexander Duncan's coupons written after you had seen a copy of this circular. (Handing witness a circular as follows, and referring to a letter addressed to the Master certifying the objections of L. J. Belloni to the coupons of 1874, printed on page 5, part 1, of this testimony.)

Circular of Moran Brothers, H. Amy & Co. and others.

"Office of Mortgage Bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co., November 24th, 1876.

To the Creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company:

The undersigned, owners of First Mortgage Sterling Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company have duly considered a circular signed by Messrs. William H. Hays, William S. Pierson and T. Haskins DuPuy, accompanying a Plan of Reorganization of said Company, which has been submitted to us for our signatures.

The object of this Plan can only be, it appears to us, to further the interests of the inferior securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, at the expense of the First and other Mortgage Bondholders. After a careful examination we believe it to be most unjust to our interests as holders of those Bonds, and we respectfully call the attention of all the parties in interest, to the following simple statement of facts, and the conclusions drawn from them by us. The facts are mostly taken from the records of the Courts having the present custody of the property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and hence, cannot be denied.

Messrs. William B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot have been for several years Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. The former was the head of the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co. of this city, and the latter the New Orleans agent of that house. For about a year before the default of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company on the interest of the First Mortgage Bonds, Mr Duncan had been President of the Company, and still acts as such President.

In April, 1875, shortly before the default in the payment of interest, Messrs. Duncan and Elliot claimed to become trustees of the First Sterling Mortgage, Mr. Duncan, at the time, being already a trustee for the so-called Tennessee Substitution Bonds, and likewise for the Consolidated Mortgage Bonds. Immediately, upon the default, which transpired in May, 1875, the Directors surrendered possession of the entire property of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan and Elliot, as trustees for the First Mortgage Bondholders. A few days afterwards, Duncan and Elliot filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court for Alabama, and were invested by said Court with the powers of receivers of the property. Since that time Duncan and Elliot have administered the property, through the agency of T. Haskins DuPuy.

The Floating Debt Claims.

On or about the 9th day of April, 1876, the Floating Debt creditors of the Company applied to the United States Court, for the sale of $550,000, (five hundred and fifty thousand dollars) of securities, belonging to the First Mortgage, and the application of the proceeds in liquidation of their claims.

W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot claiming to represent the First Mortgage Bondholders offered absolutely no opposition to this demand.

The sole defence of the interests of the First Mortgage Bondholders was made on behalf of Mr. Morris Ketchum, as surviving trustee of their mortgage, aided by some of the Bondholders. Without this timely action on the part of Mr. Ketchum, it is clear that the Court would have been led to grant the order in favor of the Floating Debt Claimants, which would, in effect, have appropriated our property for the benefit of other persons. Indeed, the lack of all opposition on the part of the First Mortgage Bondholders, other than as above stated, was urged on the Court as an acquiescence by the Bondholders generally, in this appropriation of their property. Fortunately, however, the scheme was entirely defeated, and the United States Circuit Judge sustained Mr. Ketchum in his opposition on our behalf.

The assets, amounting to more than half a million dollars of securities, thus saved for our benefit, we should seek to have applied to the payment of our over-due coupons. The strange proceeding of the Floating Debtholders, and the absence of all defence on our behalf by W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, warn us of the necessity of a proper representation of the First Mortgage Bondholders.

ALEXANDER DUNCAN'S CLAIMS.

In their proceedings by bill filed in the United States Circuit Court, Messrs. Duncan and Elliot declare that the coupons of the First Mortgage Bonds which fell due in May and November of 1874, which had been paid to the Bondholders, were still out-standing and subsisting First Mortgage liens on our property. These coupons were presented and were paid in the same manner in which all previous coupons had been presented and paid. It was generally supposed, and every one had a right to suppose, when they were paid and surrendered, that they ceased to be a part of the First Mortgage. Nevertheless, it was claimed about the time of the default in 1875, that these coupons were out-standing liens on the property, and they now reappear mainly in the hands of Mr. Alexander Duncan, father of Mr. William B. Duncan, who claims them by assignment from Duncan, Sherman & Co., to the extent of nearly ($736,000) seven hundred and thirty-six thousand dollars. It is claimed that these coupons should participate in our Mortgage, and, to the same extent, reduce the value of our bonds. These coupons were paid in the regular and usual way, and they should not be paid again, at least with our consent. Dead and paid coupons cannot be revived in this way to eat up the Mortgaged property. If this should be submitted to, the payment of Mortgage interest can always be turned into a loan to the Bondholder, to be deducted from the amount of his Mortgage. We cannot consent to any Plan of Reorganization which proposes to take this three-quarters of a million dollars from the Mortgage Estate, as does the Plan offered under date of October 12th, 1876, which purposes to include all coupons "whose original due date named therein shall not be later than November 1, 1877."

THE TENNESSEE CLAIMS.

In the various proceedings before the United States Circuit Courts, W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot admit that certain claims called Tennessee Substitution Bonds, hold a priority over the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, on the 118 miles of the main line running through the State of Tennessee. In addition, a distinct suit in the United States Circuit Court of Tennessee was instituted in the name of William B. Duncan, Adrian Iselin and R. T. Wilson, as Trustees for these Tennessee Substitution Bonds, to enforce in their favor a priority over the First Mortgage Bonds. The sole representatives of the First Mortgage Bonds served with notice of these legal proceedings in Tennessee, were Duncan and Elliot, who claim to represent the First Mortgage Bonds as Trustees. No defence, whatever, was made by them in this action, and the consequence was that a decree was obtained, by default, against the First Mortgage, and an order of sale of the Tennessee section of the road was entered for the benefit of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, leaving the First Mortgage Bonds only such balance, if any, as might remain. The excuses offered by W. B. Duncan to palliate his conduct in this matter, and his efforts to avoid the effect of his laches, cannot countervail his express admissions in favor of these subordinate claims, and against the First Mortgage.

Now, in fact the First Mortgage is a first lien on the entire line, the lien formerly created to protect the advances made by the State of Tennessee to the Company having long since been satisfied by the return to the State of its Bonds to the full amount of the advances made by the State. It is true, there was an attempt to assign the State's lien, after its liquidation, to the holders of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds; but as these bonds were created long after the First Mortgage Bonds, and were issued only after the full liquidation of the advances of the State, and as they are entirely different in nature from the cancelled State Bonds, these new Substitution Bonds cannot obtain a priority over the First Mortgage Bonds, by any arrangement between the Company and its subsequent creditors.

But even assuming that the Substitution Bonds are entitled to the benefit of the satisfied and extinct lien of the State of Tennessee, the proposed plan of reorganization gives them an advantage over the First Mortgage Bonds, entirely unwarranted and unjust: The First Mortgage Bonds are for £225 Sterling each, payable in London, equal to $1,100 Gold, or $1,200 Currency. These Bonds are proposed to be admitted into the reorganization only for the sum of $1,000, and they are allotted only $440 in the new First Mortgage Bonds for each Sterling Bond; whilst the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, which cannot claim more than $1,000 currency under the State lien, are allotted $625 for each $1,000 bond. And the past due coupons of these Bonds are admitted into the proposed reorganization at $36 each, although only entitled to claim under the State lien $30 in currency.

In fact, these various proceedings are simply attempts to give an unjust priority over the paramount rights of the First Mortgage Bonds, to the following claims:

Floating Claims..................................	$ 536,000
Alexander Duncan's Claims....................	736,000
Tennessee Claims..............................	2,018,028
Total Loss to Mortgage Bondholders.........	$3,290,028

Those who favor or passively submit to the priority of these various claims over the First Mortgage Bonds, appeal to the current, well-founded, objection against litigation in the Courts. But, if litigation continues, on whom shall the blame fall? on those who defend their just rights, or on those who attempt to secure an undue and unjust advantage over prior liens? In all events, we shall, henceforward, take good care that the property and assets are fairly managed and applied for the benefit of the parties entitled to them.

In our judgment the property should be promptly taken out of the Courts and placed under the direct administration of the Mortgage Bondholders and their representatives; and we sincerely believe that an effort by the Bondholders to protect themselves against the foregoing claims, and to reorganize the property in their own interest, while treating all the various other interests with the utmost liberality, will meet with the same success that attended the resistance to the priority over the Mortgage Bonds sought to be obtained by the Floating Creditors.

In case of the sale of the road on foreclosure, it would probably not bring the amount of the First Mortgage. It therefore rests entirely with the First Mortgage Bondholders to determine the conditions on which they will admit the junior securities to participate in the purchase.

We suggest and recommend to our fellow-Bondholders, and to all other parties in interest, to unite with us, in order to effect on the following terms, which appear to us equally just to all the various parties in interest:

I. Obtain from the Court an order for the application to the payment of our overdue coupons, of the assets which it was lately attempted to apply to the payment of the Floating Debt Creditors.

II. Release the property from the hands of the Court, by the sale of the entire line, from Mobile, Alabama, to Columbus, Kentucky. At such sale the property to be purchased for the benefit of all the securities of the present company—and the purchasers to reorganize the company in accordance with this Plan.

III. The reorganized company to create and issue new securities as follows:

(a). Six per cent. Bonds, payable, principal and interest, in gold, secured by a First Mortgage on the entire line from Columbus, Kentucky, to Mobile, Alabama, and on all the property, rights, franchises and lands acquired by the purchase for account of the reorganized company; said Bonds to be issued in exchange for the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, and for the Interest Bonds, and for the unpaid coupons on those bonds, which matured on and after the first of May, 1875. We propose to admit the Interest Bonds on the same basis with the First Mortgage Bonds, because the old First Mortgage coupons are held in trust for the benefit of the holders of the present Interest Bonds.

(b). First preferred Income Bonds bearing seven per cent. interest, non-cumulative, and payable only when earned, to be issued in exchange for the present Second Mortgage Bonds, and for unpaid coupons to March 1, 1878.

(c). Second preferred Income Bonds, bearing seven per cent. interest, non-cumulative, and payable only when earned, to be issued in exchange for the present convertible Bonds and unpaid coupons, to March 1, 1878.

(d). Third preferred Income Bonds, bearing seven per cent. interest, non-cumulative, and payable only when earned, to be issued in exchange for the Tennessee Substitution Bonds and unpaid coupons, to January 1, 1878.

(e). Fourth preferred Income Bonds bearing seven per cent. interest, non-cumulative, and payable only when earned, to be issued in exchange for the Consolidated Bonds.

(f). Surplus Income Bonds bearing seven per cent. interest, non-cumulative, and payable only when earned, to be issued in settlement of Floating Debt.

COMMON STOCK.

To be issued to the amount of the present Common Stock, but to be held and voted on by the Trustees of the New First Mortgage until interest on all the above Bonds has been paid out of nett earnings for three successive years. Thereupon, the certificates to be assigned to the present stockholders or their representatives.

We are satisfied that the property is amply able to meet the amount of First Mortgage interest called for by the above plan, and that the charter rights will be unimpaired by a sale for our benefit.

The holders of all the securities other than the First Mortgage, who do not accede to this Plan within a time to be limited by the Purchasing Committee, will be debarred from participating in the purchase and reorganization.

In order to consummate the above Plan of Reorganization without unnecessary delay, we request all the creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to return signed, the accompanying Power, addressed to Committee of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Bondholders, 68 William Street, New York.

MORAN BROTHERS,
H. AMY & CO.,
ARENTS & YOUNG,
LOUIS J. BELLONI,
WILLIAM SALOMON, Executor.

POWER OF ATTORNEY.

The undersigned holders of securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, now revoking all other powers, do hereby request and authorize Moran Brothers, H. Amy & Co., Arents & Young, Louis J. Belloni, William Salomon, to act on our behalf in the election of a Purchasing Committee, composed of two First 681 Mortgage Bondholders and one Second Mortgage Bondholder, who shall have the preceding plan carried into execution, by final decrees of the Circuit Courts of the United States, and by purchase and reorganization thereunder; and who shall take any and all proceedings deemed by them advisable in furtherance of said Plan, which shall not be effectual until approved by a majority of the First Mortgage Bondholders. After the reorganization on the foregoing basis, the possession of the road to be delivered to the directors who may be selected by a vote of the First Mortgage Bondholders controlling the stock of the Company under the foregoing Plan.

NAMES AND ADDRESS.	CLASSES OF CLAIMS.	AMOUNT.

N. B.—The Bondholders and other parties in interest may send this power to the signers of the above Plan, or to any other person they may desire to entrust with their interests."

A. The circular of Mr. Moran appears to be dated 24th November, and my letter to the Master was dated 10th November and filed the 15th, consequently before I had seen a copy of this circular.

Q. When did you first see a copy of Mr. Moran's circular?

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. Shortly after it was issued.

Mr. Grandin asks that the circular of Moran Bros., dated November 24, 1876, be attached to the evidence of the witness.

(Objected to as irrelevant, being of subsequent date to the transactions.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Stewart, counsel for Alexander Duncan.

Q. I believe you have heretofore testified that Duncan, Sherman & Co., on the 1st of May, 1874, and 1st November, 1874, were creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; was not such the case?

(Question objected to as not a cross-examination, and as asking the witness to testify to what he has already testified, and as encumbering the record unnecessarily and enhancing the cost of this proceeding.)

A. Yes.

Q. Were they also stockholders of the Company at those dates?

A. Yes.

Q. Were they also bondholders of the Company at those dates?

(Question objected to as not a cross-examination.)

A. They were.

Q. Was Alexander Duncan a bondholder on the 1st May and 1st November, 1874.

A. He was.

Q. Was Alexander Duncan a holder of the coupons in controversy for value paid by him?

(Question objected to, on the ground that it is not a cross-examination, and is asking witness to repeat answers already given by him, encumbering the record and swelling the expenses.)

A. He was.

Q. Was it for full and adequate value?

A. It was for the entire cost thereof.

Q. You have been asked as to the report of the proceedings of the Company of 1873, presented 21st April, 1874, please state if you had anything to do with the preparation of that report?

A. I had nothing whatever to do with the preparation of that report.

Q. Did you take any part in the management of the property of the Company as narrated in said report in 1873, and were you in Alabama during those proceedings?

(Objected to as no cross-examination.)

A. I did not in the active management. I was not in Alabama during that year.

Q. Please state how the note of $40,000 was paid, as referred to in the question as to Mr. Hays?

(Objected to as not a cross-examination, and on the ground that any evidence as to the payment of that note is totally irrelevant to this issue.

A. It was paid by a sale to Mr. Hays by the Company of $50,000 Convertible Bonds at eighty.

Q. (Same question as to note of Bonner.)

(Same objection.)

A. This note was paid in like manner, by a sale of Convertible Bonds at eighty.

Q. The question has been asked as to George A. Leete. Please state who holds the note referred to, and whether it has ever been paid by the Company?

(Same objection.)

A. The note which was an advance made to the railroad by Mr. George A. Leete was not paid by the Company, but was paid for account of the Company by Duncan, Sherman & Co., and forms a part of the balance still due by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q. You have been interrogated as to advances on money and rate of interest charged by Duncan, Sherman & Co. Please state where those advances were made?

A. Invariably in the city of New York.

Q. Please state if you published this circular in reply to the circular of Mr. Moran?

Circular as follows:

"NEW YORK, Nov. 27th, 1876.

To the Creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad:

I beg respectfully to submit the folllowing reply to the circular dated November 24th, 1876, and addressed to you by Messrs. Moran Bros. and others, but which may, however, with more propriety be called the circular of Mr. Charles Moran.

My apology for replying thereto is, that my motives and actions as trustee of the first mortgage are unjustly impugned in said circular, though it claims in its preamble to be simply a consideration of the agreement of reorganization, dated October 1st, 1876, under which Messrs. Hays, Pierson & DuPuy are constituted a committee, and under which you are requested to deposit your securities, subject to the control of such committee, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of said agreement. Mr. Moran states that "the object of this plan can only be to further the interests of the inferior securities at the expense of the first and other mortgage bondholders," whereas the agreement itself was only perfected by the representatives of a large number and amount of the first mortgage liens, after careful consideration and subsequent conference with the representatives of the Tennessee Substitution bonds, the latter claiming a first lien on the 118 miles of the road in the State of Tennessee.

That I have been a director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad for several years, and that Mr. Elliot, the resident partner of my late house in New Orleans, is also a director, is true; it is equally true that I have been the president of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad since 1874; and that, in April, 1875, the then trustees of the first mortgage, Messrs. Jackson & Young, having resigned, I and Mr. Elliot were appointed to fill their places, in strict accordance with, and in the manner prescribed by, the deed of trust of the first mortgage. Mr. Walsh, the remaining trustee, resigning, left Mr. Elliot and myself sole trustees.

It is also true that, as such trustees of the first mortgage, we demanded of the Company the custody of its property, in the manner and for the reasons provided for in the deed of trust, and that, in compliance with such demand, the property of the Company was delivered to us. Subsequently, in pursuance of our duties as trustees, we filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court for Alabama, and applied, under such proceedings, for the protection of the court, which was granted us, and we were constituted the receivers of said court and granted all the powers and protection which such an important authority could give to us.

It is also true that we have administered the property through T. Haskins DuPuy, who, in addition to his other duties in charge of the road, has acted as our attorney and agent.

I confidently assert that my action in the manner above described and its prompt execution rescued your interests from utter chaos then, and has since kept them intact, and your property in a state of constantly increasing efficiency,

The insinuations with reference to my action as trustee in the matter of the "Floating debt claims" are absolutely untrue. It is true that an application was made to the court by the holders of the floating debt. The application was previously made to me as receiver. In reply, I distinctly stated that I had no power in the premises, but consented, as was my duty, to refer their demand to the court, and ask its instructions. The amount of the floating debt was about $550,000. The court appointed a master to take proof as to its nature and lien. The master made his report in due course, the details of which I do not recollect; but in substance he recommended the court to authorize the settlement and compromise of so much of said debt as was unsecured at not exceeding twenty per cent. of its face value. A part of the floating debt is secured by a pledge of first and second mortgage bonds, the face value of which is largely in excess of the amount for which they are pledged. This he recommended should be compromised so as to prevent the sacrifice by forced sale of the securities, thereby increasing the amount of outstanding first liens without adequate consideration. The court heard all parties on this report of the master, and decided adversely to it.

Neither I nor my counsel had any question that the court would or could decide otherwise, except possibly with reference to the settlement of the debt secured by first and second Mortgage liens and so advised the counsel of the claimants. The latter, however, insisted on my submitting their demand for the decision of the court.

They appeared by counsel, who argued their case. Mr. Ketchum, did not appear; he was not a bondholder, and it had been decided. that he was not a trustee. Mr. E. L. Andrews appeared, I believe, for a bondholder. I do not think his argument influenced the court in the slightest, or changed its decision in the matter. I was personally present with my counsel, who did all needful to protect the interests of the Trust I represent.

There were no securities amounting to "$550,000 belonging to the first mortgage," which it was proposed to sell, unless reference is here intended to be made to the first and second mortgage bonds above mentioned, which were pledged long before the commencement of the proceedings, with power of sale to the holders in default of payment of the obligations which they secured. Neither the Company nor the receiver had any securities at their disposition or which they could sell.

The designating claims for unpaid coupons as "Alexander Duncan's claim," and the parading of his name in large type to attract attention, I refrain from noticing.

The bill filed by the trustees of the first mortgage states that the coupons for 1874 are outstanding which is in accordance with the facts as shown by the records and books of the Company. The court is open to all claimants equally in this as in other disputed claims to assert their own, or contest the claims of others.

The trustees of the second mortgage in their answer to the original bill have, at the instance of certain holders of the second mortgage bonds, entered their protest against these coupons; and lately, Mr. Belloni, one of the signers of Mr. Moran's circular, requested me, as trustee of the first mortgage, to protest for him against these coupons. I promptly did as requested by Mr. Belloni, and certified to the master and to the court his protest.

Mr. Moran states that if these coupons were paid and surrendered, they ceased to be a part of the mortgage; the converse must therefore follow, if they were not paid by, and not surrendered to the Company; and Mr. Moran's insinuations that these coupons have ever been even temporarily in the possession of the Company, and that they have been made to "reappear" and that they have been "dead and paid, and cannot be revived," are gratuitous and declared by the holders of the coupons to have no foundation in fact.

That Mr. Moran or any other person interested has a right to appeal to the court in this matter is no more true than that the holder of the coupons has also the right to maintain his claims, and to resist attacks upon them.

As to the "Tennessee claims," In the proceedings in the United States Court, the trustees of the first mortgage admit, with reference to the Tennessee lien, only what the deed of trust, under which they act does.

A bill was filed in the United States Court, in Tennessee, by the trustees of the Tennessee substituted bonds; this bill was intended as auxiliary to the bill in Mobile.

The decree referred to as having been obtained by default, is not a valid decree; it was obtained without my knowledge or consent; I obtained an immediate stay in its execution; I have made no "excuses;" I have committed no "laches;" and this decree, if persisted in, will have no other effect except temporarily to delay and impede.

The rest of Mr. Moran's remarks on the Tennessee lien may be all true, and yet they are strenuously denied by the holders of the Tennessee bonds, who are acting under the advice of the best and ablest counsel.

Mr. Moran finally foots up an imaginary loss of over $3,000,000, which he proposes to save, by wasteful, tedious and expensive litigation.

Among the most important questions to be settled before a decree, determining the rights of parties can be had, are:

1st. The claim of the Tennessee bonds to a first lien for principal and interest, amounting to say $2,000,000 upon the 118 miles within the State of Tennessee.

2d. The claim of the second mortgage trustees that the interest arrearage bonds do not have priority over the second mortgage, involving say $3,000,000.

3d. The claim of the second mortgage bondholders to priority over all the other mortgages, upon certain parts of the property of the Company.

4th. The claims of the holders of the unpaid coupons of 1874 to priority of payment, with interest; and numberless other minor claims and disputed questions.

Even if a decree of sale could be obtained before these conflicting claims can be determined (which is very improbable), no valuation can be placed upon any security of any grade, and therefore no sum can be fixed at which any particular security can be turned into court on account of the purchase money; and, therefore, the property will have to be sold absolutely for cash, and thus be at the mercy of speculators, and the meagre proceeds of the sale will have to remain for a long period undivided.

The question is put by Mr. Moran as to who "will be responsible for litigation?" Certainly not those who have proposed a scheme which substitutes compromise for litigation. On the other hand, the responsibility will fall upon those who reject compromise, and who propose a plan which, if practicable at any time, will become so only at the end of long and complicated law suits.

Mr. Moran's own question suggests the vital difference between the two plans. One is based upon the idea of compromise, and of keeping alive the present corporation, with its valuable privileges and exemptions, on which subject I understand the United States Supreme Court has recently rendered a very important decision. The other is based on the idea of giving everybody his legal rights—no more—no less. But before any one can have his legal rights, it must be ascertained what they are, and the process of ascertainment is necessarily costly and tedious, and often results in settling abstract principles with a total consumption of the substantial thing in dispute. What satisfaction will it afford first mortgage bondholders years hence to have established a rule of law at the expense of all practical advantages?

Mr. Moran says "in his judgment the property should be promptly taken out of the courts, and placed under the direct administration of the bondholders." This is the object of the plan of October 1st, 1876; and the question is, what are the most practicable means of accomplishing this desirable end? Continued litigation keeps the property in court; compromise takes it out of court.

Mr. Moran, while criticising in words the plan of October 1st, actually appropriates some of its leding features, while giving them different names. He contemplates the creation of an obligatory burden of $9,000,000 and upwards, in the shape of a first mortgage. The plan of October 1st, 1876, while making equally secure provision for the same classes of creditors, makes the obligatory burden of less amount, and thus affords additional guaranty against again falling into the hands of the court. He makes substantially the same provisions for floating debts which is made by the plan which he objects to.

The plan which is outlined in Mr. Moran's circular, the practical details of which he asks creditors to leave to his discretion, does not invite the co-operation of holders of detached coupons, nor of Tennessee Substitution Bonds. But any successful plan must be worked out, either through their friendly co-operation, or against their determined hostility. Mr. Moran's plan, omitting as it does, their co-operation, necessarily invites their hostility.

The plan of October 1st, 1876, disavows their hostility, and secures their co-operation, but involves no more sacrifice on the part of first mortgage bondholders than Tennessee bondholders, and first mortgage coupon holders think that they meet with equal sacrifices.

I have thus endeavored to hastily answer the statements and insinuations contained in the circular to which this is a reply. So far as the execution of my trust is concerned, I feel every confidence in submitting my actions to the closest scrutiny of parties interested. The conduct of the legal proceedings are under the management of my counsel, the Hon. John A. Campbell, of New Orleans, formerly one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, and of the Hon. Peter Hamilton, of Mobile, assisted by additional counsel at distant points, when exigencies may require. My aim, as an officer of the court, in the management of the property itself and its business, is to bring it to a state of efficiency, and maintain it in that condition, that when it shall be, by the action of the court, restored to its owners, it may be found in a much better condition than when I received it, and in a condition to enter at once upon a career of prosperity, which I feel confident will follow the settlement of the questions that have distracted the States through which it runs, and the restoration of business generally throughout the country.

Under the agreement of October 1, 1876, the committee inform me that First Mortgage and Tennessee hondholders have already become parties, and have transferred their bonds to the committee to the amount of over three millions, seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, without estimating any unpaid and matured coupons.

I remain, respectfully yours, W. BUTLER DUNCAN."

(Objected to as not a cross-examination.)

A. I did.

Q. Please state whether the circular presented as issued by Mr. Moran, was changed and amended or corrected after the reply made by Mr. Duncan, and how it was changed?

A. My reply of November 27th was to the circular as handed to the Master. I have since that date seen circulars similar to the circular of November 24th, with several of the names of the parties, appearing on said circular, erased. Whatever other changes I don't know.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

James W. Holmes, a witness summoned at the instance of objecting bondholder, sworn and examined by E. H. Grandin, says:

Q. Were you a holder of First Mortgage Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad in 1874, and what amount?

A. I had eight of the Sterling Bonds and three Interest Bonds.

Q. Did you in May and November, 1874, present the coupons cut off of your bonds?

A. I did, and presented them in person.

Q. When did you last present your coupons?

A. At the last time they paid them.

Q. What is the oldest unpaid coupon on your bond?

A. I can't tell without looking at them.

The witness requested to examine his bonds and whatever books or records he has, and refresh his memory.

Q. Did you ever on presenting coupons to the Treasurer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or at the office of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, see any notice that the Company was not paying its coupons?

A. I never saw any such notice.

Q. Did you not believe when you delivered your coupons the last time when you presented coupons, that the same were paid and satisfied and ceased to be a First Mortgage lien on the property?

(Objected to by Mr. Stewart as involving the belief of the witness instead of the facts.)

A. I had no reason to believe anything else; I never made any inquiry. I thought the earnings of the road paid the interest.

Q. Were you ever notified in any manner at any time that you presented coupons for payment, that your coupons were not going to be paid, but were going to be purchased by somebody else for the Company?

A. I never had any intimation of that kind. I remember at one time the Treasurer, Mr. Willoughby, detained me some time, eight or ten days, and stated that the Company was pressed.

Q. When did you last present coupons for payment ?

A. November, 1874.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart :

Q. Have you any recollection of the particulars of the mode and manner of the payment of the coupons of the 1st May, 1874, and of the 1st November, 1874 ?

A. Nothing particular. I cut off my coupons and got my money.

Q. Did you collect coupons previous to the year 1874 ?

A. Yes ; I always collected them myself.

Q. Did you discover a difference in the mode of payment of 1874 from what had been practiced before that time ?

A. If there was I don't recollect ; there may have been some difference, I may have gone to the Bank of Mobile or to Mr. Miller ; I can't answer from memory.

Q. Previous to the year 1874, were you not paid by Mr. Willoughby at the office, either by money or by his checks on banks or bankers ?

A. I think it's more than probable I was. I can't recollect ; I did not charge my memory with it.

Q. Previously to 1874 did you not surrender to Mr. Willoughby at the office your coupons when he settled for them ?

A. Yes : I always left them there. I've no recollection of going any where else.

Q. Please state whether in 1874 Mr. Willoughby did not give you back your coupons in an envelope and direct you to go to the Bank of Mobile for payment and surrender them to Mr. Gale ?

A. I have no recollection of it. It may be so. I have no recollection of it. I got my money, but did not charge my memory with how I got it.

Q. Did you not take the coupons in an envelope to the Bank of Mobile and surrender them there, and there receive payment for them in the year 1874?

A. I am not able to answer that question, my memory fails to serve me.

Q. Are you prepared to say that in 1874, Mr. Willoughby paid you any money at the office?

A. I am not able to say, as I have no recollection.

Q. Are you prepared to say that in 1874 Mr. Willoughby or anybody at the office gave you any check on the Bank of Mobile, or any one else, for the payment of those coupons of 1874?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you receive any gold on any of those coupons in 1874?

A. I had one gold bond. I don't think I received any gold, but that they calculated the price of gold and gave me the currency.

Q. Who made the calculation as to the value of gold, and when was it made, and was it not made by Mr. Gale as teller of the Bank of Mobile in 1874?

A. I can't say; I have no recollection.

Q. Can you say that as to the coupons of 1874, you did not deliver them to Mr. Gale at the Bank of Mobile?

A. I can't say I did not. I have no recollection.

Q. The result is, as I understand, that you have no particular recollection of the mode and manner of payment of the coupons of 1874?

A. Yes. J. W. HOLMES.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of April, 1877. JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Thereupon, on motion of E. H. Grandin, of counsel for Objecting Bondholder, the hearing was adjourned until Monday, April 16, 1877, at 11 A. M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

MONDAY, April 16th, 1877, 11 o'clock A. M.

Session resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master, George N. Stewart, Solicitor for Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and for Alexander Duncan, P. Hamilton, of Counsel for Trustees and Receivers, and E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for objecting bondholders.

E. L. Andrews, as Solicitor for Moran Brothers, moves for a Subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy as already granted in reference to the Tennessee Substitution claims. Page 7 of part 4 of these minutes will specify the Subpœna more particularly.

It appearing from the minutes of the previous session (page) that said Subpœna was issued and obeyed, and that E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for Second Mortgage, representing objecting bondholders, agreed with the other Counsel present that the Tennessee matter was coram non judice and therefore declined to proceed with the examination of the evidence brought by Mr. DuPuy, the Master declines to proceed further in said matter now, except it be shown that said consent was not on behalf of said objecting bondholders. And said Grandin stating in writing to the Master, that his waiver was intended only in his capacity as Counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees, and that he did not act in said matter as Counsel for objecting bondholders, Belloni and Moran, the Subpœna is granted returnable at 11 A. M. to-morrow.

E. L. Andrews moves that the minutes be so amended as to make it appear that a separate objection and exception was made by Counsel for objecting bondholders to each and every ruling of the Master. Amendment allowed.

E. L. Andrews moves that all questions put by Judge Grandin in respect of the coupons of 1874 on behalf of the Second Mortgage Trustees, be held and taken, with all the examination thereon, as if propounded by Counsel for contesting bondholders. Motion allowed.

Mr. Andrews—Motion for Subpœna duces tecum to T. H. DuPuy, to bring all the books and papers containing the resolutions passed in 1874, probably between March and May, 1874, surrendering all or nearly all the securities then held by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or Wm. Butler Duncan, or W. H. Pratt, or any other person or persons acting on behalf of Duncan, Sherman & Co., or W. B. Duncan.

Objection by Mr. Stewart, on the ground that the books have already been gone through with by the Master and the resolutions shown.

Subpœna granted.

Exception taken by Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Andrews—Motion for a Subpœna duces tecum to W. H. Pratt, President of the Bank of Mobile, to produce all entries and extracts from the books and papers of the said Bank of the accounts with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1874, in reference to deposits of moneys and warrants by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or any one acting for it, and also of charges against said deposits and warrants in course of account.

Mr. Stewart—Objected to, as Mr. Pratt has been fully examined as to his knowledge of the coupon matter, and has produced what was called for at the time.

Subpœna granted for the accounts called for either by original or attested copy.

Ruling objected to by Mr. Stewart.

Moses Waring called as a witness by Counsel for objecting bondholders.

Mr. Stewart objects to the examination of Mr. Waring, on the ground that he has been already examined on this reference and been discharged as a witness.

Witness sworn. Examined by E. L. Andrews.

Q. You acted in getting a number of holders of unsecured claims against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to extend their time of payment of their clams in 1874?

Mr. Stewart—Question objected to for irrelevancy.

A. I got the floating paper extended.

Q. Was not that floating paper in part unsecured?

Question objected to for irrelevancy.

A. The paper holders had no security but the notes. I never heard of their having any security at that time.

Q. Did you not express to persons in the City of Mobile dissent or objection to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. rendered to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in which they charged as paid, some thousands of dollars, about twenty-five thousand, of notes or drafts in 1874, out of moneys remitted from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or obtained by Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

Mr. Stewart—The Counsel is called upon to state the object with which that question is put and the matter in issue which he expects to prove thereby.

Mr. Andrews states reasons.

Mr. Stewart asks if the question is for the purpose of impeaching the credibility of the witness.

Mr. Andrews—No.

Mr. Stewart—The question is objected to for irrelevancy and incompetency. Motion to exclude the answer.

S. M.—Objection sustained and answer excluded. Objection and exception to ruling entered for Mr. Andrews.

Q. Was there not an arrangement made by the Company with a large part of floating creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1874, whereby thay extended the time of payment of paper of the Company, and which extension was upon the faith and understanding with the parties so extending, that no payments of floating claims or paper of the Company should be made to any of the holders thereof?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to as vague, uncertain, indefinite, and irrelevant, and motion to exclude answer.

Objection sustained and answer excluded. Exception by Mr. Andrews.

Q. Did not Duncan, Sherman & Co., in violation of the arrangements made by the Company with the floating creditors, appropriate moneys received by them on account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to account of unsecured claims held by them in 1874?

Objected to by Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Stewart, because it assumes an arrangement or agreement of which there is no proof, and for irrelevancy and incompetency, and motion to exclude answer.

Objection sustained, answer excluded. Exception taken to ruling.

Q. Were you present at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1874?

A. I don't recollect.

Q. Were you elected a director of the Company at a meeting of the stockholders held April 23, 1874, or by the stockholders?

A. I was elected by the Board in January, 1874, to fill a vacancy, and at the next election by the stockholders, I think in April, 1874.

Q. Who voted a majority of the stock at the meeting of April, 1874?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to for irrelevancy and motion to exclude. Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews objects and excepts to the ruling.

Q. Did not W. B. Duncan exercise control of the financial policy of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1874, or were not his recommendations in reference thereto generally followed by the Finance Committee, and also his recommendations in respect of the disposition of the revenues and resources of the Company?

Objected to by Mr. Stewart as irrelevant and incompetent, and for vagueness and uncertainty.

A. Mr. Duncan was elected President in spring of 1874. He was not here at the time. His recommendations were generally followed after he was elected President and accepted. He did not accept until he had conditions about it.

Mr. Stewart—Answer objected to as evidence.

The same question as to between January 1, 1875, and May 8, 1875. Same objection as to last question.

A. His suggestions were generally adopted by the Board.

Answer objected to by Mr. Stewart as evidence.

Q. Can you state by what payments and to whom the floating debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company standing at $1,166,492.19 on December 31, 1874, was reduced from that amount on May 8, 1875?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to for irrelevancy and incompetency. Motion to exclude. Objection sustained and answer excluded. Ruling excepted to.

Q. Were not a part of those payments made to Duncan, Sherman & Co., and if so, what part?

A. I did not know of any part of the floating paper that I had anything to do with that was paid to Duncan, Sherman & Co. All I had to do with, was in Mobile; I had nothing to do with what was abroad.

Q. I did not ask you about payments on the paper which you had to do with. Were payments made to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or did they receive moneys of the Company and apply them on account of floating claims held by them in 1875 as above?

A. There was a resolution passed in 1874. I don't know what amount of money was paid to Duncan, Sherman & Co. after January, 1875. The directors don't examine the detailed business of the office.

Q. What were those resolutions passed in 1874, to which you refer?

A. I don't recollect the wording of the resolution, but 697 it's on the minutes. It's in regard to turning over the earnings and other things of the company to secure moneys already paid and to be paid.

Q. By whom and to whom paid ?

A. I can't recollect; the resolution passed by the Board will show that. I cannot recollect the wording of the resolution, whether it was Mr. Duncan, or Duncan, Sherman & Co. The resolution, I presume, sets the whole thing out.

Mr. Stewart—Answer objected to as not being the best evidence of the fact.

Q. What class of securities is referred to by the item in the report at the meeting of April 20, 1875, when you were director of the Company, to the following effect: "Paid on account of Floating Debt to prevent sacrifice of securities belonging to the Company."

Objected to by Mr. Stewart for irrelevancy, as we are not examining the transactions or accounts of the Company in their general business.

Objection sustained.

Ruling excepted to.

Q. Are you familiar with the prices M. & O. R. R. Co.'s 1st Mortgage Sterling bonds or certificated bonds ?

A. Never bought any, nor ever sold any. I don't know anything about them, except what I hear in the street.

Motion by Mr. Andrews for a subpœna duces tecum for T. H. DuPuy, for all books and papers Mobile and Ohio Railroad, including correspondence and telegrams in the year 1875, between January 1st and May 8th, with Duncan, Sherman & Co. or W. B. Duncan, or any one for them, in reference to the payments made to, or moneys had by, Duncan or Duncan, Sherman and Company, on account of notes or drafts, or any floating liabilities, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Mr. Stewart—The defendant calls upon the Counsel to state what facts he expects to prove by the documents called for.

Subpœna objected to. The books have been examined previously, and Mr. DuPuy has been examined and discharged. The motion appears to be in the nature of fishing testimony, and in the nature of a discovery, and therefore not revelant or proper.

Mr. Hamilton objects to the granting of the subpœna, for the reason that it is incompetent to inquire into the accounts and transactions of the Company the mortgagor in possession before the trustees entered into possession.

Subpœna granted.

Mr. Andrews—Same motion as to the books and papers of 1874.

Allowed.

Mr. Andrews—Motion for subpœna duces tecum for all books and papers containing entries relating to First Mortgage interest or coupons (Sterling bonds) between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and Duncan, Sherman & Co. in 1874.

Mr. Stewart—Objected to, as the same is of a fishing nature, in the nature of a discovery, irrelevant, and that the same have been heretofore produced and examined by the Special Master.

Subpœna allowed.

Mr. Andrews—Same motion for 1875, from January 1, 1875, to May 8, 1875.

Objected to as before.

Subpœna granted for entries as to coupons of 1874.

Mr. Andrews—Same motion for books and papers of the year 1873, in reference to the payment of interest on Sterling bonds of First Mortgage.

S. M.—How are the books of 1873 relevant to the coupons of 1874?

Mr. Andrews—A large part of the revenues of 1874, as appears by the testimony before you, were applied to pay Duncan, Sherman and Company a claim on coupons falling due in 1873. We want to show whether those coupons of 1873 had not been already once paid to the bondholders.

Mr. Stewart—Objected to. The books required do not pertain to the matter in issue, being the objections made by Belloni.

Objection sustained.

Exception to ruling by Mr. Andrews.

Mr. Andrews—Motion for subpœna duces tecum for T. H. DuPuy, for stock register and ledger of 1874.

Subpœna refused. Exception by Mr. Andrews.

Motion for subpœna duces tecum to T. H. DuPuy, to bring any record of proxies to vote on stock of 1874.

Subpœna refused. Exception taken.

Motion for Stock Register of 1875.

Refused, and exception taken.

Same motion by Mr. Andrews as to proxies of 1875, and same ruling and exception.

Thereupon reference adjourned until to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

SUBPŒNA.—In the Circuit Court of the United States, Fifth Judicial Circuit and Southern District of Alabama.

W. B. Duncan, et al., Trustees, vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, et als.

To T. Haskins DuPuy:

You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned Special Master, in the above entitled cause, at his office, in the U. S. Court Room, in the City of Mobile, on Tuesday, the 17th day of April, at 12 M., then and there to testify, and the truth to say, according to your knowledge, in the matter of W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot, trustees, vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and others, wherein Messrs. Moran Brothers, of New York City, have filed objections to the bonds known as Tennessee Substitution Bonds.

And you will bring with you "all the books and papers, with the minutes of the Board of Directors of said corporation defendant, in reference to the transaction whereby the said Company took up the bonds issued in aid of the construction of its railroad by the State of Tennessee, and substituted therefor its own bonds, commonly called Tennessee Substitution Bonds."

Attest this 16th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Received Marshal's office, 16th April, 1877. T. Haskins DuPuy not found in my district.

GEORGE TURNER, U. S. Marshal.
By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

SUBPŒNA.—Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of Alabama, In Equity.

Wm. Butler Duncan et al., trustees, vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company et al.

To Wm. H. Pratt, President of the Bank of Mobile:

You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned Special Master in the above entitled cause, at his office in the United States court room, in the Custom House, in the city of Mobile, at 11 A. M., on Wednesday, April 18, 1877, then and there the truth to say in the matter of the objections of L. J. Belloni, in the above entitled cause.

And you will bring with you all entries and extracts from the books and papers of the said bank (or copies of the same) of the accounts with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1874, in reference to deposits of moneys and warrants of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company or any one acting for it, and also of the charges against said deposits and warrants in course of account.

Attest, this 17th April, 1877:

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Received Marshal's Office April 17th, A. D. 1877, executed upon the 17th day of April, 1877, by serving a copy of the within subpœna upon W. H. Pratt.

GEORGE TURNER, United States Marshal.
By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

TUESDAY, April 17, 1877.

The session resumed at 11 A. M., pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Master and Counsel, as of the days previous.

E. L. Andrews—Motion that evening sittings of this reference be held for the remaining four days of the time and that the sessions commence at 10 o'clock A. M., and that subpœna duces be returnable at 9 o'clock for the convenience of examining books. I make the above motion distributively.

Mr. Stewart—We object to it, having other matters to attend to.

The Master declines to make any order now, but will regulate the proceedings from day to day as the circumstances may seem to require.

E. L. Andrews—Motion for a subpœna duces to W. H. Pratt, President of the Bank of Mobile, to produce coupon accounts for 1874 of First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, with Duncan, Sherman & Co., and with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Mr. Stewart—We deny the authority to make such order, but as it does not concern us we object only on account of the costs of this order.

Subpœna granted.

E. L. Andrews—Motion for subpœna duces to T. Haskins Du Puy, or A. L. Willoughby, or C. A. Wetton, to produce the original or orignal entries of the copy or purported copy of the account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with Duncan, Sherman & Co., commencing on the debit side of the account with April 16, 1873.

(Account referred to is Exhibit D to C. A. Wetton's testimony filed. See Part 4, last pages.)

Mr. Stewart—Objected to, because a copy under oath has been called for and furnished, and because the evidence would be incompetent and irrelevant, not within the issue on hearing.

Objection sustained.

Mr. Andrews offered a motion to the Master to state reasons. The Master declined to make other entry than that already made.

Mr. Andrews—Motion for subpœna duces to Mr. Willoughy and Mr. C. A. Wetton returnable forthwith, for the same papers and books called for by the subpœna to Mr. Du Puy as to the Tennessee matter, which subpœna has been returned not found as to him.

Mr. Andrews moves that all other subpœnas moved for to Mr. Du Puy, be made to apply to Mr. Willoughby and Mr. Wetton.

Mr. Stewart objects to the granting of said motion, the books and papers called for having already been produced.

Motion granted.

A. L. Willoughby, a witness, called at the instance of the objecting bondholders, being sworn, says in answer to questions by Mr. Andrews.

Q. If you desired to look at the books called for by the subpœnas for any purpose connected with the business of the railroad, could you not obtain access to them?

A. I could.

Q. You will please obtain such access to them and bring copies of the accounts?

A. I am forbid by Mr. Du Puy from making any copies or taking any books out of the office without his orders, as my superior officer. I am a subordinate officer. This is a standing rule.

Q. Is Mr. Du Puy in the city of Mobile?

A. I think not.

Q. Where do you think he is?

A. I think he is in New Orleans, as he told me two or three days ago that he expected to go there.

Q. When did he go there, or when did he leave Mobile?

A. I think he left on the morning train.

Q. Who represents Mr. Du Puy in his relations with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad during his absence from the city at the present time?

A. The General Manager being also absent from the city, no one represents him, and if he were here I do not think that Mr. DuPuy has delegated any powers.

Q. Are Duncan and Elliot, or either of them, in the City of Mobile?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Are either of them along the line of the road.

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Do you think they are?

A. I do not. I have no knowledge.

Q. Mr. Willonghby, Mr. Duncan, and Mr. Elliot, and Mr. DuPuy, and the General Manager, being all absent, suppose you wanted instructions, which it was indispensable to have, without delay, to whom would you go in the City of Mobile to get those instructions?

A. I would not go to any one.

Q. Do I understand you, that if the business of the road were suffering for want of directions from any of its officials, and you could not otherwise get those directions, that you would not go to any one in the City of Mobile to get them?

A. In my department. I do not know of any one in the City of Mobile that I could get instructions from in my department.

Q. What books are kept in your department?

A. I keep the cash book as Treasurer, and the minute and stock books as Secretary of the Company.

Q. Then will you or not produce before this Master, at two o'clock to-day, the minute book containing the entries for 1874, and the cash book for the same time, it appearing by your own testimony that you are now the superior officer in the City of Mobile in charge of those books, if you are subpœnaed so to do?

A. I cannot do so for reasons already given.

Q. Who is the chairman of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad?

A. There is no Executive Committee.

Q. Who is next in order of the administration of the corporation after the Vice President?

A. I should judge that the chairman of the Finance Committee, who is W. H. Pratt.

Q. Who is next in rank under the present administration after the General Manager?

A. The heads of departments.

Motion by E. L. Andrews for subpœna duces tecum to Wm. H. Pratt and C. A. Wetton for the Tennessee Substitution papers called for in the subpœna heretofore granted to T. H. DuPuy. Subpœna granted.

On motion, recess taken for one hour, until 2 P. M.

SUBPŒNA.—Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of Alabama.

Wm. Butler Duncan, et al., vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, et al.

To Wm. H. Pratt, Chairman Finance Committee; and to C. A. Wetton, Auditor, M. & O. R. R. Co.:

You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned, Special Master in the above entitled cause, at his office, in the U. S. Court Room, in the Custom-house, in the City of Mobile, at 2 P. M. this day, then and there the truth to say, in the matter of the objections of Moran Brothers in the above entitled cause.

And you will bring with you "all the papers and books, with the minutes of the Board of Directors of said corporation defendant, in reference to the transaction whereby said Company took up the bonds issued in aid of the construction of its railroad by the State of Tennessee, and substituted its own bonds, commonly called Tennessee Substitution Bonds."

Attest, this 17th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Received Marshal's office April 17, 1877, and executed same day by serving a copy on W. H. Pratt and C. A. Wetton. GEORGE TURNER, U. S. Marshal.

By C. B. JOHNSTON, Deputy.

2 o'clock P. M.

C. A. Wetton, witness called for objecting bondholders and sworn, testifies:

Q. Have you got the books and papers named in the subpœna with you?

A. I have not. They are not in my custody.

Q. Have you access to them, or any of them?

A. I have not.

Q. What books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad have you access to?

A. General books; general ledger.

Q. Why have you not produced the general ledger containing entries as to this Tennessee Substitution matter?

A. I have no authority to produce any of the books in my office; they are simply in my care.

Q. By what right do you disobey the mandates of the Circuit Court of the United States by refusing to produce books in your care?

A. The subpœna served upon me calls for all the papers with the minutes of the Board of Directors. Such books, and papers and minutes are not in my care.

Q. You notice a comma after the word books; do you mean to say that you understood the subpœna to apply only to the minutes of the board?

A. No.

Q. What did you understand?

A. I understood it to mean all the papers and books with the minutes; none of those are in my care.

Q. Is not the General Ledger in your care; is not that a book?

A. It is, but it contains only the account—a transcript of which the Master has.

Q. Then it appears you did understand that the word hooks included a ledger?

A. I supposed it did not.

Q. You understand we want a ledger, and a general ledger, as well as particular ledgers, and we want the accounts of R. T. Wilson & Co., and R. T. Wilson and A. Iselin & Co. and A. Iselin with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the years 1870, 1871 and 1872.

A. I do.

Q. When will you produce before this Master those books or papers containing the original entries in these accounts, and such entries as may be made in those ledgers, or will you produce them at all?

Mr. Stewart—Question objected to. On a former occasion those books were produced here and accounts furnished. We recognize no right to have them called for again. The accounts having been already before the court, and for the further objection that there is no right to ask a witness what he will do on a future occasion. It will be sufficient time when a subpœna requires him to answer.

Special Master—Mr. Wetton, what we want is, all information in your custody or control relative to the Tennessee Substitution matter. You will therefore produce either the original entries and accounts or copies of the same—if copies, to be sworn to by you—at your earliest convenience.

E. L. Andrews moves, that the Master having instructed the witness that we need only produce sworn copies of the accounts, that the instruction be altered to require the original books and papers.

Motion refused.

Mr. Andrews—Exception and objection taken.

The Witness—I decline to answer what I will do in the future, as I am guided by the orders of my superiors.

The Master directs the witness to produce from his records, transcripts of all accounts and information pertaining to the transaction by which the bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company were substituted for the bonds of the State of Tennessee, said accounts to be produced tomorrow at 12 M.

W. A. Garnett being sworn, examined by E. L. Andrews on behalf of L. J. Belloni, objector.

Q. You purchased Mobile and Ohio Railroad Sterling Bonds subsequent to November 1, 1874?

A. Yes.

Q. You recollect about what time in November?

A. I could not give specific dates.

Q. Have you purchased any subsequent to November, 1874?

A. Yes.

Q. Were the coupons which fell due on May 1 and November 1, 1874, attached to those bonds which you purchased after November 1, 1874?

A. My recollection is that they were not.

Q. Did you purchase any of those bonds on account of other persons?

A. Yes.

Q. If you have no objection, will you give me their names?

A. It would be almost impossible without looking at my books.

Q. Will you please look at those books and let us know to-morrow.

A. Yes.

Q. Do any of the persons for whom you purchased those bonds subsequent to those dates, now hold them?

A. I don't know.

Q. Can you find out?

A. I have no means.

Witness discharged until to-morrow.

Wm. H. Pratt duly sworn, examined by Mr. Andrews on behalf of objecting bondholders.

Q. Judge Jones informed the Master that you were going out of the city, will you have those accounts with Duncan, Sherman & Co. and with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, called for by the subpœna, here to-morrow?

A. No. I won't furnish the accounts unless I am present. There is no one in the bank that can explain the accounts as truly as I can. I am satisfied there is no one in the bank who is capable of explaining them. The present cashier and book-keeper were not here at that time.

Q. We don't ask for any explanation of the accounts, 709 we merely wish the accounts themselves; with this understanding will you not have them to-morrow?

A. I will remain to-morrow, and on that condition will submit the account.

Q. Have you the books and papers called for by the subpœna of this date, in reference to the Tennessee Substitution matters.

A. I have not. I have no control over them.

Q. You sign checks in the absence of Duncan, Elliot and Du Puy, do you not?

A. I have signed checks very rarely, but it is not customary. I think in all the three years I have, perhaps, signed half a dozen. I may have signed one or two for Mr. Du Puy as agent for Duncan & Elliot, the receivers, only in the absence from the city of the agent of the receivers.

Q. You have access to these books?

A. I have not sought access to them. I suppose as a director I might have access to them, but I suppose even then the Vice President might refuse to show them even to a director, except to a committee appointed by the whole Board.

The witness states that, on further reflection, he will decline to furnish any accounts from the bank.

Q. At whose suggestion have you so suddenly changed your mind in reference to furnishing the accounts?

A. On my own. I have talked with no one. It did not occur to me at the time that the by-laws prohibited me from furnishing such accounts.

Q. Then you refuse to obey the subpœna?

A. To that extent I do.

E. L. Andrews moves the Master that he instruct Mr. Pratt to furnish the papers called for by the subpœna.

Thomas P. Miller, a witness called for L. J. Belloni, sworn and examined, says :—

Q. Did you purchase any of the First Mortgage Sterling Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company after 1st November, 1874?

A. Yes, as late as 1875.

Q. Those that you bought after November 1, 1874, did they have the coupon as late as November, 1874, attached to the bond?

A. Not usually. As a general rule they were cut off.

Q. Did you not buy them for other persons?

A. We generally bought them on orders, but rarely though.

Q. Can you remember the names?

A. We kept no particular record.

Q. Do you remember the price of Mobile and Ohio Railroad First Mortgage Sterling Bonds, without the coupons, for May and November, 1874?

A. They were about 90 in 1874—that's my recollection; they might have got under 90 toward the end of the year.

Q. What was the price of them in May, 1875?

A. After it became known that the road could not pay interest they fell down at first to 50, afterwards 45, then 40, and down as low as 30. It took about a year or a year and a half before they reached 30 after falling to 50.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart :

Q. Has there not been a terrible panic in the money market in this country of late, and about when did it occur?

A. It commenced in the fall of 1873.

Q. Was there not a general depreciation and great fall in stocks and bond markets of all kinds?

A. Yes.

Q. Was not the depression very great in 1875 and 1876?

A. My recollection is that there was a great reaction in 1874. The greatest depression was in 1873.

711 Q. Was there not a great depreciation in value of all kinds of stocks, bonds and values in 1875, from what they had been before?

A. My recollection is that there was no great depression in railroad bonds and stocks except the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. I remember, in the fall of 1873 the Mobile and Ohio Railroad bonds were down to about 70, and in 1874 they reacted favorably.

Q. Has there not been a great depression of late years in railroad bonds and stocks generally?

A. I think so.

Thereupon the reference adjourned until Wednesday, April 18th, 1877, at 11 A. M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

WEDNESDAY, April 18th, 1877.

Reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present the Master and Counsel as of the day previous.

A. M. Phillipi, a witness called for objecting bondholders, sworn, testifies in response to questions by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Have you purchased Mobile and Ohio Railroad Sterling Bonds since Nov. 1, 1874, or since May 1, 1874?

A. I have no recollection; perhaps I might tell by looking at my books. I have looked at my books, and find I have purchased since 1874.

Q. Did the bonds which you purchased have attached to them the coupons of May and November, 1874?

A. No. I don't think they had any attached of 1874 at the time I purchased, which was March, 1875.

H. F. Wilson, a witness summoned in behalf of objecting bondholders, and sworn, testifies as follows:

Q. Did you purchase any First Mortgage Sterling Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company since Nov. 1, 1874?

A. Not on my own account.

Q. Then you did on account of others?

A. I acted as broker.

Q. Did those bonds have the coupons of May and November, 1874, attached?

A. As a rule I think they had all the coupons that were in default.

Q. About when did you purchase them?

A. I could not tell without looking at my books.

Q. What do you mean by saying that the bonds had all the coupons which were in default attached?

A. I mean that the unpaid coupons since the road ceased to pay interest were attached.

Q. What was the last coupon attached to the bonds?

A. I think it was May, 1875.

By Mr. Stewart:

Q. You don't know who paid the coupons of 1874, or under what circumstance they were paid?

A. No, I do not. H. F. WILSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th April, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

John W. Miller, witness called on behalf of objecting bondholder, and sworn, testifies as follows in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Andrews:

Q. You presented coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for payment in 1874?

A. I presented them up to the time that the Company defaulted I think; I don't remember exactly when it was.

Mr. Stewart—We object to the examination of this witness, as he has been examined before and been discharged.

Q. Did you see any notice at the office of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in the City of Mobile, in November, 1874, in reference to the coupons of the Sterling Bonds?

Mr. Stewart—The question objected to, as the subject of presentation of coupons at that time has been previously the subject of examination of this witness.

A. I did not go to the office. We sent our coupons by same runner who took them to the office to be passed upon by Mr. Willoughby to see if they were correct, when we could get the money somewhere else.

Q. How did you know that you would not get the money for them?

A. We had the understanding that Duncan, Sherman & Co. were paying them through the Bank of Mobile. I don't know how I got the impression at the time. I suppose it was through my father.

Q. Did you hear a few moments ago said to you by Mr. Stewart, counsel here present, that you had better consult your lawyer before you furnished testimony requested by me?

A. Something to that effect. There were two persons speaking to me at the same time, and I did not catch the full sense of Mr. Stewart's remark. He said I had better consult some one.

Q. Messrs. H. Amy & Co., of New York, sent you coupons of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for May, 1874, for collection?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the letter now shown to you, which reads as follows:

(Copy) MOBILE, May 7, 1874.

Messrs. H. Amy & Co., New York:

Gents.—We have received your favor of the 30th with stated enclosures and note contents. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad are only paying $32.50 each gold, for ex-certificate sterling coupons.

a correct copy of a letter addressed by your firm to H. Amy & Co.?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to as relating to transactions between other parties, and not competent evidence in this transaction. We are not responsible for what may be written by outside parties to each other.

A. Yes.

JOHN W. MILLER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of April, 1877. JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Mr. Stewart reserves the cross-examination until to-morrow.

C. A. Wetton, witness, called at the instance of objecting bondholder and sworn, says:

Q. Do I understand, Mr. Wetton, that you certify to the correctness of this paper (referring to the account marked D, to your testimony taken at previous session—Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in account with Duncan, Sherman & Co. for 1874)?

A. I do.

Q. Did you copy this account from the books?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you compare it with the books?

A. I did.

Q. Will you swear that all the items entered under date of December 31, 1873, are so entered under that date in the books of accounts, and if so, in which book of account?

A. They are. The General Ledger and Journal of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

C. A. WETTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th April, 1877.
JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Motion by E. L. Andrews—That under the decree in this cause, the Master requires the production to him of the various accounts and books for which he has already granted subpœna duces and which have not already been complied with.

715 Also, motion for subpœna duces tecum for the production of the telegrams and correspondence with R. T. Wilson and A. Iselin.

Also, roll with the numbers and series of Tennessee State Bonds that were deposited with the State.

And books and papers of the defendant corporation and minutes of Board of Directors, so far as the same pertain to the Tennessee matters.

Also, original accounts received from R. T. Wilson and A. Iselin.

Subpœnas granted for above and for all books, papers and records or information, so far as the same pertain to the Tennessee Substitution matters. Subpœnas returnable April 19th, at 12 M.

E. L. Andrews—Motion for the originals of the accounts transmitted by Duncan, Sherman & Co. to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in 1874 and in 1875, down to May 8th of that year.

Motion refused. Sworn transcripts of the accounts down to January, 1875, having been already furnished, the witness C. A. Wetton, Auditor of said railroad, is directed to produce sworn copies of the balance of the account to May 8, 1875, without further notice.

Wm. H. Pratt, witness summoned at the instance of objecting bondholder Belloni, appears in response to subpœna duces tecum with the coupon account required of him.

Q. Explain item, "November 13, by transferred from individual ledger $45,885.45."

A. That was an amount standing on the individual ledger to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Co., deposited by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and transferred erroneously by the book-keeper to the coupon account on the general ledger. The amounts should have been held subject to the drafts of Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New Orleans. The error was corrected in the accounts sent to

Duncan, Sherman & Co. (Coupon account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. with the Bank of Mobile, filed with this testimony as Exhibit A.)

Q. You were chairman of the Finance Committee Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company throughout the months of May and November, 1874?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it intended by the directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in May and November, 1874, that any inability of the Company to pay the coupons for those periods on the First Mortgage Bonds should be publicly known?

A. I speak for myself. Of my own knowledge there was no intention to conceal it from the public. I believe it was intended it should be known.

Q. What was done (if it was intended it should be known) to make it publicly known by the directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. There was no publication by the press or any written notice that I am aware of.

Witness, of his own motion, states: I did advise parties who held coupons that Duncan, Sherman & Co. had authorized me to take up the coupons for account of whom it might concern.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether the bank was fully paid by Duncan, Sherman & Co. for all the coupons of those two months in 1874 taken up by the bank, and if any portion was paid by the Company?

A. The bank was provided with funds by Duncan, Sherman & Co. to pay the coupons, and none were paid by the Company.

Re-examination by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Please explain the items, "January 23, 1875, by transferred to account Duncan, Sherman & Co. $26,242.09."

A. That amount was for coupons paid, being the balance of the coupon account at that date which was charged to Duncan, Sherman & Company's private account.

Cross-examination resumed by Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether the item of $45,885.45 mentioned as transferred from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's account to the credit of Duncan, Sherman & Co., was for the payment of coupons, or to what business did it relate? Please explain the transaction.

A. It was not deposited for the payment of coupons. The bank had other means at hand to pay the coupons. At that very time the bank had in its possession certainly one hundred thousand dollars, if not more, of cash securities for sale for account of Duncan, Sherman & Co., with which to pay the coupons.

Q. Please state if it was not a general transfer to their credit, as frequently practiced in their accounts?

A. No. There was no other similar transaction.

Q. Please state whether it was correctly or erroneously made by the book-keeper?

A. It was erroneously made by the book-keeper.

THURSDAY, April 19th, 1877.

Reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Special Master and Counsel, as of the days previous; also E. H. Grandin, of Counsel for Second Mortgage Bondholders and trustees.

N. Harleston Broun, a witness, summoned by E. L. Andrews, apppeared and was discharged.

John W. Miller, witness called yesterday and examined by E. L. Andrews, recalled and cross-examined by Mr. Stewart:

Q. In the letter produced by you we find the expression that "the Company are only paying $32.50 gold for the Ex-certificate Sterling Coupons." Do you undertake to say that the Company did pay any of the coupons due 1st May, 1874, and 1st November, 1874; and do you not know that those coupons were not paid by the Company?

Mr. Andrews—Objected to on the ground that it assumes that the witness has stated that the Company had paid the coupons, which he has not stated. He was called merely to identify a letter.

Answer taken subject to objection.

A. They were not paid by the Company; the Bank of Mobile paid those coupons for Duncan, Sherman & Co. They, Duncan, Sherman & Co., held the coupons as collateral for the payment, as I understood; I did not write the letter. I did not care to sit down and write the explanation to Amy & Co.

Q. I understand you to state that that was the information you had at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Please state how you obtained that information, and from whom?

A. I had a conversation with the Teller of the Bank of Mobile, and asked him how he reimbursed himself for these coupons. He said by drawing on Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New York, and he sent them the coupons.

Q. Please state whether the house of T. P. Miller & Co., Bankers, at Mobile, did not pay a large sum in gold on those coupons of May and November, 1874, and if so, at whose instance and under what arrangement?

A. We agreed to furnish the Bank of Mobile so much gold to pay these coupons. When parties presented coupons to the Bank of Mobile, payable in gold, the teller of the bank gave his check on us for the gold. These coupons referred to above were paid in that way by check on ourselves.

Q. Was not that gold paid at your bank or office?

A. Certainly. As soon as these checks amounted to $3,000 or $4,000 they paid us back in currency.

Q. Was not Thos. P. Miller, your father, cognizant of the facts you have stated as well as yourself, and did he not have the same information?

A. He was. He made the arrangement with the Bank of Mobile to furnish the gold.

Re-direct examination by E. L. Andrews:

Q. Why did you not write the explanation, as you have called it, in answer to the question by Mr. Stewart, to Amy & Co?

A. We received Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's coupons from thirty or forty different parties; I don't recollect how many. I did not care to write to all our correspondents this explanation, as it would take too much time.

Q. Then I understand you, that no such explanation was written by your house to any of the parties for whom you collected coupons?

A. I have no recollection of seeing any such letter. I usually saw pretty much all the letters that were written.

JNO. W. MILLER.

O. F. Cawthon, a witness called at the instance of objecting bondholder, and sworn, testifies as follows:

Examination by Mr. Andrews.

Q. You purchased First Mortgage Sterling Bonds Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company after November 1st, 1874?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to as irrelevant.

A. That is my recollection; it might have been in 1875.

Q. Did they have the coupons for November and May, 1874, attached to the bonds when you purchased them?

Mr. Stewart—Question objected to as irrevelant.

A. My recollection is that they did not.

Q. Do you still hold those bonds?

A. No.

Q. Who did you sell them to?

A. I don't know. I sold them through a broker, Mr. Garnett.

Testimony of George W. Dougherty, Charles E. Thorburn, J. N. Petty, and Caleb Oliver, witnesses on behalf of Objector Belloni, and of W. B. Duncan, witness in support of claim of Alexander Duncan, taken in New York city, before E. L. Owen, United States Commissioner, received by mail, published and filed.

T. Haskins Du Puy, a witness, summoned in behalf of objecting bondholders, Belloni and Moran, sworn and examined, says in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Have you produced the books or any of them called for by the subpœnas duces tecum?

A. I have the minute books here, and will produce any other books and papers that bear upon the case as soon as I am informed what books and papers you want. And I would suggest, to facilitate the examination and to give you all the information you want, that if you will adjourn the examination to my office at the railroad, it will facilitate matters very much. The information called for from me is not in my own knowledge, having happened long before my connection with the road. I know nothing about many of the matters called for, and cannot find them in the mass of accumulated papers.

On motion of Col. Dunn, it was Resolved, That the President and Col. R. W. Smith be appointed to meet and confer with Charles Walsh, Esq., in reference to a plan to retire the Company's debt to the State of Tennessee, and to report the result to this Board. At the suggestion of the President, Col. Dunn was added to the committee.

Committee to confer with C. Walsh.

The committee who were appointed to confer with Chas. Walsh, Esq., reported that they had done nothing yet, that Mr. Walsh thought the time inopportune.

Mobile, April 21, 1871. Page 219.

Col. Dunn offered the following preamble and resolutions, which were adopted:

Regarding the debt due the State of Tennessee.

Whereas, Under and in pursuance of the laws of the State of Tennessee, said State is now vested with a lien on all that portion of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad lying and being within the limits of said State, to secure the payment by the said Company of an indebtedness of sixteen hundred and eighty-four thousand, eight hundred dollars ($1,684,800), for and on account of bonds of said State heretofore issued to said Company under and in pursuance of the laws thereof as aforesaid, and which said lien is in effect, and in fact, a first lien or mortgage on that portion of the road lying within the State of Tennessee, and

Whereas, This Company is authorized by the laws of said State to pay said indebtedness in the bonds thereof in such amount, and at such times as may be practicable, and are further authorized to issue bonds of the Company of equal amount and denomination with the bonds of said State as may be paid, and delivered up to the Comptroller thereof for cancellation in pursuance of said laws, which bonds of this Company so to be issued to be a lien according to said laws of Tennessee pro rata in account, and of equal validity and effect with the unretired part of said indebtedness to said State upon the railroad, and all the property, franchises, fixtures and material within the State of Tennessee.

Resolved, therefore, That for the purpose of raising the money necessary to purchase said bonds of the State of Tennessee, the President of this Company be, and he is hereby authorized for and in the name of the Company, to make and issue sixteen hundred and eighty-four bonds of this Company, bearing date the first day of May, 1871, to be signed by the President and Treasurer of the Company, and sealed with the seal of the Company. Each of said bonds to be for the sum of one thousand dollars, payable in the gold coin of the United States to the bearer thereof, at the office of the agents of the Company in New York, on the first day of July, 1896, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable at the office of the agent of the Company in New York, in the gold coin of the United States, semi-annually, to-wit: On the first days of January and July of each year, until the maturity of said bonds, for which interest coupons, to be signed by or for the Treasurer, shall be attached to each of said bonds.

Resolved, Second, That to secure the punctual payment of said bonds and coupons, the President of this Company for, and in its name be, and he is hereby authorized to convey all that portion of the road with all its property, franchises, fixtures and materials derived from, or lying, or being within the limits of the State of Tennessee, to such person or persons as he may select, as trustees, with power to them, or any one, or more of them, upon default in the payment of said bonds or coupons, or any of them for six months after maturity, to sell said property or any part thereof, at public auction for cash, and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment first, of the expenses of said sale, and then of said bonds equally and rateably, and on any such default, the whole of said bonds shall become presently due and payable.

The true intent and meaning of said bonds and of said conveyance, being to create an indebtedness of said railroad company and to secure the same by a lien or mortgage in substitution for and in continuance of the existing indebtedness of said Company to said State of Tennessee, and of the lien of said State to secure the same.

The following preamble and resolution was unanimously adopted:

Page 223.

Regarding the issuing of Bonds in substitution of Tennessee debt.

MOBILE, May 25, 1871.

Whereas, At sundry times heretofore to enable this corporation to iron, equip and complete its line of railway through the State of Tennessee, said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of its General Internal Improvement laws, and of other acts emanating and supplementary thereto, theretofore passed, and then in full force, loaned to this Company, or has advanced for its benefit, bonds of the said State of Tennessee, to the aggregate sum of one million, six hundred and eighty-four thousand, eight hundred dollars ($1,684,800.00) principal now due, to said State of Tennessee, whereof payment and of accruing interest was to be made by this Company as the same matured; and for the security of which, payments of principal and interest, a lien was reserved to said State upon the entire road in the State of Tennessee, including the right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the Company, as incident to, or necessary for its business, and all depots and depot stations, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said Company, lying within the State, with power to seize, and in default of payment of the principal, to sell in the nature of a mortgage lien, as appears by reference to the said Statutes of the State of Tennessee; and,

Whereas, By act of the said State of Tennessee, Chap. XXXVIII, passed at the second session of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly of the State, entitled "An act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25, 1869, it is among other things enacted, "That any person or corporation may, with the consent of the Board of Directors of any railroad company so having received aid under said General Internal Improvement Law, passed 11th February, 1852, and the amendments thereto, pay off the indebtedness of such railroad company to the said State in the mode and manner therein provided, and with the consent of such railroad company upon such payment be subrogated to all the lien, or liens, which the State of Tennessee had, or has upon said railroad, or its property, and have the same right to enforce the same, which the State of Tennessee had.

Whereas, This corporation is desirous to avail itself of the provisions of said law, and return to the said State of Tennessee the like amount of bonds of said State as have heretofore been loaned to it, or advanced for its benefit, by an issue of its own bonds to be exchanged for said State bonds, with the holders thereof, and at the same time, to secure to the holders of said Substituted Bonds, in good faith, all the protection and security which the holders of said original State bonds might or could have by virtue of the laws of the said State of Tennessee, were no change made in the form of security held by them according to the true intent and meaning of the act passed February 25, 1869.

See alteration on page 234 in place of these lines.

Therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, as follows:

First, The President of the Company is hereby authorized and empowered, to cause to be prepared and issued under the seal of this Company, bonds of this Company, to the amount of one million, six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($1,685,000,) the same to be signed by the President, or in his absence, by one of the Vice Presidents, and countersigned by the Secretary and Treasurer.

Said bonds to be made payable in gold coin of the United States, in the city of New York, or in the city of London, at the option of the holders: to be each for the sum of one thousand dollars, or two hundred and five pounds sterling, and payable on the first day of July A. D., 1901. Said bonds to bear interest at seven per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on 1st January and July in each year, at New York or London, at the option of the holder, and for which interest coupons, or interest warrants, are to be attached to said bonds.

Second, That William Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, are hereby declared the agents of this Company to effect the substitution of its said bonds, as above authorized, in place of said bonds of the State of Tennessee, for the purposes and objects declared in the preamble to these resolutions. And upon, and from and after such substitution, and as rapidly as the same is effected, the said Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, and their successors, are hereby declared to be holders of said bonds, and are hereby authorized to defend and protect the rights conferred on the holders of said bonds by the said acts and laws of the said State of Tennessee, and hereby acknowledged and recognized. In case of the death, or resignation of any of said trustees, the vacancy shall be filled by the joint appointment of the remaining trustees, and the President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, with the approval of its Board of Directors, and if all become incapable of acting, new trustees are to be appointed by the Company.

Third, This Company does hereby declare, that it does and will at all times, acknowledge and recognize the bonds herein authorized to be issued, when so substituted in the room and place of the said bonds of the State of Tennessee, in manner herein and by said act provided, as entitled to, and in fact being a lien in the nature of a first mortgage upon all the property of this Company in the said State, the same precisely as is now declared to exist in favor of the said State of Tennessee under and by virtue of the Statutes thereof, in pursuance of which the said loan and advance of State bonds was made to the Company. And this Company does hereby covenant to, and with the said trustees, their survivors, survivor and successors, that it will in good faith do, and perform, all things, acts and deeds necessary, and proper, and which it may be reasonably requested to do, for the protection of the rights of the holders of said Substituted Bonds and of said trustees for their benefit, according to the true intent and meaning of the said acts and laws of the State of Tennessee hereinbefore referred to and of these resolutions.

And further, that this Company shall and will annually hereafter, from and after the 1st day of April, 1873, within three months thereafter, and during each year while said bonds herein authorized are running to maturity, provide, and set apart from the earnings of the Company, a fund of at least one per centum of the amount of said bonds, and will annually faithfully apply said sum of money to set apart as a sinking fund to the purchase and gradual retirement of said bonds, and on or by the 1st day of April, 1874, and every year thereafter till said bonds are fully retired, will furnish to said trustees evidence of the performance of this stipulation as may be agreed on.

Resolved, That the President of this Company be, and he is hereby directed, under its corporate seal, to execute and deliver to said William Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, as trustees aforesaid, its deed for the uses and purposes herein declared, and for the effectual protection and security of the holders of the bonds hereby authorized to be issued, according to the true intent and meaning of these resolutions.

Indenture with Messrs. Duncan, Iselin and Wilson, Trustees.

This INDENTURE, made this between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company of the first part, William Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, of the City and State of New York, their survivors and survivor, and successors, of the second part, and the holders of the bonds issued by said party of the first part, and herein described of the third part, See amendment on page 234 in lieu of sentence included in brackets.

Witnesseth, That whereas, under the General Internal Improvement Laws of the State of Tennessee, passed 11th February, 1852, and the acts amendatory thereto, the party of the first part has become liable to the State of Tennessee in the sum of one million six hundred and eighty-four thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,684,800.00), being the amount of bonds of said State loaned to said party of the first part (or advanced for its benefit, and moreover is under obligation to provide for the payment of the interest upon said bonds as the same accrues, as well as for payment of the principal thereof); and whereas, by act of the said State of Tennessee, entitled "An act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25, 1869, the railroad companies to receiving aid from the State of which the party of the first part was one, are authorized to issue their own bonds to an amount equal to the bonds so received from said State, and are authorized to use said bonds as to retire, and return to said State, bonds of said State of Tennessee to an amount equal to that loaned to said Company or advanced for its benefit, for the security of which new issue of bonds, the holders thereof, it is by said act declared, shall, with the consent of such railroad company, be entitled to all the lien rights and privileges reserved to the said State for its own security and protection.

And whereas, The party of the first part has accepted the terms and provisions of said act, and has, for the purpose aforesaid, caused to be issued its bonds, dated to the extent of one million six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($1,685,000), and numbered from one to sixteen hundred and eighty-five (1685) inclusive, each for one thousand dollars, payable in gold coin of the United States, at New York, or two hundred and five pounds Sterling payable in London, at the option of the holders, with interest at seven per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in gold coin at New York, or in sterling in London, as aforesaid, at the option of the holder, for which interest, coupons or warrants, payable as aforesaid, are attached to said bonds, with the said coupons attached, to Wm. Butler Duncan, and Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, as agents of the party of the first part, to be substituted in place of the claim, and demand and liability, now held against the party of the first part by the said State of Tennessee, for which purpose of substitution the said Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, are hereby made and appointed the agents of the said party of the first part, and which substitution, under said agency, said parties of the second part are proceeding to make and perfect; and

The following resolutions, appointing William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot as Trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the resignation of Alexander Jackson and George H. Young, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the appointment of William Butler Duncan and of Andrew Foster Elliot, as Trustees, to fill the vacancies occasioned by the resignation of Alexander Jackson and George H. Young as Trustees, under the deed of trust and mortgage of the 1st November, 1853, is approved, and declared to be the act of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, jointly with said Charles Walsh, and the same is ordered to be spread on the minutes of this Company, together with this resolution.

Whereas, The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company did, under the power and authority of its charter, make at Mobile, on the first day of November, in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-three, a certain deed of mortgage and trust, which is duly recorded in the office of the Probate Court of Mobile County, whereby said Company did convey to Morris Ketchum, John J. Palmer, and William R. Hallett, as Trustees, their survivors or successors, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, with its appurtenant property, and also the lands granted by the Congress of the United States in aid of said railroad, &c., &c., all which property so conveyed is described and specified in said deed, and which property so conveyed was made thereby subject to the condition that certain bonds, not exceeding six thousand bonds of two hundred and twenty-five pounds Sterling, or one thousand dollars each, and the interest thereon, should well and truly be paid, all which will also appear by reference to the said deed.

And whereas, The said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett did accept the said trust, and did enter upon the duties prescribed by said deed, and have since ceased to be such Trustees, two of them having died. and that Charles Walsh, Alexander Jackson, and George H. Young afterwards have succeeded them, and did also accept the said trust, and did act as such Trustees until the twelfth day of March, 1875, when two of said substituted Trustees, that is to say, the said Alexander Jackson and George H. Young, having tendered to said Company their resignation as such Trustees, which was on that day accepted, by which means a vacancy was created in the Trustees provided to execute the said trusts in said deed specified—

Wherefore it has become necessary and proper that two new persons be named and duly appointed to succeed said Jackson and Young as Trustees, to act with the said Charles Walsh in the further execution of the trusts by said deed provided.

Now therefore, Under the stipulations and provisions of the said deed, and in order to fill said two vacancies caused by the resignation of said Alexander Jackson and George H. Young, the said Charles Walsh, and the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, acting jointly under the special provisions of said deed of the 1st November, 1853, have this day nominated and appointed, and do hereby nominate and appoint William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot, and each of them, to be Trustees, to act under the powers and authority of said deed, and do hereby invest them, and each of them severally, with all the powers, authority, title and right of every description, which appertains to them as such Trustees, and the full right to exercise all duties thereof as such Trustees duly appointed by substitution, as specified in said deed.

In witness whereof, the said Charles Walsh, sole remaining Trustee in power, and the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad, have hereunto set their hands and seals, on this 19th day of April, in the year 1875.

An election was then held. Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan having received a majority of the votes, was elected President for the ensuing year, and, on motion, was declared unanimously elected.

W. P. Halliday offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted (said resolution to be embodied as a circular and presented to the bondholders.) Page 452 to 454.

Credit Foncier, London,
Mobile, April 23, 1875.

The Direction of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company beg to inform the holders of their bonds that the unexampled falling off in earnings resulting from business depression general throughout the country and which will probably continue till another crop is assured, deprives the Company of the ability to meet the May interest at its maturity.

All the earnings of the past business season have been applied to arrears of pay rolls, to current supplies, to necessary improvements of the road, and to other matters which are strictly in the interest of the bondholders. All our labor and current supply bills are now paid as far as practicable in cash.

The Directors recognize the fact that the bondholders have the first claim on the property, and that it is imperative upon the Direction to apply all the earnings of the road to the interest in the strict order of equity.

With this assurance, the Directors invite the confidence of the holders of the mortgage liens to enable them to make some acceptable proposition upon a substantial basis, which will permit the continued development of the property in the interest of all concerned.

For details of the application of the earnings of the past year, the Directors beg leave to refer to the annual report of the Company.

The following resolution, offered by W. P. Halliday, and seconded by W. H. Pratt, were unanimously adopted, each member voting "aye":

Whereas, By reason of depression in business, from causes beyond the control of this Company, the resources of the Company have, during the past two years, been greatly lessened, so that the Company has been unable to meet and discharge the semi-annual interest coupons due upon its First Mortgage Bonds in May and November, 1874, and the interest coupons upon its Tennessee Substitution Mortgage in July, 1874, and January, 1875, and the interest coupons upon its Second Mortgage due in March, 1875, which said coupons remain unpaid, and may at any time be enforced against the Company by the holders thereof; and

Whereas, The Company will be unable to pay the next interest upon its First Mortgage debt; and

Whereas, In the course of its business the Company has contracted certain unsecured liabilities, known as Floating Debt, which it has been unable promptly to discharge at maturity, upon which suits are pending; and

Whereas, The business and property of the Company extend through four States of the Union, and are subject to the jurisdiction of courts acting under distinct governments at the suit of the creditors of the Company, some of whom have already commenced proceedings for the recovery of judgments, and to obtain execution upon their claims, whereby the property so pledged in the mortgages will be exposed to seizure and sale, and other complications may arise and sacrifice of property may be made, which property, if cared for, will suffice for the payment of all the just debts of the Company, without detriment to the just rights of the mortgage creditors of the Company.

And whereas, By its deed of mortgage and trust first made, and which was executed the 1st day of November, 1853, the faith of this Company is pledged to put the Trustees, of the holders of the bonds issued under authority of said deed, in possession of the property conveyed thereby, on demand in default of payment of interest on said bonds, as therein covenanted for security against loss upon their said debts and demands; and

Whereas, The contingency of defaults in payments of interest, provided for therein, has occurred:

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, That the existing Trustees of the First Mortgage and deed of trust of this Company, executed the 1st day of November, 1853, to-wit: Wm. Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot be placed in possession of the property conveyed by said deed in trust for the security of holders of the bonds and coupons described in said mortgage or deed of trust.

And it shall be the duty of the Vice-President of said Company to place, and he is hereby instructed to place, the said Trustees in full and actual possession and control of all the property of every name and kind, and each and every parcel thereof, and of each and every article thereof, described in or embraced in, or conveyed or covered by the said deed of trust and mortgage, executed as aforesaid, to be by said Trustees held, used, managed and applied as Trustees aforesaid, to and for the objects, purposes and trusts disclosed or described in said deed of trust and mortgage upon their demand.

And the Vice-President, upon so placing said Trustees in possession as herein directed, will take from them, and their agents, and servants, full inventory of all the property of every kind so received by them under this resolution;

And from and after the delivery to said Trustees as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of each and every officer, agent, employee and servant of the Company to account to, and in all respects to obey the instructions, orders and directions of said Trustees, or their officers, agents, employees and servants, for the purpose of maintaining the possession so delivered to said trust.

And in order to protect and to secure the possession of the said Trustees, and to obtain the aid and assistance of the judicial tribunal of the United States, or of the States through which the railroads of the Company have been constructed, and in which the property of the Company is situated; it is further

Resolved, That the said Trustees be empowered and requested to bring suitable suits for the settlement of the affairs of the Company, and be authorized to apply for such additional powers as Receivers and as Trustees administering trust property, and funds, as may be entirely adequate to attain the objects of these resolutions, and to preserve the rights of the mortgage creditors and stockholders respectively.

And it is further Resolved, That in case possession be taken, and that the administration of the property be so conducted, the Vice-President of the Company shall be authorized and empowered to accept service of all process against the Company in any such suit, and that service of process upon him shall be valid and sufficient service, and also that he perform all acts as President of this Board whenever it may be necessary for the Company, and the Board of Directors to act adversely to, or concurrently with the Trustees.

C. A. Wetton, witness called for objecting bondholders yesterday, appears with transcripts of accounts required of him in relation to the Tennessee bonds. Papers marked Exhibits E1 and E2, and filed.

Mr. Hamilton, counsel for Trustees and Receivers, protests against any examination into the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, as the Trustees are not here, and the matter is coram non judice; but inasmuch as the Master has admitted evidence without waiving his protest, he propounds the following questions by way of cross-examination on the Tennessee matter:

Q. What is your profession?

A. Railway Accountant and Auditor.

Q. Are you skilled in accounts and book-keeping?

A. I am generally so regarded.

Mr. Andrews—Before this examination proceeds further, 746 I would ask the Master to take this request from me as counsel for Moran Brothers:

I request to know from the counsel, Mr. Hamilton, who is now examining the witness on the Tennessee Substitution claims, for whom he appears in making such examination.

Mr. Hamilton—I am here for the complainants in this suit.

Question to witness by Mr. Hamilton: You yesterday produced accounts of R. T. Wilson & Co. and Iselin & Co. in relation to Tennessee Substitution Bonds?

A. I did.

Q. Have you analyzed that account so as to ascertain how the balance—the cash balance—shown by it was applied?

A. I have.

Q. Have you an analysis with you of that account, or balance to that effect?

A. I have.

Q. Is that a correct statement of the results of that examination?

A. It is.

Q. It shows the purpose to which the money was applied?

A. Yes.

[Paper attached as Exhibit E3 to testimony of C. A. Wetton.]

Cross-examination by E. L. Andrews:

Q. You swear, Mr. Wetton, that everything in this analysis, so called, is true in point of fact?

A. Yes, as the result of my examination as the account stands. I did not apply the money myself. The account is the result of my examination of the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. You have inserted this language in your explanatory analysis of the Tennessee account: "December 30th—Repayment through Duncan, Sherman & Co. of advances made by them, to provide for the First Mortgage interest due November 1st, 1871." Do those words appear on the account you presented yesterday before this Master?

A. They do not, but the amounts to which they had reference do.

Q. Why did you not make the statement contained in the account you presented yesterday?

A. Because I was only required to make transcripts of the accounts.

Q. Did you not swear a few moments ago that this letter was a transcript from the accounts?

A. I think not, and request the Master to read the evidence. [Evidence read.]

Q. Then the transcript of the account you furnished yesterday was not the result of your examination of the books?

A. The account I furnished yesterday is a correct transcript of the accounts of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., and are the results of my examination and comparison of the books for the purpose of testing the accuracy of the transcripts made.

Q. And that was an accurate transcript?

A. It is.

Q. Now then, Mr. Wetton, I understand you to say that this transcript is an accurate copy of the accounts of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co. Now, if that be accurate, how can a letter signed by you, in which you use this language: "In accordance with your request I send you herewith a transcript from the books of the accounts of R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," and which contains the following, "repayment through Duncan, Sherman & Co. of advances made by them to provide for the First Mortgage interest due November 1, 1871," and which is not contained in this transcript of account which you swore is correct. Now, which one of these two statements is correct, both purporting to be transcripts of the same accounts?

A. They are both correct. The transcript of account, as well as the letter containing the analysis of the account, which letter was forwarded to Mr. DuPuy with the transcript.

Q. What do you mean by the item in your letter, "Reimbursement to Duncan, Sherman & Co. for advances made on the above account"?

A. Payments on First Mortgage interest account.

Q. Is it not true that Adrian Iselin was at the time, December 12th, 1871, a Director of the Gallatin National Bank of New York?

A. I have no knowledge on the subject.

Q. Here is an item: "December 12—Payment by their check for $64,610.89 for interest which matured January 1st, 1872, on the Tennessee Substitution Bonds." Whose check do you mean by "their check"?

A. Iselin & Co.

Q. I want to ask you whether the last above stated item would not give Iselin & Co. the benefit of eighteen days' interest on that amount of money?

A. Not in that case, because the $64,610.89 was for Sterling exchange, to be transmitted to London.

Question by E. H. Grandin: What does this account contain that this letter of explanation does not contain, and what was the object and purpose of this letter of explanation?

A. The transcript of account is a copy of the entries on the books, and shows the application by account. My letter of analysis to Mr. DuPuy conveys the information as to the final application of the funds, and was sent to him for his information.

Q. Why was your letter of analysis reserved for Mr. Hamilton to use in cross-examining you?

A. It was not reserved to my knowledge.

Cross-examination resumed by Mr. Hamilton:

Q. In your letter to Mr. Du Puy, of April 16th, you speak of sending a transcript from the books, did that letter contain any other document separate from the letter itself?

A. Yes. A transcript of the account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., the same as the one produced yesterday.

Q. Then the further statement of account contained in the letter, what relation had it to the transcript enclosed?

A. It was an analysis of the transcript.

By Mr. Andrews:

Q. The deed of trust executed by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, July 1, 1871, calls for sixteen hundred and eighty-five bonds, but your account contains only the following item: "December 30th, to proceeds of one million six hundred and eighty thousand dollars of bonds." Where is the account of the other five bonds, if there is any account of them?

A. I have not examined any further than as to the accounts furnished.

Q. Did not W. B Duncan and his co-trustees under that deed, retain the other five thousand dollars of those bonds under a claim of services for signing the issue of bonds?

A. I have no knowledge as to the facts.

C. A. WETTON.

Subscribed and sworn to April 19, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Upon motion of counsel for objecting bondholders, that they desired Thursday, April 26th set apart for the argument before the Master. So ordered.

E. H. Grandin offers on behalf of the Trustees of the Second Mortgage, a certified partial transcript of the record and proceedings had in a certain cause heretofore pending in the Honorable Court of Chancery, held at Mobile for the First District of the Southern Chancery Division of the State of Alabama, wherein the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a body politic and incorporate, was complainant, and Morris Ketchum, Trustee, defendant, transcript marked Exhibit O.

Mr. Stewart objects to said transcript as not relating to a question at issue in this investigation, as being a part of the record and to establish matter, of which the Master, on this issue, cannot take cognizance.

Mr. Hamilton—Objected to on the part of complainant, because it pertains to no matter, question or inquiry, which this Master is authorized to make by the order of reference in this cause. On the face of the offer it is declared to be a partial transcript, and it is objected to on that ground; and because, if it is evidence at all, it is to be addressed to the court in the trial of the cause between the parties, and does not tend to throw any light on any matter of debt, lien, mortgage or priority of rights of lien as between the creditors, holders of the securities of the Company in this case, which alone is the subject of reference before this Master.

Judge Grandin offers in evidence a sworn copy of the original bill, addressed to the Hon. N. W Cocke, Chancellor, referred to in Exhibit O, upon which the decree in that exhibit was based (marked Exhibit P, as completing the transcript).

Also, letters (1) dated Mobile, March 5, 1875, addressed to George N. Stewart, Esq., General Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and signed Charles Walsh; (2) addressed to same, dated Jackson, Tenn., March 9, 1875, signed Alexander Jackson; (3) dated Waverly, Miss., March 10, 1875, addressed to the same, signed George H. Young; (4) dated Mobile, March 12, 1875, signed Charles Walsh; and (5) dated Mobile, April 20, 1875, addressed to J. J. Walker, Esq., Vice President, signed Charles Walsh; all as Exhibits Q.

Also, certified copy of a bill in Chancery, filed by Wm. H. Hays and others, in the Chancery Court of Mobile, against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and others, filed April 6, 1877, marked R.

Also, the records in the case of Morris Ketchum, Trustee, vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, W. B. Duncan, A. F. Elliot, and others, that is to say, the following parts thereof: The bill, special plea in bar, demurrer and decree overruling demurrer, marked S.

Also, copy (certified) of writ of injunction in the same cause, served upon me (Judge Grandin), marked T.

Judge Grandin—Copies of these papers will be furnished the Master to-morrow.

Mr. Stewart—Objections are reserved until the papers are produced.

Mr. Hamilton—Complainants object to each and every of the papers, documents and testimony, as propounded by Judge Grandin, proposed to be offered by him, as utterly irrelevant to the matters at issue on this reference before the Master. If competent proofs at all in the cause, they must be produced as evidence before the court at the hearing of the cause. This objection is made to each and singular and all of the offers so above named.

Mr. Hamilton—I move they be rejected by the Master and excluded.

After argument, the Master sustains the objections, and on the grounds stated in said objections, rejects and ex-

752 cludes the records and papers offered as testimony by Judge Grandin; and on the further ground, that the matters offered are excluded by the decree of Judge Woods, of March 28, 1877, limiting the present inquiry to the opposition of Belloni and Moran.

Thereupon the reference adjourned to meet at the office of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Mobile, Ala., April 16th, 1877.

T. Haskins DuPuy, Esq., Attorney & Agent, etc., etc.,

Dear Sir—In accordance with your request I send you herewith a transcript from the Books of the accounts of R. T. Wilson & Co., and A. Iselin & Co., with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

On the final rendering of the account of R. T. Wilson & Co. as of December 30th, 1871, there was a balance to his debit resulting from the transaction in "Tennessee Bonds" of $302,406.57. This was transferred on the same date to the debit of A. Iselin & Co.

On November 28th, 1871, Iselin & Co. appears to have advanced the Railroad Company $80,000 to pay the interest due in March of that year on the 2d Mortgage Bonds; a corresponding amount, however, was charged back on December 30th, 1871, to Iselin & Co., when interest on the amount ceased.

The debit to Iselin & Co. as of December 30th, 1871, of $302,406 57 is accounted for as follows:

	Payments by Iselin & Co. on Interest Account:
Dec. 30—	Repayment through Duncan, Sherman & Co. of advances made by them to provide for the 1st Mortgage Interest due November 1st, 1871, as follows:

	" Iselin & Co., Nov. 1	20,000 00
	" " " "	40,000 00
	" " " Dec. 18	20.000 00
Dec. 30—	Reimbursement to Duncan, Sherman & Co., for advances made on the above account	49,090 34

30—	Payment of $30,909.66 balance of amount due for 2d Mortgage coupons due March, 1871,	30,909 66
	Payments by Iselin & Co. on Miscellaneous Account:

C. A. WETTON, Auditor.

The foregoing Exhibits D2 and E1 to E4 filed with testimony of C. A. Wetton, April 19th and 20th,, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

FRIDAY, April 20, 1877.

Reference proceeded at the office of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company pursuant to adjournment. Present, Special Master and Counsel, as of the days previous; also the witness T. Haskins Du Puy, with the books and records of said Company as called for by the subpœnas.

The letter books Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, containing letters written from the President's office, commencing with November 1, 1869, and ending February 14, 1872, produced and examined in presence of counsel, in reference to the Tennessee matters called for by E. L. Andrews, Solicitor for Moran Brothers.

Letters received for the years 1870, 1871 and 1874, also produced.

Mr. Andrews—How many days would it take to examine the files of letters received to ascertain the correspondence during 1870 and 1871 in reference to Tennessee claims?

A. There are thirty-two packages. I can't tell how long it will take. I will go over them now.

Q. How long would it take to examine the letters received from Duncan, Sherman & Co. and W. B. Duncan in 1874 and in 1875 to May 8th, to ascertain from the files what the correspondence with them was during 1874 and 1875, down to May 8th.

A. I could put a clerk at it, I think, and have it done in a week or ten days. By putting a special clerk at work at the matter, I suppose the Tennessee and the coupon correspondence could be overhauled inside of two weeks.

A. L. Willoughby, Treasurer Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, called by Mr. Andrews. In answer to subpœna for a roll showing numbers and series of Tennessee Substitution Bonds, and for a receipt said to have been given by the State of Tennessee, and other papers in reference to said matter, says he has searched in his office and can find no such papers as are called for and no records whatever pertaining to the Tennessee Substitution matters.

C. A. Wetton, Auditor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, called by E. L. Andrews, produces General Journal of said Company for the year 1871. Book examined by the witness and counsel for objecting bondholders.

Q. What is the entry under the head of Bond Exchange in the Journal for 1871?

A. Debit entry of $5,000 for five bonds, "paid to trustees."

(The witness here produced in response to further request from Mr. Andrews, Journal C for the year 1874, of the books of account Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company. Journal examined by counsel with witness as to the accounts with Duncan, Sherman & Co.)

The Tennessee Substitution matter being resumed, the witness produced certified copy of entries from the General Journal Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, the same being called for by Mr. Andrews. Copy marked Exhibit E4, and filed. (See minutes of 19th.)

By Mr. Hamilton, of counsel for Trustees:

Q. What does this purport to be?

A. It purports to be a copy in part of the Tennessee Bond Exchange Account,

Q. Is it the same account that was exhibited yesterday?

A. No. The accounts submitted yesterday were the accounts current of R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., in relation to the Tennessee bonds.

Q. What is this account?

A. This account is an exact copy of the entries on the general books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

Q. This shows a balance to profit and loss of $302,206.57, and which was transferred to the debit of R. T. Wilson & Co. Please explain that?

A. The credit to profit and loss of $302,206.57, is erroneous. The income account was benefited by the general result with the debit to R. T. Wilson & Co. of $302,- 406.57, and it was applied in liquidation of the liabilities of the Company for interest and miscellaneous indebtedness, as by reference to Exhibit E1. The results of the transaction or its influence upon the general accounts of the Company is shown by Exhibit E2.

By Mr. Andrews:

Q. Is not that last your own opinion of the matter?

A. It is not. I am willing to have it passed upon by a jury of the ablest railway auditors of the country.

Q. You stated yesterday that the item of December 30th, reimbursement to Duncan, Sherman & Co. for advances made on the above account $49,090.34, was for First Mortgage interest. Is that so?

A. It is the result of an examination of the books for the purpose of ascertaining the application of the disposition of the profit of the Tennessee transaction.

By Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether the two accounts you have filed between the Company and Duncan, Sherman & Co., show all the state of indebtedness between them, and whether or not the Company did not owe to Duncan, Sherman & Co. in 1874 and 1875, large sums of money outside of those accounts?

A. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was largely indebted to Duncan, Sherman & Co. on current account during 1874, and in 1875 the balance in favor of D. S. & Co. had decreased. In the statements furnished from January to April, 30, 1875, the interest on general account is only stated to March 31st. And in the account subsequent to this for May, some items were brought in which had evidently been omitted, and which would still have shown a balance in favor of Duncan, Sherman & Co., had they been charged up.

Q. Was not the Company afterwards heavily indebted in that same year to Duncan, Sherman & Co. for advances, and were they not under heavy liabilities for that Company?

A. Yes.

Q. How much was due to Duncan, Sherman & Co. on the 8th of May, 1875?

A. I am unable to state exactly, but I believe the balance in their favor was about ten thousand dollars.

C. A. WETTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Oliver S. Beers, a witness, summoned at the instance of objecting bondholders, sworn and examined by Mr. Andrews, says:

Q. Were you not the Auditor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. I was.

Q. From what time to what time were you the Auditor?

A. As near as I can recollect, from 1858 to 9th or 10th of January, 1875.

Q. What were your general duties as Auditor?

A. The duties involved in that office, the auditing of the accounts of the road. At first it simply involved the auditing of superintendent's accounts. It finally assumed greater proportion and became the Comptroller's office of the road.

Q. You had general superintendance of the books of account?

A. Yes, for the last ten years.

Q. Will you look at this paper now shown to you, and state whether it is a correct copy, or substantially so, as far as it extends—the entry in the books of account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in reference to the purchase of Tennessee State Bonds?

A. I made these entries in pencil. I made all the entries in that transaction. It strikes me it is correct.

Q. You are familiar with the transactions with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the Tennessee State Bonds about the year 1871, and during that year?

A. I was at the time, and am, I think, still.

Q. Did you not obtain the data to make, or have made, the entries in this account from an account current sent to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company by R. T. Wilson & Co.?

Mr. Hamilton, without waiving his protest to this proceeding, objects to the question in that form.

Mr. Andrews—The account referred to has been called for, and reported as not found.

A. I did.

Q. Will you explain the first item on that account, which reads as follows: "For 1513 Tennessee State Bonds with coupons attached, equal par value of $1,684,800.00 at 66¼, $1,070,481.92"?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to, because it appears that this account is a copy entered on the books of the Company from an account rendered by R. T. Wilson & Co., and that it must therefor speak for itself, and be held for what it purports, and cannot be changed, varied or explained by the witness. This objection made on the part of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

[The witness suggests that the original papers may be found in the vouchers for entries or memorandums filed.

The Auditor and Treasurer report that they cannot find said papers.

The Vice-President, Mr. DuPuy, proposes that Mr. Beers the witness shall himself search for the papers, which is consented to.]

1½ P. M.—On motion of Mr. Andrews, a recess is taken for half an hour.

2.20 P. M.—Reference resumed.

The witness, Mr. Beers, returns, and states he cannot find the papers searched for, being two accounts current, one with A. Iselin & Co., and one with R. T. Wilson & Co.

A. It is the cost of Tennessee honds purchased by R. T. Wilson & Co. for account of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for use in the settlement with the State of Tennessee.

Q. What does the item mean under the account of R. T. Wilson & Co., which reads as follows: "Interest and commission $61,843.22"?

Mr. Stewart—Question objected to, as it is not the act of the Company, but an account rendered to the Company, according to its terms, an explanation cannot now be given which the Company did not have, having acted upon the account itself according to its terms. [Answer taken subject to exception.]

A. Interest on the amount of money advanced to purchase Tennessee bonds $1,070,481.92, and commissions for said advances.

Q. Money advanced by whom?

A. By R. T. Wilson & Co., and as I understood by A. Iselin associated with them.

Q. Commission paid to whom?

A. R. T. Wilson & Co., Iselin and Duncan. I mean W. B. Duncan.

Q. During all the time that you were an officer of the Company, more than four years after this entry, was this statement of the account ever objected to by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. It was not.

Q. Look at the account now shown you as the account of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with Duncan, Sherman & Co. for a portion of the year 1875. Will you compare it with this Exhibit No. 3, on page 58, part 2 of these minutes, and explain why this account does not balance?

A. This account was made after I left the road.

Q. What is the difference between the debit and credit side of the account?

A. $17,362.87 balance on the credit side of the account The balance on the preceding account is $17,023.69 on the debit side, making a net credit balance of $339.18.

Q. Does not that show that Duncan, Sherman & Co. had drawn from the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company the last dollar of their claim in account current of the Company?

A. I should say so.

Q. Please explain the items: "April 26—Payment of coupons 1873, $7,000," and under the same date in Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s account, "7 per cent. interest on $7,000 coupons 1873, $210.97." Now tell us how those items could get into the account of April 26, 1875?

A. I really don't know, unless they paid $7,000 of 1873 coupons, and charged interest for paying them. The account itself shows that the money was not advanced, there was a balance due.

Q. In connection with the last question, I call your attention to this last entry in the account of the Bank of Mobile with Duncan, Sherman & Co.: "November 6—Old coupons, Savings Bank, $7,000.". Were not the old coupons last above mentioned the same $7,000 of coupons of 1873 mentioned in the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad?

A. I remember the coupons held by the Savings Bank amounted to $7,000, which were coupons of November, 1873, held by the Savings Bank as security for loan of $7,000 used in taking up those coupons. The debt to the Savings Bank was paid in the fall of 1874, so I understood, and I believe through this entry of November 6, charged by the Bank of Mobile. I believe that this $7,000 in the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co. represents the same coupons.

Q. Then those coupons were presented at the Bank of Mobile, were received by the Bank of Mobile, came into the possession of Duncan, Sherman & Co. under a claim of ownership, and while they, Duncan, Sherman & Co., claim that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company had assigned them the coupons of 1874, they took these $7,000 of coupons of 1873 so presented at the Bank of Mobile in November, 1874, and afterwards compelled the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to pay those old coupons of 1873 which had so come into their possession. Is that so?

Mr. Stewart—Question objected to, because it assumes by the language of the counsel, facts with coloring which do not appear, wherefore the question is improper, and because the whole subject is irrelevant to the inquiry before the Master, and also because the question is leading.

(Answer taken subject to exception.)

A. The accounts before me show that the Bank of Mobile paid to the Mobile Savings' Bank, on the 6th of November $7,000 for coupons of November, 1873, and that on the 26th April, 1875, Duncan, Sherman & Co. collected of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad $7,000 coupons of 1873, with $210.97 interest, and I presume and believe the two coupons items are identical in the two accounts.

(Mr. Stewart objects to the answer as the presumption and belief of the witness, and moves it be stricken out.)

Q. Mr. Andrews—Mr. Beers, you went to Nashville, Tenn., to examine State bonds which were surrendered by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the Tennessee, as an officer of the Company?

A. I did.

Q. Will you state how many of the bonds so surrendered were bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued in aid of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A. I think there were just sixteen of one thousand dollars each.

Q. Did you take their numbers?

A. I procured a certified list from the officers of the State of Tennessee of all the bonds paid in by the Mobile and Ohio Raillroad, and filed that list in the office of the Company

Cross-examination by Mr. Hamilton, solicitor of plaintiffs in this suit, (without waiving the protest.)

Q. Did you deliver personally to the officers of the State of Tennessee, the Tennessee State bonds that were taken up?

A. I did not.

Q. Who did deliver them?

A. I have heard the name of the party, but forget it. He was an agent appointed by R. T. Wilson.

Q. Who is R. T. Wilson?

A. He was the agent of the Company to purchase the Tennessee bonds and to settle the debt due the State of Tennessee.

Q. What other relation did he hold to the holders of the Tennessee Substitution bonds?

A. One of the Trustees associated with Adrian Iselin and Wm. Butler Duncan for the Tennessee Substitution Trust, and also one of the syndicate associated with the same parties to dispose of those bonds for the road.

Q. At what time did he deliver these State bonds to the State of Tennessee?

A. I think it was somewhere about September, 1871, but I am not certain as to the date.

Q. How had those State bonds been obtained?

A. By money advanced by R. T. Wilson & Co.

Q. Is that the money which was mentioned in the account which was inspected by you this morning?

A. That's the money.

Cross-examination by Mr. Stewart:

Q. I understand you to say that balancing the two accounts of which you have spoken (the accounts of the railroad company with Duncan, Sherman & Co.), that computing the balance of one account against the balance of the other, of which you have spoken, you find a balance of $389.19 in favor of the railroad company. Please state when these two accounts commence and when they end?

A. They commence 30th April, 1874, and end on 30th April, 1875.

Q. Do you know if these accounts contain all the transactions between these parties up to the 30th April, 1875?

A. I know that the accounts to the 1st December, 1874, are correct from partial examination. The December entries I am not entirely familiar with, and believe they are correct up to the last week in December. From about the 25th December, 1874, to the 30th April, I have had no opportunity to examine the papers, and therefore know nothing of their correctness.

Q. I have not asked as to the correctness of the accounts, but whether those accounts contain all the transactions and indebtedness of the parties up to 30th April, 1875?

A. I make the same answer then, substituting the words transaction and indebtedness. I don't know.

Q. Do you know anything of the transactions after 30th April, 1875, between these parties?

A. I do not.

Q. You have spoken in relation to the two items of $7,000 in the accounts. Have you any certain knowledge that these items relate to the same coupons and indebtedness, or is it your inference merely?

A. I have no certain knowledge, but as the identity is very strong, from my knowledge of the preceding transactions of the Company and as an accountant looking over the accounts, I should presume them to be the same.

Q. Have you any knowledge in that respect other than that you knew the Savings Bank held the $7,000 coupons, and that you see those two items charged in the accounts?

A. I have only this: The claim of the Savings Bank was a peculiar one. It had been reduced by partial payments prior to it, leaving exactly $7,000 due on coupons redeemed by them, amounting to more than $7,000. It was an old debt, frequently spoken of, and attracted my attention. The statement of $7,000 called up at once the recollection. It would be very difficult to throw together any number of sterling coupons, so that the amount should be exactly $7,000.

Q. Have you any knowledge that these coupons for $7,000 are now held or claimed to be a part of the unpaid coupons for 1874?

A. The accounts show that they are paid.

Q. Have you any knowledge that they are claimed as being unpaid?

A. I have never heard of their being claimed.

Re-direct examination by Mr. Andrews, solicitor for Moran Brothers.

Q. You have stated that State bonds of the State of Tennessee were delivered by the agent of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee in September, 1871. Now will you state when the new bonds, issued by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which have been called here before the Master Substitution bonds, were issued?

A. There were $420,000 of these bonds sold on the 1st or 2d December, 1871. On the 14 or 15th December, $1,260,000. And there were $5,000 paid to the Trustees about the same time, making $1,685,000.

OLIVER S. BEERS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

E. H. Grandin, a witness called for objecting bondholder Belloni, being sworn, says as follows (in reference to the First Mortgage coupons of 1874):

In the year 1874 I was the holder of First Mortgage Bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company as the executor of the estate of the late John A. M. Battle. I also held some of the same bonds as my own individual property. I hold three of the bonds yet; my own individual bonds. The bonds belonging to the estate I was fortunate enough to dispose of before what I call the first default of the payment of the interest coupons of First Mortgage Bonds of this Company. In the year 1874 the coupons of all the bonds in my hands, held by me in the capacities that I have named, were paid. I don't think, I am not positive, that I ever visited this office, the office of the railroad company, and presented any of those coupons. I know that some of them were deposited by me in the Bank of Mobile, in this city, and in a bank or banking house in New York, and they were paid, or at least I never heard of them again. I have an indistinct recollection that on one occasion, in 1874, I saw Mr. Willoughby, and learned from him that the Bank of Mobile was paying the coupons.

I state most positively, that I never had any idea, and never had any reason to suppose, that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company made default in the payment of its First Mortgage coupons, either on the 1st May or 1st November, 1874. On the contrary, I had reason (what I considered to be the best reason) to believe that there had been no such default on the 1st May, 1874, because on my expressing to one of the Directors of the Company, near about the 1st May, 1874, my doubt as to the ability of the Company long to continue to pay its interest on its bonded debt, he assured me that I need have no doubt about it. This Director was Mr. Wm. H. Pratt. I had very strong doubts about the solvency of the Company, and expressed those doubts to parties in this city, and this Director came to me and asked why I was depreciating the securities of the Company, or something to that effect. It was then I expressed my doubt and received his assurance. The first time that I ever heard, in any way, shape, manner or form, that this Company had made default, or proposed to make default, in the payment of any of its interest, was when it issued its circular of 1st March, 1875, to its Second Mortgage bondholders, announcing that it would be compelled to pass the payment of its coupons, or something to that effect. As a matter of course, I then looked for the default in the First Mortgage coupons on the 1st May, 1875. The circular referred to is on page 12, part 2, of these minutes.

Mr. Stewart—This evidence is objected to as irrelevant and incompetent. Objection is also made to those portions of the evidence which give the opinions of the witness and his conclusions, and also to any statement by a Director of the Company to him, and to any statement of Wm. H. Pratt, unless to impeach his veracity as a witness.

Cross-examination by Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether Mr. Wm. H. Pratt did not announce to the Commissioner yesterday that he intended to leave for New Orleans that night?

A. I heard no such announcement. Did not see Mr. Pratt before the Commissioner, and did not know, and don't know whether Mr. Pratt left or not. I heard something said in the Master's office yesterday about an account that it was desirable to obtain from Mr. Pratt, because he was going to leave town. But it made no impression on me. If he has left town, I am sorry, as I could desire he should be here and hear my testimony.

Q. Please state whether Mr. Pratt did not announce to the Commissioner, on the day before yesterday, or the day before, that it was necessary that his testimony should be taken as soon as possible, as he was about to leave for New Orleans?

A. I do not know. I was not present at either of the sittings. E. H. GRANDIN.

Subscribed to before me this 20th April, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

The letter books of 1874, one being from November 26, 1873, to April 28, 1874, and one from February 12, 1874, to April 16, 1874, produced by T. Haskins DuPuy, in answer to demand of Mr. Andrews, and examined. Letters and telegrams of the President of the Company to W. B. Duncan, read by the witness. The witness states they are all the letter books for 1874 he knows of.

Q. Are the two letter books which you have produced covering the period of 1874 between January 1 ahd April 28th, the only letter books of 1874 in your possession?

A. They are the only ones I have any knowledge of.

Q. From January 1 to May 8, 1875, what letter books have you?

A. I have my own from 26th April to 8th May. There's nothing about the coupons of 1874 in them.

[The witness produces his letter book.]

Q. Have you no other letter book for 1875 than the one from which you have just read, commencing from April 28th of that year?

A. I have no knowledge of any letter book of 1875 other than my own.

Witness reads the letters and telegrams from the books produced by him, and furnishes copies of such as are requested by counsel for objecting bondholders. Copies marked F herewith:

Wm. Butler Duncan, New York:

Dear Sir—I have your despatch of this date, as follows: "Send written approval of our action, pledging Convertible Bonds in accordance with resolution February 17th."

Said resolution of February 17, 1874, authorized the pledge of Convertible Bonds belonging to the Company in such manner as Duncan, Sherman & Co., with the approval of the President of this Company, may suggest and determine.

In accordance with terms of said resolution and the power vested in me, I hereby approve of such disposition and pledge of said bonds as Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. may suggest and determine.

(Signed) A. MURDOCK, President.

Dear Sir—By the mail, Mr. Beers sends you the papers asked for in your favor of February 25th, for application to stock exchange. The name of the Registrar is left blank for you to fill up, as I have forgotten the given name of Mr. Hays or the bank he represents. There is also wanting a letter to Registrar, asking him to furnish the amount of stock registered; please ask Col. Walker to address Mr. Hays the necessary note. We have, of course, been rather busy in getting up an elaborate and accurate statement and one which I think will meet your expectations. We are pressing the mortgage as fast as possible, the recording in all the counties in the four States is a job, but we are pushing it vigorously and will send it to you at the earliest moment.

Wm. Butler Duncan, Esq., New York:

Dear Sir—Yours of 5th reached me this morning. The Trust in hand of Col. Crawford, as you properly remarked, was created by the Board and not by contract or agreement with any other party, consequently it is competent for the Board to return it to the treasury; as to the Second Trust in the hands of Mr. Rushing that is stipulated in the mortgage, and it is now in the shape of bonds, a full statement of which will be made and the bonds cancelled; in fact, most of them have been cancelled long since. We shall have this fund fully settled and report thereof made. Mr. Rushing has no moneys in his hands, it is all in bonds. Your information is incorrect as to any halting in requiring creditors to extend with curtailment, the opposite is the fact and rigidly adhered to.

I have made no calculation upon any negotiations you may make best—am proceeding upon the basis that our earnings are our resources; hoping, however, that something better may happen, as I cannot see how it is possible to pay May interest from our resources here—curtailment keeps us very hard up all the time, and will continue to do so.

Stock, of which there is little on the market, is gradually improving, and I am told is quoted at 23—no quantity could be purchased at that. The papers necessary to put it on the Stock Board are sent you some days, and I hope were found complete. As the planting season is upon us, business of course falls off; but the energy being used for a greater production along the line was never so great, while immigation is looking towards us more than ever before. Our agents are now in the counties getting the Mortgages recorded.

(Signed) A. MURDOCK.

Wm. Butler Duncan, Esq.:

Dear Sir—There is a strong disposition to invest in our Stock here, There are those here, and along the line, who have idle means to a greater or less extent, who regard the Stock as a good investment. A day or two since a gentleman came here from the interior with the money to purchase 50 shares at 25; he got it at 21½, and told me he should have given the 25. Orders went from here yesterday, through a broker, to purchase in New York at 22½, what amount I do not know.

There is none of consequence offered here, and if the slightest activity, or even inquiry in New York for the Stock, it would advance at once. I am told that convertible Bonds have been quoted from New York to our Brokers here at 92½. If the Stock was advanced. of course the Bonds would follow. Not knowing your plans, I am saying and doing nothing, only to say that the Stock is worth more than it is selling for. Your Mr. Sherman will be with you before this reaches, and from him you will learn of the destructive floods of rain, in our section. Our line was exempt from the almost general damage, and the only loss to us is the difficulty of getting to and from our stations, and consequent loss of business.

(Signed) A. MURDOCK.

Questioned by Mr. Stewart:

Q. Please state whether the paper I hand you now contains a true statement of the number of bonds issued and outstanding by the Company, and of the amounts proved before the Special Master under the order of the court, and of the amounts transferred to and now held by the committee of reoganization, and in possession of the said committee and under their power and control, of which committee you are one?

Mr. Andrews—Question objected to on the ground that the amount of bonds which may be owned by any committee or any one else, has no bearing whatsoever upon the question which we are here to try—whether Alexander Duncan's coupons and the Tennessee claims are valid, subsisting liens or not.

Judge Grandin objects to the paper as swelling the record unnecessarily and increasing the expense; and Judge Grandin moves to exclude it.

Mr. Stewart—The paper is offered, inasmuch as Judge Grandin has testified that he has represented two or three hundred thousand dollars; the present paper is offered to show that it may be that some of those very bonds are now held by the committee of reorganization.

Special Master—Objection sustained as to relevancy and paper excluded.

C. A. Wetton recalled by Mr. Stewart, testifies as follows:

A careful examination of the books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company showed that it was largely indebted to Duncan, Sherman & Co. in November and December, 1871, for payment of First Mortgage interest and the payment to them by Iselin & Co. of $49,090, was in re-inbursement of payment of the coupons as stated.

The $302,206.57 carried to the credit of profit and loss account on the books of the Company, as shown by the entries previously filed, is an erroneous and improper entry and calculated to mislead.

The Bond Exchange account is a fictitious account and a misnomer. The liability accounts were reduced to the amount of the profit resulting from the transaction of the Tennessee bonds.

The result of the entries filed would be to show that the accounts were apparently benefited to the extent of $604,613.14, which is a direct result of using a fictitious account such as the Bond Exchange account in a general balance.

Cross-examination by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Why did you not tell us all this the other day when we were examining this account, and you were asked about it?

A. Because I had not made the examination of the general results as applied to the general accounts of the Company, but only as to the current accounts of R. T. Wilson and A. Iselin & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

C. A. WETTON.

Oliver S. Beers recalled by Mr. Andrews:

Q. You heard the testimony of Mr. Wetton that the item December 30th reimbursement Duncan, Sherman & Co. for advances made on the above account $49,090.34, was for First Mortgage interest. Is that so?

A. It is not so, and about as reliable as Mr. Wetton's statement about my profit and loss entry. The item refers to Second Mortgage interest and was lodged with Mr. Duncan to carry out a pledge of the Company to pay all matured coupons of Second Mortgage bonds matured March 1, 1871, and a large part of it was subsequently returned by Duncan, Sherman & Co. to the Company not claimed.

Mr. Andrews moves for the production, under the subpœna already issued, of the letters received by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1870 and 1871 on the subject of the Tennessee claims, and in 1874 and 1875 to May 8th on the subject of the coupons, interest, earnings and assets of said Company, according to the scope of the subpœna.

Mr. Stewart objects, on the ground that the application is too late; that the letters were produced, but that there has not been time to examine them and seperate them from the mass of others which have been exhibited to the parties. That the parties have had ample time heretofore for the making of this motion. That now, at this late hour, it cannot be carried out.

Mr. Andrews—This subpœna was granted several weeks ago. This last day of the reference is the first opportunity that we have had to ascertain anything concerning this correspondence, or concerning its voluminous character, and the length of time it would take to place it in shape for presentation to the Master. We have therefore availed ourselves of our rights at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Hamilton—In answer to that, I produce the subpœna to Mr. DuPuy.

Special Master—The objections are sustained, and the motion of Mr. Andrews refused.

7½ P. M.—Recess taken until nine o'clock P. M., when the hearing will be resumed at the Master's office, in the U. S. Court Room.

9 P. M.—Reference resumed. Present, the Master and Messrs. Hamilton and Stewart, counsel.

The Master having received notice from the counsel for objecting creditors, that they have concluded to forego the evening session, and no additional evidence being offered, and no motion made,

Ordered that the evidence on this reference, be and the same is hereby closed. It is further ordered, no one objecting to the minutes, that the same hereby stand approved.

Received Marshal's office, April 23, A. D., 1877, and executed upon the same day by serving a copy of the within subpœna upon Peter Hamilton, George N. Stewart and E. L. Andrews.

GEORGE TURNER, U. S. Marshal.
By F. Y. ANDERSON, Deputy.

MONDAY, April 23, 1877.

Pursuant to the foregoing order and notice the hearing before the Master was resumed at 1½ o'clock P. M. Present, P. Hamilton, representing Trustees and Receivers, complainants; George N. Stewart, representing Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and Alexander Duncan and E. L. Andrews appearing for E. H. Grandin, solicitor for Trustees Second Mortgage.

E. L. Andrews offers as evidence, under the answers of the Second Mortgage Trustees:

A further offer of the letters as follows:

1. Chas. Walsh to Geo. N. Stewart, Esq., General Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, dated Mobile, March 5, 1875.

2. Alexander Jackson to same, dated Jackson, Tenn., March 9, 1875.

3. George H. Young to same, dated Waverly, Miss., March 10, 1875.

4. Charles Walsh to same, dated Mobile, March 12, 1875.

5. Charles Walsh to J. J. Walker, Vice President Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, dated Mobile, April 20, 1875.

Letters (copies) filed and marked Exhibit Q.

A further offer of the resolutions of the Directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, for the appointment of W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot. Resolutions dated April 19, 1875, marked, P, and filed (resolutions printed page —, this testimony).

A further offer of a certified copy of a bill in equity in the United States Circuit Court, Southern District of Alabama, entitled "Morris Ketchum, as surviving trustee, &c., against Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, W. B. Duncan, Andrew F. Elliot, and others:" Also the demurrer of Wm. Butler Duncan to the aforesaid bill, and the plea of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company thereto; also the decree of the United States Circuit Court of the Southern District of Alabama, overruling plea and demurrer.

All of the foregoing offered as evidence in support of the answers of Second Mortgage Trustees.

Mr. Stewart, as Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, objects to all the portions of the record offered in the case of "Morris Ketchum vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company" as being irrevelant, and because purporting to be only portions of the record in said cause, omitting the proceedings towards rehearing of said decree, and the answers of the Trustees and the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company filed in such cause, and because no final decree in said cause is shown.

Mr. Hamilton, for Trustees and Receivers, complainants in this cause, makes the same objections, and the further objection that the whole proceeding is between different parties altogether.

Mr. Hamilton offers, in case the other portions of the record are admitted, all the record and proceedings in the said case of "Morris Ketchum vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company," as they now stand in this court.

Objections to the introduction of the record in the case of Morris Ketchum vs. Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company sustained.

Mr. Andrews, on behalf of Judge Grandin, for Second Mortgage Trustees, excepts to the ruling.

Mr. Andrews also offers the record, "In Chancery at Mobile, No. 3594, Wm. H. Hays vs. Morris Ketchum, Wm. Butler Duncan, A. Foster Elliot, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and others," also the writ of injunction restraining Morris Ketchum from proceeding in this Court, for the protection of the rights declared by the decrees herein before mentioned.

Mr. Andrews, besides offering the proceedings in the last stated case as a record, offers them as an admission.

Mr. Stewart objects to the papers offered as irrelevant, and tending to increase the costs of this reference unnecessarily.

Mr. Hamilton objects to the admission of the record offered, because it is a mere bill filed against certain other parties who are not parties to this record as complainants or defendants.

Mr. Andrews—It is claimed to be filed in behalf of $3,211,000 under the deed of trust in question. The position of the complainants in respect to this controversy has been permitted to be proved and spread in full on the record before the Master in this cause. It contains admissions of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company defendant herein, besides admissions of the cestui qui trust.

Ruling—Objections to the introduction of the records in the case of Wm. H. Hays and others, against Morris Ketchum and others, are sustained.

Mr. Andrews, on behalf of the Second Mortgage Trustees, excepts to the ruling.

Motion by Mr. Andrews, to notify T. H. DuPuy to examine the letters received by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1870 and 1871, in relation to the Tennessee matters, and in 1874 in relation to the coupons of First Mortgage Bonds, and for the production of them when found.

Motion granted, returnable at 11 A. M. Wednesday.

Thereupon the reference adjourned until Wednesday, April 25th, at 11 o'clock A. M.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO. } [COPY.]
vs. } Bill of Complaint.
MORRIS KETCHUM. }

To the Hon. N. W. Cocke, Chancellor of the Southern Chancery Division of the State of Alabama, presiding at Mobile:

1. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a body politic and incorporate, chartered by the laws of Alabama, and also by the States of Mississippi, Kentucky and Tennessee, respectfully shows to your Honor, that by virtue of its powers so granted by said States respectively, it has constructed a line of railway from Mobile to the mouth of the Ohio river, and is now running and operating the same.

2. The said Company further shows, that under and by virtue of purchases, and by grant from the Congress of the United States of America, it has obtained title to, and possession of, a large quantity of land and real estate. Among this property so owned by the Company is a large quantity of vacant land in the States of Alabama and Mississippi, which this Company obtained from the source above named, for the purpose of aiding said Company in the construction of said road.

3. The said Company further shows, that to enable it to proceed and complete its said railway, said Company has been compelled to borrow large sums of money for the payment of said loan, and also in some instances in payment for work and materials furnished the Company by sundry parties, it has issued its bonds for the sum of two hundred and twenty-five pounds of the currency of Great Britain, each, which are commonly known in the market as Sterling Bonds. These bonds are made payable in London, England, in the year 1883, at the office of George Peabody & Co., and bear interest at the annual rate of six per cent., which is payable semi-annually at the place aforesaid, on the first days of May and November. Six thousand of these Bonds have been executed, amounting to the sum of thirteen hundred thousand, six hundred and fifty pounds sterling, English currency.

4. Further, your complainant respectfully shows to your Honor, that on the first day of November, 1853, said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by its deed of that date, conveyed to Morris Ketchum and John J. Palmer, of the City and State of New York, and to William R. Hallett, of the City of Mobile, and State of Alabama, the better to secure the payment of the bonds herein before described, and every part thereof, with the interest accruing thereon, the following described property, to-wit: All the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad lying between its respective termini, constructed and to be constructed, together with all and singular the railways, rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned, and which may hereafter be owned, by said Company, including the said lands donated by the Congress of the United States, that is, 419,528 56-100 acres of land in the State of Alabama, and 737,130 36-100 acres of land in the State of Mississippi—total 1,156,658 92-100 acres, saving and excepting therefrom so much as lies in township 4 south, range 1 west, of lands subject to entry in the St. Stephen's Land Office, being 692 78-100 acres, more or less; saving and excepting also the lots and tracts in the county of Mobile, outside of the line of the railway, outside of its depots, and outside of the corporate limits of the City of Mobile, being lots and lands derived by private purchase not yet fully paid for, and not included in the list of lands in Mobile county derived under and by the act of Congsess, and saving and reserving the rights and liens that may attach to the roadway and construction thereon in favor of the State of Tennessee, which will exist and attach as a prior lien by statute of that State, in the event of said State aiding in the construction of so much of the roadway as lies in said State, viz: One hundred and eighteen miles, not exceeding ten thousand dollars per mile. All which will more fully appear by reference to said Deed, which is on record in the office of the Judge of Probate of Mobile, and a copy whereof, in print, is herewith filed as an Exhibit to and part of this bill.

5. Said deed was executed to said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett, their survivor or successor, for the benefit, security and advantage of the person, or persons, or corporations, or any other party, who shall or may be holders of the before described bonds, or any of them, in Trust for that purpose, and with certain powers over said property in said deed fully set forth.

It was therein provided, that of the said 1,156,658 97-100 acres of lands donated by the said Congress, the said Trustees should be deemed to be in immediate possession, with authority to devise and determine rules of management, of sale, of investing the net proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking fund for the payment of said bonds, said Trustees to render annually, on 1st January of each year, to the said Railroad Company, accounts of their doings in the matter of the Trust, said Trustees were authorized to appoint an agent to attend to said land business, but that no sale of said lands should be made so long as said grantor was not in default on any obligations connected with said bonds, except by and with the advice and consent of said Company. The other property named in said Deed was to remain under the control of said Company, unless said Company became in default for the payment of said Bonds or interest.

6. Your orator further shows to your Honor, that said deed also contains a provision, that if either of the said Trustees should at any time, or times thereafter, die, or become from any cause incapable of acting in the premises, or resign his said office, the said Company, and the surviving or continuing Trustees should select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and should thereupon make, execute and deliver such other instruments or assurances as might be necessary to enable such selected person to act in the premises.

7. Your orator shows that said Trustees assented to said deed, and took upon themselves the burthen of its execution; that since then two of said Trustees have departed this life, to-wit: Wm. R. Hallett, of Mobile, who died in July, 1860, and John J. Palmer, who died before the said Hallett, and that the only surviving Trustee is the said Morris Ketchum, and that said Ketchum is a resident citizen of the State of New York, and is an alien enemy of the Confederate States of America.

Your orator shows that, at sundry times before the 15th of April, 1861, your orator, in pursuance of the terms of said Deed of Trust, applied to the said Ketchum to unite with your orator in the appointment of Trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the death of said Hallett and Palmer, but said Ketchum has refused to unite in the appointment of such Trustees, and the places of said deceased Trustees still remain vacant.

8. Your orator charges that said conduct on the part of said Ketchum is a breach of the spirit and letter of said Trust Deed, and that it has proceeded from selfish and interested motives on his part—and that he has pursued a course of conduct in relation to the Trust that has embarrassed and operated to the injury of your orator.

Your orator shows that no provision is made in said Deed for compensation to the Trustees, except in event of a forfeiture thereof, which has not occurred, and which your orator hopes will not occur. No services have been rendered by said Trustees beyond the simple acts of signing the mortgage bond and a few other papers directing and authorizing the sale of a small portion of the lands, said Trustees have not made any of the annual reports called for by the deed. It was the duty of the Trustees to have directed the sale of lands, but they have failed to do so except to a small extent, hereinafter named. Such plain duties they have designated, whereby great injury has been done to your orator, and to the bondholders, retarding and preventing the sale of lands, and thereby impairing the market value of the bonds which were to have been received in payment for lands.

The said Hallett, before his death, resided in Mobile, but when applied to he declined acting, stating that the active management of the Trust was with his co-Trustee, Ketchum, always referring your orator to said Ketchum, and professing to refer all communications to him. Thus having the active management of said Trust business, the said Ketchum has used his power oppressively to your orator, and for selfish purposes.

When said bonds herein described were signed, the said Ketchum, in the name of himself and co-Trustees, retained eighteen of said Bonds, of the par value of eighteen thousand dollars, on the pretence of compensation for signing said Bonds; and thus, against the wishes of your orator, and notwithstanding the protest of your orator, which was then made, and been repeatedly renewed, said Bonds, with all the coupons for interest thereon, have been withheld from your orator. Said Ketchum has, in addition, also demanded regular salaries at high rates, while your orator would not object to reasonable compensation for actual services, it has refused to accede to the demands, because they were exorbitant, and could not be yielded to without submitting to gross wrong. Since the death of his said co-Trustees, said Ketchum has refused to unite in the appointment of new Trustees, except on condition that he shall retain what he has already obtained, and also have a fixed salary at some high rate, to begin about the year 1855, and continue 'till the maturity of the Trust in 1883. Said Ketchum also claims the right to move the management of the land department from Mobile to New York, and then to organize it by committing it to the officers appointed by himself, and has notified the President of this Company of his having appointed the chief agent or Superintendent thereof. Your orator, to induce said Ketchum to consent to the appointment of new Trustees, has obtained the request of a majority of the bond-holders for that purpose, but without avail, said Ketchum has still persisted in his refusal to unite in the appointment of such new Trustees.

Your orator charges that these actings and doings of said Ketchum are in violation of his duties as Trustee, and that he is an unfit person to continue in his position of Trustee.

9. Your orator further shows, that by a writing under date of 10th January, 1855, the said Ketchum and other Trustees advised and directed the sale of lands embraced in the Trust, not exceeding 100,000 acres, on such terms as to price and time of payment as said Company, by its Board of Directors, should approve, and promised to ratify such sale and execute proper deeds to the land so sold. In pursuance of said authority, orator has sold a large quantity of land to sundry purchasers, who have complied with the terms of sale and paid most of the purchase money. Orator has made due reports of said sales to said Ketchum, and has in all things performed the conditions on which such sale was to be made, and called for deeds for the purchasers from him as Trustee holding the legal title, but he has refused to ratify the sale, and has failed to make deeds for the purchasers. Said purchasers have demanded of your orator deeds for their lands, and one has filed his bill in this Honorable Court to compel the specific performance of the contract with him. Others of said purchasers are threatening to pursue a similar course, and so your orator has been subjected to annoyance and costs, and is likely to be still further injured by the misconduct of said Ketchum in said office of Trustee.

These matters have been urgently presented to said Ketchum by your Orator, but he has given no heed to their applications, and not even acknowledged its reports to him, and when personally applied to, refused to execute the necessary deeds except on condition of his demands for past compensation and future salary being complied with.

10. Your Orator shews that it is highly important that further sales of land should be made; that such was originally intended to be made, for the purpose of completing said road, and it was expressly declared that the said sterling bonds so issued by the Company should be received in payment of lands to be sold.

This can only be done by the agency of the Trustees, under said deed of trust. That the lands lie in the States of Alabama and Mississippi, and their management should be confided to persons who can and will superintend their management, in those States and in the city of Mobile where the Trust deed was executed, where the chief business of your Orator has necessarily to be executed, and where the Trust will have to be executed, and that the removal of the control and direction of this business would be to the manifest detriment and injury of your Orator and all others concerned.

It shews that the security of the bondholders requires the active agency of suitable and a full Board of Trustees to look after their interest in this property, and that interests so large should not be left in the control of one person alone; that the deed was originally to three; and good faith to the creditors of your Orator, the cestui que trust requires that the office should be full.

Your Orator charges that said Ketchum has proved himself an improper person to manage this property as Trustee thereof; that he has been unfaithful to said Trust. It also charges that said Morris Ketchum is an alien enemy, said property is wholly in the Confederate States, and consists of real property and franchises, and personal property, whose chief value arises from its connection with the realty, and can be properly managed only by resident citizens of these Confederate States.

11. Your Orator prays that said Morris Ketchum may be removed from his said position as Trustee under the said Deed of Trust herein described; that the vacancies created by the deaths of John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett may be filled, and that some suitable person be also appointed Trustee in the place of said Morris Ketchum, and that said Trustees so to be appointed be clothed with all the powers conferred by said deed upon the said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett.

Your Orator prays that said Morris Ketchum be made a party hereto, and that publication be made as provided by the Statute in the case of application for the appointment of Trustees, and for such other and further relief as may be consistent with equity and the nature of its case, and as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

HAMILTONS & OWEN, Solrs. Complt.,
GEORGE N. STEWART, Solr. for Complt.

Comes Milton Brown who, being duly sworn, saith he is President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, that said Morris Ketchum is of mature age, and is a resident citizen of the State of New York, in the United States of America, and further that he, said affiant, has read the foregoing Bill of Complaint, and the allegations thereof are true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief. MILTON BROWN.

(Copy.)

Whereas. Wm. R. Hallett and J. J. Palmer, two of the Trustees under our First Mortgage, executed to secure our sterling bonds, have departed this life; and Whereas, Morris Ketchum, the surviving Trustee, has attempted and so far as in his power, practiced gross fraud on this Company and the bondholders; and Whereas, said Ketchum is a citizen of the State of New York, and an alien enemy, and in all respects disqualified and unfit to act as a Trustee.

Therefore, Resolved, That our counsel be instructed to apply to the Chancery Court, or such court as may be most suitable to have three Trustees appointed to act under said mortgage, with power to order sales of land, directing, if they deem it best, the taking of sterling bonds in payment, and to make deeds for lands already sold and to be hereafter sold, and to do all and everything necessary and proper to be done in the due execution of said Trust; and

Be it further Resolved, That we recommend the appointment of Charles Walsh of Alabama, George H. Young of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson of Tennessee, said Trustees, under said mortgage.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of a resolution passed by the Board of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, at a meeting of said Board on the 5th December, 1861.

George N. Stewart, Esq.,
General Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company:

Dear Sir—In reply to your request that I shall execute a power of attorney, jointly with the two other Trustees of the Mortgage by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company on the first of November, 1858, or to an agent or agents in New York, to enable the Company to do what may be there needed in respect to the management of the interests of the Company, and also for the prosecution and defence of such proceedings as may arise in the court there, to execute bonds when necessary to protect the property of the trust, &c., I have to say that I have fully considered of the subject, and I have come to the conclusion that neither the interests of the Company nor mine would be benefited by my so doing.

I suppose it is probable that, under the present difficulties of the road, as well as of all other roads at this time, that intricate litigations will arise, and when commenced I cannot foresee how long it will be before they can be closed. I am not myself in a situation to attend personally at New York or elsewhere to the complicated questions which may arise in adjusting the rights of all the conflicting trusts; and, to tell the truth, I do not feel willing to empower others to act for me in such matters on my responsibility. I prefer to resign the position of Trustee, so that Trustees in New York, on the spot, may be appointed, who can act promptly, and furnish such affidavits and bonds as may be needed in judicial proceedings, which I am not in a condition to do. I have reason to believe that my course would not be considered injurious to the parties interested. As the matter now stands, the Trustees are scattered, never can act together, and their action cannot be very prompt or effectual. At all events, I prefer to tender my resignation as a Trustee, which I will thank you to forward to the President of the Company. I regret to have to take this course, but believe it best for all parties under present circumstances.

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) CHARLES WALSH.

[Letter No. 2.] JACKSON, Tenn., March 9, 1875.

Mr. George N. Stewart,

General Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company:

Dear Sir—Having carefully considered the foregoing communication of Mr. Chas. Walsh, and coinciding with his views, I hereby join in requesting that you will forward my tender of resignation as Trustee to the President of the Company, coupled with the request that, in accepting my resignation, all proper proceedings may be had necessary to exempt and relieve me from future responsibility as Trustee.

Respectfully, yours,

(Signed) ALEX. JACKSON.

Witness present: GEO N. STEWART,
HOWELL E. JACKSON.

[Letter No. 3.] WAVERLY, Miss., March 10, 1875.

To George N. Stewart,

General Solicitor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co.:

Dear Sir—On consideration of the view expressed by Mr. Chas. Walsh, and concurred in by Dr. Alexander Jackson, as within stated, I have to say that I fully concur with them in the opinion, that it would be better for the interests of the Company, its bondholders, and of my own, that I should also resign the position of Trustee of the Deed of Trust within referred to, and I therefore request that you tender my resignation as such Trustee to the President of the Company, and I also make the request, as made by Dr. Alexander Jackson, that such proceedings be had that I shall be relieved from all future responsibility on account of said Trusts.

(Signed) GEO. H. YOUNG.

[Letter No. 4.] MOBILE, March 12, 1875.

George N. Stewart, Esq.,

General Solicitor Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company:

Dear Sir—When I addressed to you my request that you should tender my resignation as Trustee under the Deed of Mortgage and Trust made by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, on the 23d of November, 1853, I did so with the great desire to be relieved for the future from the duties and responsibilities of said Trust; such is now still my earnest wish, but it was under the full belief that it would cause no injury or inconvenience to the Company, but rather advance its interests.

I have now, however, been shown that the two other Trustees having also resigned, the result is that the Mortgage is left without any Trustee to represent the interests of the beneficiaries, and that the Trust, for want of a Trustee, cannot be made effectual without application to a Court of Chancery, which would require much time, and the duty has been pressed on me that at least one Trustee may be maintained. Under this pressure on me, in view of the consequences, and upon urgent solicitations of friends, I have been induced to say to you, as my determination to resign has not yet been presented by you for acceptance by the Railroad Company, that you will withhold it, and consider it revoked until further instructions from. me.

This course seems now a duty on my part under the circumstances, although I had hoped to be relieved from the Trust, and such it is still my desire to effectuate so soon as future events will permit.

Please consider my instructions to you in this respect as revoked and annulled. Your obedient servant,

(Signed) CHARLES WALSH.

[Letter No. 5.] MOBILE, April 20th, 1875.

John J. Walker, Esq.,

Vice-President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co.:

Sir—I have heretofore, in a letter to Geo. N. Stewart, Esq., expressed my desire to resign my position of Trustee under the Deed of Mortgage and Trust executed by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, dated November 1st, 1853, known as the First Mortgage of said Company, but at your suggestion the said resignation has not been presented. I have since that time, at the request of the Company, and in accordance with what seems to be my duty under said deed, united with the Company in the appointment of Trustees in place of Messrs. Young and Jackson, Trustees, whose resignations as Trustees under the same Deed have been accepted.

I now renew my intention of resignation, and request that I may be immediately relieved of all further duty and responsibility in the Trusteeship by the acceptance of this my resignation, and that proper resolutions be adopted by the Company for my security and protection.

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) CHARLES WALSH.

Filed as Exhibit Q, April 23, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

WEDNESDAY, April 25, 1877—11 A. M.

Reference resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Master and Counsel as of the day previous; also, E. H. Grandin.

T. H. DuPuy, witness called on behalf of Second Mortgage Trustees, and examined by E. H. Grandin:

Q. Did you issue this notice or your Committee, and publish the same in the Mobile Register?

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

To the Bondholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad:

The Agreement of October 1st, 1876, having been signed by a majority of the First Mortgage Indebtedness and Tennessee Sub-Bondholders, has become binding on the subscribers thereto. Any other plan of reorganization predicated upon obtaining the consent of the majority of the First Mortgage Indebtedness Holders has now become impracticable, and it is therefore the interest of the yet outstanding Bondholders to join the party which will have the best chance to purchase the Road whenever a decree for its sale will have been obtained. We hereby give notice, that Bonds can be deposited under this agreement up to the 1st March next. All Bondholders who have not acceded to it by that time will, at the discretion of the Committee, and without further notice, be liable to be debarred from participating in it.

WILLIAM H. HAYS,
WILLIAM S. PIERSON,
T. HASKINS DUPUY,
Committee.

MOBILE, March 1, 1877.

The Committee of Reorganization of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, under the Fourteenth Article of the Agreement of the 1st of October, 1876, will continue to receive Securities as heretofore, until the expiration of the extended time fixed by the Committee.

T. HASKINS DUPUY,
Of and for the Committee.

A. To the best of my knowledge and belief it is a correct copy of the notice issued by me for the committee.

Counsel for Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and for Receivers, object to the introduction of the notice as evidence being totally irrevelant.

Objection sustained, and ruling excepted to.

E. H. Grandin moves the Master to rule on the objections made by him to paper offered by George N. Stewart, Esq., as counsel for Committee of Reorganization Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, dated March 24, 1877, and offered to be filed on the same day. The objections made by said Grandin appear on the journal of that day.

The Master rules that the paper referred to is irrelevant to the issues before him. (Said paper appears on page 6, continuation of Part 4.)

Oliver S. Beers, a witness called by E. H. Grandin for Trustees Second Mortgage, and sworn, says, in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Andrews, acting for said Grandin:

Q. Please explain the following entry on the account of A. Iselin & Co. with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, (said account is marked E1 to C. A. Wetton's testimony): "Interest Account—Interest on general account 28th December, 1871, and commissions 2 per cent., $1,660.36"?

A. A. Iselin & Co., in November and December, 1871, made certain advances at New York to the Company, pending the realization of the proceeds of the Tennessee Substitution Bonds, for which they charged 2 per cent.

commission and 7 per cent. interest, and stated the items charged in account current rendered by them to the Company, dated December 30, 1871, from which account the entries represented on this schedule were made.

Q. Please explain the following entry: "December 30, 1871—For amount of A. Murdock, President, check in favor of R. T. Wilson & Co. for expenses of Tennessee Bonds cancellation, &c., paid by them to Comptroller of State of Tennessee, $1,991.21"?

A. That was the fee charged by the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, and, I think, authorized by law, which Mr. Wilson stated he had paid, and omitted to charge to the Company before rendering his account and transferring to Iselin the balance due by him to the Company. Murdock, to close the transaction, checked on Iselin against the balance of the account on hand.

Q. What Tennessee Bonds cancellation are referred to in the item in the previous question?

A. Bonds of the State of Tennessee paid in to the State of Tennessee.

[The witness questioned in regard to the coupons of 1874 of the First Mortgage.]

Q. Were not the various securities belonging to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which had been placed under the control of Duncan, Sherman & Co., or W. B. Duncan, still under their control January 1, 1875—I mean under their control so far as the Company was concerned?

Mr. Stewart objects, on behalf of Alexander Duncan, to any further examination of Mr. Beers, on the ground that he has been examined before. This objection made so far as it may relate to the claim of Alexander Duncan.

Objection also to the matter of the question as not relevant to the claim of Alexander Duncan.

[Answer taken subject to exception.]

A. The whole assets of the Company were assigned to

W. B. Duncan in the spring of 1874, and I believed and treated them as under his sole control up to the time of my leaving, January 1, 1875.

Q. Did or did not the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company issue a circular in the fall of 1874, or the beginning of 1875, offering to convey to the floating creditors of the Company county bonds and other securities in exchange for the paper of the Company held by them ?

Mr. Stewart—Objected to as leading, and as not the best evidence of the circular.

(Answer taken subject to exception.)

A. In the spring of 1875 a circular letter was addressed to holders of notes belonging to floating debt, inviting bids for the Oktibbeha county and town of Starksville bonds, which was responded to and resulted in sale of bonds for floating debt claims. I think at a valuation of the floating debt in some instances at 120 as against the bonds.

Answer objected to as being irrelevant.

Cross-examination by Mr. Stewart:

Q. You have stated that all the assets of the Company were transferred to Mr. Duncan in 1874. Please state how such assignment was made, and whether or not you allude to assignment made by resolution of Board of Directors and found on the minutes ?

A. Made by resolution of the Board which I drew up at the request of the Directors.

The witness, under examination by Mr. Hamilton on behalf of the trustee's complainants, answers as follows:

Q. Who were the acting Trustees of the First Mortgage, from 1863 to 1875 ?

A. Alexander Jackson, Charles Walsh and George H. Young, were the parties recognized by the Company as Trustees.

Q. Did they or not perform the duties of Trustees during that time about the sale of lands, &c. ?

A. They acted, so far as I knew in all respects, as Trustees.

Q. During that time was any claim of right made by Morris Ketchum upon the Company or its officers to act as Trustee, or did he do any act as Trustee or have any correspondence with the Company as Trustee?

A. I know of no act as Trustee beyond the information given me by the Presidents, I think Brown and Murdock both; that he had approached them in New York. That's all I know about the case. I don't know of any correspondence.

Cross-examined by E. H. Grandin:

Q. These parties you have named as acting Trustees from 1863 to 1875, were the same parties who were appointed by the Confederate court, were they not, on the removal of Mr. Ketchum as an alien enemy?

A. They were.

Q. Were the duties performed by these acting Trustees very extensive in their nature?

A. They signed one power of attorney.

Q. Mr. Beers, did not Mr. Murdock, President, tell you that he had purposely avoided holding further communications with Mr. Ketchum in New York city after the war, because Mr. Ketchum was insisting on his trusteeship, or words to that effect?

Question objected to by Mr. Hamilton and motion to exclude, because it calls for the statement of a third party and is, therefore, hearsay testimony, and because the counsel have not examined or offered to examine Mr. Murdock who is in town, upon the subject, whose testimony would be the best evidence.

Objection sustained and answer excluded. Ruling excepted to.

E. H. Grandin requests the answer be taken subject to all legal objections.

Mr. Hamilton objects to said request.

Answer excluded and ruling excepted to.

By Mr. Hamilton:

Q. What Confederate court do you refer to when you speak of a Confederate court?

Objected to on the same ground that Mr. Hamilton objected to the previous question.

A. Chancery Court, for the Southern District of Alabama.

E. H. Grandin reserves the right to recall Mr. Beers on this sitting. (Witness excused until 3 P. M.)

It being one o'clock and thirty minutes P. M., the Master announces that at four o'clock he will adjourn until half past six P. M., and then hold an evening session. During such evening session opportunity will be given counsel for Trustee's complainants and of Alexander Duncan, to offer testimony upon the questions at issue, which right is claimed by them.

The counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees objects to the ruling, or, announcement, so far as the same does or may be construed to interfere with his rights under the order of the court, dated 21st April, 1877, which he claims gives him the whole of this day to adduce evidence before the Master, to sustain the answer of the Second Mortgage Trustees.

E. H. Grandin offers in evidence the affidavit of Moses Waring, filed in this court July 13, 1876, "as evidence to accompany Master's second report on the Trustee's accounts, from January 1, 1876, to March 31, 1876, dated July 13, 1876," in the cause of Wm. Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliot, Trustees, vs. Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company et als.

Objected to by Mr. Stewart on the ground that it relates to matters that purport to be long after Mr. Alexander Duncan's rights accrued and as being irrelevant.

(Affidavit received, subject to the objection.)

Affidavit of M. Waring.

WM. BUTLER DUNCAN, A. FOSTER ELLIOT, vs. THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.	Trustees,	U. S. Circuit Court for the Southern District of Alabama.

Moses Waring, of the city and county of Mobile, State of Alabama, being duly sworn, deposes and says, that he is now a Director of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and has acted in that capacity since 27th January, 1874.

That on or about the 2d December, 1874, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company renewed with the Bank of Mobile paper to the extent of $22,600, and deposited with said Bank as collateral security Bonds of the county of Oktibbeha and the town of Starksville to the amount of $36,000, and in the spring of 1875 the Bank had the option to take said securities in payment of the debt, and subsequently decided to take the above Bonds in payment, which was done.

That also, in December, 1874, a loan was obtained by renewal from the National Bank of Cairo, on note of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, endorsed by A. Murdock, for $10,000, with Oktibbeha County Bonds lodged as collateral security to the extent of $16,500; they also had the option, in the spring of 1875, to take the security in full payment, which they subsequently did.

That on or about the 23d April, 1875, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company owned Lowndes County Bonds and Columbus (Mississippi) Bonds of the amount of $11,315, which they gave in payment of nine certain promissory notes, issued by the Company, and held by Messrs. Toomer, Sykes & Billups, of the city and county of Mobile, State of Alabama; and that said settlement was made 12th May, 1875, as appears in the statement of accounts of the Trustees and Receivers for the month of May, 1875.

The Lowndes and Columbus Bonds were considered of but little value. The Oktibbeha County Bonds and Starksville Bonds realized in the transaction about 60 per cent. of their face value, which was more than they would have brought in the market. I have known some Oktibbeha Bonds sold as low as forty cents on the dollar.

M. WARING,
Director and one of Finance Committee.

Sworn to before me this 13th day of July, A. D. 1876.

JAMES GILLETTE,
U. S. Commissioner, Special Master.

T. H. Du Puy, a witness, recalled by E. H. Grandin for Second Mortgage Trustees and examined.

Q. Have you brought into the Master's office, in obedience to the subpœna duces tecum, the letters received by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the years 1870, 1871 and 1874, from certain parties, and if you have, please furnish to the Master the contents of those letters?

A. I have had my clerk overhaul all the letters that I know of in the President's vault, and after two days' and nights' constant work (E. H. Grandin—"I object to the witness stating anything about the clerk or number of days' and nights' constant work, or any other buncombe of the kind"), he presented to me these bundles of letters as the only ones discoverable: Written by Wm. B. Duncan, three; by Duncan, Sherman & Co., four; Adrian Iselin, none; Adrian Iselin & Co., one; R. T. Wilson, three; R. T. Wilson & Co., three; Wilson & Iselin, none; John J. Walker, sixteen; James Crawford, three; Abram Murdock, twenty; during the years 1870 and 1871. In the year 1874, written by Wm. B. Duncan, twenty-nine; Duncan, Sherman & Co., four; J. J. Walker, thirty-eight. I have read these letters over as carefully as I could in the time I had at my disposal, and I have not found in them anything relating to the coupons of May and November, 1874. I find nothing about the Tennessee matter. They are principally about Consolidated Bond matters, borrowing money, and borrowing bonds to raise money on.

The witness proceeds to read the letters in presence of counsel. Letters read, and such as counsel desire, are furnished by copy as follows:

Letters Received by Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, 1874.

NEW YORK, February 2, 1874.

My Dear Colonel—I am obliged to be out of town to-day and to-morrow, but will be here Wednesday. Murdock has altogether ceased his remittances, and has only remitted about $25,000 of the $75,000 he promised between the 1st and the 25th of January. You must insist upon further remittances. You wish me to repay

Hays	$10,000
"	10,000
"	10,000
	$30,000

and to continue to pay the January coupons, which are still coming in. I am willing to do all I can be asked, if I can see any incoming, but I cannot continue to allow Mobile to be down on us, as they are doing—of their receipts they should be able to send us some. Am sorry to pen this hasty note.

(Signed) W. BUTLER DUNCAN.

Dear Sir—I send you this note to show the present temper of our Emperor. Do try to make some satisfactory explanation to him on the subject. Our existence lies in his hands.

(Signed) J. J. W.

February 2d.

NEW YORK, February —, 1874.

A. Murdock:

Have advertised to pay March coupons Mobile and New York; pay such presented Mobile. Draw and forward coupons as usual. You must send us some portion of your receipts to reimburse us our advances January coupons. Please reply.

(Signed) W. B. DUNCAN.

NEW YORK, —, —.

A. Murdock, Esq., President:

In forwarding January and March coupons, cancel same.

(Signed) W. B. DUNCAN.

NEW YORK, February 12, 1874.

A. Murdock, Esq., President:

Dear Sir—To keep the January 1874 Coupon Account correctly, as the coupons are payable here and in London, it would be well, if you see no objection, that you send to us here such of the coupons as you have paid and may pay in Mobile, valuing on us for cost of same and sending each valuation to your credit in General Account. You will mark your valuations as against "January 1874 Coupons Account."

Unless coupons have some final place of payment, there is apt to be confusion hereafter. The Union Bank of London sends us such coupons as they pay or purchase.

(Signed) W. BUTLER DUNCAN.

NEW YORK, February 28, 1874.

Dear Sir—The enclosed letter to me from D., S. & Co. explains the terms of the arrangement made for meeting the March interest, &c. Please hand it to Beers, that the proper entries may be made on his books. You will perceive that the money is advanced by the parties to whom I have given the demand notes of the Company, secured by deposit of Convertible Bonds as collaterals; the demand notes bear 7 per cent. interest, and it is understood that the parties will hold them until the Convertible Bonds are sold, which, I think, will be effected at an early day. I believe a ring of our friends will be formed to take the whole number owned by the Company. Probably next week I shall be able to give you more definite information as to the prospects of an early sale. Meantime, I am quite satisfied with our success in passing the Ides of March without the loss of our credit. We have a breathing time now, in which to work without the fear of sudden death. Duncan's present intention is to go South on Monday week, and he wishes us to go over our road in daylight. I, therefore, telegraph you to-day to get No. 4 in readiness to send to Columbus, Ky., to meet him there. Col. Rives must go up with No. 4, so that he can explain the beauties of the road and give all needful information. You will, of course, stock the car with a suitable supply of articles to eat and drink. I shall go with Duncan, and can return here in a short time if it should be necessary. Some of our other friends may go with us. I will advise you by telegram as soon as a definite day is fixed for starting.

If No. 4 is not in order, perhaps Col. Rives can get the use of an extra Pullman Car for the occasion. I am very anxious for Duncan and other friends to go over our road, because I believe actual observation would remove all doubts, and fix their faith in the value of the property.

I shall make him go if he can possibly get away from his office.

I received list of March payments this morning. I presume, of course, you will arrange in Mobile the renewal of the paper held by First National Bank. Do not bother D., S. & Co. with it here. I thank you for your McCaube Re. letter, and with, &c. &c., to our friends, &c.

(Signed) J. J. W.

New York, March 5, 1874.

A. Murdock, Esq.:

My Dear Sir—Has the Board acted upon the two trusts held by Col. Crawford and Mr. Rushing. The former, I understand, to have been a trust created as a simple matter of prudence, and that the holders of the securities of the Company will suffer no injustice if this trust be dissolved. The bonds and stock covered again with the Treasury of the Company.

But Mr. Rushing's trust is part and parcel of the agreement with bondholders, from the reports it would appear that certain bonds have been bought from their trust and cancelled, and that certain moneys still remain with the Trustee, of which he has rendered no account. How does this trust stand? This and other questions of similar nature I ask, to be able in my statements to others, whom we desire to interest, to answer definitely. On the points inquired of, I infer from what I hear from Mobile that you are halting in your policy of requiring your creditors to extend your notes, as if you were certain that the negotiations I am endeavoring to make for the Company were already successful. This is not so, nor can I make much progress until I receive the facts which will enable me to obtain a quotation for our stock upon the Stock Exchange; in the meantime, all the resources of the Company should be husbanded for a purpose of paying the interest due in May. The Company is still indebted to myself and others for some $200,000, advanced to pay November, 1873, January and March, 1874, interest, and this amount should be reimbursed if the Company expect to obtain assistance in paying the May interest. Can you not make further remittances out of your receipts?

(Signed) WM. BUTLER DUNCAN.

Filed with testimony of T. H. Du Puy, April 25, 1877.

JAMES GILLETTE, Special Master.

Q. By E. H. Grandin—Please produce letter of Wm. Butler Duncan, alleged to be endorsed January 5, 1874, said to be marked "Private," which has been seen by Mr. Hamilton, by the Master and the witness, but not by myself.

Mr. Stewart instructs the witness that if the letter has any reference to the matters under investigation, he is bound to produce it. If it has not, he need not produce it. The instruction given, as attorney of the railroad company, to the witness as Vice President.

A. I have shown this letter to the Master, who agrees with me that it does not relate to the issues before him. I decline to produce it.

Judge Grandin asks that the witness be directed to produce the letter which Mr. Hamilton has just read and laid aside, and which is now in the hands of the witness. Master declines to give such direction, and counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees except to the refusal.

E. H. Grandin offers as evidence, on behalf of Trustee's Second Mortgage, the following: "Application has also been made to Congress for a grant of public lands in aid of this road, which necessarily must be a great national object in a military as well as political point of view, and assurances have been given that their petition will be promptly granted." Extract from letter of President and Directors Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the public in 1852, offered in relation to the title of the Trustees.

Also, the following extract from proceedings of the Eighteenth Annual Meeting of Stockholders of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, held at Mobile, April 17, 1866:

Extract from Proceedings at Eighteenth Annual Meeting of Stockholders of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, held at Mobile, April 17, 1866.

[Page 4.]

But the war came and the Company has suffered largely by it. The Confederate government controlled the transportation of the road, and we were occupied chiefly in transporting men and supplies for the army.

In this condition of things the road was delivered back to us by the United States military authorities, but the power to confiscate or dispose of it as the government might deem proper, was expressly reserved.

On 8th of August there issued from the War Department at Washington an order directing to Maj.-Gen. Geo. H. Thomas, then and now commanding this Department, fixing the terms on which railroad companies would be allowed to purchase rolling stock and supplies for their roads. One of the conditions is as follows: "Each and every Company will be required to reorganize and elect a Board of Directors, whose loyalty shall be established to your satisfaction."

Your Board of Directors were not deemed "loyal," within the meaning of this order, and among the stockholders from whom selections would have to be made, others were not found to be in any better condition.

The only way of relief, therefore, was either to invite men from abroad who had not been in the South during the war, to come and take charge of the road, or to appeal to the President of the United States for pardon. The latter course was adopted, and the pardons were granted, and the cloud over the credit of the road above referred to was removed. W. R. Hallett of Mobile, and John J. Palmer and Morris Ketchum of New York, were the original Trustees in the mortgage to secure the payment of our sterling bonds. Hallett and Palmer died, leaving Morris Ketchum the sole surviving Trustee.

He took advantage of his position; refused to allow other Trustees appointed, refused to authorize the sale of lands, and claimed the 805 right to establish a land bureau in New York, and conducted all the Company's land sales in New York instead of Mobile. This would have been immensely expensive, and led to endless frauds. A bill in Chancery was filed to supersede him as Trustee, and a decree was made, removing him and appointing Chas. Walsh of Mobile, George H. Young of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson of Tennessee, Trustees, under the mortgage. This bill was filed before the war, but the decree was rendered during the war. It had been impossible to pay the coupons on the sterling bonds during the war, and those that had matured, necessarily remained unpaid, and it was contended that the decree removing Mr. Ketchum was void, being rendered during the war, and that he was still sole Trustee and had a right to take possession of the road.

The bondholders, however, had confidence in the integrity of the management of the road, and did not wish to commit their interests into the hands of Mr. Ketchum. This movement, therefore, failed; and since then, the convention of the State of Alabama has ratified the judgment and decrees rendered during the war, as far as private rights are concerned, which, it is hoped, will give permanent rest to this question and save us from trouble hereafter.

Mr. Stewart objects to the papers as not being evidence of anything whatever. Papers taken subject to objection.

Examination of T. H. Du Puy resumed.

Q. You are aware that a large amount of the securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company were placed under the control of W. B. Duncan, from the time you became Vice President in latter part of April, 1875, or before that time, what became of those securities and where are they now, or any part of them, or in whose control or custody?

Objected to by Mr. Stewart as being too general, uncertain and irrelevant. Neither Mr. Duncan or this Company are on trial in this issue, or their accounts.

(Answer taken, subject to exceptions.)

A. I know nothing of my own knowledge of securities pledged to Mr. Duncan. If such was done, it was done before I had anything to do with the Company.

Q. Did not the so-called Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a few weeks ago, pass a resolution in reference to the disposition of securities in which the Company had an interest ?

Objected to by Mr. Stewart as irrelevant. Matters subsequent to the accrual of the rights of Alexander Duncan.

(Answer taken, subject to exceptions.)

A. I will produce a copy of the resolutions referred to, which will be my answer.

It being 4 o'clock, recess taken until 6½ P. M.

7 o'clock P. M.

Witness T. H. Du Puy produces copy of resolutions called for by counsel of Second Mortgage Trustees, dated March 2, 1877, referring to disposition of the securities, in which the Company had an interest (resolutions marked F1), and also resolutions dated ——— 1877, regarding Receivers Duncan and Elliot, which last are offered by Mr. Hamilton and marked F2.

Mr. Hamilton moves to exclude those marked F1.

Mr. Grandin moves to exclude those marked F2 (resolutions filed, subject to exceptions.)

By Mr. Grandin:

Q. This meeting in which these resolutions in regard to Duncan and Elliot were passed, was called on purpose to pass the resolutions, was it not ?

A. The resolutions will show.

Q. Who drafted them ?

By Mr. Stewart—Question objected to.

(The Master declines to take testimony in reference to either set of resolutions, as representing actions of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1877. They are entirely outside of the issues before him on this reference.)

Judge Grandin excepts to the ruling prohibiting the examination of Mr. Du Puy in reference to the resolutions which have been filed.

E. L. Andrews, for E. H. Grandin, offers the bill and 807 record in the case of Morris Ketchum vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which was heretofore offered and excluded, in view of the admission of the resolutions of the Board claiming to recognize the title of Duncan and Elliot.

The Master, having already sustained the objections thereto, declines to file the said record.

8 o'clock P. M.

George N. Stewart, witness, summoned at the instance of Trustees and Receivers complainants, and examined by Mr. Hamilton, says:

Q. In the letters which were produced at the instance of the counsel for the Rogers' Locomotive Works, acting for the Second Mortgage Trustees, relating to the resignation of the former Trustees in March and April, 1875, your name is mentioned as being concerned in the correspondence, be good enough to state the facts attending your connection with it?

A. Mr. Walsh who was one of the Trustees, in a conversation with me, informed me that he was about to remove from the city; that the time had come when probably very active proceedings would be required of the Trustees; that he could not attend to the duties and wished to resign; that he thought that the other Trustees being old and subject to some inconvenience in signing bonds and affidavits, he thought it very likely that they would do likewise. I was the General Solicitor of the Company. I communicated the matter to Mr. Walker, Vice President. I was directed by him to go up the country and see those gentlemen, and ascertain what would be their wishes in that respect. I first called on Mr. Alexander Jackson at Jackson, Tenn., and showed him the letter which Mr. Walsh had addressed to me, and mentioned to him that I believed it was true that active operations would soon be required of the Trustees, and desired to know what would be his determination in that respect. He told me that he would see his son who was a practicing attorney at Jackson, and advise with him and give me an answer next morning. Next morning he informed me that he had concluded to resign, and signed his letter of resignation which he handed to me. I then went to Waverly, on the Tombigbee river, above Columbus, and saw Mr. George H. Young, and the same communication passed between him and me. He also answered that he was too old for active business at that time, and that he preferred to resign. I then returned to Mobile, and had the three letters offering resignations. I informed Mr. Walker and Mr. Walsh that I had not handed in the resignations, remarking that if the resignations of all three were reported and accepted, there would be no means of continuing the trust except by applying to a court, and I requested Mr. Walsh to withhold his resignation until two other Trustees could be appointed. He consented to this. I then reported to Mr. Walker the resignation of Jackson and Young, but not that of Walsh. New appointments were made of Trustees according to the terms of the deed, by the concurrence of the Board and of Mr. Walsh, Trustee; and after this was completed, Mr. Walsh then tendered his resignation in a letter to Mr. Walker, which was dated after the appointment of the new trustees, which was accepted, and Mr. Walsh then ceased to act as a Trustee after that time. I returned the letters and all the papers to Mr. Walker. Thus it was that these matters occurred.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and in what character?

A. From the commencement of the project to the present day: first, in making speeches in its favor; second, in passing the charter as Senator from Mobile; afterwards, as attorney from the time of its organization; afterwards, as general solicitor, and now as consulting counsel. I have been constantly connected with it from the beginning.

Q. Will you state who were the acting Trustees after 1863 and 1865?

Mr. Andrews, acting for E. H. Grandin, objects on the ground that the Master has already excluded evidence from our witnesses on the subject to which that question is directed.

(Answer taken, subject to exception.)

A. Charles Walsh, Alexander Jackson and George H. Young.

Q. Were they recognized and dealt with by the corporation and as Trustees?

Objected to on the same ground, and for the further ground that the question is leading.

(Answer taken, subject to the objection.)

A. Yes. They were, and their action as such was not questioned or contested by any one. And when I, as counsel, wanted bonds and affidavits in relation to suits, I had to send to get affidavits or the bonds signed by them at the request of the Company, which they did.

Q. Was it or not ever necessary during that time, to protect portions of this trust property against hostile actions by creditors and trespassers, and if so, in whose name and by whose authority were proceedings had to secure that protection?

Objected to by Mr. Andrews on the same ground as heretofore, and on the ground that this line of investigation has been withheld until within an hour of the announced time of adjournment, when it is apparent that the Second Mortgage Trustees have no time to offer rebutting testimony.

Mr. Hamilton states that he has had no opportunity to offer any evidence until the clock struck 8 o'clock P. M.

Mr. Andrews states that Mr. Hamilton had time to offer the evidence on Monday, after 4 P. M., or in the evening of that day, and all the day and evening of Tuesday, but gave no notice even of his intention to offer such testimony at any time.

Answer taken, subject to exception. Ruling excepted to.

A. On several occasions it was necessary in judicial proceedings, to which the Trustees were parties to apply to them as before stated, to carry on proceedings with their aid.

Q. By whose authority were sales of land made after cessation of war?

Objection by Mr. Andrews as before, same ruling and exception taken.

A. The title to the lands, of course, was in them by the terms of the deed, and in all cases of sales of land they, or a majority of them, had to sign the deed by themselves or by their authorized agents.

Q. During this time did Mr. Morris Ketchum ever act as Trustee?

Objected to.

Mr. Andrews moves to strike out the question and answer as entirely irrelevant to any question before the Master.

Motion granted.

Q. Who have been the acting Trustees since the resignation of Young and Jackson?

Objected on same ground.

(Answer taken, subject to exception.)

A. Wm. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliot.

Cross-examined by Mr. Andrews:

Q. Did you not file a plea in this court setting up the title of Walsh, Jackson and Young, and Duncan and Elliot, to the Trusteeship of the First Mortgage, and was not that plea overruled by this court?

Objected to by Mr. Hamilton,

(Answer taken, subject to exception.)

A. The record in this cause gives the answer to the question. There was an order overruling the plea, but that question is not finally disposed of as the record shows.

Q. During the time that you say Walsh, Jackson and Young acted as Trustees and gave bonds and made affidavits, or did any other act as trustees, did you, or did you ever hear of any other officer of the Company calling on any one else to perform those duties as Trustee?

A. No.

Q. Did not Charles Walsh say that after he failed, he did not think it was proper for an insolvent to hold such a position of trust?

Mr. Hamilton—Objected to, because entirely irrelevant. (Answer taken, subject to exception.)

A. I do not recollect that he used such language.

Q. Did he not say that A. F. Elliot was not fit to hold any position, and that Duncan had been advised by his friends to give up all claim to the trust, and should do so if he had a proper regard for public propriety?

A. No; not that I know of.

Mr. Andrews—On behalf of counsel for Second Mortgage Trustees, I move for a subpœna duces tecum to witnesses whom I will name, to rebut the testimony offered since 8 o'clock this evening, to sustain the claim of title of the complainants in this suit.

Mr. Stewart—I move that all the testimony taken by the Master, in the Tennessee matter, be excluded on the ground that the proper parties are not before the court.

Special Master—This session is adjourned sine die.

vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL.

Testimony on behalf of Lewis J. Belloni, objector, taken before Edward L. Owen, Esq., United States Commissioner, at No. 71 Wall street, in the city of New York, April 11th, 8877.

The parties appear.

It is stipulated and agreed by and between the respective Solicitors that the testimony of the witnesses be taken by a stenographer, and that his minutes, when written out and subscribed to by the witnesses, be certified by the Commissioner with the same effect as though taken by him.

George W. Dougherty, a witness produced, sworn and examined on behalf of the Objector, deposes as follows:

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is your business?

A..Broker.

Q..Where do you carry on business?

A..16 Wall street.

Q..How long have you been a broker?

A..Ten years.

Q..Did you buy or sell any First Mortgage Sterling bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company subsequent to May 1, 1874?

A..Yes, sir, I sold some bonds.

Q..Did you buy any?

A..Yes, sir, bought and sold.

Q..Did you previous to May 1, 1874?

A..Yes, sir, I did.

Q..About what time previous and about what time subsequent?

A..Subsequent, May 6: previous, ——

By Mr. Bangs (interposing):

Q..What did you do May 6? buy or sell?

A..I sold 9,000 bonds; nine bonds, 1,000 each.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Previous to May 1st?

A..Previous to that, I have no definite recollection; I have not refreshed my memory.

Q..You have nothing to refresh your memory?

A..Yes, sir, but I have not done so, previous; I have looked up that date and subsequent dates, not previous to it.

Q..Have you anything with you now that would refresh your recollection as to how many you bought and sold previous to May 1st?

A..No, sir, nothing with me.

Q..Did you buy or sell any of the same bonds before or subsequent to November 1st, 1874?

A..Subsequent to November, 1874, I sold some bonds.

Q..Did you buy any?

A..Bought and sold.

Q..Did you, previous to November, 1874, outside of those you have already testified to?

A..I cannot say, because I haven't looked to see.

Q..When did you make the purchase and sale subsequent to November 1st?

A..November 11th.

By Mr. Bangs:

816 Q..What was it, a purchase or sale?

A..A sale.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Did you purchase the bonds for your own account, or the account of other persons?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..Have you anything by which you could refresh your memory here?

A..Not with me.

Q..What were the prices of these bonds, at or about the following dates, May 1st, 1874?

A..May 1st, 1874, or May 6, 1874, 80½.

Q..June 1st, 1874?

A..I can't say.

Q..July 1st, 1874?

A..I only took the dates May, 1874, and November, 1874, and May, 1875. Those were the dates that I looked up.

Q..Give me the prices of November, 1874?

A..November 11th, 69.

Q..And May, 1875?

A..April 17th and 24th, 56, 55 and 55½.

Q..The last prices you have given me were November, 1875, were they?

A..The last prices were May, 1875, or rather April, 1875; April 17th and 24th, 1875. There was also a sale May 6th, but it is a little irregular. That is the sale with the May coupon off at 43¾.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..May 6th, 1875?

A..That is May 6th, 1875.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Did I understand you that the price about May 1st, 1874, was 80½?

A..May 1st, 1874—80½.

Q..And November, 1874?

A..69.

Q..Between the 1st May, 1874 and the 1st June, 1875, had you any other transactions in reference to those bonds beyond those testified to?

A..I am sure that I did, and yet I have no precise recollection about it.

Q..Are there any means in your office of refreshing your recollection as to the prices between the 1st May, 1874, and June 1, 1875?

A..There is; there is a record of every transaction we made in the bonds.

Q..I understand you to say that beyond what you have already testified to, you have no information to-day as to the prices?

A..No sir.

Q..Were there coupons falling due May 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..The default was May, 1875.

Objected to by Mr. Bangs.

The witness—No sir. There were no overdue coupons attached.

Q..To the purchases you made after May 1, 1874; is that what you mean?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Were there coupons falling due November 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date or any of them?

A..There were not.

Q..Were there coupons falling due the 1st May, 1875, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..In a single transaction that I have an account of they were not attached.

Q—Did it make any difference in the price, the circumstance of coupons not being attached after the 1st day of May, 1875?

A..Yes sir; it did.

Q..What?

A..I can't tell you exactly.

Q..Did you know that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company had defaulted before the 1st May, 1875, upon the first mortgage bonds?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs as of no consequence.

Answer taken subject to objection.

A..I did not.

Q..Was it generally known on the market?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs as beyond his cognizance, so far as appears. The objection is insisted upon.

Answer taken subject to objection.

A..That it had defaulted prior to May, 1875?

Q..Yes, May, 1875.

A..I think not.

Q..I understood you to say you were dealing in these bonds all the time between those dates?

A..Yes sir; I understand you; a default prior to May, 1875?

Q..Yes; can you by reference to your books bring other sales and purchases before and after May, 1875?

A..1875?

Q..1874 and 1875.

A..Yes, sir, I can, I think.

Mr. Blandy: I will have to trouble you to do that to-morrow.

Cross-examination, by Mr. Bangs.

Q..You have been referring to a memorandum book in giving your testimony?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Are the entries in that book in your own handwriting?

A..No, sir, they are not.

Q..Whose are they?

A..Our book-keeper, Walter Bass.

Q..Why do you use that memorandum book in giving your testimony?

A..Because I take these from our purchase and sales book showing the transactions.

Q..What do you take from your purchase and sales book?

A..This memorandum.

Q..What memorandum?

A..The memorandum from which I have given my testimony.

Q..I thought you said it was in the handwriting of your book-keeper?

A..So it is.

Q..What do you mean by saying you took it from your purchase and sales book?

A..Then I should have said the one that was taken for me. Our book-keeper took it.

Q..You did not take it from your purchase and sales book, then?

A..Personally, no sir.

Q..You did not take it at all from your purchase and sales book?

A..No, sir.

Q..Why do you read as a part of your testimony memoranda in the handwriting of other people?

A..Through my ignorance, possibly, not knowing any better.

Q..Will you please lay aside that book and, without referring to it, tell what Mobile and Ohio bonds you bought or sold in May, 1874?

A..I cannot.

Q..Without referring to the memorandum book, what was the price of Mobile and Ohio bonds in April, 1874?

A..I have no recollection.

Q..Without reference to the memorandum book, what was the price of Mobile and Ohio bonds in April, 1875?

A..I have no recollection.

Q..Who do you know that was ignorant at any time in 1874 and 1875 that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company had defaulted in May, 1874?

A..I beg your pardon; I don't understand that question.

Q..What particular person can you name that was ignorant in 1874 of the fact that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company had defaulted on the 1st May of that year?

A..I don't know that I can answer that question.

Q..You cannot name a single person that was ignorant of that fact can you?

A..That was ignorant of the fact?

Q..Yes, that was ignorant of it.

A..Well, no sir, I can't say as much as that; I think there are gentlemen in the room that were ignorant of it; that is my opinion.

Q..Did I ask you that?

A..I think you did; yes, sir.

Q..I asked you if you could name a single person that was ignorant; I don't ask what gentlemen in the room know, unless you want to name them. If you can name any person in the room that was ignorant of that fact, to your knowledge, name him.

A..Well, now you bring in something you did not before to my knowledge; I can't name any one, to my knowledge, that was ignorant of the fact.

Q..What made you say, then, that the market generally was ignorant, if you cannot name a single person?

A..Well, my reason for that is that when a bond is in default the market knows it and trades upon that basis; I should have known it myself.

Q..Did you understand that you were asked to swear to your own inferences or that you were asked to swear to facts?

A..I believe I must swear to the facts of the case.

Q..Confine yourself to the facts of the case; what you can say as of your own knowledge, and not reasoning or speculation, that the market was was ignorant of the fact referred to?

A..I tell you that I thought so.

Q..That is all you meant, was it?

A..That is all I said too.

Q..When were you asked to attend here as a witness?

A..I was asked day before yesterday.

Q..By whom?

A..By Mr. Moran's son, Isidor Moran, I think his name is, or Amidee, the younger Mr. Moran.

Q..Had you acted for him as a broker?

A..No sir; never really as a broker; I done a great deal of business with Mr. Moran, but more as a dealer than a broker. I never was Mr. Moran's broker.

Q..You mean any transactions in which you were the interested party?

A..Yes sir.

Q..You bought and sold?

A..I bought and sold.

Q..Then you are not wholly a broker?

A..No sir.

Q..You are partly a speculator?

A..Partly a speculator.

Q..Did it ever happen to you to see a coupon separated from a bond made a subject of purchase or sale?

A..Very frequently.

Q..Before maturity?

A..I have seen such a thing as that.

Q..And you have seen coupons sold after maturity?

A..Yes sir.

Q..And in both cases detached from the bond?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Have you seen bonds sold with the coupons not yet matured and next maturing detached?

A..Have I seen bonds sold without the next maturing?

Q..Yes?

A..Yes.

Q..That is the custom of this market very frequently, is it not? to sell coupons by themselves after maturity, and to cut off the coupon before it matures, and to sell the bond without it.

A..I have done all of those things myself.

Q..Is not that a very common thing?

A..I cannot say that I think so.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Think what?

A..That it is common; transactions of that sort are common.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Have they not been common in your experience?

A..I done it frequently myself; not in this particular bond, but in bonds generally.

Q..Has this not happened frequently in your experience?

A..Not to my recollection.

Q..What has not happened to your recollection.

A..Trading in Mobile and Ohio bonds short of coupons.

Q..You anticipate me. Has not this frequently happened, that a coupon maturing in a very short time, or which has matured a very short time before, is detached from the bond by the holder, and the bond sold before the holder realizes upon the coupon or collects it?

A..I don't really grasp your question.

Q..For instance: suppose you held some Erie bonds, the coupons of which matured on the 1st of May, would it not be quite a common occurrence for you to cut off a coupon on the 29th or 30th of April and sell the bond without it? Would not it be an ordinary occurrence if you happened to hold the bond after the 1st May, after the coupon had matured, intending to collect the interest, to cut off the coupon then and keep it, with the intention of collecting it and then selling the bond; such things as that happen, do they not?

A..Yes, sir, such things as that happen.

Q..Then the mere finding of a bond afloat with the coupon detached from it, does not signify anything, does it, except that somebody has got the coupon?

A..No, it does not.

Q..What did you mean by saying that the detachment of the coupon of May, 1875, which you bought after that date, made a difference?

A..Because the bond to be a delivery should have carried that overdue coupon.

Q..You meant they were not a good delivery?

A..A good delivery in our Wall-street use, as we Wall-street people use that expression. Now, to have sold the bonds and said nothing, they would have had to carry the May, 1875, coupon, and to sell them as these were sold, it would have to be a special agreement--an arrangement stating the condition that the bonds were in. If you had simply sold the bonds, saying nothing, they would have to carry the unpaid coupon with them.

Q..Are you talking about the bonds that you bought after May, 1875?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You said the coupons were not attached? Do not refer to that memorandum book, if you please.

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You said that made a difference, and that you could not tell what; did you not know what you meant when you said it made a difference?

A..I know precisely what I meant; yes.

Q..Yet you said you could not tell what difference it made?

A..I could not tell what in the sense of the precise percentage of difference it made.

Q..How do you know that it made any?

A..Well, just sir, as I know anything; I don't really know how to answer your question.

Q..You would not be likely to know that it made a difference without knowing what the difference was, would you?

A..I could even be there——

Q..Do you remember that it made a difference, or do you only guess it would make a difference, or might make a difference?

A..I know that it did make a difference.

Q..How do you know it?

A..From the fact that there was not all with the bond that belonged with it?

Q..Are you speaking now from memory?

A..I am speaking from the memorandum that I have here of the transaction?

Q..Don't that memorandum specify what the difference was?

A..No, sir; it gives the price, stating that the sale was made, the bonds not having the overdue coupon.

Q..The memorandum does not show that it made a difference, does it?

A..No, sir, the memorandum shows nothing about it.

Q..Why do you say that it makes a difference: if you depend on the memorandum, why do you put in something that is not in the memorandum?

A..The reason I did that was because 43¾, the price of that transaction, would not show the price of Mobile and Ohio bonds, a delivery, carrying the overdue coupons.

Q..How do you know that was the price of that transaction?

A..From my memorandum.

Q..But it is not your memorandum.

A..Well from the memorandum that I have.

Q..Why do you rely upon that, when it is not yours?

A..Because it is taken from our books by my direction.

Q..Was the original entry from which it was taken made by you?

A..No sir; probably not.

Q..Who made it?

A..This book-keeper, Walter Bass.

Q..Then you have not testified in that respect to anything that you personally know or remember, have you?

A..That is the case precisely. I have testified from the memorandum taken in the way I have told you, taken from our books.

Q..That is, you testified to the memorandum, and not to anything that you remember?

A..I have no recollection of transactions as far back as that.

Q..That is, if you had been called here and asked these questions, and hadn't had your memorandum book, you could not have answered one of them, could you?

A..I could not give the day and date, amount and price.

Q..Have you any record of the numbers of these bonds?

A..Every single one.

Q..Where is that?

A..Up at the office.

Q..What is it in?

A..In our purchase and sales book—no, let me see—the numbers would be in the daily blotter.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Have you any remembrance of when this default took place; from your understanding of the time when it took place; I mean personal recollection outside of reference to your books?

A..I can't say I have, because dates are all mixed up; I live one day at a time; I can't remember these things back.

Q..Is your memory sufficient to enable you to answer the question whether you heard of any default as far back as May, 1874?

A..I could only get at that by reasoning it out; I can't say that I have any recollection one way or the other.

Q..Reason it out in your own way, without doing it audibly, and tell me whether as far back as 1874 you heard of any default?

Mr. Bangs: Objected to, and it is insisted upon that the witness shall reason it out audibly, if he can reason it out at all.

Q..Then reason it out audibly.

A..I know that the default was made in 1875.

Q..And you know that from the circumstances?

A..Partly from refreshing my memory by my brother brokers here as to whether that was the date or not of the default.

Q..And what is the other circumstance or circumstances ?

A..I think that is about all.

Q..The gentleman has, in cross-examination, asked you to mention a single person ignorant of the fact that the company had defaulted May 1, 1874. Can you mention the name of a single person cognizant of the fact that the company had defaulted in 1874 ?

A..I cannot.

Q..Can you mention the name of a single person cognizant of the fact that the company had defaulted the 1st November, 1874 ?

A..I cannot do that.

Q..The gentleman has asked you in reference to your memorandum book ; did you see the original entries in the books of your concern from which the memorandum was taken ?

A..No sir ; I did not.

Q..Did you compare the memorandum in the book which you have with you, along with the entries in your books ?

A..I didn't do that.

Q..And you have relied entirely upon the extract made by Mr. Bass ?

A..By Mr. Bass.

Q..By whom were those books kept ?

A..By Mr. Bass.

Q..What is Mr. Bass' position ?

A..He receives and pays for all the bonds that we buy, and makes them up for delivery.

Q..And makes the entries in the books ?

A..Makes the entries. He is our cashier and book-keeper.

Q..How long has he filled that position ?

A..Since 1871 or 1872.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..You say that you know the company defaulted in May, 1875 ; do you wish to be so understood ?

A..Yes sir.

Q..What is a default ?

A..Where you present coupons—maturing coupons—for collection, and get no funds in payment.

Q..You mean where you present them to the debtor ?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Did you present any coupons in May, 1875, to the debtor and meet with a refusal ?

A..Possibly not; probably not.

Q..Did you ?

A..Well, no sir, I did not.

Q..Because I want to ask you, if you did, where you presented them; you say you did not; how do you know then that it defaulted in May, 1875 ?

A..Well, I hardly know how to answer you.

Q..You don't know that it defaulted in 1875, do you ?

A..But I do.

Q..How do you know it then ?

A..Well, perhaps by the assertions of the men in the trade, who dealt in the bonds; I guess I know it that way as well as any other.

Q..I thought you said a default consisted in presenting a coupon and meeting with a refusal; did you not say so ?

A..I did; yes, sir.

Q..How do you know that any such thing happened; you did not see any such thing, did you ?

A..I have to reason a little to come to that conclusion.

Q..Won't you be so good as to answer my question ?

A..You ask me how I know a thing, and you require me to make definitions that puzzle me a good deal.

Q..I beg your pardon; I didn't ask you to make any definitions that puzzled you a good deal; I asked you if you presented any coupons ?

A..I can answer you about that; that I did not.

Q..Did you see anybody present any coupons ?

A..No, I didn't see anybody.

Q..By the use of which one of your senses did you ascertain that coupons were presented and payment refused in May, 1875?

A..Probably the sense of bearing.

Q..Then you heard one presented and refused, did you?

A..It was brought to my conscience through the sense of hearing—the statements of other people.

Q..Did you see any coupon presented?

A..That would be an absurdity; no, I did not.

Q..What did you mean, then, by the sense of hearing?

A..This is very amusing to me—to you; but—

Q..No, it is not amusing; you swear plumply that the Company defaulted in May, 1875; did you not?

A..Yes, sir, I did.

Q..Now, I want to know how you found that out; do you mean anything more than you heard somebody say so?

A..That is about it.

Q..Have you discriminated in your testimony between what you heard other people say and that knowledge which you acquired by the use of your senses, or have you mixed them up very much altogether?

A..It is very much mixed where you go back so far.

Q..You know, do you not, as a matter within your own knowledge, that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, out of its own funds, and over its own counter, actually and fully paid and cancelled every one of its coupons that matured in May and November, 1874; you know that, don't you; you saw it done, did you not?

A..Why, no sir, I saw nothing of the kind.

Q..You didn't see it done in a single instance, did you, in May, 1874, or November, 1874?

A..No, I didn't see it in either case.

Q..How do you know that its coupons were not presented and payment refused, in May, 1874, and that the same thing did not happen in November, 1874, and July, 1874, and January, 1875?

A..Because in trading in the bonds, those overdue coudons were not attached to the bonds.

Q. . Is that the reason you say those coupons had been presented and paid?

A. . That is my reason for thinking so.

Q. . You did not say you thought so; you said that the Company defaulted in 1875, which implies that it had not defaulted in 1874, and you said that of your own knowledge; now, do you know anything about it?

A. . I know only what I have told you.

Q. . You are aware, I suppose, that the Company omitted the payment of some of its coupons which matured in 1872 and 1873, and some which matured in 1869, are you not?

A. . I am aware of it from the fact that I know there is an interest bond, which was given for overdue interest on the first mortgage bonds; that is about the only way I know that.

Q. . You know that, too, do you?

A. . That is about the only way I know that.

Q. . Are you certain you know it?

A. . I don't think I know much of anything; you are making me a little uncertain on that point.

Q. . That correctly describes the present condition of your mind, does it?

A. . That is very much it.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q. . How did you acquire the knowledge of the default?

Mr. Bangs. . In 1874.

Mr. Blandy. . In May, 1875.

Witness. . From the fact that in trading in the bonds they carried coupons that were due May, 1875.

Q. . Of course, if those coupons had been paid they would not have been attached to the bonds, would they?

A. . That is what I think about it; it would have been a matter of course to me.

Q. . Outside of that, is there any other circumstance which brought it to your knowledge; was it a matter of notoriety on the street?

830 Mr. Bangs: That is objected to.

(Taken subject to objection.)

A..I think it must have been.

(The answer is objected to by Mr. Bangs.)

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..To your knowledge, the coupons which you saw floating about attached to bonds after May, 1875, which were payable, by their terms, the 1st May, 1875, had been presented at the office of the company and payment demanded, had they not?

A..I cannot say that.

Q..Then how do you know that there was any default about it?

A..By a reasoning process as usual.

Q..Then you are no more certain of that than you are of the other things that you say you are uncertain about? You are not certain of that, at least, that there had been any default in respect to those coupons, are you?

A..I am satisfied of it in my own mind.

Q..I am speaking of knowledge?

A..Well, knowledge. I haven't got enough to suit you.

Q..Perhaps you have. Just answer this: Do you or do you not know that those coupons had been presented and payment demanded and refused?

A..I don't know; there is no way I could know.

Q..Why not; could you not have taken them and presented them?

A..That would be a possibility; yes, I could have done that.

Q..Where would you have taken them and presented them?

A..I think that interest was payable at Duncan & Sherman's; but I am not even sure of that.

Q..On the face of the coupon it was payable at Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s, was it not?

A..I don't remember.

Q..What do you mean by saying that it was payable at Duncan, Sherman & Co's ?

A..My recollection is, that was where the Mobile and Ohio interest was paid.

Q..Did you ever get any interest payable there ?

A..Perhaps personally not. I think the office has collected interest there.

Q..Do you mean your office ?

A..Our office, yes.

Q..Do you not know that the coupons said on their face that they were payable at Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s ?

A..I have no recollection about it.

Q..How can you say whether it was so or not ?

A..I cannot.

Q..When you referred to your brother brokers, did you mean Mr. Petty and Mr. Thorburn ?

A..I did. They are both here and they are better witnesses than I am too.

GEO. W. DOUGHERTY.

Subscribed and sworn before me, this 14th day of April, 1877.

EDWARD L. OWEN, U. S. Com. for So. Dist. N. Y.

Charles E. Thorburn, a witness produced, sworn and examined on behalf of the Objector, deposes as follows:

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is your business ?

A..I am a broker.

Q..Carrying on business where ?

A..No. 11 Broad street.

Q..In partnership with any one ?

A..No, sir.

Q..How long have you been a broker ?

A..I have been a broker about 12 years; between 11 and 12 years.

A..Did you buy or sell any First Mortgage Sterling bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company subsequent to May 1, 1874 ?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Which, bought or sold?

A..I said I did both; I have no memorandum of the exact transactions, but I have traded in them considerably as a broker.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Did you buy or sell any previous to May 1, 1874?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..How soon previous to May 1, 1874?

A..I have no data to give you, because, in looking at my books, I merely consulted my books to see about the price of the stocks.

Q..Have you any information of the price previous to May 1, 1874?

A..I didn't take any memorandum of that, but I took a memorandum of a transaction in May, 1874, and I don't know the exact date of that transaction; I merely took the transaction from my little note book.

Q..Was it between the 1st of May and 1st of June, 1874?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..It was in the month of May?

A..It was during the month of May; yes.

Q..You cannot give the precise date?

A..No, sir; the date, I didn't take any memorandum of it; it is so long back that I don't remember, of course.

Q..Did you buy or sell any of the same bonds before or subsequent to the 1st November, 1874, outside of the transaction you have just spoken of?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..How recent before the 1st November, 1874?

A..It was about November; I don't remember exactly the date.

Q..And the purchases and the sales subsequent to November 1, 1874, about what date were they?

A..It was during the month of November; I don't remember the dates.

Q..Then the transaction previous to the 1st of November would be within the month of September, if not October the first?

A..October, I should think; yes, October or November. I was trading in them all the time as a broker; I am not a dealer at all.

Q..You have not the precise date of the November transactions?

A..No, sir, I have not the precise date.

Q..Nor that immediately preceding the 1st November?

A..No, sir.

Q..Nor that immediately following?

A..No, sir, I only give you the price of the bonds about that time; I didn't take the exact date.

Q..Did you buy those bonds on your own account?

A..No, sir.

Q..For whom?

A..That I don't know; without consulting my books I don't know; I bought them as a broker entirely.

Q..Could you tell on whose account the purchases were made, by reference to your books?

A..Certainly.

Q..You have not informed yourself on that point?

A..No sir.

Q..You could also tell the precise dates by reference to your books?

A..Certainly.

Q..What were the prices of those bonds at the date of the first purchase and sale that you have spoken of?

A..The price of the the bonds the time of the actual transaction—I made one memorandum from my books in May.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..What is that Memorandum?

A..A memorandum taken from my sales book.

Q..Taken by whom?

A..Taken by me in my own handwriting.

Q..Who were the memoranda in the sales book made by?

A..By me. All transactions are taken from my little note book that I kept in my pocket.

Q..Have you any recollection of the transaction?

A..No; my memoranda does not go back.

Mr. Bangs—Then I object to your answering the question.

(Taken subject to objection.)

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..I understand you to say that you have no recollection of the precise price at the particular dates and times spoken of, but you can inform yourself from some memoranda which you have now with you?

A..Certainly.

Q..The particular memorandum that you refer to is in your own handwriting?

A..My own handwriting, from my own book.

Q..Taken from it?

A..Taken from my note book; taken at the moment of the transaction?

Q..By whom was the memorandum kept?

A..By me.

Q..Have you that note book with you?

A...Yes sir; the identical book.

Q..With you now?

A..No sir; in my office. I could have brought it with me, if I thought it necessary.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..You mean to say the memorandum refreshes your recollection?

A..Yes sir; tells me exactly the market price of the bonds.

Q..Does it refresh your recollection?

A..Certainly.

Q..So that without the memorandum you will remember? After having looked at the memorandum, you will remember?

A..If I should carry it in my mind for a minute, I suppose so.

Q..Could you remember now, after having looked at the memorandum?

A..Certainly I can.

Q..Then I ask you to testify without looking at the memorandum, from your memory.

The witness..Allow me to make one remark.

Mr. Bangs—I distinctly object to the witness looking at his memorandum book when he testifies.

The witness--I am not looking at the memorandum book. I have got a little piece of paper.

Mr. Bangs--Well, look at your memorandum then.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..I understand you to say that the memorandum which you have with you refreshes your recollection, so that you can testify to the prices at the particular dates.

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Supposing you close your memorandum, or not look at your memorandum, is your memory sufficiently retentive to carry in your mind the fluctuating prices, if they do fluctuate, at the different dates?

A..No, sir; I don't understand you.

Q..Is it not necessary for you to have a memorandum before you?

A..Exactly so; I would not do well to swear to the prices of the bonds at the different dates without the memorandum before me, because I might err without intending to do it.

Q..State the prices at the different dates, giving the earliest date first and the latest date last.

Mr. Bangs: I say state, if you can, without reference to your memorandum.

The Witness: I can't state it without reference to the memorandum; I can state the price in 1875, because that has been refreshed; that was 80; beyond that I would not like to state the price without referring to the memorandum.

Q..Refer to your memorandum, refreshing your recollec-

836 tion by it, and tell me the price, giving, as I said before, the price at the first date first and the price at the last date last?

A..In May, 1875, the price was 80.

Q..In 1875 or 1874?

A..In 1874 the price was 80; in November, 1874, the price was 70; and another quotation I took was 68¾; in April, 1875, the price was 62; in May, 1875, the price was 62; in November, 1875, the price was 50 and 52.

Q..Is that the last date of the transaction which you testified to?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Then were you mistaken in your earlier answer in saying that the price was 80 in May, 1875?

A..I did not say that.

Q..You did first before you commenced to detail these.

A..Oh! I meant '74, of course; that was a lapsus linguae; of course everybody knows that.

Q..Were there coupons falling due May 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Were there coupons falling due November 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..I misunderstood your first question.

Q..Were there coupons falling due May 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..Oh, no.

Q..They were not?

A..These coupons were detached from the bonds.

Q..Detached?

A..Yes.

Q..Were there coupons falling due November 1, 1874, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date?

A..No, sir.

Q..Were there coupons falling due May 1, 1875, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or detached?

A..The bonds carried the coupons of 1875 to be deliverable.

Q..Were the coupons falling due November 1, 1875, attached to the bonds you purchased after that date, or any of them?

A..They were attached.

Q..Then the purchases that you made in November, or subsequent, had attached to them two coupons?

A..Subsequent to November they had; yes, sir; they carried May and November.

Q..And those two coupons were the May and November, 1875, coupons?

A..Yes, sir. /

Cross-examination, by Mr. Bangs:

Q..Without reference to your memorandum book, state the particulars of the transaction you had in May, 1874, in Mobile and Ohio bonds?

A..I don't remember; I don't remember what it was.

Q..Who was your principal?

A..I don't remember.

Q..Was it a purchase or a sale?

A..I don't remember, sir.

Q..What was the price?

A..80.

Q..How do you know?

A..I took it from the book just before I came down here.

Q..Independently of the book, have you any recollection?

A..That is impossible; without the book I could not have any recollection.

Q..With the book have you a recollection?

A..Perfect.

Q..You recollect it perfectly?

A..Perfectly; give me the book and I will tell you all about it.

Q..Without the book, have you any recollection, is what I say.

A..Certainly not.

Q..Had you any other transactions on that day?

A..Had I any other in any other stock or bond?

Q..Yes?

A..Certainly.

Q..What were they?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..Had you any transaction in Erie securities?

A..No, sir.

Q..Are you sure of it?

A..Certain of it.

Q..You are sure you had none?

A..None whatever; I do not trade in it.

Q..What do you trade in?

A..Southern securities principally, and that class.

Q..Can you name a single transaction you had on that day?

A..No, sir.

Q..Neither as purchaser nor seller on that day?

A..I know I bought some gold.

Q..On that day?

A..On that day.

Q..Do you remember that?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Who did you purchase it of?

A..I don't recollect, sir; I can't tell.

Q..Who did you sell it to?

A..I can't tell you.

Q..What was the price?

A..I could not tell you.

Q..If you had not looked at your book you could not tell any more about this than you can about the gold?

A..Quite true; I would not recollect anything about it, if I had not.

Q..How do you know the coupon was not attached?

A..Because at that time all the bonds bought and sold carried--were what we call ex-coupon; and I know the fact that these bonds were bought that way or sold that way by all dealers and all brokers.

Q..I am not talking about dealers, I am talking about you?

A..By me.

Q..Which was it, did you buy or sell?

A..I don't know.

Q..Then you have no particular recollection of these bonds?

A..Only from my note book; only my memory being refreshed.

Q..Your note book is one thing and your memory is another.

A..They are both the same; one is relatively—one, of course, has relation to the other. It is impossible to carry those things; I have transactions, sometimes, during the day, if you will allow me to explain.

Q..It is not necessary to explain?

A..All right, you will get it.

Q..It is not necessary to explain anything but what I want explained; do you remember the transactions in these bonds any better than you remember any other transaction?

A..No, I do not, without reference to the book; but I have refreshed my memory.

Q..When you were looking at the book did you mean to say that you remember it, or did you simply believe in the book?

A..I simply believe in the record of that book.

Q..That is all?

A..That is all.

Q..Does that say anything about "with" or "without" coupons?

A..Yes, sir, because it says "regular."

Q..Says what?

A..It says "regular" and that means ex-coupon.

Q..Does "regular" mean ex-coupon?

A..Yes sir; at that time regular meant ex-coupon.

Q..Where did you buy or sell them?

A..I could not tell you without reference—oh, in the office.

Q..You were not in the Stock Exchange?

A..No sir; they were not dealt in at the Stock Exchange, at that time.

Q..Whose office did you deal in them in?

A..That I cannot tell you without reference to my book. If I thought I was going to be cross-examined, you should have had the whole facts; who I bought them of and the numbers.

Q..You can give all this from the memorandum?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Please supply them the next time?

A..Yes sir. The numbers I might not be able to give you, because I very seldom deliver those bonds myself. The bonds do not pass through my office. For instance if I buy the bonds from you and sell them to W. Duncan, you deliver them, and I simply collect my brokerage.

Q..Then you do not know from actual inspection and sight of the bonds, whether they had coupons or not?

A..No sir; I only know from the fact that you would not be stupid enough to deliver a bond, unless you were obliged to, with the extra coupon on. No man in his senses would do that.

Q..Do you know anything about that?

A..Yes sir; I do know.

Q..As of your own knowledge, you do not know whether these particular bonds had the coupons on or not?

A..I am positive of it.

Q..You did not see it?

A..I don't know whether I did or not until I looked at my books. I may have seen those individual bonds.

Q..Would the books show whether you did or not?

A..They would tell me. If I did, I would have the numbers on my books.

Q..I suppose if I asked you about these transactions of subsequent dates, you would give the same answer?

A..The same answer.

Q..You would have no distinct recollection of any one of them?

A..No sir.

Q..You cannot tell the number of any bonds?

A..I cannot tell you anything about it.

Q..Not without reference to your books?

A..Not without reference to my books. I have traded for so many gentlemen that I don't know.

Q..Did you ever sell a coupon by itself?

A..Never.

Q..Did you ever buy one?

A..Never.

Q..You have had as extended an experience as Mr. Dougherty.

A..I bought probably three bonds when he sold one.

Q..You have not had the variety of experience?

A..No sir; I am not a dealer, I am a broker. I am not a speculator, I am simply a broker.

Q..Who asked you to attend here as a witness?

A..Young Mr. Moran and Mr. Charles Moran also; Mr. Charles Moran.

Q..Mr. Charles Moran and Mr. Amidee Moran?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Then you have bought and sold these bonds for them?

A..I have.

Q..How lately?

A..I can't tell you the dates, but I bought and sold very often for them.

Q..Come as near as you can.

A..I bought in 1874 and 1875, and I think 1876, and probably 1877; I think in all these years I bought for them.

Q..Have you bought for them lately; since the beginning of the year?

A..No; I haven't done anything in 1877 for them.

Q..Have you sold for them?

A..Oh yes, sir; I have, too, I believe; well, I am not sure; my impression is I had in 1877.

Q..Bought for them?

A..Yes sir; I think I bought from them.

Q..Mobile and Ohio bonds?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Bought from them?

A..Yes sir.

Q..What did you give?

A..I bought some interest bonds, if I recollect right, at 30.

Q..How long ago?

A..It is probably six weeks or two months ago.

Q..Can you give the nubmer?

A..No sir.

Q..Can you give the amount purchased?

A..Yes sir.

Q..How much was it?

A..1000 bond.

Q..A 1000 bond?

A..Yes sir. Sold it to Mr. Islin.

Q..What other transactions do you remember?

A..I don't recollect at the minute. I can tell by looking at the books. I might buy and sell for these gentlemen.

Q..To them?

A..Whenever I have orders from them.

Q..The question is have you bought and sold for them in 1876?

A..Yes sir.

Q..State the circumstances?

A..I don't recollect the dates.

Q..Have you bought for them?

A..Yes sir.

Q..You have bought Mobile and Ohio First Mortgage bonds for them?

A..I think I have.

Q..What did you give for them?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..Come as near as you can?

A..My impression is that I bought some at 40, but I wouldn't like to be positive.

Q..When was that?

A..Some time during the year.

Q..What part of the year?

A..The latter part of the year, I should think.

Q..Are you sure of that?

A..No; I am not positive.

Q..Do you remember hearing of the commencement of a suit by Morris Ketchum?

A..Yes sir; I read the account of it in a newspaper.

Q..When?

A..That I cannot tell you; it seems to me it was about six months ago.

Q..You cannot be much more precise in your testimony than you have been, can you?

A..No, I cannot, without reference to my books. I can give you all the data if you choose to take my books.

Q..Can you tell how far the bonds have fluctuated within the last year?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..How much?

A..I should think the bonds—they have sold at 46 and at 30; for I have made transactions at both prices.

Q..In the early part of last year they sold at the highest, didn't they?

A..No, I think they sold at about 42; my recollection is, the first of the year they sold at 42, and then they advanced to about 46, and then, with the fluctuations, they declined to 30, and then they rallied to 37.

Q..Did not they run from 42 to about 46 up to the time Ketchum brought his suit, and then they ran steadily down until Mr. Ketchum and Mr. Moran—844 A..(Interrupting.) No, sir, I do not think Mr. Ketchum and Mr. Moran had anything to do with it.

Q..I must ask you to produce your books, giving the transactions of Mr. Moran in these bonds, giving the prices and numbers of bonds?

A..That I cannot do.

Q..How much can you do?

A..I don't think I have any right to communicate Mr. Moran's business to anybody.

Q..Do you refuse to do it?

A..No, sir; I want to do what is right and honorable.

Q..When we come to the adjourned day I am going to ask you to give an exact memorandum of your transactions in the Mobile and Ohio bonds for Mr. Moran and his firm during the year 1876, the numbers of the bonds and the prices?

A..I can't give you the numbers.

Q..The amount then?

A..Mr. Moran receives and delivers his own bonds; I don't receive them for him.

Q..I should like to have you do the same thing with reference to Mr. Amy?

A..In the year 1876?

Q..Yes.

A..I can't do it without Mr. Amy's permission.

Q..That is for you to attend to; if you do not do it, I shall move to strike out his deposition?

Mr. Blandy: I advise you that we will take the consequence of that; that you are not bound to comply with that request unless you feel that it is proper to do so.

Witness: I shall not do anything that is small or dishonorable; a broker is bound in honor not to tell anything about his transactions unless he has the permission of the parties.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Did you get the permission of the parties that you testified about on the direct examination?

A..I have a perfect right to give you the prices and quotations, but none to give you the names.

Q..I do not know the difference?

A..I do; I am a judge of those matters myself.

Q..Have you had any transactions in Mobile and Ohio Railroad bonds for H. Amy & Co. since March 1876?

A..Have I had any from them?

Q..Yes?

A..Yes.

Q..Were they buyers or sellers?

A..I bought for them, I think. Let me understand perfectly. I want to be perfectly right about this thing, and I put myself in the hands of you two gentlemen. I do not want you to put me in the position that I am to do anything that is wrong—legally; that is all. I simply want you to ask me a question that you don't think is wrong.

Q..Do you think it is wrong to answer these questions?

A..I do.

Q..Then I will not press them, but the next time I will. In the mean time, you will inform yourself whether it is right or wrong?

A..Will you be kind enough to get the right from Mr. Amy?

Q..No, sir; I will not do that.

Mr. Blandy..Unless you assert your right to refuse.

The Witness..Yes, sir, I refuse.

Q..Now, I ask you to give the particulars of the purchases or sales, or other transactions, whatever they were, for Henry Amy & Co., and understand you to say that you refuse to answer?

Mr. Blandy..He says he will consult them and see whether they have any objection to his doing it, or something of that kind.

Witness..That is all.

Q..You decline to answer?

A..I stated that I had no right to speak anything about Mr. Amy's business, unless I had his permission.

Q..Do you decline to answer now?

A..Not at all. I tell you that I bought for them, but I cannot answer, I cannot tell you the numbers or the quantities.

Q..I shall ask you at the adjourned day to give the particulars of your transactions for them and for Moran Brothers?

A..Yes, sir; that is in the form of a notice, as I understand it. You can understand the position that I am in. I don't want to do anything to injure their interest, as I would Mr. Duncan, or Mr. Moran, or any of my customers.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Do you know when the Company defaulted for these First Mortgage bonds?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..When?

Q..In 1875; May, 1875.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How do you know that?

A..I was told so.

Q..Is that your understanding of the sense of the question, when you are asked if you know a thing, that you are at liberty to tell what you are told?

A..Yes sir; if I am told by those who are interested in the road, and who failed to get their coupons, I consider that that is right.

Q..That is knowledge as you understand it?

A..I do sir.

Q..Did Orville D. Jewett kill himself or was he shot?

Mr Blandy:

I object to that as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..No; I don't know.

Q..You have been told, haven't you.

A..No sir.

Q..Have you not read it in the papers?

A..I have.

Q..Have you not read that he killed himself ?

A..I have not.

Q..Have you read that he was shot ?

A..I have.

Q..Are you not ready to testify to that as of your own knowledge ?

A..No.

Q..What is the difference ?

A..Because I never believe half what I hear in a newspaper; but if Mr. Duncan, or this gentleman, tells me anything, I believe it.

Q..Did Mr. Duncan or I tell you, or Mr. Moran tell you ?

A..I understood from Mr. Duncan and Mr. Moran and Mr. Hayes that the road had defaulted in 1875.

Q..When did Mr. Duncan tell you ?

A..I think it was in May—I want you gentlemen to understand—

Q..I want an answer to that question ?

A..It was in May, 1875.

Q..What did he tell you ?

A..My recollection is, that the Mobile and Ohio would not pay their interest.

Q..Mr. Duncan told you that ?

A..That is my understanding—my recollection.

Q..where ?

A..In his office.

Q..What was the occasion ?

A..Because I went there to find out, through parties who held the bonds, whether they would pay or not.

Q..What made you doubt whether they would pay ?

A..Because this man had not got his interest.

Q..What man ?

A..Mr. O'Connor, I think his name was.

Q..That was after the 1st May, 1875 ?

A..Yes.

Q..You asked Mr. Duncan what ?

A..I asked him whether the road would pay the interest on these bonds. I bought these bonds for this gentleman, and he sent me there to find out about the bonds, about the payment of interest.

Q..After he had bought them?

A..Yes.

Q..After the payment of interest had matured?

A..Yes.

Q..Then you asked Mr. Duncan what?

A..Whether the road would pay the interest or not.

Q..He said what?

A..He said no.

Q..Therefore you know the road defaulted?

A..I am sure of it--positive.

Q..You did not see any coupons presented?

A..No sir; could not do it; it was an impossibility.

Q..Why?

A..Because they were paid in Mobile and in London.

Q..Then Mr. Dougherty was mistaken?

A..Entirely. He was not posted—not about the coupons; you flurried him and he didn't understand what he was asked about.

Q..The Company, to your knowledge, paid the coupons maturing in May, 1874.

A..No sir.

Q..Didn't you say they did?

A..I did not.

Q..What is the difference between your knowledge in that respect, and your knowledge in 1875.

A..Because the parties that sent the coupons there collected them.

Q..They were paid?

A..Yes sir.

Q..You know that?

A..I got that information from parties who held the bonds.

Q..Do you know that, or not?

A..I cannot know it any more than in that way.

Q..Why do you make the difference; you are ready to say that you know it defaulted in May, 1875, and will not say that you know it paid the interest in 1874?

A..We won't split straws on the question of default. The coupons that belonged to certain bonds belonging to a party for whom I bought, the road did not pay. I went to see about these coupons myself, and was told in the office—Mr. Duncan remembers it very well, probably—that the road would not pay the interest; that I regarded as a default. I had never heard, prior to that, of any default. Therefore, I am satisfied that the road had paid.

Q..Do you know that prior to May, 1875, the road had paid all its coupons?

A...I don't know it, but I believe it.

Q..You had been told so, had you not?

A..No; I don't know that I ever asked the question, because these coupons had been paid.

Q..What coupons had been paid?

A..The prior coupons had been paid.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..May and November, 1874?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..You knew they had been paid?

A..Yes, sir, in some cases.

Q..How do you know it?

A..Because the parties got their money.

Q..Who paid them?

A..I understood ——

Q..I do not ask you that; I ask what you know.

A..I can't know anything, taking your view of it.

Q..Yes, you can.

A..No, I cannot; it is an impossibility.

Q..You do not know where you are?

A..Yes, perfectly.

Q..You have the perfect use of your senses?

A..Perfect.

Q..You know everything that your senses indicate to your mind?

A..Not always; because you flash your stick in my eyes, and I may believe that is a hand of light, and it is not; but I know exactly what you are trying to do, and that is to confuse me, and you can't do it.

Q..And you are certain of that?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Your knowledge is just as accurate on that as anything else?

A..Yes, just as accurate.

Q..Do you know whether or not, of your own knowledge, the coupons were paid, in May, 1874?

A..I know that the money was paid for those coupons in May, 1874, to holders of bonds.

Q..Did you see it paid?

A,.I saw parties that got the money.

Q..Did you see it paid?

A..I was told they got the money.

Q..Did you see it paid?

A..No.

Q..How do you know?

A..Because parties that had the bonds sent to Mobile and collected it.

Q..That is all you know?

A..Yes sir.

Q..In your mind do you make any distinction between knowledge and hearsay?

A..Well, I don't know that—I might hear a cannon out there.

Q..I do not want you to speculate; I ask whether in your own mind you make any distinction between knowledge derived from your senses, and hearsay?

A..If you want Locke on Understanding, yes, I do.

Q..Is the information that you possess on the subject of payment of coupons in May, 1874, derived from hearsay or from your own knowledge?

A..I am satisfied.

Q..I do not ask if you are satisfied: I am trying to confine you to the facts; I asked whether it is hearsay or of your own knowledge?

A..I know what you are getting at; I understand the whole thing perfectly. The coupons of 1874 were paid, some of them; I don't know whether all were.

Q..I am asking about your knowledge.

A..I didn't collect any.

Q..Is your statement about the matter of 1874 a question of hearsay or of your own knowledge?

A..I was told by parties who collected them.

Q..I ask you about your knowledge?

A..Why not ask me if I collected them, and I will tell you no, at once

Q..I want to know whether it was a matter of hearsay or knowledge?

A..I was told that they were paid.

Q..I don't ask that. I ask if it was a matter of hearsay or a matter of your own knowledge?

A..You will have to explain to me the difference between a matter of hearsay and a matter of my own knowledge?

Q..Do you need that explanation.

A..I do.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You are buying and selling bonds of the different railroads every day, I suppose?

A..Yes sir; that is my business.

Q..And between the years 1874, 1875 and 1876 your dealings in that connection were very extensive?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Had you heard before the 1st of May, 1875, that there was any default on the part of this company in reference to these First Mortgage bonds?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs.

Answer taken subject to objection.

A..Never.

852 Q..Was it a matter well known on the street that the company had defaulted in May, 1875?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs.

Taken subject to objection.

A..Yes, sir; May, 1875.

Q..Then the knowledge you testified you had, that the company had defaulted in May, 1875, is also derived from the fact of its being a matter of public knowledge or notoriety on the street?

A..Certainly.

Q..Was it a subject of constant discussion among you brokers?

A..It was, among those who dealt in that security.

Q..Had you to regulate your dealings in the way of purchasing and selling those particular bonds accordingly, in that connection?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Now, if the company had defaulted in May, 1874, ordinarily the coupons of May and November, 1874, would be attached to the bonds?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs.

Answer taken subject to objection.

A..I mean, to be a delivery, the coupons must necessarily go with the bonds. May I go further?

Q..Yes?

A..It is a custom in Wall street, where a road does not pay up its interest, or a State does not pay up its coupons, that a regular delivery—the bonds carry the matured coupons always. Is that what you wanted?

Q..Yes. Would it carry that matured coupon if the company had not defaulted?

A..No, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..I believe you have stated these bonds were not dealt in at the Stock Exchange?

A..Not at that time. They are now; they are on the call; Mobile and Ohio were called afterwards.

Q..Are you a member of the Stock Exchange?

A..I am not.

Q..How do you know that?

A..Because I saw them on the list; I think Mr. Hayes had them put on.

Q..That is all you know about that?

A..Yes.

Q..You don't think you can possibly be mistaken about that, do you?

A..Mobile and Ohio?

Q..Yes--being on the list?

A..That is my impression.

Q..You don't think you can be mistaken about that?

A..I don't think I can, unless they have been taken off lately.

Q..The rule you speak of was a rule of the Stock Exchange?

A..And of the street.

Q..And of the street, too?

A..Yes, sir, among all classes of brokers.

Q..So that bonds cannot be sold after a default had taken place in the payment of interest, unless the coupons go with them?

A..Not to be a regular delivery.

Q..What do you mean by "to be a regular delivery?"

A..I mean to say, if nothing is said about the default. If I sell you $10,000 of bonds, and nothing is said about what coupon it carries, you are entitled to all unpaid coupons.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..As well matured as those to mature?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How do they get to be so? Did you make that law?

A..No, sir.

Q..Who made it?

A..The general custom of the street and the decision of the Stock Exchange.

Q..I asked you if it was a rule of the Stock Exchange?

A..I don't think you did.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You say it is?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Did you hear at any time that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company had received any assistance from Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..When?

A..I heard it in 1874; the latter part of 1874.

Q..From whom?

A..I think I heard it through Mr. Hayes, if I recollect.

Q..What kind of assistance?

A.. --and from Mr. Duncan as well.

Q..What kind of assistance?

A..Pecuniary.

Q..Is it possible?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..In what shape?

A..I heard they lent them some money.

Q..For what purpose?

A..To take care of them.

Q..Then you knew that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was borrowing money?

A..Yes, sir, decidedly.

Q..You saw it loaned?

A..No, sir; but I had that paper in my hands at different times.

Q..What kind of paper?

A..30, 60 and 90-day paper; Railroad paper.

Q..Notes to sell?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Were you asked by Mr. Duncan to borrow money for the company in 1874?

A..Never. Mr. Duncan never came to me to borrow money in 1874. I would have gone to him.

Q..I mean to make negotiations?

A..No, sir, never.

Q..And you never saw a coupon sold or bought by itself?

A..Oh, yes, sir; I have, very often.

Q..I asked you that.

A..Oh, no, you did not. You asked me if I had bought or sold Mobile and Ohio coupons.

Q..I didn't ask you that, with great respect. I did not mean to limit that to those coupons. You have seen coupons bought and sold?

A..Certainly.

Q..Separately?

A..Certainly.

Q..Coupons yet to mature?

A..Coupons yet to mature? yes, sir.

Q..And coupons which have matured?

A..Certainly; having matured and yet to mature. In the case of State bonds very often; South Carolina particularly, because they are receivable for taxes; Virginia also; there is quite a trade in them.

Q..Did you understand that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company paid all the coupons which matured during the war?

A..I knew they had not.

Q..Were all of those coupons attached to the bonds?

A..Oh, no.

Q..They were off?

A..They were all off.

Q..And yet it was known they were not paid?

A..Certainly; I knew they had been funded.

Q..They had all been taken off equally from all the bonds, had they not?

A..Yes, sir.

856 Q..Did not that make a difference in the application of this decision of the Stock Exchange?

A..Not at all.

Q..Did not?

A..No—because—

Q..Then why were not the coupons attached?

A..Because they had been funded by a special arrangement.

Q..How do you know that?

A..I know it from the Union Trust Company; they told me so.

Q..Do you mean to say that they had all been funded?

A..Oh, no; I don't mean to say that all had been funded.

Q..All you mean is that the funding scheme had been got up, and some people had taken advantage of it?

A,.Yes, sir.

Q..Why were not those coupons that matured during the war, and on which default was made, and which were not embraced in that funding scheme, why did they not stick to the bonds until the funding scheme was carried out?

A..Because, up to the time, as I understand it, that the coupons were funded, they commenced paying, from that time, interest on the bonds.

Q..Why did not the unpaid coupons continue attached to the boonds?

A..Because they were funded.

Q..But you say they were not all funded?

A..I say I don't know. You asked me whether they were or not. I told you I didn't know. I didn't say that they were not. I did'nt say whether they were or not. I told you I didn't know.

Q..Do you mean to say that that supposed rule you speak of, of the street and of the Stock Exchange, applies where the entire maturity of the coupon is detached?

A..What is that?

Q..Where the whole maturity of the coupon is detached by a purchaser of the coupon, do you mean to say that the rule you have spoken of as a rule applies?

A..I mean to say you have got to give them the coupon or else the money.

Q..Whatever rule there is, is it not for the purpose of preventing one set of purchasers from buying the bonds with the coupons, and another set from buying them without the coupons?

A..All bonds—

Q..Do not tell me about all bonds, please answer my question.

A..I cannot, for I don't understand your question.

Q..Is it not the object of the rule to accomplish this purpose, that there should not be one set of bonds out with a part of the coupons attached, and another set with the coupons, maturing at the same date, detached? In other words, is it not to produce uniformity?

A..Yes, sir; it is to produce uniformity.

Q..If all the coupons of a particular class are cut off, the uniformity is produced by no other means?

A..No, it is not.

Q..Is not uniformity produced by detaching all the coupons?

A..No; because you have got to put the money there?

Q..Is not uniformity produced?

A..No, it is not.

Q..Where is the want of uniformity?

A..Because I might have one bond, and that one single bond would break the rule.

Q..Where all the coupons of a particular due date are cut off the bonds, do not the bonds present the same uniform appearance and have the same uniform value?

A..Of course.

Q..Then is not uniformity produced by that process?

A..In appearance, yes, sir; but not in delivery.

Q..If they are all delivered with the coupons off, is not the delivery the same?

A..No; you have to make the delivery good.

Q..Is not one delivery just as good as another?

A..No, it is not.

Q..What makes the difference?

A..Because you have got to make up the difference.

Q..Where coupons are all cut off the coupons of a given date, is not one delivery just as good as another?

A..No, sir.

Q..What is the difference? Do not tell me what you have got to do? What is the difference between the delivery of bond A and bond B, where the coupons are cut off from both?

A..Neither of them is a delivery.

Q..What is the difference between the delivery of one and the delivery of another?

A..You cannot expect me to answer a question as to whether one bond is in appearance like the other, because I don't suppose you would ask such a question.

Q..Are they both bad or good deliveries?

A..They are both bad deliveries.

Q..What is the difference, if they are both bad?

A..There is no difference.

Q..Now, if the same thing happens to a thousand bonds, what is the difference in the quality of the delivery of any of those bonds?

A..All bad.

Q..That answer is objected to. What is the difference in the quality? Is there any difference?

A..All bad.

Q..Is not one delivery just as good and just as bad as another?

A..Quite so.

Q..When defaults have taken place for a series of years, as in the case of the Mobile and Ohio bonds during the war, and deliveries were made without those coupons, you do not consider any one of these a good delivery?

A..You are mistaken.

Q..Do you consider it a good delivery?

A..After the funding scheme was carried in, I do.

Q..Before the funding scheme was carried in?

A..No, sir; it was not a good delivery until the funding scheme.

Q..Suppose the funding scheme has never been carried out, do you consider it a good delivery?

A..No, sir.

Q..Then if the funding scheme has not been carried out, there have not been any good deliveries of Mobile and Ohio bonds with coupons attached since the war?

A..If the funding scheme had not been carried out.

Q..Has not?

A..But it has.

Q..I do not ask you that?

A..What is the use of supposing an impossible case to me, and then asking me the question?

Q..I will tell you when the case comes to be summed up. If the funding scheme has not been carried out, has there been a good delivery of Mobile and Ohio bonds since the default, which began at the beginning of the war?

Objected to by Mr. Blandy as hypothetical.

A..I am trying to you. You say if a certain thing has not happened, which has happened. It has happened; consequently there can be no "if" about it.

Q..Will you answer my question upon the hypothesis that I put?

A..Certainly I will.

Q..If the hypothesis has not been—

A..(Interrupting.) "Had not?" I can't understand it. "Has," I can understand.

Q..Well, if it had not been?

A..If it had not, the bonds would have required all the coupons which are now in escrow.

Q..If the funding scheme had not been carried out, has there been a good delivery of any of those bonds since the war?

860 A..No, sir. Now we get at it. Not according to the rule of the Stock Exchange. You said "has" and not "had."

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You stated that you had a conversation with Mr. Duncan and Mr. Hayes in reference to whether the interest falling due in May and November, 1875, would be paid on these bonds?

A..Had been.

Q..Would be paid. Could you state whether that interview took place subsequent to the 1st May, 1875?

A...The conversation which I alluded to then was subsequent to the 1st May, 1875.

Q..Subsequent to May 1, 1875?

A..Yes, sir; then I went there in the interest of this Mr. O'Connor. I went there to ask about his bonds.

Q..Mr. Duncan and Mr. Hayes that you refer to; will you give me the full name of Mr. Duncan?

A..There is the gentleman.

Q..Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..What is Mr. Hayes' name?

A..William H. Hayes.

Q..Two of the plaintiffs in this suit?

A..Yes, sir; but I had no conversation with Mr. Hayes at that time about these bonds.

Q..Did you have any conversation with Mr. Hayes subsequent to the 1st of May, 1875?

A..Subsequent?

Q..Yes?

A..Oh, very often. I have talked with him very often. I suppose I have talked with Mr. Duncan or Mr. Hayes fifty times.

Q..In your conversation with Mr. Duncan was anything said in reference to any default having been made by this company in May, 1874, the year previous?

A..At that time?

Q..Yes?

A..No, sir; let me explain: I merely went there to see whether the road would pay interest upon these bonds that Mr. O'Connor had. That was all the conversation I had.

Q..I understand that the coupons for May, 1875 had not been paid?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And were attached to the bonds?

A..Yes, sir; and Mr. O'Connor asked me to go and see Mr. Duncan and ask him whether the interest would be paid.

Q..Before you went to see Mr. Duncan was it a matter of notoriety upon the street that a default had been committed by the Railroad Company in the payment of this interest?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs.

Taken subject to objection.

A..Yes, sir.

Answer objected to by Mr. Bangs.

Q..And you went to Mr. Duncan to get information beyond what you had yourself?

Objected to by Mr. Bangs as immaterial.

Taken subject to objection.

A..Yes, sir; I went as this man sent me there.

Answer objected to as incompetent and immaterial by Mr. Bangs.

Q..Did you ever sell any notes of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

A..Not that I recollect.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Have you ever heard that the coupons maturing in 1874 were not paid by the company?

A..I have.

Q..When did you first learn that?

A..I heard that when I heard of the failure of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Never before?

A..No, sir.

Q..You are quite certain of that, are you?

A..Sure of it.

Q..Where was this conversation with W. Duncan and Mr. Hayes?

A..I had no conversation with Mr. Hayes. The conversation with W. Duncan—

Q..(Interposing.) I thought you said you had a conversation with Mr. Duncan and Mr. Hayes, two of the plaintiffs in this suit?

A..I had conversations about the Mobile and Ohio at different times.

Q..But you never had a conversation with them together.

Witness..About Mobile and Ohio bonds?

Mr. Bangs..Yes.

A..Yes, sir.

Q..I ask you what it was?

A..I don't remember.

Q..Were they together when you asked them whether the coupons of 1875 were going to be paid?

A..No, sir.

Q..Mr. Conner or O'Connor bought these bonds after the 1st May, 1875, did he not?

A..No, sir; he bought them before that.

Q..With the coupons attached?

A..Yes, sir; I bought them from Mr. Duncan for him.

Q..Are you sure of that?

A..I am certain of it.

Q..And after the 1st May, 1875, you went and asked him whether the interest would be paid, did you?

A..Whether this Mr. O'Connor would get his interest.

Q..How long after the 1st of May, was it?

A..Pretty soon afterwards. I don't recollect the exact date.

Mr. Bangs—I do not ask you to recollect the exact date.

Witness—Pretty soon afterwards, in the month of May.

Q..What do you mean by pretty soon?

A..It must have been within a week. Mr. Duncan understands me.

Q..Do you defer to Mr. Duncan's recollection. Do you think he remembers it better than you ?

A..No, sir ; I do not.

Mr. Bangs—Do not refer to him then, because he remembers very differently from the way you do.

Witness—All right.

Q..What did you give for those bonds ?

A..I don't recollect. I could tell by looking at my books.

Q..Were they delivered to you ?

A..No, sir ; to Mr. O'Connor.

Q..How do you know that ?

A..He told me so. Mr. Duncan, too.

Q..Is that the reason you say you know it ?

A..Yes, sir; I believe both of them.

Q..That is the reason you say you know it, is it ?

A..Yes, sir ; I believe them both.

Q..Then if Mr. Duncan and Mr. O'Connor should testify that they told you the coupons for 1874 were not paid and had not been paid, but had been purchased, would you believe that, too ?

A..I should not recollect it ; but I should take it for granted that I must have forgotten it, because I believe they are truthful.

Q..Where did the conversation with Mr. Duncan take place ?

Witness—About the bonds ?

Mr. Bangs—Yes.

A..It took place in Mr. Duncan's office, the rear office in Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s building.

Q..Was anybody present besides you and Mr. Duncan ?

A..I don't recollect about that.

Q..What did you ask him ?

A..I told him that Mr. O'Connor asked me to ask him whether the interest would be paid. Whether he could get his interest.

Q..Which?

A..Whether he could get his interest.

Q..What did you mean by "whether he could get his interst?"

A..Well, whether he could collect the coupons.

Q..Did you say that?

A..I think I said whether he could get his interest.

Q..Did you say from whom?

A..I don't know whether I asked him whether he could get it from the road or not. I don't know whether I used any other expression than that.

Q..You do not know whether you asked him whether he could get it from Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

A..No; I don't know whether I did or not.

Q..But you might have asked him that?

A..I might have asked him that; I don't know. I used to go in there always in May and November and ask him—

Q..(Interrupting.)—Do you say you made a contract for these bonds with Mr. Duncan?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..Where was that?

A..In Duncan & Sherman's office.

Q..Did you go there on purpose to buy them?

A..I did—or to sell them, I don't know which.

Q..If you went to sell them, how came you to buy them?

A..I was the broker between the two parties.

Q..Who were the two parties?

A..Duncan, Sherman & Co., and Owen O'Connor.

Q..Who employed you?

A..That I can't recollect without looking at my books. I was employed by one or the other party. One or the other party paid me my brokerage, but which, I don't recollect.

Q..You can't tell whether Duncan, Sherman & Co. employed you to sell or O'Connor employed you to buy?

A..No; not at the minute. That I don't recolllect. I know the fact that I got a brokerage on the transaction; but who paid it--

Q..(Interrupting]--If Duncan, Sherman & Co. employed you to sell, where did you find the customer?

A..I found it in O'Connor. O'Connor came to me to buy.

Q..To buy what?

A..To buy Mobile and Ohio bonds—sterlings.

Q..Did he come after Duncan, Sherman & Co. employed you to sell, or before?

A..That, I can't recollect.

Q..Do you remember the prices of those bonds?

A..No, sir; I do not.

Q..When were they bought?

A..That, I can't tell you exactly either.

Q..About when?

A..I should think it was some time in 1874.

Q..Some time in 1874?

A..I think so.

Q..July?

A..I think—I don't know. I don't recollect. I wouldn't like to say, because I might err, you know.

Q..Was it later than July?

A..That, I can't tell you.

Q..Are you sure it was in 1874?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..Are you sure it was in 1874, I say?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..I ask you, if you are sure?

A..I can't be, without referring to my notes.

Q..Can you say whether it was not before May 1, 1874?

A..That, I can't tell.

Q..For aught you know, they had the 1874 coupons attached.

A..Oh, no; I saw them—O'Conner showed me the bonds.

Q..Showed them, when?

Witness—I beg your pardon; I thought you said that they had the 1875 coupons attached.

Mr. Bangs—No.

A..No, I don't recollect.

Q..When you bought them, you do not know but they had the 1874 coupons attached, do you?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..How many were there?

A..That, I don't remember—whether it was seventeen or twenty-seven thousand. I just recollect the circumstance of making the trade, but I don't recollect the number,

Q..Was it not 270,000?

A..No, sir.

Q..Are you sure of that?

A..Certain of it.

Q..Was it not 170,000?

A..I am sure it was not.

Q..Was it not 70,000?

A..Not so many.

Q..How?

A..Not so many.

Q..And that you are sure of?

A..I am pretty sure of that.

Q..Was it 50,000?

A..That I don't recollect.

Q..You cannot tell.

A..I can't tell without referring to my memorandum.

Q..It was somewhere between seventeen and fifty thousand, was it?

A..I don't recollect the exact number.

Mr. Bangs..I do not ask you to recollect the exact number.

Witness..I can't tell; It was a very nice brokerage, I remember.

Q..Was it not less than seventeen?

A..I think not.

Q..And it was not more than fifty?

A..I don't think it was.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You are clear, are you, that when you called and had this interview with Mr. Duncan, your question was in reference to the payment of the coupons that matured the 1st of May, 1875?

A..Yes. sir.

Q..Will you be good enough to tell us what Mr. Duncan stated to you?

Mr. Bangs..I object to that. It has been asked three or four times.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

Mr. Blandy..I want you to give, without interruption, just what Mr. Duncan stated in reference to it.

A..He simply stated the interest would not be paid. I didn't say anything more. He simply said the interest would not be paid.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..And your inquiry related to the seventeen or fifteen bonds which you had bought or sold, you do not know which?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..It related to some number of bonds, which you cannot remember, which you had either bought or sold, you cannot tell which?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And you cannot tell when you had bought or sold them?

A..Not the precise date.

Q..No, nor within a year.

A..Well, no, I can't, without reference to my notes, my note book, my sales book, my purchase book.

Q..Did you converse with Mr. Duncan in April, 1875, about Mobile and Ohio?

A..I don't recollect whether I did or not.

Q..Did you converse with him on any occasion when he said that it was making great efforts to obtain the money to get the coupons, or to take care of or to provide for the coupons?

A..I think Mr. Duncan stated to me several times that he was doing all in his power.

Q..To do what?

A..To carry the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Q..How?

A..My understanding was that he was trying to raise money for that road.

Q..Well, did he not give you to understand that he was trying to raise money to take up the coupons?

A..Decidedly

Q..In 1874?

A..No, 1875.

Q..Before the 1st of May?

A..I don't know whether it was before the 1st of May or not.

Q..Was it after the 1st of May, after the company was in default, that he told you that?

A..Yes, sir; my impression is that Mr. Duncan—I may not be clear in my recollection, but the impression always in my mind was that Duncan and Sherman—

Mr. Bangs..Do not go into that.

Witness..If you bind me down to the strict letter of his words, it is impossible now to tell you.

Mr. Bangs..Give the strict sense of his words.

Witness..The strict sense of his words, the impression made upon my—

Mr. Bangs..I do not ask you that. I want to know his words, or the sense of what he said. Did he not say that he was trying to raise money to take up or carry these coupons?

A..Oh, yes, sir.

Q..Was it not in 1874?

A..No.

Q..Was it not before the default of May, 1875?

A..I think not.

Q..Was it after the default of May, 1875?

A..I think it was about the time of the default in 1875.

Q..Was it after the default?

A..I think—yes.

Q..How many such conversations did you have?

A..Mr. Duncan has spoken to me several times about the Mobile and Ohio road, and the impression upon my mind—

Q..(Interposing.) I do not ask you that. How many such conversations did you have?

A..I can't tell you.

Q..More than one?

A..My impression is that he spoke to me more than once.

Q..In that sense?

A..In that sense.

Q..And running through a considerable period of time?

A..No, sir, not very considerable, because it was just about that time.

Q..About what time?

A..About May, 1875.

Q..How do you locate that time?

A..I locate it by the application of this man to me to get his interest; that is the only way I locate it. It was about that time that I spoke to Mr. Duncan.

Q..You locate it about that time?

A..About that time; yes, sir.

Q..How long have you known Mr. Duncan?

A..I don't recollect; I think I have known him for—well, let me see; I joined the club in 1865, I think; I think I have known Mr. Duncan ever since 1865; just after the war I came here.

Q..You have been in the habit of talking to him about Mobile and Ohio affairs, have you?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..A good deal?

A..Yes, sir.

870 By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You are not quite clear as to the date of your interview with Mr. Duncan, are you, whether it was before the 1st May, 1875, or whether it was after?

Witness..About the O'Connor interview?

Mr. Blandy..Yes.

A..I am clear on that; that was after the 1st of May, 1875—the O'Connor interview.

Q..Then the doubt in your mind as to the other interview, relates to the conversation wherein Mr. Duncan stated that he was about to raise money to assist the road, or something of that kind?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Was it anticipated upon the market that the coupons of May, 1875, would not be provided for?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Is it possible that that circumstance may have led you to converse with Mr. Duncan in reference to the payment of the coupons of May 1, 1875, anticipating that they would not be paid.

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And before the 1st May.

A..Yes, sir.

Q..That circumstance may have brought about this conversation before the 1st May?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How do you know that it was anticipated on the market that the coupons would not be paid?

A..Because every Southern road they anticipated before the interest fell due, that they would go to default.

Q..And how long had that been so?

A..Ever since I came here. Ever since the war.

Q..Then this was not a special case?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did you ask him about any other road?

A..I asked him about Alabama State bonds.

Q..Did you ask him about anything else?

A..I don't know that I did. We always ask such questions.

Q..Did you not ask him the same questions in 1874?

A..I think it very likely. I may have.

Q..Did you?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..You would not say you did not?

Witness—Now, gentlemen, you want me to go into a conversation I had with Mr. Duncan.

Mr. Bangs..I do not know that I do. I want you to answer my question?

A..I have spoken to Mr. Duncan prior to this about the condition of the road, and the chance of paying the interest. I was sent by Mr. Moran once to see him; and Mr. Moran sent me to Mr Duncan and I had a conversation. It was in reference to the purchase of some bonds for a correspondent of Mr. Moran's, in Europe. I went to see Mr Duncan. I can't tell you whether it was in May, 1874, or November, 1874, but it was during the year 1874; and on the strength of that conversation I suggested—

Mr. Bangs..No matter about the "strength" of that conversation.

Witness..You want to get at it?

Mr. Bangs..I do not want to get at it. I asked you a question and you have not answered it yet.

Witness..If you wanted to find out about the road, I will tell you all about it; all the conversations.

Mr. Bangs..Go ahead. Nobody has interrupted you in stating the conversations.

Witness..All right. This thing is coming back clear to me now. Mr. Moran sent me to see Mr. Duncan and I went to see him. I asked Mr. Duncan in reference to the condition of the road as an investment for the other side. Mr. Duncan told me that he thought the bonds were good; stated that their house was largely interested in the success of the road; and so I reported to Mr. Moran.

Q..When was that?

A..That was in the year 1874.

Q..What part of the year?

A..It was the first part of the year.

Q..What do you mean by the first part?

A..It was in, I think, as well as I recollect, the spring.

Q..What do you mean by the spring?

A..Prior to the payment of the May, 1874, coupons.

Q..How do you locate it at that time.

A..Because it has come back to me, all now.

Q..How do you locate it?

A..I am now trying to get the whole thing back clear to me. I recollect it in this way. I recollect the circumstance of Mr. Moran sending me there, and I recollect—you have brought it back to me by your questions.

Q..Answer my question, if you please; how do you locate that as the time?

A..I locate it from my recollection—from my memory.

Q..What month was it.

A..That, I can't tell you; but it was in the spring of the year. It must have been about the time of the payment of the coupons.

Mr. Bangs..No matter about what it must have been?

A..Well, it was about the time of the payment of the coupons.

Q..What do you mean by that?

A..I mean when the coupons would naturally fall due.

Q..Do you mean payment as synonymous with the time when the bond falls due?

A..The coupon falls due.

Q..Is that what you mean by the payment?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..About the time it fell due?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Was it before or after?

A..It was before.

Q..Had you told this to Mr. Moran?

Witness..Told what?

Mr. Bangs..What you have just now stated?

A..Certainly. I went back to his office.

Q..Had you told it to him before you were examined to-day?

A..Certainly.

Q..Two or three years ago?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Have you made it a subject of conversation with him since?

A..Only once.

Q..Then he knew it when you were sworn to-day, did he?

A..If he has not forgotten it. It had slipped my memory until you called it up.

Q..And you have not thought of it until this minute.

A..No.

Q..Mr. Duncan told you they were largely interested in the road, did he?

A..He said they were largely interested in the road.

Q..Did he tell you the nature of the interest?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Are you sure of that?

A..Positive.

Q..Are you sure that he did not tell you that they had bought the coupons of May, 1874, and were largely interested in that way?

A..I am positive of that, because Mr. Moran would not have bought the bonds if he had known that.

Mr. Bangs..Let us get this straight now.

Witness..You will get more of this than you want; you shall have it, more than you want.

Q..What do you mean by saying we shall have more than we want?

A..I mean this, that you are badgering me, and I am not going to submit to it. I consider that you are badgering me, and I am here to do what is right for both parties. I have done business for both sides; but I consider that you are trying to badger me.

Q..Have you been under that impression in giving this last interview with Mr. Duncan ?

Witness..No, sir, from your remark telling them to take down what I have said.

Mr. Bangs..They did not take down anything but what you did say, did they ? You did say that you were going to give us more than we wanted, did you not ?

A..I may have said that.

Q..Did you not say that ?

A..It is very likely I did.

Q..Did you say it ?

A..It is very likely.

Q..Did you intend it ?

A..You may put it as you choose.

Q..Did you say that ?

A..I think likely I did.

Q..Is that all the answer you will give ?

A..I will answer all the questions you want.

Q..Did you make that answer ?

A..If you will read it I will tell you.

Q..Did not Mr. Duncan tell you that his large interest consisted in the fact that he had taken up and was carrying the coupons of 1874 ?

A..He never told me that in 1874.

Q..When did he tell you that ?

A..I think he has told me that since his house failed.

Q..Whereabouts ?

A..My impression is that he told me in his office.

Q..Has he not told you that more than once ?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..How many times has he told you ?

A..I can't tell you; several times.

Q..Are you able to distinguish the different occasions on which he told you, from each other ?

A..No, sir.

Q..Are you able to locate the different occasions?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did he in any way specify the large extent of the interest of his house.

A..I think he did.

Q..What did he say?

A..He referred to the report of the condition of the Mobile and Ohio road, and I saw from that report that they were largely interested.

Q..Which report was that?

A..The failure of his house I refer to. I cannot tell what you think.

Q..I am speaking of the time before the failure of his house, when he said he was largely interested—at any time?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..He did not tell you, then, at any time before his failure, what the nature of his interest was?

A..No, sir.

Q..Do you say that you bought bonds for Mr. Moran?

A..For him? yes, sir.

Q..As the result of that conversation?

A..Mr. Moran bought them.

Q..How do you know?

A..Because he told me so.

Q..Is that what you mean by know?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Had you anything to do with the purchase?

A..My idea is that I did; that I got the brokerage.

Q..Can you fix the date of it?

A..I don't know that I can. I think I can by looking at the books.

Q..Will you please produce the book and bring it here, and give us the date?

A..I guess I can; I think I can bring the book.

Q..I ask you to do so; bring the book itself and not any extract from it. Was anybody present at that conversation?

A..I don't know. Do you mean with Mr. Moran?

Q..With you at Mr. Duncan's?

A..I don't recollect. The partners were generally there.

Q..Are you entirely satisfied that you have given no more than we want, or do you want to give us some more in the same spirit; if you do I am ready to take it without asking any specific question?

A..What is the object of your remark?

Q..You said you would give us more than we wanted; now, if there is anything you have withheld, I will give you the opportunity to state it?

A..I will tell you exactly. My idea was, I tell you frankly, that you were badgering me.

Q..Have you anything further to say in pursuance of that determination, to give us more than we want?

A..I understand your motive; I think I see through it. Your idea is to get the answer estopped about this interview.

Q..Are you asking me a question?

A..I merely want to know if that is what you want me to say about it.

Q..I have nothing to do but to repeat that question: Have you now told us, as a matter of fact, all that you have to say in pursuance of your determination to give us more than we wanted; that is my question?

A..Oh, yes, sir.

Q..You have now finished?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Will you just take up the conversation that you were relating, between yourself and Mr. Duncan, and give us your reasons why you are satisfied Mr. Duncan did not tell you that his firm had taken up the coupons of May 1st, 1874?

A..Mr. Duncan stated to me that the road was doing very well, and he spoke very well of the road, and I repeated the conversation to Mr. Moran; and Mr. Moran invested in the bonds, as I understood it, on the strength of that conversation.

Q..On the strength of that conversation?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..On the strength of your report of it, did he?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And you reported to Mr. Moran, in substance, what Mr. Duncan had stated to you.

A..Yes, sir; I also stated to Mr. Moran that I preferred he should see Mr. Duncan himself.

(Answer objected to by Mr. Bangs.)

Q..We will excuse that; it is objectionable. That is the substance of the conversation at that interview, is it, with Mr. Duncan?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How much did Mr. Moran invest on the strength of that conversation?

A..I don't know; I don't recollect.

Q..Did you ever know?

A..I think I do; I think I have.

Q..How do you know?

A..I think I either bought the bonds for him, or he told me how many he had bought.

Q..You cannot tell which?

A..Not without reference to my books.

Q..And in either case you say you know, that is, whether you bought them or whether he told you he bought them. You know he bought them?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..In either case?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..That kind of information which you get from the statement of others you give as a part of your own knowledge, do you?

A..You make a statement and then ask me a question. I believe that I do know it.

Q..Where you get information from Mr. Moran, and are asked questions in relation to the subject, you state the information embodied in his statement as information within your your own knowledge, do you?

A..To the best of my knowledge and belief.

Q..Is it in your knowledge or not that he bought any bonds?

A..Yes, it is my knowledge and belief from the statement.

Q..Is it within your own knowledge?

A..I believe he bought it.

Q..Is it within your knowledge?

A..Do you want me to answer Yes, or No? I will answer it.

Q..Is it within your knowledge?

A..To the best of my knowledge and belief, yes.

Q..Is it within your knowledge?

A..I believe so.

Q..You believe it is within your knowledge?

A..Yes, sir.

J. N. Petty, a witness produced, sworn and examined on behalf of the Objector, deposes as follows:

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is your business?

A..Broker.

Q..Where do you carry on business?

A..No. 8 Broad street.

Q..How long have you been a broker.

A..About twenty-five years.

Q..Are you in partnership or alone?

A..Alone, yes, sir; at present. I have formerly had partners.

Q..Did you buy or sell any First Mortgage Sterling bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company prior to or subsequent to May 1st, 1874.

A..I have, both.

Q..You have bought and sold prior to May, and bought and sold subsequent to May.

A..I have.

Q..Can you tell me from memory how recently before the 1st May, 1874, you bought and sold such bonds ?

A..I could not tell you all the transactions without going to my books. I can there. I can then. I have a record of such transactions as I made.

Q..Can you tell me the nearest approximate purchase to 1st May ?

A..I have not refreshed my memory as to the precise dates. I have simply refreshed my memory as to the ruling prices of the securities.

Q..Can you tell me about how soon after the 1st May, 1874, you bought and sold ?

A..I was looking over my books, but I did not take any dates, except at certain intervals during the year, about the ruling price. I can get that by going to my books; can get the transaction exactly. I found the price in May 1874, was 80; in October, 1874, it was 61 to 62. In June, 1875, they dropped down to 50, and subsequent to that they have receded down to about 30 cents, and then rallied up.

Q..Then you bought and sold subsequent to May 1, 1874 ?

A..I have dealt in the bonds since 1857.

Q..Down to what period ?

A..The present.

Q..Down to the present period ?

A..Yes, sir; 1857 or 1858. I guess the first transaction I made in them was in 1858.

Q..Did you buy them on your own account or for some other person ?

A..Both. Just as the case might be.

Q..Can you give us the names of the parties from whom you purchased, from memory ?

A..I cannot, from memory. I have bought for Mr. Moran and I have bought for Mr. Duncan and a number of Q..I mean you personally?

A..I could not recollect whether I went myself or sent a boy.

Q..I mean did you get the face of the coupon?

A..On these particular Mobile and Ohio coupons do you mean?

Mr. Bangs—Yes.

Witness—Of the certified bonds?

Mr. Bangs—Any coupon?

Witness—Yes, sir; if you mean any bonds?

Q..What?

A..The certified bonds.

Q..Is that the exception?

A..Of course it is an exception.

Q..Then of those you did not get the face?

A..It depends upon what you calculate sterling at whether you have got the face or not.

Q..How did you get your pay? In United States money, coin or currency?

A..Just as it happened, about which coupon it was.

Q..You got the money of the United States, did you not?

A..In some cases—always money of the United States—some few coupons in greenbacks and some coupons in gold. There is a difference in the coupons.

Q..But it was always in money of the United States?

A..Yes, sir; money of the United States.

Q..Then you never got the interest in Sterling money?

A..No.

Q..Where were the coupons payable?

A..At George Peabody's office in London.

Q..Why did you not send them there?

A..Because the President and Directors told me it would not be paid there. That was hearsay, of course, but I thought it was pretty good.

Mr. Bangs—Now, I want to ask you a question, and I solicit humbly an answer, if you will give it?

Witness..Meekly, I will give it?

Q..Excepting the certificate bonds, did you ever get the face of the coupons from Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

Witness..What do you call the face?

Q..The amount paid for the coupons.

Witness..Do you mean £6.10.0?

Q..Yes, converted into American money?

A..Yes, sir, less 25 cents.

Q..You got its equivalent, less 25 cents.

A..Yes, sir, I got its equivalent, less 25 cents.

Q..What was the 25 cents taken off for?

A..Well, that was the amount I was told that would be paid, and I took it. I don't know what the 25 cents was, but may be, by refreshing my memory, I could recollect.

Q..Were they large amounts?

A..Not very.

Q..Did you take any pains to ascertain why you were asked to take less than the face of the coupon?

A..That is what every one took.

Q..Will you be so good as to pay a little attention to my question. How do you know that that is what every one took?

A..So far as I know.

Q..Did you make any inquiry as to the reason why you were asked to take less than the face of your coupons?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that upon the ground that it already appears by the testimony of the witness that he got the equivalent of that coupon so far as his knowledge is concerned.

The Witness..I might have had my opinion about what it was. I suppose it was to cover Exchange.

Q..Then you understood that you were standing the Exchange, do you?

A..The coupon; the owner of it.

Q..You understood the holder of the coupons was required to stand the expense of the Exchange?

A..Yes, sir, and very properly so, too.

Mr. Bangs..Did I ask you that; if I did, I will take the answer?

Witness..I did.

Q..And that was the reason you went there in May, 1875, was it?

Witness..What was the reason, if you will be so good as to explain?

Mr. Bangs..Because you had previously taken your coupons there.

Witness..I did not say that I said I went there to try to get the money.

Q..Did you go there because you have previously resorted to that place to get your coupons cashed?

A..I went there from the fact that it was known to me that Duncan, Sherman & Co. were the financial agents, and that Mr. Duncan was the President.

Q..What do you mean by financial agents?

A..Attended to the monetary affairs of the company.

Q..How do you know that?

A..From public report, accepted by every one.

Q..Was it accepted by Mr. Blandy?

A..I had not the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Q..Then you do not mean him?

A..No, sir.

Q..And you do not mean every one?

A..I mean every one, so far as I was personally cognizant of it.

Q..It was accepted by every one who you knew accepted it.

A..I did not know of any one who objected to it, or said to the contrary.

Mr. Bangs..That is a different thing from saying that it was accepted by every one.

Witness..We might theorize on that.

Mr. Bangs..I do not want any theorizing. I want to get you in the habit of speaking correctly.

Witness..I am trying to do so.

Q..Was the reason why you went there in May, 1875, to get your coupons cashed, because you were in the habit of getting your coupons cashed there before?

A..To some extent. Some times, previous to that, they had paid them at Mobile.

Q..How long was it since they had cease to pay them at Mobile?

A..I can't answer that accurately, because it has been several years past, and I might mistake as to dates.

Q..State as near as you can.

A..I may be in error, but my recollection is that Duncan, Sherman & Co. paid them one or two years. That is my recollection.

Q..But previous to that, from 1857, down, they had been paid in Mobile, had they?

A..Oh, no. They paid a portion of them in London. They subsequently made an arrangement to pay a part of them in America. Who paid them in New York, I don't know. They were paid by the Bank of Mobile—such as were paid in the South.

Q..Do I understand you to say that you had sent some to Mobile to be paid?

A..I did.

Q..When did you cease to send them to Mobile?

A..Subsequent to May, 1875.

Q..Where did you collect them after May, 1875?

A..No where.

Q..Did you send them to Mobile down to May, 1875?

A..No.

Q..When did you cease sending them to Mobile?

A..I cashed, at the office of Duncan & Sherman, subsequent to May, 1875, certain non-certified coupons that I understood had to go to Mobile, and I presumed—

Q..(Interposing.) Surely you can't complain of my question. It is a plain one. When did you cease sending your coupons to Mobile?

A..May, 1875.

886 Q..Do you mean that up to that time you had sent them to Mobile?

A..No, sir.

Q..Up to what time did you send them to Mobile?

A..Prior to May, 1875, in part; in part I cashed at the office of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Did you send them to Mobile in 1874?

A..I could not answer you definitely, but my impression is I did not.

Q..Did you have any cashed in 1874?

A..I think I did.

Q..What is your recollection?

A..My recollection is that I had them cashed, less 25 cents a coupon?

Q..In 1874?

A..The regulation required that certain coupons to go to Mobile would be cashed here in New York less 25 cents. I think it was.

Q..Did you personally have them cashed or did you send somebody else?

A..I can't answer whether I did it myself or had it done by a clerk.

Q..In 1873, where were your coupons cashed: Here or at Mobile.

A..My recollection is, that they were payable either here or at Mobile. I don't recollect to have sent any there then, but I am not positive about that.

Mr. Bangs..Do not blame me; that is a plain question.

Witness..I am not blaming you.

Q..How were they cashed in 1873?

A..By paying the money for them.

Q..Where?

A..It was in the United States. I would not venture to say whether they paid them in New York that year or not.

Q..You do not recollect them?

A..I don't recollect whether they paid them in New York or not.

Q..How was it in 1872?

A..They were payable either in New York or Mobile.

Q..Where were they paid in 1872?

A..In the United States.

Q..Is that all you can say?

A..They were payable either at Mobile or New York, and paid at either one or the other. I can't remember. Sometimes they paid the coupons at Mobile and sometimes at New York.

Q..You have not a very definite recollection about it, have you?

A..I can have a more definite recollection.

Q..You have not a very definite recollection about it, have you?

A..In some respects I have. As to precise dates, and some circumstances you ask for, I have not at the moment.

Q..Who requested you to come here as a witness?

A..Mr. Moran's son.

Q..Have you done any buying for him?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Of these bonds?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..At the Stock Exchange?

A..No, sir; I was not aware that there was ever any business done in them at the Stock Exchange.

Q..You have not done any in them at the Stock Exchange, have you?

A..No, sir.

Q..Are you a member of the Stock Exchange?

A..I am not.

Q..How recently have you done business for Mr. Moran in these securities?

A..I could not answer as to the date.

Mr. Bangs..I do not ask as to the day.

Witness..In these bonds?

Mr. Bangs..Yes.

A..I have not in several months, in Mobile and Ohio bonds.

Q..How many months since?

A..I can't fix it in my memory.

Q..Was it several months ago?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Was it a purchase or a sale?

A..I don't think I ever purchased any bonds from him. I have sold him bonds. If ever I purchased any of him I don't recollect it.

Q..Was the transaction of several months ago a sale to him?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..At what price?

A..I could not answer the question from memory.

Mr. Bangs..You can come somewhere near it. You answered from memory that the bonds had run down to 30.

Witness..That was taking an extract from my sales book.

Q..Is not that within your recollection?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..The same memory which enables you to say they ran down to 30, would enable you to learn that, would it not.

A..If I have a chance to refresh my memory as to the particular transaction with Mr. Moran, or any one else. I can't do it now.

Q..I should like to have you furnish the numbers of the bonds which passed through your hands?

A..I think I can give you the numbers of the bonds. If not I can tell you who delivered them.

Q..Did you generally receive and deliver the bonds yourself?

A..Sometimes I did, and sometimes I did not. That is as the case may be.

Q..Do your books indicate the cases in which you did?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And those in which you did not?

A..Always.

Q..Were those your own bonds, of which you took the coupons, in May, 1875?

A..They were my own coupons.

Q..Did you not own the bonds to which they belonged?

A..I did not.

Q..Where were the bonds?

A..They were out of my sight. I have heard where they were.

Q..How long had you held those coupons detached from the bonds?

A..I think about two months.

Q..That is not an uncommon thing, is it?

A..There is nothing illegal in it or improper, or anything that would be suspicious.

Q..Did I ask you that? If you will swear that I asked you that, I will take the answer. I asked you if it was an uncommon thing for coupons to be detached and run around apart from the bonds?

Witness..Run around or carried around?

Mr. Bangs..Carried around.

A..I have seen them carried around in many different cases prior; matured separate from the bonds.

Q..Is it an uncommon thing?

A..It is not nearly so common as to see them on the bond, but it does occur in many cases.

Q..They get separated and have a currency of their own?

A..Yes, sir; it occurs very often in Government bonds.

Q..Does it not occur in other bonds?

A..Less frequently, but it does occur.

Q..Do you hold those coupons yet?

A..No, sir.

Q..What has become of them?

A..Sold them.

Q..When?

A..I think during the year 1875, and I suppose near 890 the month of September. It may be in the month of September, I can't tell the date exactly; but during that year.

Q. .What did you get for them?

A. .I think it was between 45 and 50 cents on the dollar; estimating them at $40 apiece.

Q. .Then if the bonds were sold from which those coupons had been detached—if the bonds had been sold by yourself after May, 1875—you do not suppose that any claim would arise on those detached coupons, do you?

A. .It would be a very verdant buyer if he didn't claim it.

Q. .You do not think you did anything dishonest in selling those coupons do you?

A. .They were my coupons.

Q. .You do not think you did anything dishonest in selling them?

A. .No, sir.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q. .Is it not a rare occurrence to sell coupons in the New York market, before they are due, detached from the bonds?

Witness. .To see them sell coupons before they are due?

Mr. Blandy. .Yes, detached from the bonds?

A. .I have seen it in more cases than one.

Q. .But you do not mean to say that it is a common thing?

A. .It is not at all a universal custom.

Q. .It is a rarity, is it not?

A. .It is, you might say, a rarity.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q. .Do you mean to say that it is not a most common practice for people who hold coupon bonds for investment, to take the coupons off and carry them to a broker and get them cashed without going anywhere near the place of payment. I have done it a hundred times myself?

Witness. .Before maturity?

Mr. Bangs..Before maturity or about maturity. What do you say about that? Do you not know that brokers make a business of buying coupons or cashing them over their counters for people who do not want the trouble of collecting them?

Witness..I spoke as to Governments. That is a custom.

Q..And a very large trade?

A..You offer other coupons and it would throw discredit on the owner of the bonds, and discredit on the bonds themselves.

Q..Where the coupon is payable and collectable in New York?

A..Yes, sir, it would.

J. N. PETTY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 14th day of April, 1877.

EDWARD L. OWEN, U. S. Com. So. Dis. N. Y.

Adjourned to Friday, April 13, 1877, at 3 P. M.

NEW YORK, April 13, 1877, 71 Wall street, 3 P. M.

Pursuant to adjournment the parties appeared, and the examination proceeded, as follows:

Charles E. Thorburn recalled. Continuation of cross-examination by Mr. Bangs:

Q..Have you ascertained what was the date and the amount of your purchase, which you testified you made for Mr. O'Connor.

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you ascertained the date, the time when you said you went to get information for Mr. Moran?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You have ascertained that?

A..About the date, I place it in this way because—

Q..No matter how you place it. Have you or have you not ascertained the date.?

A..The exact date?

Q..Yes.

A..Yes.

Q..The exact date?

A..Yes.

Q..You are able to give the exact date?

A..Yes, I can give you the exact date.

Q..Do you mean to say that you told Mr. Duncan or any body else, that you were acting for Mr. Moran?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You did tell him that?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You are sure of that?

A..I told him that I came from Mr. Moran, yes.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is the exact date?

A..It is May 21, 1874.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..What were the purchases that were made on the strength of the information obtained from Mr. Duncan?

A..I bought 5000 bonds at 81 from McGinnes Brothers & Fearing. Mr. Moran saw Mr. Duncan himself also before the purchase of the bonds.

Q..In your presence?

A..No, sir.

Q..How do you know he did?

A..Because he left me to go to Mr. Duncan.

Q..Do you know that he did? When you said that Mr. Moran saw him, were you stating a fact within your own knowledge?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Did you see him?

A..No, sir.

Q..Don't you know the difference between knowing a thing of your own knowledge, and hearing it stated to you by somebody else?

A..If a man states a thing that I know to be truthful, I know it.

Q..If a man tells you a thing which you believe to be true, you know it?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And therefore you state it as within your own knowledge?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You did not see Mr. Moran have an interview with Mr. Duncan?

A..No, sir.

Q..And yet you say you know he did?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..It is upon that principle and basis that you have given testimony, is it?

A..Yes sir.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Do you mean to say that it is upon that principle and basis that you testified to a conversation which you yourself had with Mr. Duncan..

A..I had that conversation with Mr. Duncan. I then went to Mr. Moran—

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..No matter about that?

A..The purchase was made on that account.

Q..You are only asked about the interview?

A..I am simply acting as a broker. I want you to understand my position. I am a friend to both parties.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..When you say, in answer to the gentleman's question, it was upon that principle and theory that you testified to certain facts, you do not mean to be understood as saying that it was upon that theory and principle that you testified to an interview which you yourself had with Mr. Duncan and Mr. Hays?

A..Certainly not. I had a personal interview with Mr. Duncan?

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..In giving your testimony you state as being within your own knowledge anything that anybody else has told you, if you believe it to be true, don't you?

A..I believe a thing as I do—

Q..(Interposing.)..No; that don't answer my question.

A..Let us understand.

Q..Yes.

A..I can't understand you, because I don't want you to mislead me. That is the idea. I believe a thing that is told me. If Mr. Duncan was to tell me a thing, I would believe it just as promptly as I would if I saw it.

Q..And you swear to it as being within your own knowledge?

A..I believe it to be.

Q..You must answer my questions once in a while.

A..I cannot answer any more than that.

Q..Then answer that; pay attention to the question. If Mr. Duncan told you a thing, and you believed it, would you swear to it as being within your own knowledge.

A..I would say that I would believe it to be a fact.

Q..Would you state it as within your own knowledge; that is the question.

A..I cannot answer it.

Q..That is enough, if you say so. Who did you buy your 5,000 bonds for, of Dean, McGinnis & Co.?

A..I bought them for account of Moran & Brothers.

Q..At what date?

A..The 21st May.

Q..And you give that as the date of your conversation with Mr. Duncan?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Simply because you bought those bonds on that day.

A..No, sir.

Q..What then?

A..Because it made an impression upon my mind at the time. I wanted to know how the Mobile and Ohio Railroad stood.

Q..Independently of the fact that you bought these bonds on that day, how do you fix that date as the date of the conversation?

A..Because I remember the conversation as having taken place.

Q..How do you fix it as that date, is the question?

A..I will state how I do.

Q..Independently of the fact of purchasing the bonds, I say?

A..I do not understand you.

Q..You do not understand me?

A..I do not understand your question.

Q..Then I will not press a question you do not understand. Did you buy any bonds for Mr. Moran before that time?

A..I have no record of that year.

Q..Did you?

A..I think not.

Q..Was the first purchase of bonds you made for Mr. Moran in that year made on the 21st May?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..That you swear to?

A..That is my recollection.

Q..Do you mean to say you did not buy any for him in that year?

A..I mean to say, simply, that I have no recollection of buying any; no record of buying any.

Q..Have you looked for the record?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..When did you begin to look?

A..I began to look to-day.

Q..What did you begin to look at?

A..The 1st of January, 1874.

Q..When was your next purchase after the 21st of May?

A..The 15th of July.

Q..For Mr. Moran?

A..For Mr. Moran; 1874.

Q..Was Mr. Moran the holder of bonds on the 21st of May, 1874?

A..I believe so.

Q..What makes you believe so?

A..Because he told me so.

Q..How many did he tell you he had?

A..He didn't tell me.

Q..What else did he tell you about his owning bonds?

A..He told me that his friends in Europe were interested in these bonds.

Q..I ask you what he told you about his holding bonds?

A..He told me he held some.

Q..Did he tell you how long he had held them?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did you know before the year 1874 that he was a holder of bonds?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Largely?

A..I didn't know how much; he never told me.

Q..Was he a frequent operator in them?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And your understanding and belief is that he held some on the 1st May, 1874?

A..Yes, sir, I think so.

Q..Have you communicated to Mr. Moran or Mr. Blandy the date that you found?

A..No, sir; I haven't said a word to either of them since I saw you.

Q..I mean have you communicated to them at any time the date of the transaction with Mr. O'Connor?

A..I never mentioned to either of them anything except what I said here.

Q..They are both present, are they not?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Did you tell them the amount?

A..Nothing except what I said here.

Q..You would be able, if you were asked, to give the date of that transaction, the purchase of the bonds for Mr. O'Connor, and the amount of it, would you not?

A..I suppose I would; it is so long ago I have forgotten about all of those transactions.

Q..Please answer that question. Is that O'Connor transaction in that memorandum (referring to a memorandum in the hands of the witness)?

A..No, sir.

Q..That is a memorandum of all your transactions after the 1st May, is it not?

A..No, sir; only an account of Moran Bros. I guess it would take you a week if you wanted all of my transactions in Mobile and Ohio—everything that I have done.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Did I understand you, by your testimony to-day, to have testified that May 24, 1874, was the day on which you had your conversation with Mr. Duncan, which conversation you testified to the other day, or is that the date of the first transaction with Moran Bros., in reference to the bonds of this Company?

A..That is my recollection of the conversation that I had with Mr. Duncan in reference to the purchase of the bonds for Mr. Moran.

Q..And I understand you to say you fixed the date from the circumstance that you made this purchase on the 21st May, 1874?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..That you made a purchase on the 21st May, 1874?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..I thought you said Mr. Moran bought from Dean, McGinnis & Co.?

A..That is exactly what I did say. I don't say that he bought them from Mr. Duncan.

Q..You did not say that you bought them either?

A..Yes, I did. I bought the bonds for Mr. Moran after the conversation with Mr. Duncan.

Q..From Dean, McGinnis & Co.?

A..From Dean, McGinnis & Co.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..And you fix the date from that purchase?

A..From that purchase; yes, sir.

Q..But the purchase was not made from Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

A..No, sir; I haven't said anything of that kind, either. I never want to imply that Mr. Duncan would suggest to me to buy bonds if he did not know the road was in bad order. That was exactly what I wanted to explain about my testimony. I was afraid that you had got that impression yesterday.

Q..The impression that I had was that May 21, 1874, was the day on which you made the purchase for Moran Bros and that that purchase of bonds was made from Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

A..That is not the impression—

Q..(Interposing.)—That is not your testimony?

A..Nothing at all; nothing at all. I never had the slightest idea of giving any such impression.

Q..What have you referred to in reference to the seventeen thousand purchase?

A..That was to place—to show the reason why I went to ask about the interest. It was in reference to these bonds—why I should have been sent there to find out anything about the interest.

Q..Then I do not understadd that you do not fix any date of that purchase?

A..No, sir; I never have told you.

Q..Look at the exhibit offered in evidence by the learned counsel on the other side, Mr. Bangs, and refer to the first item and state whether that is the first transaction that you refer to about some $17,000 of bonds.

A..I can't tell you, as I stated in my evidence before, my recollection was it was about seventeen. Mr. Bangs asked me whether it was seventeen or twenty-seven; I told him I didn't know, but my recollection was it was seventeen thousand bonds.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..$17,000 of bonds you mean, and not seventeen bonds, do you not?

A..That is the Wall-street parlance.

Mr. Bangs..That would be $17,000,000.

The Witness..$17,000 worth of bonds of par value, $17,000.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Do you think that first item in the exhibit offered by the counsel on the other side is the transaction?

A..I can't tell without looking at my books.

Q..You have not referred to your books to ascertain that fact?

A..No, sir; if you give me that date, I can refer to it.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How long would it take you to refer to your books?

A..I should probably have to go—it would take me an hour. I would have to go through four years of books.

Mr. Bangs (to Mr. Blandy)..Will you concede that that is the date?

Mr. Blandy..I cannot concede that.

Mr. Bangs..Then I shall have to have Mr. Thorburn testify to that.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..To your best recollection what was the date of the purchase of the bonds which you said you bought for Mr. O'Connor, to the amount of $17,000?

A..To the best of my recollection it was during the year 1874.

Q..What part of the year 1874?

A..The early part.

Q..Was it not, according to your best recollection, before the 1st May, 1874?

A..That I can't tell you.

Q..According to your best recollection?

A..I have no recollection of the exact date.

Q..Have you looked over your sales book to find your purchases and sales of Mobile and Ohio bonds for Mr. Moran?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Since the 1st May, 1874?

A..I have.

Q..Then, in looking at that, you found on your books every entry—that is, your eye fell upon every entry—of a transaction that you had for anybody in Mobile and Ohio bonds during that period? Is not that so?

A..Yes, sir; I presume so, but it did not make any impression upon me—this sale—because I was looking for his name simply.

Q..Did you see O'Connor's name?

A..No, sir.

Q..Your eye did not fall on his name?

A..No, sir; I didn't happen to see it; it made no impression upon me; I might have seen it.

Q..Did you see it?

A..Not that I recollect of.

Q..Where does O'Connor live?

Witness..Do you mean where does he live now?

Mr. Bangs..Yes, sir.

A..I am not sure; still I think I know.

Q..Where is it?

A..It is a hotel.

Q..At the corner of 58th street and Broadway?

A..Yes, sir; 58th street and Broadway.

Q..At the Grand Circle Hotel?

A..Yes, sir, I think so.

Q..Is Mr. O'Connor reputed to be a man of wealth?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And the owner of that property?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..He owns about $100,000 of Mobile and Ohio bonds, does he not?

A..That I don't know.

Q..Allow me to see the memorandum which you took of your transactions?

A..There it is (producing memorandum).

Q..I shall have to trouble you to find the date of that purchase for O'Connor?

A..You can get Mr. Duncan to give it to you, just as well as I can. The O'Connor bonds I fixed merely to find out why I went to to see Mr. Duncan.

Q..On this memorandum produced by you, what does "B" mean?

A..Bought.

Q..And what does "S" mean?

A..Sold.

Mr. Blandy..Is there any use in your taking that down? The memorandum is not offered?

Mr. Bangs..I am going to offer that.

Q..And then, where it says "S 5," etc.?

A..That means five.

Q..That means you sold this for Mr. Moran to some person?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Where it says "B," it means you bought for Mr. Moran?

A..Yes, sir, of somebody.

Q..And the prices are correctly given, are they?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Then, in September, you bought for Mr. Moran one interest bond of twenty, did you?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..On the 28th July you bought for him one first mortgage at 33?

A..Yes, sir, at 33.

Q..On the 21st September you bought two at 36½?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..On the 9th of October you bought 10 at 38?

A..10 at 38? yes, sir.

Q..On the 10th October you bought 4 at 37½?

A..37½; yes, sir.

Q..On the 25th November you sold for him at 40?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Those indicate the fluctuations of price, do they?

A..Yes, sir. This was rather under the market, I think.

Q..What, 20?

A..Yes, sir, the Sterling sold at 30. Mr. O'Connor simply came to my office and asked me to go to see Mr. Duncan, to see whether they would pay the interest; that is all I had to do with it. As I had been mixed up in the transaction between him and yourself (speaking to Mr. Duncan) in the purchase of the bonds. I don't know whether it was a year before. It might have been.

Q..Do you mean you had no transactions for Mr. Moran since the 1st January of this year?

A..No, I do not.

Q..Have you had any such transactions?

A..I think I have.

Q..Have you bought and sold for him?

A..I think I sold that very bond at 30, if I recollect aright.

Q..That is the 21st of last September?

A..I think that bond I sold at 30, if I recollect right.

Q..Have you sold some more for him?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..Have you bought for him?

A..I don't recollect.

Q..Will your books show?

A..Yes, sir.

Mr. Bangs..I must trouble you to look at your books, and continue this statement down to this time. I would like to have you tell the date of the purchase of those 17 bonds for Mr. O'Connor.

The Witness..I am sorry to keep you waiting. I will give them if I can. I may have them in my pocket. I don't know.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..On page 94, of your cross-examination, you testified, in answer to Mr. Bangs, that Mr. Moran sent you to Mr. Duncan, and that you went to see him. The testimony is in these words: "Mr. Moran sent me to Mr. Duncan in reference to the condition of the road, as an investment for the other side. Mr. Duncan told me that he thought the bonds were good; stated that their house was largely interested in the success of the road, and I so reported to Mr. Moran."

A..Yes, sir.

Q..You were then asked the question: When was that? You said "That was in the year 1874;" so I understand that the date you supply to-day as the 21st May, 1874, was the date on which you had this conversation?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And that is the only date that you supplied to-day, of any conversation, that you testified to-day, as having had with Mr. Duncan?

A..I have talked with Mr. Duncan very often about it, but nothing about that transaction; yes, sir.

Q..That is the only object in offering this date of the 21st May, 1874, to fix this conversation, is it?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..And the reason why you fix that as the date is because on that day you bought some bonds of Dean, McGinnis & Co.?

A..For Mr. Moran, yes, sir.

Q..The other day you stated, on the day of the conversation, you did not buy the bonds, but that he bought the bonds and told you he bought them; which of those statements is correct?

A..I don't recollect making that statement.

Mr. Bangs..Suppose you did?

Mr. Blandy: Suppose you did not; so as to have the question complete.

The Witness..I think you will find that I stated to you that I didn't recollect whether I bought the bonds or whether he did; but I can tell by reference to my note book. I think you will find that is my testimony. It is a long time ago, and it all comes back to me; it all comes back to me by your questions.

Q..Is it your recollection that your purchase of the $17,000 of bonds for Mr. O'Connor, was in February, 1874?

A..I cannot answer the question for fear of making a mistake without referring to my book.

Mr. Bangs..Now, that we have got that down, let it stay down, and do not try to alter it. If you will look at your book I will be obliged to you.

The witness..All right, sir.

Q..Was the purchase of five bonds of Dean, McGinnis & Co., the only purchase you made for Mr. Moran?

A..That day; yes, sir.

Q..At any time?

A..Oh, no; why here is a whole list of bonds that I bought.

Q..At any time about May, 1874?

A..I think it was.

Mr. Bangs..I should like to have you produce a list of the purchases you made for Mr. Moran, from the 1st January, 1874, down to the beginning of the statement you have produced, the 21st May, 1874.

Witness..All right.

Mr. Blandy..When do you desire him to do this?

Mr. Bangs..Before his deposition is completed.

Mr. Blandy..The deposition has got to leave here tomorrow.

Mr. Bangs..It has got to leave here when it is completed and it cannot leave before.

Mr. Blandy..As far as I am concerned, my portion of it shall certainly leave.

Mr. Bangs..As far as I am concerned your portion shall not leave until it is completed.

The witness..Gentlemen, if it is necessary, I am willing to stay down here all night.

Mr. Bangs..If you will go and get these particulars we can finish it to-night.

The witness..It may take me an hour or an hour and a half. I have got to go into my books and go back four years.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..That is not all. I want to ask you a question. You said this in your examination day before yesterday:

"Q..Do you say that you bought bonds for Mr. Moran?

"A..For him? Yes, sir.

"Q..As the result of that conversation?

"A..Mr. Moran bought them.

"Q..How do you know?

"A..Because he told me so.

"Q..Is that all you mean by know?

"A..Yes, sir.

"Q..Had you anything to do with the purchase?

"A..My idea is that I did. I got the brokerage."

Now, I ask you, how you reconcile that with your statement to-day, that you bought them yourself of Dean, McGinnis & Co.?

A..I bought these five.

Q..What you said the day before yesterday that you knew of the transaction because he told you of it?

A..I told you at the time that it was so long ago that I had forgotten.

Mr. Bangs..You did not tell me at the time. I have read to you what you told me at the time.

Witness..I tell you so now.

Q..You said the day before yesterday that you knew of the purchase because he told you of it. To-day you say you know of the purchase because you bought them?

A..I have referred to my books since and I know positively.

Q..Then what you said day before yesterday is incorrect; your knowledge was not derived—

A..(Interrupting)..My knowledge was my recollection.

A..Your knowledge was not, in fact, derived from his telling you so?

A..I understood him to say that he had bought them and I bought these five also.

Q..Then those that he told you that he had bought were a different lot from the five?

A..So I understood.

Q..And so you understand now?

A..So I understand now; that he had bought other bonds as well as those that I had bought. Does that make it clear?

Q..Not much. What bonds did he tell you he had bought?

A..Some Mobile and Ohio.

Q..From whom?

A..He didn't say.

Q..And you were not the broker?

A..No, sir; and this is the lot of bonds on which I got the brokerage.

Q..All he told you was he had bought some bonds?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Did he tell you how many?

A..He made the impression on my mind—

Mr. Bangs..Never mind the impression.

The witness..I want to get that straight.

Q..I want to get it straight, too. He sent you to Mr. Duncan for information?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..And then he went and bought some bonds, and told you he bought them, and yet did not employ you as a broker?

A..He took those bonds on the strength of that conversation. That is what I mean to say?

Q..No matter what you meant to say. I want you to answer my question. He sent you to Mr. Duncan to get some information, and you brought it to him, and he then did not employ you as a broker, but went and bought some himself?

A..Some others he did.

Q..He told you that?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Without telling you the amount?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Without telling you whom he bought them of?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Or what he gave for them?

A..Yes, sir. He made me understand that that conversation had induced him to buy bonds. That is what you wanted to get at.

Q..It had induced him to buy bonds?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Without you?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Without your agency?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..The bonds you refer to as having been bought on the 21st May, were bought by you, were they?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Then they were not the bonds that he had bought without your agency, on the strength of the conversation?

A..No, sir; I told you that.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..These bonds that your memorandum shows you purchased on the 21st May, 1874, were also purchased on the strength of the information you derived?

A..Solely on that information.

Mr. Bangs..Just now you said the contrary.

The witness..I said nothing of the kind. If you think so, you misunderstood me.

Mr. Bangs..It is down so.

908 The witness..You may confuse me, and make me seem to say what I don't mean to say.

(The witness here left the stand and went to his office to get the information asked for. Upon his return he was examined as follows:)

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Are you now prepared to state the date at which you made the purchase of the bonds for Owen O'Connor?

A..I am.

Q..Give the date?

A..On the 6th February.

Q..Give the year and the date?

A..1874. I sold 17,000 at 78½c., on account of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..To Owen O'Connor?

A..Yes, sir. February 7th of the same year, twelve thousand, at 78½c., to Owen O'Connor, on account of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..Those are the sales to O'Connor, which you previously testified to, are they not?

A..Yes, sir; those are the sales.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You have obtained those dates from what?

A..My note book.

Q..You have since examined your note book?

A..I have. I went there on purpose.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Has Mr. Charles Moran been present during your entire examination and cross-examination.

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Has Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan been present during the whole of it?

A..He has.

Mr. Blandy for the Objector and Mr. Bangs for the Claimants, consent to waive, and do hereby waive the signing by the witnesses, of their respective depositions.

Caleb Oliver, a witness produced, sworn and examined on behalf of the Objector, deposes as follows:

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is your business?

A..Selling goods.

Q..What kind of goods?

A..Rubber goods. I am not in business myself. I have been in that, but am not doing much at it now; but it is the only thing, perhaps, I might say my business is.

Q..Did you know the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. during their existence?

A..I knew of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co.; not personally acquainted.

Q..Were you the holder of any First Mortgage bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in the year 1874?

A..Not myself.

Q..Do you mean by that that you did not own them?

A..I didn't hold any bonds. No, sir; not for myself or any one else.

Q..Had you any of them in your posession?

A..I had no bonds in my possession. No, sir.

Q..What did you have in connection with the First Mortgage bonds?

A..I had coupons. Let me understand you. About the First Mortgage bonds, these were coupons of—these were coupons of—yes, sir, interest bonds on First Mortgage.

Q..How many coupons had you?

A..I don't remember how many different coupons I had.

Q..Had you coupons from different First Mortgage bonds, or were they all taken off of one bond?

A..Oh, they were from different bonds. There was more than one coupon; I am sure there was more than one coupon; but how many I cannot say.

Q..They were coupons falling due when?

A..They fell due the 1st November, 1874, or about that time.

Q..What did you do with those coupons?

A..Collected the—took them down for payment and they were paid.

Q..Where did you take them for payment?

A..Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s.

Q..When?

A..On the 1st or 2d of November, 1874.

Q..Did you see either of the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. at that time?

A..I don't know that I did, for I don't know either of the gentlemen. I did not at that time.

Q..What took place when you presented your coupons to Duncan, Sherman & Co. for payment?

A..I inquired—

Objected to by Mr. Bangs as incompetent.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..I inquired in the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co. if they were paying the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio bonds there that day. I was told they were not paying them there, but were paying them around in Pine street, around the corner; No. 11, I think it was. I then went to No. 11 Pine street and stepped up to the desk where they were paying something, I didn't know what. I inquired if they were paying the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio bonds and they said they were. I then took my place in line, I think, at the time.

Q..And they were paid?

A..They were paid there; yes, sir.

Q..Was anything said when they were paid?

A..No, sir, there was nothing said to me.

Q..And nothing said before you went around to No. 11 Pine street, beyond what you have already testified to?

A..No, sir.

Cross-examination, by Mr. Bangs.

Q..Where is your place of business?

A..44 Dey street is the place where I—

Q..(Interposing) Where you what?

A..Where I—my headquarters. I have no place of business.

Q..I ask where your place of business was?

A..At that time? 44 Dey street.

Q..Where is your place of business?

A..44 Dey street.

Q..Is your name up there?

A..No, sir.

Q..How much business premises do you occupy?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..I don't know as I understand your question.

Q..What space do you occupy for the transaction of business?

A..Only office—only desk room.

Q..In an office?

A..In a store.

Q..Have you any clerks?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any workmen?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any salesmen?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any book-keeper?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any assistant?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any principal?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any superior?

A..No, sir.

Q..Have you any subordinate?

A..No, sir.

Q..Then you transact all your business yourself?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..What is your business?

912 A..It is selling rubber goods.

Q..Whose rubber goods? Yours?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Have you a stock of them?

A..I have not

Q..Where do you get them to sell?

A..I have to buy them.

Q..Do you buy them for orders?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Do you execute orders, then, for rubber goods?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Is that your business?

A..I sell rubber goods: that is so; yes, sir.

Q..Whose rubber goods do you sell? Yours or somebody else's?

A..When I sell any goods: I get the goods of some Rubber Company, or turn the orders over to some party to fill. Now, for some months past, I have been doing but little business, and if it was not, you asked me a question: What business I was in? I should consider that I was not in any. But when you want to ask where I am, and what business I am in, I am simply at 44 Dey street, and trying to sell some rubber goods; which I was formerly engaged in selling.

Q..Have you any regular business?

A..No, sir; no regular business, at present.

Q..How long is it since you had any regular business?

A..Before last October. I think it was about the 1st of October.

Q..What was your regular business prior to that time?

A..Clerking; selling rubber goods.

Q..Clerking for whom?

A..For M. S. Schenck.

Q..Where?

A..44 Dey street.

Q..Did you then leave his employment?

A..Yes, sir; the business was closed out; sold out at that time.

Q..By whom?

A..By M. S. Schenck

Q..At public auction, or how?

A..No, sir; private sale.

Q..To whom?

A..F. C. Candee & Co.

Q..Are you in their employment?

A..No, sir.

Q..Do they occupy the premises?

A..They do.

Q..You simply have a desk there?

A..I simply occupy there as—a desk room; to step in and out; that is all.

Q..Where do you live?

A..I live in Brooklyn.

Q..Where did you get the coupons that you collected on the 1st November, 1874?

Mr. Blaudy..Objected to as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..They belonged to my employer.

Q..Who was your employer?

A..M. S. Schenck.

Q..You had no interest in them, whatever?

A..No, sir.

Q..Where is Mr. Schenck?

A..M. S. Schenck is a Mrs. M. S. Schenck.

Q..Where is a Mrs. M. S. Schenck?

A..She is in Brooklyn; she resides in Brooklyn, I believe.

Q..Whereabouts?

A..Gates avenue.

Q..Where do you reside?

A..I reside in Jerusalem street.

Q..What was the amount of the coupons?

A..$234.

Q..You do not know the number of coupons ?

A..I do not.

Q..How long had you had them ?

A..I think only that day.

Q..Is $234 the amount you received for them ?

A..No, sir.

Q..What did you receive for them ?

A..I received—there was a little discount of half a cent on them.

Q..Then you mean to say you received $234, less a discount of half per cent. ?

A..Less half per cent.

Q..That is, about $1.17 is taken off ?

A..Well, half per cent. of 234. I have made one error in regard to the amount of coupons, 232.

Q..232 ?

A..I am reckoning it in my head, the interest on those bonds, by taking the per cent. upon the gross amount of the bonds; that is what I am doing, and I made a mistake of a figure.

Q..Please do not make any such reckoning and avoid such mistakes, if you can; I prefer to have you state from memory what amount you received for those coupons ?

A..What amount I received ? It is less the discount, whatever it might be.

Q..What amount did you receive for those coupons ?

A..I haven't that amount in my mind without reckoning it ?

Q..Well, reckon it then, (after a pause.)

Mr. Bangs..Well, we have waited now three minutes and the witness does not answer.

Q..What did the coupons call for on their face ?

A..$232, I think.

Q..How many coupons ?

A..I can't say how many coupons.

Q..What was the amount of each coupon ?

A..I can't say that.

Q..Was it not $40?

A..I cannot say indeed.

Q..You have no recollection?

A..I don't recollect how many coupons I had.

Q..You are certain you received less than the face?

A..Half per cent. less than the face.

Q..Why did you take less than the face?

A..I inquired why there was half per cent. off, and they told me that was simply the exchange on Mobile, or something to that effect.

Q..Then they were not payable in New York?

A..Yes, sir; they were payable here.

Q..What did you allow your debtor to take off a per centage for then?

A..Because he said that was what it cost to get the money from Mobile, or the exchange on Mobile.

Q..Why did you allow your debtor to take off what it cost to get the money from Mobile?

A..Well, I can't say why I did it, only he explained that it was merely the exchange on Mobile.

Q..Who do you mean by "he?"

A..The payer, whoever he was.

Q..Who was the payer?

A..I don't know who the payer was, merely the party that paid the coupons.

Q..He told you that he would not pay the face of them, did he?

A..No, sir; he did not tell me he would not pay the face of them.

Q..He told you he would only pay with the discount?

A..He said there was a discount of half per cent. on them.

Q..And you understood him to be representing the party who owed them, did you?

A..I understood him to be paying the coupons.

Q..Now, do not tell me what I do not ask you.

A..I don't know as I understand the question.

Q..You understood him to be paying the coupons, for you say he took off a per centage?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..How do you reconcile your statement that you went to the person who owed the coupons, or his representatives, and yet did not get your debt paid; but got it with a discount; how came you to let the debtor take the discount off?

A..I don't know as I have any particular reason for it only that was the way they were paying the coupons. That is all I know about it.

Q..How do you know that they were paying the coupons that way?

A..That is what he told me.

Q..Did he say they were paying the coupons that way?

A..He did.

Q..With the discount off?

A..Yes, sir; he did.

Q..You did not ask any explanation?

A..I did ask an explanation.

Q..What did he say?

A..He said the half per cent. was simply the exchange on Mobile—the expense of getting the money from Mobile up here to pay the coupons.

Q..And you did not ask any information why the debtor charged the creditor the expense of raising the money to pay the coupons?

A..I did not.

Q..Whereabouts in 11 Pine street was that?

A..In the basement, I think; that is, what I should call the basement.

Q..Do you mean below the level of the street?

A..A few steps down, I think, from the side walk.

Q..And you say there was a string of people in there?

A..There was a line of persons; yes, sir.

Q..Was it some persons in the line that you spoke to?

A..No, sir.

Q..You said you asked whether they were paying the coupons there?

A..I did ask.

Q..Who did you ask?

A..The party paying them.

Q..The person who was handing out the money?

A..The person who paid the coupons.

Q..You went to the head of the line and made that inquiry?

A..I did.

Q..And you asked what?

A..I asked if they were paying the coupons of the Mobile and Ohio bonds there.

Q..And he said they were?

A..He said they were.

Q..And he did not say anything about discount then, did he?

A..I don't think he said anything at that time about the discount.

Q..But when you got your place in the line and walked your way up to the desk, he told you that they took off a discount?

A..He said there was a discount; yes, sir, he did.

Q..What sort of a person was that? A young man, or old man, or what?

A..I don't remember sufficiently to answer that.

Q..Did you get the coin?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did you get the currency?

A..No, sir.

Q..What did you get?

A..Check.

Q..Whose check?

A..I cannot say.

Q..Did you collect the check?

A..I deposited the check in the bank for collection.

Q..To whose credit?

A..To the credit of M. S. Schenck ?

Q..Did you endorse it ?

A..I did.

Q..By what authority ?

Mr Blandy..I object to that as immaterial and irrelevant.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

Q..We want to find the check ; by what authority ?

A..M. S. Schenck's authority ?

Q..Had you a power of attorney ?

A..No, sir.

Q..Is she related to you ?

A..No, sir.

Q..You had no power of attorney ?

A..No, sir.

Q..You endorsed it without authority, then ?

A..I had endorsed all her checks for deposit, for some years, as a custom.

Q..Was it to her order ?

A..I think it must have been ; I can't say as to that ; I cannot say as to her order about it.

Q..You do not know whose check it was ?

A..I don't know whose check it was.

Q..You do not know who it was drawn on ?

A..I don't know that.

Q..Of whom had you made the inquiry in Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s office in Nassau street ?

A..I don't know who it was ; I inquired of—

Q..What part of the premises did you inquire in ?

A..On the main floor ; one of the desks ; one of the counters.

Q..You don't know the name of the person, or the position in relation to the firm, which he held ?

A..I do not.

Q..Why did you ask him ?

A..Merely to ascertain where they were paying these coupons.

Q..Why did you not go to Brown Brothers & Co.?

A..I supposed they were paying at Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s.

Q..What made you suppose so?

A..Simply because William Butler Duncan was the President of the road, as I had understood, and I went, of course, to his banking house to have the coupons paid.

Q..The usage of business, then, is to pay at the office of the President, is it, as you understood and understand?

A..If he was a banker in the city, as he was.

Q..You said you went there because he was President?

A..And I supposed they were payable at his banking house, from that fact?

Q..What made you suppose so? Are coupons paid at the banking houses of Railroad Company Presidents generally?

A..I don't know that they are.

Q..In that particular instance what made you go there?

A..Because I supposed that Mr. Butler Duncan, being the President of the road, that he would do the banking for the company.

Q..Had you never been there before?

A..I had been to Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s house before.

Q..With coupons, I mean.

A..No, sir, I never had.

Q..Did you, yourself, take these coupons off the bonds?

A..No, sir, I did not.

Q..Where did you get them?

A..They were handed to me by the party who held the bonds for safe keeping.

Q..Who was the party?

A..Mr. Blossom?

Q..How do you know he held the bonds?

A..Because, I think I went with him to where he had them deposited, and I think then and there he cut off the coupons. I won't be positive about that. At any rate he gave me or handed me the coupons. Whether I was with him when he cut off the bonds, I don't know.

Q..Will you swear you ever saw the bonds ?

A..No, sir.

Q..Will you swear that Mrs. Schenck ever had them ?

A..I did see the bonds. I did see the bonds on one occasion; yes, sir.

Q..Will you swear that Mrs. Schenck ever had them ?

A..In her possession ?

Q..Yes. Of course in her possession; where else should she have them ?

A..I don't know that she ever did.

Q..When and on what occasion did you see them ?

A..I can't say when it was. But it was on an occasion when I went with Mr. Blossom to where he kept the bonds, and I remember his showing them to me then and there.

Q..How many ?

A..I can't say how many.

Q..What was the place where he showed them to you ?

A..The Safe Deposit place.

Q..The Safe Deposit Company.

A..Yes, sir, Company.

Q..Did he go with you on purpose to show them to you ?

A..I think not. I think we went there for some other matters, and while there looking over various things that belonged to M. S. Schenck, among others these were shown, and we took them out and took a little memorandum, if I remember right, of some of the items; among them these were shown. I recollect seeing them on one occasion.

Q..What relation was he to Mrs. Schenck ?

A..He held her valuables for safety in one sense. What, business relation, do you mean ?

Q..What business relation, yes ?

A..He held her valuable papers.

Q..Was he a lawyer ?

A..No, sir.

Q..What was he ?

A..As for as his relation to her, was as an adviser in business.

Q..Medical adviser?

A..No, sir; in business matters.

Q..What was his business?

A..I can't say what his business was.

Q..Where was his residence?

A..His residence was in Brooklyn.

Q..Where was his place of business?

A..His place of business at that time I think was in Pearl street.

Q..Was he employed at the same place where you were, 44 Dey street?

A..No, sir.

Q..Was Mrs. Schenck in the habit of attending there at 44 Dey street, to do business?

A..Yes; she would go there frequently to look after things, and business.

Q..Did she buy and sell?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did she keep books?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did she make deposits?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did she make bargains?

A..No, sir.

Q..Who superintended her business?

A..I did, with the direction of Mr. Blossom.

Q..Mr. Blossom had a place of business in Pearl street?

A..In Pearl street, yes, sir.

Q..You superintended Mrs. Schenck's business under the direction of Mr. Blossom?

A..Partially his and partially hers.

Q..And you kept her bank account?

A..I kept her bank account, yes.

Q..And you drew checks?

A..No, sir.

Q..Who drew the checks?

A..Mr. Blossom always signed the checks, by power of attorney, or Mrs. Schenck.

Q..Who was the attorney?

A..Mr. Blossom was the attorney.

Q..Then he did have power of attorney from her?

A..He had the power of attorney.

Q..But still did not attend there at Dey street to do the business?

A..No, sir.

Q..Is he still in Pearl street?

A..No, sir.

Q..And yet you don't remember how many bonds he showed you?

A..I do not.

Q..And that was the only occasion on which you collected the coupons?

A..The only time.

Q..You do not remember the amount of the coupon?

A..The amount of each coupon?

Q..Yes.

A..No, sir; not the amount of each coupon?

Q..Can you say whether or not they were $40 each?

A..I cannot.

Q..Did you make any record or entry of the transaction anywhere?

A..I entered it on the books of M. S. Schenck.

Q..Were they all payable in currency?

A..I don't remember about the payment; about their being paid in currency.

Q..You do not remember whether they were payable in currency or Sterling money? You do not remember whether they were payable in American money, or money of the United States, or Sterling money, do you?

A..No, sir, I do not.

Q..It payable in American money, you don't remember whether they were payable in gold or currency?

A..All I know is I took a check that drew the currency; that is all I know.

Q..How do you know it drew the currency?

A..That is to say, I took an ordinary check; which was not a gold check, I think.

Q..Are you sure of that?

A..I am quite sure of it; yes, sir.

Q..Will you swear to it?

A..If the word "gold" was in it I have overlooked it. I would not swear that it was not in it, but I deposited it as a currency check.

Q..I want you to swear, whether one way or the other, if the check called for gold or not.

A..I believe the check called for simply currency.

Q..That is your recollection, is it?

A..That is my recollection of the circumstances?

Q..Was the coupon printed in red, or blue, or black ink?

A..I don't remember.

Q..Where was it payable?

A..Where was the the coupon payable?

Q..Yes, on its face?

A..I don't remember.

Q..Who was it signed by?

A..I cannot say that.

Q..How did you know Mr. Duncan was president?

A..Seeing his name, I think, in connection with the road or heard it. I cannot say whether I saw it in any book or heard it.

Q..You will swear that you had heard that he was president.

A..I came to that knowledge—that information, some way.

Q..Before that time?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..That you swear to?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Without hesitation?

A..Yes, sir. I came to that knowledge; I supposed that was so. How I got it, I cannot say.

Q..And it was on the 1st November, 1874, was it?

A..That I collected the coupons?

Q..Yes.

A..On the first or second.

Q..Did you buy these bonds for Mrs. Schenck?

A..I did not.

Q..Do you know who she bought them of?

A..I do not.

Q..Is Mrs. Schenck a married lady?

A..She is a widow.

Q..Who asked you to attend here as a witness?

A..Mr. Blossom asked me to come down here as a witness.

Q..When did he ask you?

A..Well, I cannot—some day this week, I cannot say what day it was. A few days ago.

Q..Where are those bonds now?

A..I don't know.

Q..Did you continue to act for Mrs. Schenck until last fall sometime?

A..Yes, sir; until last fall.

Q..Under her power of attorney, or in her employment?

A..In her employment only.

Q..You continued to attend to her finances?

A..I did.

Q..You never saw those bonds or coupons and never collected any coupons afterwards?

A..No, sir.

Q..Did you ever hear that a foreclosure suit was pending against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad?

A..I don't know that I ever did.

Q..You do not know it now, do you?

A..No, sir; I do not know it now.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..You say you saw the bonds. Do you remember

William Butler Duncan, a witness produced, sworn and examined on behalf of the coupon holders.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Have you been present during the taking of the depositions of Mr. Dougherty, Mr. Thorburn, Mr. Petty and Mr. Oliver?

A..I have.

Q..You were President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in fact, in May, 1874, and afterwards, were you?

A..I was; that is to say, I was after I assented to the thing. I objected to taking the presidency for some time, but finally consented and became President in May, 1874.

Q..Did you know Mr. Thorburn, the witness, before you saw him sworn here?

A..I have known him for a number of years.

Q..Have you ever sought him for the purpose of getting him to do business for you?

A..He has acted as my broker sometimes; I can scarcely say that I have sought him.

Q..How came he to act as your broker?

A..By calling at my office and seeking business as a broker.

Q..As a broker in securities, I suppose?

A..In securities.

Q..And in paper, mercantile paper?

A..No.

Q..You had no transactions through him in mercantile paper, had you?

A..Not to my recollection.

Q..Do you remember any instance in which you applied to him to render service for you, as a broker?

A..I do not.

Q..You do remember instances in which he applied to you for employment as a broker?

A..I do.

Q..Did you know Mr. Charles Moran and his firm in May, 1874?

whether you saw these coupons detached from the bonds, on reflection?

A..Whether I saw them cut off?

Q..Yes.

A..No, sir; I don't know that I did.

Q..You knew that they were cut off of bonds that were held by Mrs Schenck?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..How do you know that they were cut off bonds that were held by Mrs. Schenck?

A..I am trying to remember whether I saw those bonds cut off or not. I don't think I did.

Q..What made you say you knew they were cut off from Mrs. Schenck's bonds?

A..For this reason: that Mr. Blossom held the bonds, and Mr. Blossom handed me these coupons, and that is all I know about it.

Q..That is the reason you swear you knew they were cut off?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Do you know Mr. Moran?

A..I do not.

Testimony in support of the claim proved before the Master in this cause, by Alexander Duncan, William H. Hayes and others, taken before EDWARD L. OWEN, Esq., U. S. Commissioner, at No. 71 Wall street, in the city of New York, April 13th, 1877.

The parties appear.

It is stipulated and agreed by and between the respective Solicitors that the testimony of the witness William Butler Duncan be taken by a Stenographer, and that his minutes, when written out and subscribed by the witness, be certified by the Commissioner with the same effect as though taken by him.

A..I knew Mr. Charles Moran personally, and knew of his firm.

Q..How long have you known him?

A..I think for a number of years—I can't say—before that date.

Q..Do you remember at that time, or about that time, any conversation with Mr. Moran upon the subject of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad or its affairs?

A..I do not.

Q..Do you remember, or is it a fact, that Mr. Thorburn, in May, 1874, or anywhere near that time, asked you for any information concerning the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company or stated the object of seeking any such information?

A..He constantly spoke to me about the affairs of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Q..Have you any recollection of any specific conversation with him which you can distinguish from any other?

A..No, not specific.

Q..Is it the fact that in any conversation with him after the 1st May, 1874, you omitted to state the fact that the Company had not provided for the coupons maturing at that time?

Mr. Blandy..I do object to that upon the ground that it appears upon the testimony of the witness that he has no distinct recollection of any specific conversation.

Mr. Bangs..No, not any specific conversation, as distinguished from another.

Mr. Blandy..I will stand on my objection.

(Answer taken subject to objection)

A..Not if that question was the subject of conversation.

Q..What was your practice, if the matter of these coupons was a subject of conversation?

A..Unhesitatingly, to state that the company was not paying their coupons.

Q..Did Mr. Moran, at any time between May, 1874, and November, 1874, ask you anything in relation to that fact?

A..Not to my knowledge.

Q..Had you, at that time, any knowledge or information that he was interested as a holder of the security of that road?

A..I had not.

Q..In the month of May, 1875, did Mr. Moran, in any form, state to you the possession of an interest by him in the securities of the road?

A..Not to my recollection.

Q..In May, 1875?

A..I beg your pardon; in May, 1875, he did.

Q..Oral or written?

A..Written.

Q..Can you produce the writing itself?

A..The writing is on file, I think, in the Court. I can produce a copy of it.

Q..On the files of this Court in this suit, in Mobile?

A..I think so. I can produce a copy of it.

Q..Will you produce the copy?

A..I will.

Q..Produce it now I mean?

(Witness produces a paper.)

The paper is offered in evidence by Mr. Bangs.

The following is a copy:

NEW YORK, May 4, 1875.

MESSRS. WM. B. DUNCAN AND A. F. ELLIOT, Trustees of First Mortgage Bonds of M. & O. R. R. Co., of Alabama:

DEAR SIRS—The Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company having defaulted on the first instant in the payment of the coupons due that day, on their First Mortgage Bonds of various issues, we, the undersigned, holders of said bonds, hereby request that you take possession of said Railroad and appurtenances, and take such other measures as may be necessary to protect the interest of the First Mortgage Bond holders in accordance with the terms of the mortgage of which you are now the trustees.

Respectfully your obedient servants,

Holders 178,000 First Mort. } MORAN BROS.
" 29,500 Int. Bonds. }

Holders 147,000 First Mort. } G. T. BONNER & CO.
" 59,500 Int. Bonds. }

Q..Did you receive the original of that letter?

A..I did.

Q..From whom did you receive it?

A..From Moran Brothers.

Q..Did you act upon it?

A..I did, in conjunction with others of a similar character.

Q..Did Mr. Moran ever subsequently make any writing or place in your hands any written statement with reference to the state of his interest in the securities?

A..He did.

Q..Where is the written statement?

A..It is on file in the Court in Mobile.

Q..In this Court?

A..In this Court.

Q..Have you a copy of it?

A..I have.

Q..Please produce it.

(Paper produced by the witness and marked "X 5.")

Paper offered in evidence by Mr. Bangs.

The following is a copy:

"X 5.—The undersigned, holders of the First Mortgage "bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, having "learned of the matter in controversy in these two causes, "and of the application of Morris Ketchum to remove "Messrs. William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster "Elliot as Trustees and Receivers of the said First Mort-"gage, approve the appointment of said Duncan and Elliot, "as such Receivers, and protest against their removal and "the substitution of any appointee of the said Morris 930 "Ketchum as sub-receiver, believing that such a change " would be injurious to the interests of all classes of creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

"New York, 1st April, 1876.

" In the presence of :

" Moran Brothers, " James H. Fay, " Holders of	$225,000 First Mort. Bonds. 29,500 " " Int. Bonds.
" James H. Fay, witness, " Plock & Co., " Representing	$185,000 First Mort. Bonds. 5,400 Fund. Int. Bonds.
" James H. Fay, witness, " Adrian Iselin, Att'y.	$87,000 First Mort. Bonds. 3,000 Interest Bonds.
" James H. Fay, witness, " E. Pavenstadt & Co., " Representing about	$180,000 First Mortgage.
" James H. Fay, witness, " James Tinker, " Representing	$ 5,000 First Mort Bonds, and over 100,000 Interest Bonds.

Q..Have you computed, as a matter of arithmetic, the difference between the extent of the ownerships of First Mortgage bonds on the part of Moran Brothers, stated in the first paper, and the amount stated in the second; if not please do, and state the difference ?

Mr Blandy..I object to that as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..The difference is $47,000 of First Mortgage bonds.

Q..Increase or decrease ?

A..Increase with interest.

Q..Do you remember seeing a petition of Mr. Moran, sworn to in this case, on the 22d November, 1876, in which he stated the extent of his then interest ?

A..I do.

Q..Is that petition on the files of this Court ?

A..That petition is on the files of this Court.

Q..What then did he state was the extent of his interest ?

Mr. Blandy..Objected to as incompetent, on the ground that the petition will speak for itself.

(Taken subject to objection.)

A..$360,000 First Mortgage bonds.

Q..Was it not $300,000?

A..No; $360,000.

Q..How much interest?

A..$30,000, I think.

Q..Did the default of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the payment of its coupons on the 1st May, 1874, have any effect on the market for those bonds between then and the 1st November?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that, upon the ground that there is no evidence showing that there was any default on the 1st May, 1874.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..Yes, sir; very material effect.

Q..In what way, up or down?

A..A decline in the price of the bonds from 10 to 12 per cent.

Q..Did the default in the payment of interest on the 1st November, 1874, have any effect on the market for those bonds; and if so, which way, and to what extent?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that upon the ground that there is no evidence showing that there was any default on the 1st November, 1874.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..They declined a further 10 per cent. between November, 1874, and May, 1875.

Q..What have been the fluctuations, if any, in the prices of those bonds in New York from May, 1875, down to this time?

Mr. Blandy..Objected to as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..They gradually declined to 40 and under, almost immediately, during the summer of 1875. In 1876 a scheme of reorganization was suggested, and seemed practicable—

Mr. Blandy..Perhaps, as I cannot protect myself against this—would not you instruct the witness not to give any more than an answer to a particular question, and then you can bring that out by questions, so that I can object to the questions.

Mr. Bangs..I cannot give him any such instructions. I want an answer to that question, and he has answered it.

Mr. Blandy..You asked for the fluctuations and he has given it.

Mr. Bangs..You can object to the answer.

Mr. Blandy..I object to that portion of the witness' answer which refers to the scheme, upon the ground that it is not responsive.

(Mr. Duncan is requested by Mr. Bangs not to pursue that answer.)

Q..Please state the extremes of the fluctuations and intermediate fluctuations in the price of those bonds between May, 1875, and the present time, without referring to contemporaneous or associated events or causes, at present, and if you can, fix the dates of the prices which you give.

Objected to as immaterial, as before, by Mr. Blandy.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..Ranging from 30 to 40 between May, 1875, and October, 1876; advancing to 45 or 46 about November; declining in the latter part of 1876 and beginning of 1877 to 30 and 35, and advancing to about 40 at the present time.

Q..You mean they started at about 40 in May, 1875, and ran down to 30 by October, 1876?

A..I think so; I am not positive.

Q..With some intermediate fluctuations?

A..Many intermediate fluctuations.

Q..What occurred in relation to the property in October, 1876?

Mr. Blandly..Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..The probable success of the presentation of a supposed practical scheme for the re-organization of the property—

Q..(Interrupting) Was Mr. Moran a party to that scheme?

Mr. Blandy..Objected to as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..He was not.

Q..When did the next decline occur, and in connection with what event?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that portion which refers to an event.

[Answer taken subject to objection.]

A..Shortly after the promulgation of the scheme referred to, circulars were issued by Mr. Moran, and apparently had the effect of reducing the price to somewhere about 33, I think.

Q..Have they risen since?

A..They have risen since to about 40.

Q..Is it true that you ever stated, in answer to any inquiries, that the Company had paid its coupons which matured May 1st, or July 1st, or November 1st, 1874, or January 1st, 1875?

Mr. Blandy..Objected to on the ground that it is not in contradiction to the testimony of any individual witness, and if it is, that the question is too general; the party, name and time must be associated with the question.

[Answer taken subject to objection.]

A..I did not.

Q..Did you ever so state to Mr. Thorburn?

A..I did not.

Q..Which statement have you made to Mr. Thorburn on that subject?

A..The general statement that I made to any person inquiring of the condition of the property.

Q..Which was what?

A..That the Company had not the means to pay its coupons, and that the encashment of the coupons was arranged for outside of the Company.

Q..How came you to say that to Mr. Thorburn?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that, upon the ground that the witness has not testified distinctly that he said that to Mr. Thorburn.

934 Q..How came you to state that to Mr. Thorburn, and on what occasion did you state it?

Same objection.

[Answer taken subject to objection.]

A..Just prior to the 1st May, 1874, and up even to the 30th of April, it was a matter of great doubt whether the coupons would be provided for in any way.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..Grave doubts as to whether they could be taken care of?

A..Whether they could be taken care of. Hopes were entertained even as late as the 28th of April that the Company might possibly raise the money, and my recollection is that Mr. Thorburn was cognizant, and discussed them, as far as I would discuss such a matter with a broker, of the facts.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Do you remember anything about the convertible bonds in that connection?

A..An effort was being made up to a late date in April to secure means for the Company by the sale of the Convertible Bonds.

Q..Had you any conversation with Mr. Thorburn about that?

A..I am not sure.

Q..Since the 1st May, 1874, have you conversed with Mr. Thorburn about the securities?

A..As a broker, frequently.

Q..On what occasions?

A..When he has desired to sell me bonds, or to induce me to sell him bonds.

Q..Have you ever applied to him to buy or sell bonds?

A..I may have done so, but not problably; I may have done so, very likely; I could not recollect.

Q..You have no distinct recollection?

A..I have no distinct recollection.

Q..Have you any recollection of having made any sale or purchase to him, or from him, or through him?

A..Some very unimportant sales or purchases may have been made through him, but I cannot recollect.

Q..Have you a statement of the amount of your transactions in the securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company since the 1st January, 1874?

A..I have.

Q..Please produce it?

A..From the 1st January, during the year 1874.

[Paper produced by the witness.]

Q..Will you look and say whether you made any sale on the 21st May, 1874?

Mr. Blandy..I object to the witness reading from the memorandum in his possession, until some foundation is laid as to what the memorandum is.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..What is that memorandum you have in your hand?

A..Memorandum of the transaction referred to, made by me or my firm, during that year.

Q..When was that particular paper written out?

A..Yesterday, I think.

Q..In whose hand writing is it?

A..It is in the hand writing of the Cashier of Mr. Shipman, the assignee.

Q..Copied from what?

A..Copied from the books of the late firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co.

Q..The entries in the books were made by whom?

A..Made by him, I think.

Q..Not by you?

A..Not by me.

Mr. Blandy..I object to the witness refreshing his memory by referring to that paper. Can you answer without reference to it?

Witness..Not in detail.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..Did you make any sale on the 21st May, 1874?

Mr. Blandy..Let us understand one thing. You must not answer that question by referring to that paper, Mr. Duncan, until we have some understanding.

Mr. Bangs..There is my question.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..I don't think I did. What date was that?

Mr. Bangs..21st May, 1874.

The witness..Why do you make it May 21st?

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..That is the sale made by Mr. Thorburn of the purchase of Dean, McGuiness & Co.?

A..I did not.

Q..Did you sell any through Dean, McGuiness & Co.?

A..I did not.

Q..At any time?

A..At no time, to my knowledge.

Q..Did you ever know from Mr. Thorburn, that he was acting or proposed to act, or was asked to act for or on behalf of Moran Brothers or Mr. Moran, or for the purpose of having them act upon his or your information, in 1874?

A..I did not.

Q..Do you recall a sale or sales of bonds to the amount of $17,000 or 27,000, or any like sum?

A..Yes, sir; my recollection is that we sold—

Q..(Interposing.)..Was that before or after the 1st May, 1874?

A..Before the 1st May.

Q..What month was it?

A..I think in January, or February.

Mr. Bangs..This memorandum that you have testified to in answer to Mr. Blandy's questions, and which was copied from your books, is offered in evidence.

Objected to as incompetent and inadmissible by Mr. Blandy.

The paper is put in evidence subject to objection. The following is a copy:

"Memo.—M. & O. R. R securities bought and sold during the year 1874, by D., S. & Co.:

Q..Did you keep books for the purpose of recording your purchases and sales?

A..Yes sir.

Q..Were they kept correctly?

A..They were.

Q..Did you personally, in general, superintend the purchases and sales of these particular securities, or direct them?

A..I did.

Q..Did you ascertain at the time whether or not they were correctly entered on your books?

A..Not specifically. I had confidence in my clerks.

Q..Have you any doubt that this is a correct record of of the transaction ?

Mr. Blandy..Objected to as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..Not the least.

Mr Bangs..The paper is again offered in evidence.

Mr. Blandy..It is still objected to on the same grounds, and upon the further ground that it is not a paper in the handwriting of the witness, or in the handwriting of any person, made at or about the date of the transaction; even if it was, it would only then be competent to refresh his recollection. It is not an original entry.

Q..Speak from your recollection, what was about the aggregate amount of First Mortgage 8 per cent. Bonds, if you remember ?

A..Ten to twenty-thousand; not exceeding ten to twenty-thousand, I think.

Q..What was the extent of your transactions in First Mortgage 8 per cent. Arrearage Bonds ?

A..Very small.

Q..What was the amount of your transactions in Second Mortgage 8 per cent. Bonds.

A..A very few thousands.

Q..What was the extent of your transactions in the Convertible Bonds ?

A..10,000 one way or the other.

Q..What was the extent of your transactions in the Second Mortgage 8 per cent. Bonds ?

A..I can't recollect; very small.

Q..Did Mr. Thorburn ever mention his principals to you in his conversation with you relating to his purchase and sales of Mobile and Ohio securities ?

A..He has done so; he is rather fond of that.

Q..Did he ever mention Mr. Moran as one of his principals ?

A..Lately, he has.

Q..When?

A..During the last winter.

Q..In the latter part of 1876 and the early part of 1877?

A..I think so.

Q..Did he mention them as large buyers?

A..As all brokers do, he did.

Q..He was anxious to impress you with the importance of his connections, I suppose?

A..I don't know his object.

Q..Did he tell you the prices at which Mr. Moran was buying?

A..He told me the price, but whether it was Moran or Amy, I don't know.

Q..It was either Moran Bros. or H. Amy & Co?

A..It was.

Q..Do you remember whether he represented them "bulls" as "bears."

Mr. Blandy..I object to that as immaterial.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..He did not represent them as either.

Q..In May, 1874, was your firm interested in the securities of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company?

A..It was.

Q..In what classes of the securities?

A..First Mortgage, Interest, Arrearage, Second Mortgage, Convertible and Stock.

Q..To what extent were they stockholders?

A..They were stockholders to the extent of 9,000 shares, about.

Q..What was the extent of their interest in the Stock in November, 1874?

A..The same that they had in May.

Q..What extent of interest had they in the convertible mortgage bonds in May and November, 1874?

A..Upwards of $78,000.

Q..And in the senior securities had they interest?

A..They had.

940 Q..In each class of the senior securities?

A..In each class of the senior securities.

Q..Can you tell about the extent of their interest in the first mortgage, six per cent. sterling bonds in May, 1874; was it small or large?

A..Very small.

Q..Then your larger interest was as shareholders, and in the subordinate securities?

A..It was.

Q..You had then a large interest in carrying the unpaid coupons of May and November for the protection of your subordinate interests?

A..We had.

Q..You know something of the method of dealing in railroad securities, &c., in this stock market, do you not?

A..I do.

Q..You know more than some; you know considerable?

A..I do.

Q..From an experience of some years?

A..I do.

Q..You understand the phrase "regular delivery of bonds," do you not?

A..I do.

Q..And you heard what Mr. Thorburn testified to on that subject?

A..I did.

Q..Is it or not the fact that what is called a regular delivery of bonds requires that all unpaid coupons should be attached?

A..Not always.

Q..Is that the universal signification of the term "regular delivery" that all unpaid coupons should be attached?

A..Not always.

Q..Have you known of instances besides that of the Mabile and Ohio Railroad Company where a delivery was reglar without the unpaid coupons?

A..It often occurs. I have known of two or three instances to my knowledge: The cases of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Mississippi Central, the First Mortgage Bonds of the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern, and many—I believe it was applicable also to some of the securities of the C., C. & I. C. Railroad; where the provision having been made that the coupons should be purchased, a regular delivery is made without reference to the fact that the coupons have not been paid by the company, and carried with it only the coupons for which some provision has not been made, either by purchase or otherwise.

Q..Is it not common for coupons maturing or about to mature, to be detached from the bonds and to be circulated as equivalent for cash?

A..Very often.

Q..The sale of a bond without coupon does not mean that the coupon has been paid, does it?

A..Not necessarily.

Q..Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Thorburn in Mr. Hayes' presence about those securities; I do not ask what it was, but whether you did or not?

A..I have had conversations about Mobile and Ohio securities, in the presence of Mr. Hayes and Mr. Thorburn.

Q..Do you know Owen O'Connor?

A..I know him now.

Q..Do you know him as the holder of about $100,000 of the First Mortgage Bonds?

A..He has so informed me. I don't know from any other source.

Q..He has conversed with you frequently about his ownership of those bonds?

A..Within the last six months.

Q..Has he ever charged you with having sold $17,000 or $27,000 of those bonds to him through Mr. Thorburn, on the representation that the Company had paid the interest on the 1st May, 1874?

A..Certainly not.

Q..And the only sale of any such amount of bonds as $17,000 or $27,000 that you made, was made before the 1st May, 1874, was it not ?

A..To the best of my recollection.

Q..You made no such sale of any such amount after the 1st May, 1874 ?

A..To the best of my recollection, I did not.

Q..Does Mr. O'Connor reside in this city ?

A..He does.

Q..Is he a well-known man ?

A..I believe he is.

Q..A man reputed to be wealthy ?

A..He is reputed to be wealthy.

Q..And easily found ?

A..And easily found.

Q..Mr. Moran being now present at this examination, and having been present at the examination from the beginning, will you state for his information, what is the address of Owen O'Connor ?

A..Mr. O'Connor's address is Grand Circle Hotel, at the corner of 8th Avenue and 58th street.

Q..Has he any business address down town, so far as you know, and if so, where is it ?

A..His business address is with his son at the Astor House.

Q..Is his son a Counsellor at Law ?

A..His son is a Counsellor at Law.

Q..You heard the account that Mr. Oliver gave of himself, did you not ?

A..I did.

Q..As between the two men, which could Mr. Moran most easily find as a witness, Mr. Oliver or Mr. O'Connor ?

Mr. Blandy..I object to that, unless Mr. Duncan shows the sources of knowledge or information that were possessed by those whose duty it was to subpœna the witnesses on our side or procure them.

Q..I will alter the question in this form: Which could you most readily find as as a witness, taking the account that Mr. Oliver has given of himself and what you know of Mr. O'Connor?

Mr. Blandy..That I object to as immaterial.

Mr. Bangs..We will take Mr. Duncan's judgment, and if he says he can find Mr. O'Connor, he is at your service. Mr. Duncan will serve a subpœna on Mr. O'Connor for you. I would like to have Mr. Duncan answer the question.

Mr. Blandy..I must express my regret that Mr. Bangs did not propound that question to Mr. Duncan yesterday, or that he did not impart this information to Mr. Moran, in order that Mr. Moran might have procured the attendance of this Mr. O'Connor in time, and have him here to-day.

Mr. Bangs puts down upon the record "that he admires the innocence of Mr. Blandy, in permitting himself to be humbugged by Mr. Moran into the belief that Mr. Moran has not known for many months what Mr. O'Connor's address is, and has not tried to draw him into his scheme.

Mr. Moran states that yesterday was the first time that he ever heard the name of Mr. O'Connor in connection with that transaction, and he is sorry that Mr. Bangs and Mr. Duncan volunteer to give that, as they did not give it to him before. "I should certainly have had him here the other day."

Mr. Bangs..Does Mr. Moran say this under oath?

Mr. Moran..I will take my oath to it, yes sir.

Cross-examination, by Mr. Blandy:

Q..Have you a distinct recollection of the conversation testified to by Mr. Thorburn with you on the 21st May, 1874.

A..No.

Q..Have you any recollection of the interview?

A..I have a distinct recollection in my own mind that the conversation testified to by him, was not had with me, as testified by him.

Q..And what is your distinct recollection predicated upon?

A..Upon the fact that I have invariably—never have 944 made any such statement as that which Mr. Thorburn said I made.

Q..But it is not predicated upon any distinct recollection of the presence of Mr. Thorburn in your office, in conversation with you, on the day he testified to?

A..On the specific day, no.

Q..Have you any recollection of the sale of any bonds through Mr. Thorburn on the 21st May, 1874?

A..Having refreshed my recollection, I have a distinct recollection. I refreshed my recollection by reference to my books—that I made no sale on that day to Mr. Thorburn.

Q..Do you remember how many conversations you had with Mr. Thorburn with reference to the Mobile and Ohio Bonds between the 1st May, 1874, and the 1st May, 1875?

A..I should think once a month.

Q..Do you remember a conversation that took place between yourself and Mr. Thorburn at the time Mr. Hayes was present, in reference to those bonds?

A..No sir; my conversation was probably with Mr. Hayes at that time.

Q..Do you remember any conversation with Mr. Thorburn about the 21st May, 1874, in reference to these bonds?

A..No, sir.

Q..Do you remember having had any transactions with Mr. Thorburn in reference to those bonds, on or about that date?

A..I do not; I have none.

Q..Have you examined your books to see if you had any such transactions?

A..I did.

Q..Between what dates did you look?

A..Between the 1st January, 1874, and the 1st January. 1875.

Q..Now, when you have a transaction of that kind with a broker, do you enter the transaction in the name of the broker or in the name of the principal?

A..The broker's name does not appear on the books.

Q..Whose name does appear?

A..The name of the security.

Q..Not the name of the principal for whom the broker acted?

A..No, sir.

Q..I understand you to say that in answer to the general inquiries, it was not your custom to make statements similar to the statement that was testified to by Mr. Thorburn, or words to that effect; you have stated that?

A..I never made such a statement, if I am correct in my recollection of what Mr. Thorburn said.

Q..Do I understand you distinctly contradict or deny that you had the conversation with Mr. Thorburn that Mr. Thorburn testified to?

A..The substance of the conversation I would like to see before I deny it. Am I right in my recollection of what Mr. Thorburn said.

Q..I ask you now whether you had a distinct recollection of having had a conversation with Mr. Thorburn on or about the 21st May, 1874?

A..No.

Q..Have you a distinct recollection that you never had any such conversation with him on that day?

A..I probably had a conversation at that time.

Q..You probably had?

A..Probably.

Q..Did I misunderstand you, if I understood you to say a few minutes ago that you never had such a conversation with Mr. Thorburn on the 21st May, 1874?

A..No; you did not understand me that.

Q..I misunderstood you, did I?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..What did you mean by saying that you had had no transaction in these bonds later than (I think you said) the 18th April?

A..Later than the list here?

Q. . Later than the first item. Tell me which is the latest date ?

Mr. Bangs. . That is, on the list produced and offered in evidence by me ?

Mr. Blandy . . Yes, sir.

Witness. . Later than the 29th April, I think. That is a transaction which shifted itself so that it really was not. I bought and sold—it is under the latter part of April—the latter part of April. Do you ask me what is the reason I say that I had no transactions ?

Q. . Yes ; what did you mean by saying that you had no transactions in these bonds later than the 18th of April ?

A. . Because I am obliged to obtain the information from the books of Duncan, Sherman & Company, which are in the hands of their assignee, and that has been furnished me from those books.

Q. . That I understand. How does this exhibit offered in evidence to-day by Mr. Bangs, called a memorandum of Mobile and Ohio securities, bought and sold during the year 1874, tend in any way to assist you in your recollection as to any conversation with Mr. Thorburn ?

A. . It was not given for that purpose.

Q. . For what purpose was it given ?

A. . At the request of the examiner.

Q. . You have used this in your testimony to fix a date, have you not ?

A. . No ; I have not.

Mr. Bangs. . It was offered for the purpose of showing his transactions.

Q. . Have you any recollection of Mr. Thorburn calling upon you in the month of May, 1874, to make inquiries in reference to the prospect of the coupons falling due on the 1st May, 1874, being paid ?

A . . Nothing but his own statement.

Q. . But you have no recollection of your own from his visit ?

A. . I have not.

Q..You heard his testimony, and heard what he stated took place between you and him at the time, did you not?

A..I did.

Q..Do you wish to be understood as denying that any such conversation took place?

A..Denying the unqualified character of the conversation.

Q..What is your denial based upon?

A..That it was not my habit to make any such unqualified statements as he claims I there made.

Q..But it is not based upon any distinct recollection of the interview with Mr. Thorburn?

A..No; except that I deny that he has a better recollection of it than I would have.

Q..Your memory has not been distinctly charged with that conversation since it took place up to the present time?

A..Not as much as his own.

Q..Well, what do you mean by that?

A..It has not been.

Q..You are not a judge of whether his memory has been charged with that conversation more than your own, are you?

A..No.

Q..You said inquiries had been made quite frequently of your firm about that time, in reference to the condition of this road?

A..They were.

Q..Were inquiries being made during the month of April, immediately preceding the 1st of April, and after the 1st of May, as to the prospects of the coupons due on the 1st May being paid?

A..They were.

Q..Do you remember whether any inquiries were made by Moran Bros. about that time as to whether those coupons would be paid?

A..I do not.

Q..Do you remember the names of the parties who in-948 quired of you during the month of April, 1874, as to the prospects of the coupons payable on the 1st May, being paid?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Give us the name of one?

A..Goellet & Co.

Q..When did they make their visit to you?

A..Just prior.

Q..Just prior to the first of May?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Do you remember any others who called at that time?

A..G. T. Bonner & Co., William H. Hays, William M. Clark, Adrian Iselin and many others whose names I cannot recollect.

Q..Did they call immediately before the 1st of May, or did they call after the 1st of May?

A..Before the 1st of May, and after also.

Q..How soon before the 1st of May?

A..Oh, it was a matter of conversation among these gentlemen for a month before the 1st of May.

Q..Did they call upon you for the express purpose of putting the question to you: what the prospects were of the coupons being paid on the 1st May, 1874?

A..They did.

Q..Do you remember the conversation you had with the first named gentleman?

The witness..Mr. Goellet?

Mr. Blandy..Yes, sir.

A..I remember the substance.

Q..Do you remember the substance of the conversation you had with all the other gentlemen?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..But you do not remember the conversation you had with Mr. Thorburn?

A..No; because he was to unimportant a person.

Q..Then at the time the gentlemen whose names you have mentioned, outside of Mr. Thorburn, made their inquiries about these coupons payable on the 1st May, 1874, were you cognizant of the bonds they held or their relation to the road?

A..I knew in general terms that they were interested in the securities of the road.

Q..At the time Mr. Thorburn called, did you know the purpose he had in making the enquiries?

A..To make a commission, I suppose. He was a broker.

Q..Would that circumstance affect the answer that you would give to the general enquiry as to the prospects of the coupons of the Bonds due the 1st May, 1874, being paid, in contradistinction which you would give to the other gentlemen whose names you have mentioned?

A..If he asked me a specific question, similar to the others, I would give him the same answer.

Q..Then the circumstance of his being an unimportant person would not in any way affect your answer, would it?

A..Except that I would volunteer information to them, and I certainly would not to Mr. Thorburn.

Q..Then a question that would be put by Mr. Thorburn would be more apt to elicit from you a cautiously framed answer?

A..No, it would not. That is to say, there was no occasion for caution in reference to this particular matter.

Q..I understood you to say, in answer to Mr. Bangs, that it was not a fact that you omitted to state that the Company was not paying their coupons in May, 1874. Will you please state whether you notified any person that the Company was not paying their coupons on the 1st May, 1874?

A..To the best of my recollection, I unhesitatingly stated to any parties whose interest was such as to warrant the information, the condition of the Company, and its inability to meet its maturing interest.

Q..After the 1st May, 1874?

A..After the 1st May, 1874, I have unhesitatingly stated–

Q..(Interposing.) Can you give the name of any one person to whom you stated that?

950 A..I stated it invariably—well, let me answer it correctly. These various parties I have referred to before as having had conversations with; and I should think a large bond-holder named Sheppard, I am not quite sure; I should think very likely. Anyhow, the persons largely interested whom I came in contact with.

Q..Did you state to all parties enquiring after the 1st May, 1874, that the Company had defaulted in the payment of its coupons due on the 1st May, 1874?

A..I stated that I had provided the means for the purchase of the coupons, and that the Company did not pay them.

Q..Did you state that fact to all parties enquiring of your concern, after the 1st May, 1874?

A..I undoubtedly did.

Q..Then do you mean to say that you stated to Mr. Thorburn that the Company had defaulted?

A..If he asked me the question I should have undoubtedly stated to him—

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..That the Company had defaulted?

A..That the Company had not paid the coupons.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..That you state upon the authority of your usual method of doing business, and not from any distinct recollection of having told him?

A..No not from any distinct recollection, because Mr. Thorburn is a person whose opinion in reference to any security is not entitled to a straw of value.

Q..Do you advance that opinion upon your own judgment?

A..Upon my own judgment, and upon the judgment of the street.

By Mr. Blandy:

Q..If the judgment of the street should place an equal opinion upon you—

Witness..Of course they are entitled to it.

Mr. Blandy..You would not think that your judgment, in that case, entitled to any less consideration because of the opinion of the people on the street ?

Witness..No; he is entitled to the same consideration; but his business is that of selling.

Q..Did you state that fact to Mr. Bonner and Mr. Goellet, the two persons you have mentioned ?

A..Unhesitatingly.

Q..You told them that ?

A..I told them that, and they were aware of the fact.

Q..How were they aware of the fact ?

A..Because I endeavored to arrange to borrow the money from them.

Q..They knew it from that fact, did they ?

A..They knew it from that fact, and from the conversations they had with me, and from their general knowledge of the condition of the property and its finances.

Q..But as a fact, the coupons were paid on the 1st May, 1874, were they not ?

A..The owners of the coupons touched the money value on some.

Q..By paying them ?

A..That is a matter—by paying them, no; they were purchased by parties who purchased them, the Company did not pay them.

Q..The holders of coupons payable on the 1st May, 1874, and who presented their coupons received the money for them ?

A..They got value of them ; yes, sir.

Q..The holders of coupons payable on the 1st November, 1874, on presenting those coupons received the money for them in the same way they did for May, 1874 ?

A..The same as they did for May, 1874, but in neither case did they receive the money on presenting them.

Q..How did they receive it ?

A..They were presented and not paid.

Q..The first time ?

A..They were afterwards, at sometime, sold, and they received the money for them.

Q..But, then, as a fact, the holders of the coupons did receive their interest on the 1st May, 1874, and on the 1st November, 1874?

A..They received an equivalent for their coupons.

Q..The same as they did on the 1st May, 1873?

A..No, sir.

Q..Why not?

A..Because on the 1st May, 1873, the Company paid their coupons.

Q..But they gave the holders of the coupons the equivalent—the money that was provided for by the coupons?

A..No; they gave them the value of the coupons provided by the Company.

Q..And the party paying the coupons on the 1st May and 1st November, 1874, did precisely the same thing, did they not?

A..No; they did not.

Q..Less a small rebate?

A..An entirely different course of procedure.

Q..I am not speaking of the course of procedure; but the same result was reached to the holders of the coupons?

A..It was not.

Q..Have you any distinct recollection of a conversation with Mr. Thorburn, wherein you informed him that the encashment of the coupons was arranged for outside the Company, about May, 1874?

A..If Mr. Thorburn asked me any question, I undoubtedly made that statement. I have no recollection of any definite—

Q..(Interposing.)..You have no recollection of any specific conversation wherein you imparted that knowledge to him?

A..I have not.

Q..Then that is predicated upon the circumstance, as you have testified before, that if any such question was asked you, you would give that answer?

A..It is.

Q..And not from any recollection?

A..And upon the fact that in all the testimony that has been furnished, nobody has made a contrary statement.

Q..Have you any recollection of any particular conversation wherein you notified Mr. Thorburn that you had grave doubts whether the coupons due the 1st May, 1874, would be paid?

A..Not specifically with him.

Q..Nor have you any distinct recollection of any specific conversation wherein you notified him that the Company was endeavoring to take care of itself?

A..Not specifically with him, although I had such conversations during the whole month of April.

Q..You testified in answer to Mr. Bangs that from an inspection of the books of your old firm, no sale of those bonds was made on the 21st of May, 1874, why did you testify to that?

A..Because I refreshed my memory from the statement furnished to me from my books.

Q..Then, were you not under the impression that Mr. Thorburn had testified that the 21st May, 1874, was the day on which he had this conversation with you, and that on that day he had made a purchase of your firm of bonds of this particular road?

A..I had no impression of any kind whatever; I was simply answering the question.

Q..When you testified in answer to that last question that I have referred to, were you not under the impression that Mr. Thorburn had testified that the purchase on the 21st May, 1874, was made through your house?

Mr. Bangs..I object to that. The question has just been put and just been answered.

(Answer taken subject to objection.)

A..I was not.

954 Q..Why did you testify that you did not sell through Dean & McGinness any of your bonds on the 21st May, 1874?

A..Because I was asked the question.

Q..Can you give me the market fluctuation between the 1st May, 1874, and the 1st November, 1874, of these bonds?

A..I cannot, except what I have learned from brokers, by hearsay, I have made no operations.

Q..Can you give me the market fluctuation between the 1st May, 1874, and the 1st November, 1875?

A..The same answer to that.

Q..You testified that the circumstances of some coupons being detached from the bonds would not eliminate them from a "regular" sale, and you have given some instance by reference to railroad companies?

A..Yes, sir.

Q..Were all of those companies embarrassed?

A..Embarrassed in the same manner that the Mobile and Ohio was; in no other way.

Q..Except to a greater extent?

A..I don't know to a greater extent.

Q..Can you recall the circumstances now that any of these particular companies was more embarrassed than the Mobile and Ohio was?

A..No; I cannot.

Q..The regularity of the sale of their bonds with the coupons detached was brought about by special provision being made for the coupons that were detached, was it not?

A..Yes, sir; certainly.

Q..And that special provision made it a "regular" sale?

A..It was the provision for the encashment of the coupons.

Q..But for that circumstance, the detachment of the matured unpaid coupons would make it an irregular sale?

A..Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bangs:

Q..You do not mean to say that a sale would be void of a bond which had coupons detached, do you?

A..That is a matter between the buyer and seller.

Q.."Regular" is a stock broking term?

A..A stock broking term.

Q..Just as "flat" is?

A..Just as "flat" is. The object of the provision is that a purchaser buying a bond should not be at a disadvantage from the fact that he did not see the bond. If any arrangement had been made by which matured coupons were provided for, all of a certain maturity the bond was just as "regular" without those coupons as it was with them.

Q..You use "regular" in the stock broking sense?

A..The stock broking sense.

Q..You are aware that brokers have ideas of their own concerning what "regular" and "irregular" are, I believe?

A..I am.

Q..Before May, 1874, had or had not the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company defaulted in the payment of interest?

A..It had not altogether defaulted in the payment of interest.

Q..Had it paid its interest regular when it fell due from 1860 to 1874?

A..It had defaulted for a number of years.

Q..A number of years in succession, had it not?

A..For nine years.

Q..And there was what were called "Interest Arrearage Bonds" out, representing arrears of interest?

A..There were.

Q..So that the past embarrased condition of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was a matter of notoriety, was it?

A..A matter of notoriety.

Q..Were you not of the opinion, after the 1st May, 1874, and at that time, that the Mobile amd Ohio Railroad Company was ultimately good for its debts?

A..I thought so, with the prospective improvement in business and increased economy in the management.

I further certify that I am not of counsel for either of the parties, nor in any manner interested in the result of said case.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed my seal, this 14th day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and the Independence of the United States the one hundred and first.

Exceptions taken by the trustees of the 2nd mortgage, defendants, and by L. J. Belloni, Charles Moran, & als., objecting creditors, to the report of James Gillette, special master in said cause, filed May 3d, 1877.

15TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 21st February, 1877, pending the reference before him, refused the motion of E. L. Andrews, solicitor for exceptants, for a subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy, to produce the minute-book of said railroad company of 1870, 1871, and 1872, returnable in one hour; and also refused a like motion by same solicitor for subpœna to same T. Haskins DuPuy, returnable in two hours; and also refused a like motion for the minute-book 960 of 1871, returnable in two hours; and also refused a like motion for a subpœna duces tecum, returnable in three hours; and also refused a like motion for a subpœna duces tecum, returnable at any time during the said day before 10 o'clock p. m., and for that the said master refused the said subpœnas duces tecum on the ground that exceptants had no right to the books named; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motions, and ought to have ruled that exceptants had a right to said books as evidence in the cause.

16TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 21st February, 1877, pending the reference before him, on the motion of E. L. Andrews that a subpœna issue, returnable at 12 m. on the 22d February, 1877, for the production of the minute-books of the directors and of the executive committee of the said railroad company from 1870 to 1872, both inclusive; for the telegram-books and letter-books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, for the same period, and for such minutes, letters and telegrams, for the same period, not in the form of books, and 961 for resolutions, and copies of the same, of the said directors and executive committee not in the form of books, ruled that the subpœna be granted, returnable at 12 m. on 22nd February, 1877, for the books and papers in question, so far as the same pertain to the question under consideration, viz, the bonds known as Tennessee substitution bonds; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said subpœna, as asked by said motion, without the qualification contained in his said ruling.

17TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master refused the motion of E. L. Andrews, solicitor for exceptants, made on the said 21st February, 1877, in writing, as follows: "After the declaration of counsel in court that portions of the books called for would be sealed, I move for the production of the books named in my previous motion without any qualification in the subpœna"; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motion.

18TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master refused a motion made on behalf of exceptants on the 30th March, 1877, for a subpœna 962 duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy for the production of the stock-books, and stock-registers, and stock-transfer books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the years 1873 and 1874, and also any other books and papers in his possession as agent of receivers, showing by and to whom proxies to vote on stock were given in those years; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motion.

19TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master refused a motion made on behalf of exceptants on the 30th March, 1877, for a subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins DuPuy for the correspondence, telegrams, and entries in telegram-books of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and its officials, with W'm Butler Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., and any one representing him or them, in reference to the coupons on the company's bonds which fell due in November, 1873, and January, 1874, and also for all books and papers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company containing entries in reference to any advances or claims of Duncan, Sherman & Co., or W'm B. Duncan, or any one else acting for them or him, in the years 1870, 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, and 1875;
963 whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motion.

20TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master refused a motion made on behalf of exceptants on the 30th March, 1877, for a subpœna duces tecum for the production of the general ledger or any special ledger of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company for the year 1870, containing the accounts of the company with W'm Butler Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., and also for the production of the correspondence of the company, and telegrams, and the telegram books of the company for that year, containing copies of correspondence by telegram with the same parties, and also refused a motion for a subpœna to the same party for the production of the books, correspondence, and telegram books containing the accounts and correspondence of same parties for each succeeding year down to 1875 inclusive; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motions.

21ST EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the motion made on behalf of the exceptants, on the 2d April, 1877, pending the reference before said master, for a subpœna duces tecum to T. Haskins Du-964 Puy, agent of the receivers in this cause, and proved to be the custodian of the books and papers of the insolvent defendant corporation, requiring him to produce before the master forthwith all correspondence or copies of letters or telegrams and originals of correspondence or telegrams between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, or any officer thereof, and William Butler Duncan and Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the year 1874, in reference to the coupons of the first-mortgage, maturing 1st May and 1st November that year, and also in reference to all remittances made during that year by the company to Duncan, Sherman & Co., made a ruling denying the said subpœna except in so far as such telegrams and correspondence pertain to the question at issue; whereas the said master ought to have granted the said motion without restriction or qualification.

22ND EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 2d day of April, 1877, pending the reference before him in the said cause, one William Butler Duncan then being examined as a witness on the part of exceptants, excluded from evidence the answers of said William 965 Butler Duncan to the following questions then put to him by counsel for said exceptants, viz:

"Question. In whose name did a majority of the capital stock of the company stand in 1872? If you can't answer from memory please refresh your memory by looking at the stock-book which is in your custody."

"Question. By whose and in whose names was the majority of the stock voted in 1872 at the annual meeting? Were not proxies given for a portion of that stock? If so, to whom? If you cannot answer from memory, refresh your recollection by looking at the stock and transfer books now in your custody as receiver. If those proxies for 1872, if there were such proxies, were voted by the persons to whom they were given, under the direction or request of William Butler Duncan, or any person requesting to act for him or Duncan, Sherman & Co., please state the names of the persons giving such instructions or making such requests, and also the names of the persons so voting on the proxies; also were not proxies, and if so what amount of stock, voted on the 966 annual election of 1872 at the request of W'm Butler Duncan, or some one indicated in the preceding paragraph of this question for certain persons indicated by said Duncan?

"Question. How many shares of stock stood in the name of W. B. Duncan, in that of Andrew F. Elliott, and in those of W'm Watts Sherman, Francis H. Grain, Alexander Duncan, George A. Lecte, and Duncan, Sherman & Co. at the time of the annual election of 1872? Refresh your memory by looking at the stock-books for that year, and answer the question. I ask the same question in reference to each of the years 1872, 1873, 1874, and 1875, respectively.

"Question. What commissions or charges in any and all respects, were made for loans or procuring loans to or for the company by yourself or Duncan, Sherman & Co., in the years 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, and 1875? I mean the average percentage. If you cannot state from memory, refresh it by looking at your books, and answer.

"Question. What changes were made in the board at the annual meeting for 1874, and at whose suggestion were such changes made?

"Question. Did not W'm H. Hays, W'm H. Pratt, Moses War-967 ing, and Henry Hall become directors of the company at the annual meeting of 1874, and were they not put into the board at your suggestion or that of some one acting for you?

"Question. Is not the W'm H. Hays who then became a director, the same Hays who is named in a scheme of certain parties in reference to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, annexed to the deposition of yourself under the commission issued by the master herein, and were not W. H. Hays, W'm H. Pratt, and Moses Waring continued as directors at the annual meeting in the year 1875, and, if so, at whose instance were they so continued? Was it not at your instance, or at the request of some one acting for you?

"Question. Did not M'r Beers, the auditor of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in March, 1874, write to you that the floating creditors were absorbing the revenues of the road?"

Whereas the said master ought to have allowed and required the said witness, William Butler Duncan, to answer each and all of said recited questions and ought to have admitted his answers to the same in evidence in said cause.

968 23RD EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 3d day of April, 1877, pending the reference before him in said cause, one William Butler Duncan then being examined as a witness on the part of exceptants, excluded from evidence the answer of said William Butler Duncan to the following question then put to him by counsel for said exceptants, viz:

"Question. Is not $75,000 of first mortgage sterling bonds the entire interest of Alexander Duncan in the bonds of this road? If not, what is his interest in the bonds and what class of bonds?"

Whereas the said master ought to have allowed and required the said

William Butler Duncan, witness, to answer the said question, and ought to have admitted his answer to the same in evidence in said cause.

24TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 16th day of April, 1877, pending the reference before him in the said cause, one Moses Waring then being examined as a witness on the part of exceptants, excluded from evidence the answers of said Moses Waring to the following questions then put to him by counsel for said exceptants, viz:

969 “Question. Did you not express to persons in the city of Mobile dissent or objection to the account of Duncan, Sherman & Co., rendered to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in which they charged as paid some thousands of dollars, about twenty-five thousand of notes and drafts in 1874, out of monies remitted from the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or obtained by Duncan, Sherman & Co.?

“Question. Was there not an arrangement made by the company with a large part of floating creditors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in 1874, whereby they extended the time of payment of paper of the company, and which extension was upon the faith and understanding with the parties so extending, that no payments of floating claims or paper of the company should be made to any of the holders thereof?

“Question. Did not Duncan, Sherman & Co., in violation of the arrangement made by the company with the floating creditors, appropriate moneys received by them on account of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to account of unsecured claims held by them in 1874?

970 “Question. Who voted a majority of the stock at the meeting of April, 1874?

“Question. Can you state by what payments, and to whom, the floating debt of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company standing at $1,166,492.19, on December 31, 1874, was reduced from that amount on May 8, 1875?

“Question. What class of securities is referred to by the item in the report at the meeting of April 20, 1875, when you were director of the company, to the following effect: Paid on account of floating debt to prevent sacrifice of securities belonging to the company?”

Whereas the said master ought to have allowed and required the said witness, Moses Waring, to answer each and all of said questions, and ought to have admitted his answers to the same as evidence in said cause.

25TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master denied the motion made by counsel of said exceptants, on the 16th April, 1877, pending the said reference before him, for a subpœna duces tecum to T. H. DuPuy, for the production of books and papers of said railroad company, 971 defendant, for the year 1873, in reference to the payment of interest on sterling bonds of the first mortgage; whereas said master ought to have allowed the said motion and required the production of said books and papers as evidence in said cause.

26TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master denied the motions made in behalf of said exceptants, on the 16th April, 1877, pending the said reference before him for a subpœna duces tecum to T. H. DuPuy, for the production of the stock register and ledger of said railroad corporation, defendant, of 1874, and also for the production of any existing record of proxies to vote on stock in 1874, and also for the production of the stock register, and any existing record of proxies to vote on stock in 1875. Whereas the said master ought to have allowed each and all of said motions, and required the production of each and all of said stock registers, ledgers, and records of proxies as evidence in said cause.

27TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 23d April, 1877, pending the reference before him, excluded from evidence in said 972 cause the record in the case of Morris Ketchum vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, pending in said court, offered as evidence on behalf of the trustees of the 2d mortgage, exceptants, under their answer in the present cause, of Duncan & al. vs The Mobile & Ohio R. R. Co. & als. Whereas the said master ought to have admitted the said record as evidence in the said present cause.

28TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 23d April, 1877, pending the reference before him, excluded from evidence the record "In chancery, at Mobile, No. 3594, W'm H. Hays vs. Morris Ketchum, W'm Butler Duncan, A. Foster Elliot, the Mobile and Ohio R. R. Co., & others." Also the writ of injunction restraining Morris Ketchum from proceeding in this court, for the protection of the rights declared by the decrees of this court; which records in the last-stated causes were offered not only as records, but as an admission of the Mobile & Ohio R. R. Co., and of the cestuis que trust under its mortgage.

Whereas the said master ought to have admitted each and 973 every of said records and writ of injunction as evidence in this cause.

29TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 25th April, 1877, pending the reference before him in this cause, excluded from evidence as irrelevant a notice published in the Mobile Register by W'm H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins DuPuy, committee, sworn to by said Du Puy, a witness before said master. Whereas the said master ought to have admitted the said notice as relevant testimony in said cause.

30TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 25th day of April, 1877, pending the reference before him in said cause, refused to require T. Haskins DuPuy to produce a letter in his possession of one W'm Butler Duncan, to the Mobile and Ohio R. R. Company, or to one of its officers, which letter said Du Puy had with him in the master's office (and in his manual possession as agent of receivers), in obedience to a subpœna duces tecum issued by said master, and which said letter was called for by counsel for trustees of the 2nd mortgage, as evidence in said cause, after being read by the witness, the master, and 974 M'r P. Hamilton, one of the counsel for complainants in said cause, and after said DuPuy had declined to produce the same, and after M'r Stewart, as attorney of said railroad company, "had instructed said witness, DuPuy, as vice-president of said railroad company," that he need not produce it unless, in his judgment, it had reference to the matters under investigation. Exceptants aver that said letter contains important evidence in said cause, and they state that the master had no right to decline the motion to direct the witness to produce the same as evidence, after the same had been privately inspected by the witness, counsel for the complainants, and said master, and that said master ought to have required the production of said letter as evidence in the said cause.

31ST EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 25th day of April, 1877, pending the reference before him in said cause, declined to take the testimony of T. H. DuPuy, a witness in said cause, called for by counsel of the trustees of the 2nd mortgage in reference to resolutions of the board of directors of said railroad company produced 975 by said DuPuy, and filed in said cause, marked Exhibits F 1 and F 2, and prohibited the examination of said DuPuy by said counsel. Whereas the said master ought to have allowed the examination of said DuPuy in the premises, and ought to have taken his testimony therein.

32ND EXCEPTION.—For that the said master arbitrarily adjourned his reference sine die, pending a motion by counsel for second-mortgage trustees for a subpœna duces tecum to rebut testimony taken to sustain the claim of title of the complainants in said cause. Whereas said master ought not so to have adjourned said reference, but ought to have heard and granted said motion for subpœna duces tecum, and ought to have examined witnesses in rebuttal of said testimony.

33RD EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, in excluding the record in the case of Morris Ketchum vs. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company & als., infringed the rule of practice in courts of equity of the United States, providing that "all affidavits, depositions, and 976 documents which have been previously made, read, or used in the court, upon any proceeding in any cause or matter, may be used before the master."

Wherefore, and because of each and all of such exceptions, the said trustees of 2nd mortgage, defendants, and the said Belloni and Moran & als., objecting creditors, except to the said master's report, and appeal therefrom to the judgment of this honorable court.

Dated Mobile, May 30, 1877.

E. H. GRANDIN,
Of Counsel for said 2d Mortgage Trustees.
E. L. ANDREWS,
Sol'r of said Belloni, Moran & als., Objecting Creditors.

34TH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, on the 25th April, 1877, pending the reference in said cause, one Oliver S. Beers then being examined as a witness on the part of the trustees of the 2d mortgage, excluded from evidence the answer of said witness to the following question put to him by the counsel of said trustees, viz:
"Question. M'r Beers, did not M'r Murdock, president, tell you 977 that he had purposely avoided holding further communications with M'r Ketchum, in New York City, after the war, because M'r Ketchum was insisting on his trusteeship, or words to that effect?"

Whereas the said master ought to have allowed and required the witness to answer the said question, and ought to have admitted his answer to the same as evidence in said cause.

Wherefore, and because of said exception, the said trustees of 2nd mortgage, defendants in said cause, except to the said master's report, and appeal therefrom to the judgment of this honorable court.

Mobile, May 30th, 1877.

Of Counsel, &c.

978 In the circuit court of the United States for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama. In equity.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN & AL., trustees, &c.,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO. & ALS.
} On bill, &c.

Exceptions taken by W. D. Dunn & al., trustees of the second mortgage of the said the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendants in the said-entitled cause, and by L. J. Belloni and Charles Moran & als., objecting creditors, to the report of James Gillette, esq., special master in said cause, filed May 3rd, 1877.

FIRST EXCEPTION.—For that the said master has, in and by his said report, reported as to the coupons of May and November, 1874, claimed by Alexander Duncan and others, that the mode and manner of payment of them in London and New York was not the usual mode.
Whereas the said master ought to have reported that said 979 coupons were paid in London and New York in the usual mode, or, at least, that there was no evidence before him to the contrary.

SECOND EXCEPTION.—For that the said master has in and by his said report reported that in New York the evidence is that they, said coupons, were not paid in the usual manner, and that the holders were informed that they were being purchased and held uncancelled. Whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that said master ought to have reported that in New York the evidence is that only some of said coupons were paid or purchased by Duncan, Sherman & Co., agents of the said The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and that holders were not generally informed that they were being purchased and held uncancelled, and that the evidence is that only some of the holders were so informed, and that no special printed or written notice was given as to the purchase of said coupons.

THIRD EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath reported in his said report that it is in proof that the railroad company did not pay 980 said coupons, and supplied no money for their payment. Whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that the evidence taken by said master proves that the said railroad company did pay said coupons, and did supply money for their payment.

FOURTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master in his said report hath reported that the May and November interest for 1874 on first-mortgage bonds stands on the company's books as unpaid and in default. Whereas exceptants allege that said company's books were not produced before the said master, and there was no legal and competent testimony as to their contents, and he ought not to have reported as standing on the company's books what was not proved before him by the production of said books or by legal and competent testimony as so standing.

FIFTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath in and by his said report reported that it does not appear that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company paid one of these coupons or that it intended so 981 to do. Whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that it does appear that said The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company paid all of said coupons, and that it intended so to do, and said master ought so to have reported.

SIXTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath in and by his said report reported that the proof is full as to the intent of Duncan, Sherman & Co. and their agents, the Bank of Mobile, Credit Foncier, &c., with the assent of the company, not to pay or satisfy said coupons so as to extinguish them, but, on the contrary, their plainly-expressed intention was that they should be purchased and remain uncancelled with all the rights that purchasers should have; that their taking up the coupons without extinguishment was with the consent of the company, by the express agreement with its officers, that they were to be purchased with all lien rights as existing mortgage security preserved, and held until the company could pay them. Whereas the said master ought 982 to have reported that the proof is that what coupons were taken up or purchased by said Duncan, Sherman & Co., and said Bank of Mobile and said Credit Foncier, &c., as agents of said Duncan, Sherman & Co., were so taken up or purchased by and in pursuance of their own volition, without any assent of the company, and that it is not in proof that there was any consent of the company by express agreement with its officers that said coupons were to be purchased, with all their lien rights as existing mortgage security preserved, and held until the company could pay them; and said master ought also to have reported that it was not competent in law for said company or its said officers to give any such consent or make any such express agreements, and that the tendency of the whole evidence before him is to prove that said company and its officers never did give any such consent or make any such express agreement.

SEVENTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath in and by his said report reported as to said coupons that payment was not made at 983 the treasurer's counter as usual. Whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that the master ought to have reported that the mode of payment of said coupons at the treasurer's office was substantially as usual.

EIGHTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath, in and by his said report, reported, as to said coupons, that the purchasing-agencies and the officers of the company fully understood the transaction; whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that said master ought to have reported that the evidence shows that Duncan, Sherman & Co., the head of which firm was William Butler Duncan, the president of said The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, J. J. Walker, W'm H. Pratt, W'm
H. Hays, and A. Murdoch, directors of the said company, P. Hamilton, retained counsel of said company, G. J. Bonner, Otto Plock, Adrian Iselin, and perhaps one or two other holders of some of such coupons alone, fully understood the transaction of the taking up or purchasing of said coupons by said Duncan, Sherman & Co., and their agents.

984 NINTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath, in and by his said report, reported curtly that evidence offered to show that the matter was kept secret failed; whereas it is humbly apprehended by said exceptants that the said master ought to have reported as the effect of the evidence before him, that the matter of the payment or purchase of said coupons in manner and form as it is claimed on the part of Alexander Duncan the same were paid or purchased, was kept secret from the general public and from the body of the bondholders of said railroad company; that only those who inquired were informed of the way the thing was done; that only those who accidentally were put upon inquiry, or who accidentally saw a notice written in blue pencil, alleged to have been posted up or pasted on the counter of th treasurer's office of said company, were informed at all upon the ma ter; that the great body of the bondholders were purposely by the sa company left uninformed that the said company was not in funds pay its coupons of May and November, 1874; that the official 985 statements of the net earnings of said company were calculated to deceive and mystify the great body of the bondholders of said company; that there is not on the minute-book of the directors of said company any record of any arrangement whatever between said directors and said Duncan, or Duncan, Sherman & Co., under which he, said Duncan, or they, Duncan, Sherman & Co., were to buy and hold said coupons uncancelled, and that whatever arrangement of the kind was made, if any such was made at all, was made in secret, and the evidence thereof has been suppressed.

TENTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath, in and by his said report, reasoned and agreed in support of the claim of said Alexander Duncan on said coupons; whereas it is humbly apprehended by exceptants that he ought only to have reported his conclusion upon the evidence.

ELEVENTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master hath, in and by his said report, reported that it is undeniable that the defendant corporation did not pay said coupons; whereas said master ought 986 to have reported that it is deniable and denied that the said defendant corporation did not pay the same.

TWELFTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, in and by his said report, hath reported that the coupon-holders received the money, but it was not the money of the company, whose books failed to show the payment of one first-mortgage coupon of May and November, 1874, or since these dates; that it was claimant's money which purchased the coupons for full value, and he holds them uncancelled, with all the rights and liens of the bonds from which they were taken; whereas it is apprehended by exceptants that the said master ought to have reported that the books of said company were not examined before him, and that he does not know by legal and competent evidence what they show or what they fail to show; that the money paid to said coupon-holders was not the money of said claimant, but was the money of said company advanced to it by Duncan, Sherman & Co., and the agents of said firm, on the credit of said Duncan, Sherman & Co., and on 987 the credit of said company, and hypothecation of securities; that said claimant became the owner of said coupons by purchase or transfer after their maturity and after they had been detached from the bonds to which they belonged, and taken up from the bondholders, and that he does not hold the same uncancelled with all the rights and liens of the bonds from which they were taken.

THIRTEENTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master, in and by his said report, finds and reports to the court that the claim of Alexander Duncan for the detached coupons of 1874 is a just and lawful claim, and should be allowed, with interest from the time or times when due, as a valid subsisting lien of the same force and effect as other coupons of the first mortgage unpaid, with all the liens applicable to said mortgage; whereas it is apprehended by said exceptants that said master ought to have found and reported to the court that the said claim of Alexander Duncan is not a valid subsisting lien at all on the property of said defendant corporation; but, if a debt at all, is a debt of said corpora-988 tion to Duncan, Sherman & Co., or to said Alexander Duncan, as their transferee, unsecured, of the same force and effect as the other floating unsecured debts of said corporation.

FOURTEENTH EXCEPTION.—For that the said master excluded evidence offered by exceptants, trustees of the second mortgage of said company, in support of their answer to the bill of complaint of said complainants, and by exceptants Charles Moran & als., and Belloni in support of their objections, in various particulars, which appear in the minutes of the proceedings of, and evidence taken before, said master accompanying said report, to which said minutes and exceptants' exceptions to the rulings of said master shown thereby, exceptants, to avoid prolixity, crave leave to refer and to make each of said exceptions or exception to said report of said master; whereas said master ought to have admitted said evidence in each of said various particulars for the information of the conscience of the court.

989 Wherefore, and because of each and all of said exceptions, the said W. D. Dunn & al., trustees of the second mortgage of said defendant corporation, defendants in said entitled cause, and the said L. J. Belloni and Charles Moran & als., objecting creditors, except to the said master's report, and humbly appeal therefrom to the judgment of this honorable court.

In the circuit court of the United States, southern district of Alabama, at Mobile. In equity.

W'M BUTLER DUNCAN & ANDREW F. ELLIOTT, trustees,
vs.
THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY et als.

On reference, before James Gillette, esqr., special master, on the exception of Louis Belloni.

Alexander Duncan, together with W'm H. Hayes, W'm S. Pierson, and T. Haskins DuPuy, trustees & holders of coupons of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the interest of said Alexander Duncan, now here file their exceptions to the special report of said James Gillette, special master, in respect to the opposition and objections made by said Louis Belloni on the question of the coupons for interest on the bonds of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, secured by the first mortgage of said company. And for cause of exception to said special report they shew and say:

991 1st. That the said special master has reported that the said coupons which fell due and were payable on the first day of May and on the first day of November, in the year 1874, were properly held for payment to said Alexander Duncan, and that they held liens on the property of said company for their satisfaction on the property mortgaged by said company by their first deed of mortgage, but that said master did not report the order of payment in respect to them out of the property so mortgaged for their payment, and should have reported the order of payment they were entitled to on the foreclosure of said mortgage and out of the mortgaged property.

2nd. That the said special master should have reported to the court, in his said report on said coupon question, that the said coupons, due in 1874, and which had not been paid, should be entitled, and were entitled, and should be paid in full out of the proceeds of said first mortgage property next and first after the payment of all necessary expenses, and after the payment of all unpaid coupons outstanding and not 992 funded, which may have remained unpaid on said first mortgage bonds, and which were due and payable before the year 1874, and that the said coupons due in 1874 should then next be paid and satisfied to the said holders thereof out of all moneys, incomes, and profits of the company and property mortgaged, so far as said funds in the hands of said receivers and all property subject to said first mortgage may extend, with preference and priority over all other demands, out of said trust funds. All which exceptions it is prayed may be noted and reported by said special master with his report to the court.

997 Answer of Rodolph Merian, Eugene Renevier, et als.

Circuit court of the United States, fifth circuit and southern district Alabama.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN & ANDREW FOSTER Elliot, complainants,
vs.
THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY and others, defendants.
In equity.

The answer of Rodolph Merian, Eugene Renevier, Charles Carrard, and Cephise Chuffard to the bill of complaint filed in the above-entitled cause by William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot.

Come now the said Rodolph Merian, Eugene Renevier, Charles Carrard, and Cephise Chuffard, and protesting that the said complainants are not trustees of the first sterling mortgage of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, and that they have no such interest, right, or title in said railroad or in the other property of said company as in said bill of complaint they have stated and set forth, and further protesting that said Duncan, Iselin, and Wilson have not, nor has any holder of 998 the said securities known as Tennessee substitution bonds, any interest, right, or title to or in that part of said railroad which is within the State of Tennessee, without waiving or in any wise consenting to the same, and reserving all their rights in relation thereto and all manner of exception to said bill, nevertheless for answer to said bill of complaint, or to so much thereof as they are advised it is material for them to make answer, answering, say: That they are not (nor is any of them) citizens of or residents within the United States of America, but they are aliens and foreigners; that the said Merian, Renevier, and Carrard are, and each of them is, a citizen and resident of the Republic of Switzerland, and that the said Chuffard is a citizen and resident of the French Republic, and that they are the holders and owners of bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company of the class denominated and described in the said bill of complaint as first mortgage sterling 999 bonds, and which are secured by the mortgage to said Ketchum, Hallett, and Palmer, and thereby entitled to all the rights, liens, and securety by the same provided, to the total sum of forty thousand dollars in par value, and they file this their answer as well in behalf of other holders of like bonds, to the amount of over six hundred thousand dollars, as for themselves.

Further answering, these defendants say that the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company has not made default in the payment of the instalments of interest which accrued, matured, or fell due upon its said first sterling mortgage bonds upon the first days of May and November, 1874, respectively, and that it has not refused payment thereof, but on the contrary, they say that the same were at and after the said respective dates of their maturity, to wit, May 1st, 1874, and November 1st, 1874, fully paid and discharged to the holders thereof, by the said
Railroad Company, and the same are not in equity outstanding 1000 debts of said company or in any manner secured by said mortgage.

Further answering, these defendants say that the said interest, which so accrued and matured on said first days of May and November, 1874, was evidenced by coupons or interest warrants originally attached to bonds, from which they were cut or detached by the holders and owners thereof for presentation to and payment by said railroad company; that they are now presented and claimed to be held & owned by William H. Hayes, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins Du Puy by transfer from Alexander Duncan, who is claimed to have acquired them when overdue, from the firm of Duncan, Sherman and Co., who claim to have purchased the same from the holders thereof, partly at, but principally after, their maturity.

Further answering, these respondents say that said Alexander Duncan is, and said Duncan, Sherman & Co. were and are estopped to claim that said interest is unpaid.

1001 That the complainants were, at the maturity thereof, both partners of said firm, both directors of said company, whereof said
Duncan was president and ex-officio chairman of its executive committee, and said Duncan, Sherman & Co. were and had long been the financial agents of said company; that said interest was paid with funds and moneys provided by said Duncan, Sherman & Co. in the usual manner to the holders thereof, without any knowledge on their part that the same were not paid, and without any intention of selling the same, at times when said said Duncan was in full possession and control of all the income and assets of said company, and the same were pledged by the board of directors thereof to the payment of the interest upon said first-mortgage bonds and were placed in the hands of said Duncan, Sherman & Co. as such financial agents for that 1002 purpose and were sufficient for that purpose, but were and are claimed by said Duncan, Sherman & Company to have been by them diverted from such application and applied to the reduction of the unsecured debt of said company to themselves and others.

And having fully answered, these defendants pray to be hence dismissed.

In the circuit court of the United States, in and for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

To the honorable the judges of the circuit court for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama:

Your orator, Morris Ketchum, a resident of the county and State of New York, and a citizen of said State, brings this his bill of complaint against the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, a body corporate, constituted by and organized under an act of the general assembly of the State of Alabama, approved February 3d, 1848, entitled "An act to incorporate the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company;" and under 1009 an act of the legislature of the State Mississippi, approved February 17, 1848, and entitled "An act
; and under an act of the general assembly of the State of Tennessee, approved February 20, 1848, entitled "An act to incorporate the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and the Tennessee Railroad Company;" and under an act of the legislature of the State of Kentucky, approved February 26, 1848, entitled "An act to authorize the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to extend their railroad from the south boundary line of the State of Kentucky to the Mississippi and Ohio rivers;" and under the acts of the legislatures of the said States amendatory of and supplemental to the aforesaid acts, and against William B. Duncan and Andrew F. Elliott, as receivers of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company as aforesaid; and against William D. Dunn, George H. Young, and William Dickson; the said Dunn and Dickson being residents and citizens of the State of Alabama, and the said Young a resident and citizen of the State of Mississippi.

That in and by the acts of the legislatures of the States above referred to, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company was authorized to purchase, hold, and dispose of real and personal estate, to borrow money, to make contracts for the loan of money, and to give evidences of debt and securities for the payment of the same by pledge, mortgage, or otherwise, as it should deem necessary and proper.

That on or about the first day of November, in the year 1853, the said defendant The Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company purposed to contract and negotiate a loan of six millions of dollars, to complete and equip its said railroad, and to that end prepared to execute and dispose of by sale six thousand bonds, a copy of one of which bonds is hereto attached, as forming a part of this bill of complaint, and is marked "Exhibit A."

That each of the said bonds was to be for the sum of two hun-1010 dred and twenty-five pounds sterling, and payable in thirty years from the date thereof, with coupons attached for interest, payable semi-annually, and each coupon being for six pounds fifteen shillings sterling, and the said bonds were to be numbered from No. one to No. six thousand, inclusive.

That to provide a full, fair, and available security for the principal and interest of the said loan, and for the bonds and coupons representing the same, and to insure to those who might invest therein the payment of the interest and principal money thereof, in all respects, according to the true intent and meaning of the said bonds, was the chief and leading purpose of the conveyance hereinafter recited. That therefore, and in consideration of the premises and the sum of five dollars, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company granted, bargained, sold, aliened, assigned, transferred, conveyed, and confirmed to your orator, Morris Ketchum, and to John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett, by the conveyance of said company, duly executed and delivered to your orator, the said Morris Ketchum, and to said Palmer and Hallett, bearing date the first day of November, 1853, the following property, part of which was at the time of the execution of the said conveyance constructed, and part of which was to be thereafter constructed, purchased, acquired, held, possessed, and owned by the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, and which said property is described and set forth in said conveyance in the words and figures following, to wit: "All and singular of the rights and privileges of every name and kind, as hereinafter set forth, being the first and only conveyance of title, grant, or mortgage, hereby guaranteeing and warranting the described items, assets, and real estate free from all liens and incumbrances done or suffered to be done by the said party of the first part, and "all the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, lying between its respective termini, constructed or to be constructed, together with all and singular the railways, rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, 1011 rights, real estate, and all other property owned and which may hereafter be owned by said company, including the said lands donated by act of Congress hereinbefore referred to, and which reference is to be taken as a full and correct description of the lands derived from Congress, amounting, as by the certificate of the Department of the Interior, to $419,528\frac{56}{100}$ acres in the State of Alabama, to $737,630\frac{36}{100}$ acres in the State of Mississippi—total $1,156,658\frac{92}{100}$ acres, with certain exceptions of lands and certain reservations of a lien in favor of the State of Tennessee;" and for a fuller description of the property, rights, and franchises conveyed by said deed of mortgage, your orator refers to the true copy of said mortgage annexed hereto, as forming a part of this bill of complaint, marked "Exhibit B." That your orator and said Palmer and Hallett were, as provided in said conveyance, "To have and to hold the said granted and described premises, property, and franchises; in trust, nevertheless, for the benefit, security, and advantage of the person or persons, or corporations, or any other party who might become holden of the bonds hereinbefore described or any of them, issued or to be issued by the said company, and for the payment of the interest coupons thereon, as the same should respectively fall due."

That your orator, Morris Ketchum, and the aforesaid John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett duly accepted the conveyance of the property above described, and the deed above mentioned, and likewise accepted the trusts therein set forth, and thereupon became the mortgagees of the said property in trust for the holders of the bonds above described.

That said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, after the execution, delivery, and acceptance of said conveyance by said trustees, and after the same was in due form of law recorded in the proper counties in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, in which the said property thereby conveyed was and is situated, did execute large amounts 1012 of its said bonds of the denominations and to the purport in said mortgage mentioned, and the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company did afterwards negotiate said bonds to bona-fide holders thereof, the same being negotiable by delivery, and the said bonds or most of them are now outstanding, and are valid claims against said company, and valid liens against and upon the property and income and assets of said company.

That the holders of said bonds and of the interest thereon unpaid by said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company are entitled by reason of the premises to payment of said interest, as well as of the principal thereof, out of the premises, and the income thereof so conveyed to your orator, and to Palmer and Hallett aforesaid, in trust for the holders of said bonds, and have, by virtue of said conveyance in trust, the elder and prior and paramount lien on said premises, and the income thereof, and are entitled to payment out of the same in preference to any and all other claims against said company, arising in any manner whatsoever.

That in and by the third paragraph of the mortgage above referred to it is provided, in reference to the lands conveyed as security for the bondholders, as follows:

"The said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett shall at once have possession and control of the lands donated by act of Congress, and set forth in the before-mentioned certificate of the Secretary of the Interior, dated February 4, 1853, for 1,156,658 $\frac{2}{100}$ acres, and any other lands that may be obtained for the said company by the present or by future act of Congress, with authority to devise and determine rules of management of sales, of investing the net proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking-fund for the redemption or payment of said bonds."

And it is further provided in said mortgage that the party of the second part, themselves or regularly constituted attorney, are hereby 1013 invested with authority to issue proper and sufficient deeds and muniments of title.

That on or about the first day of February, 1861, the directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company applied to and requested your orator, notwithstanding and in defiance of the aforesaid provision of the mortgage, to sign, execute, and deliver deeds of the lands conveyed by said mortgage in trust as aforesaid for the benefit of the bondholders, without tendering or in any way offering to your orator any consideration or equivalent for such proposed deeds; and the said directors furthermore requested your orator to permit the said directors to have and to exercise complete power and control over the said lands, in contravention of the terms of the mortgage conveying the title and possession thereof for the benefit of the first-mortgage bondholders of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to your orator and his co-trustees.

That your orator refused to execute or deliver the proposed deeds unless he received proportionate amounts of bonds or money in consideration therefor, according to the tenor of the mortgage above set forth, or to confer upon the directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company any power over said lands which was by the said mortgage devolved upon him in trust for the equitable mortgagees.

And your orator further shows and avers that his co-trustees, John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett, both deceased on or about the first day of January, 1861, and left your orator, Morris Ketchum, the sole surviving trustee of the first mortgage of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad above described. That it is provided as follows by the mortgage to your orator above described: "And it is further covenanted and agreed between the said parties that if either of them, the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, shall, at any time or times hereafter die, or become from any cause incapable of acting in the premises, or resign his office under these presents, then the said company and the said Ketchum, Palmer, 1013½ and Hallett, or either of them, may select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and shall thereupon make, execute, and deliver all and singular such other and further instruments or assurances as may be necessary to enable such person or persons so selected to act in the execution of these presents. But until such selection of some person or persons to fill such vacancy or vacancies, and the execution of the papers requisite to enable him or them to act, the act or acts of the other shall, notwithstanding such vacancy, be in all respects legal and valid.

That to your orator's best remembrance and belief, after the death of his co-trustees aforesaid, your orator offered the directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to comply with the terms of the mortgage aforesaid, in reference to the appointment of new trustees, and made every effort on his own behalf, and with the said directors, to prevail upon them to conform to the requirements of the mortgage, and to fill the vacancies in the board of trustees thereof.

That your orator submitted to said directors the forms used in like circumstances by your orator and the other trustees of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, both in reference to the release of lands in the mortgage hereinbefore referred to, as well as to the appointment of trustees, and the proceedings under which has been highly advantageous to the bondholders of said Illinois Central Railroad Company, who had been paid in full, and urged that the spirit and letter of the mortgage should be complied with, by appointing a resident of New York and a resident of Mobile to the vacancies in the said trust, according to the residences of the original trustees then deceased.

That the board of directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company persistently refused to execute the said trust in reference to the appointment of successors to the two original trustees aforesaid, unless 1014 your orator would surrender the rights of his cestui que trust in the lands belonging to them as aforesaid, or would appoint new trustees who would so violate their trusts. That your orator declined to accede to the above terms, or any of them, and the said vacancies in the said board of trustees have remained unfilled to the present day, and your orator still remained and now remains the sole surviving trustee of the mortgage aforesaid.

That your orator is informed that soon after the matters just above recited had transpired, and on or about the fifth day of December, 1861, and nearly nine months after the State of Alabama had adopted an ordinance of secession from the United States, and several months after the commencement and existence of armed hostilities between the so called Confederate States, of which the State of Alabama formed a part, and the United States, and long after all intercourse with the said Confederate States and the said State of Alabama had been prohibited by law to the citizens of the United States and of the State of New York, where your orator then resided, and to the government of which he owed allegiance, the directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company applied to a court of chancery then sitting in the said Confederate States, so called, and within the territory of the State of Alabama, for an order declaring the removal of your orator from the trusteeship of the first mortgage aforesaid.

That your orator is likewise informed that the proceeding in which his removal was sought averred, as its foundation, that your orator was "a citizen of New York, and an alien enemy to the Confederate States" aforesaid.

And your orator further shows to your honors that he never heard of, or in any way had any knowledge of, the said pretended proceeding to divest him of his property as trustee as aforesaid, until after the termination of armed hostilities between the said Confederate States and State of Alabama, and the United States, in the year 1865.

1015 That notwithstanding your orator was in entire ignorance of the said pretended proceeding, and was prevented by force and prohibited by law from appearing and responding thereto, and on the above account could not and did not appear or respond thereto, a certain order or decree was obtained therein, on or about the seventh day of April, 1864, as your orator is informed, purporting to remove your orator from the said trust, and deprive him of the estate aforesaid, in his absence, both in person and by attorney, and while he was ignorant that any such proceedings were instituted or pending, and on the sole ground that he was "a citizen of New York, and an alien enemy to the Confederate States."

And your orator charges that the said proceedings of said court of chancery were and are entirely null and void, and without jurisdiction to divert the title of a citizen of the United States, residing in the State of New York, during the pendency of hostilities between said State of New York and the political authorities of the territory where such court was sitting, and no notice of which was brought to the knowledge of your orator, and the ground of which was loyalty of your orator to the lawful authority and government of the territory where the said court was sitting.

That on or about the first day of April, 1875, certain William B. Duncan and Andrew F. Elliott were engaged in conducting the business of Duncan, Sherman & Co., which firm had conducted and were then engaged in conducting certain financial transactions with the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company. That the said Duncan and Elliott were directors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company in the month of April, 1875, and the said Duncan represented the stockholders as the president of said company. That the said Duncan procured a certain Charles Walsh, who had been named as trustee under the pretended decree aforesaid, to present a form of resignation. That said Duncan soon thereafter procured said Walsh to withdraw said resignation, and the same was never accepted.

1016 That notwithstanding the said resignation had no validity, the said Duncan procured the said letter of resignation of Walsh to be exhibited to G. H. Young and A. Jackson, who had also been named trustees under the invalid decree above mentioned, with a request that they would likewise resign, and thereupon the said Young and Jackson did formally resign. That immediately thereafter, and notwithstanding the pretence to said Young and Jackson that said Walsh had resigned, whereby their resignations had been procured, the said Duncan procured the said Walsh to act as a trustee, and to appoint himself, the said Duncan, and his associate in business, the said Elliott, trustees. in the place and stead of said Walsh, Young and Jackson. That the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company claimed to exercise the joint power of appointment with said Walsh, and said Elliott being then a director of said company, and the said Duncan its president, and a large stockholder thereof, and the said Duncan representing the unsecured and floating claims of Alexander Duncan, his father, which claims are in direct hostility to the rights of the first-mortgage bondholders, as hereinafter set forth, they, the said Elliott and Duncan, pretending to represent the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, promptly concurred in the said pretended appointment of themselves as such pretended trustees.

That your orator has entirely disregarded and ignored the aforesaid pretended invalid and void proceedings of said tribunal sitting under the authority of the Confederate States, whereby the property of your orator, as a loyal citizen of the United States, was attempted to be taken from him without notice or jurisdiction, and on the specific ground that he was performing his duty as a loyal citizen of the United States and an alien enemy of the Confederate States. And your orator has likewise disregarded and ignored all the subsequent proceedings of the parties aforesaid pretending to act under said void and unlawful decree, as well the proceedings of said Walsh, Jackson and Young, as 1017 of their pretended successors, the said Duncan and Elliott.

That your orator has always and continuously, from the time of his appointment as an original trustee under said mortgage down to the present time, continued to act as such trustee, and performed the duties of the said office, and has acted with and connected with his cestuis que trust, during all said time, for the protection of the rights of the bondholders.

That he has not in the slightest manner abandoned his trust, if such abandonment there could be, but, on the contrary, the directors of said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company have unlawfully and persistently endeavored to abandon the trusteeship of your orator, for the purpose of carrying out the fraudulent and improper designs upon the trust property as hereinbefore and hereinafter set forth.

That after the said William B. Duncan and Andrew F. Elliott had intruded themselves into the trusteeship as aforesaid, and, under color of the void and fraudulent proceedings above recited, had filed a bill of complaint in this court, and been appointed, and taken possession as receivers of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, though representing the fraudulent claims of Alexander Duncan and others, as hereinafter set forth, your orator deemed it prudent and advisable to wait the expiration of the three months' limitation provided in the mortgage, and then and thereafter has been diligently engaged in consulting with his cestuis que trust, the bondholders, and with his counsel, and in preparing his proceedings for the protection of the property of the bondholders and the execution of the trusts devolved upon him.

And your orator further shows and avers that the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company has failed to pay the interest on any of said first-mortgage bonds which fell due on the first day of May, 1875, and the interest on any of said bonds which has fallen due since the date 1018 last mentioned, | and all of said interest so due and in default still remain wholly due and unpaid, though the same has been duly demanded, and has remained so due and unpaid more than three months after it became due and payable, and that the amount now overdue and payable for interest on the first-morgage bonds exceeds the sum of $338,000.

That the holders of the bonds secured to be paid by the mortgage above referred to are very numerous, and are in great part unknown to your orator, and your orator avers that the number of said holders is so great that it is impracticable to make them parties to this suit. That your orator has been requested by a number of the holders of said bonds, owning bonds to a large aggregate amount, to institute these proceedings upon the default in the payment of interest aforesaid.

And your orator further shows that the said railroad company, by the terms of its charter, and the laws of the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, before and at the time of the execution and delivery of said conveyance to you orator and his co-trustees as aforesaid, was authorized and had full and competent power and authority to construct, maintain, and operate a railroad from the city of Mobile, in the State of Alabama, through the several counties in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, mentioned in the mortgage herein, to the Ohio River, in the State of Kentucky, and that at the time said conveyance was made and delivered to your orator, and the co-trustees aforesaid, said company was actively engaged in the business of building said railroad so far as the same had not been previously constructed, and in operating the same so far as then completed, and that said company now has in operation its said railroad from Mobile, in the State of Alabama, to Columbus, in the State of Kentucky, with certain branches and leased lines, and with a large amount of rolling stock necessarily used in said business, and supplies and tools and implements of all descriptions.

1019 And your orator further avers, that the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company likewise executed a second mortgage of the premises and property secured by the first mortgage aforesaid, of which William D. Dunn, George H. Young, and William Dickson, hereinbefore named, are trustees for the holders of certain bonds, which have been issued and are now outstanding in whole or in part, and that the said mortgage created a second and subordinate lien upon the property mortgaged to secure the bonds represented by your orator.

And your orator also avers that the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company also executed several other mortgages, some of which are valid and some invalid, and all of which are subordinate and inferior liens to your orator's mortgage, and purport to be such inferior liens, and none of the trustees of said mortgages can be herein joined without ousting the jurisdiction of this court.

And your orator alleges that the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company is largely indebted, otherwise than is hereinbefore stated, to a large number of persons, and is greatly embarrassed in its business and affairs, and is, in fact, utterly insolvent and unable to pay its debts and meet its engagements.

And your orator is likewise informed and verily believes, and therefore avers, that notwithstanding the payment of the coupons of the first mortgaged bonds, which fell due on the first day of November, 1874, and the first day of May, 1874, and the first day of November, 1873, by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in the ordinary and accustomed manner in which said coupons had been theretofore paid, it is claimed and set up by the directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company that on the first day of January, 1875, there remained outstanding coupons matured and unpaid to the amount of (\$735,415$\frac{32}{100}$) seven hundred and thirty-five thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars and thirty-two cents.

And your orator is informed and believes that the said coupons so claimed to be matured and outstanding are the same coupons which were presented by the holders thereof to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and by it received and presumably cancelled.

1020 That the said coupons were not cancelled, as of right they should have been, but were but were by the then president of the company, and by William B. Duncan, and the directors thereof, delivered to Alexander Duncan, the father of the said William B. Duncan, and other persons, as pretended security for certain claims of said Alexander Duncan and others upon said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; that the said coupons are still in the possession of said Alexander Duncan and other persons, and are claimed by them to constitute a subsisting first prior and paramount lien upon the property conveyed to your orator in trust, as aforesaid. And your orator is informed and believes that the said Alexander Duncan and others claim and pretend, and will endeavor to use said coupons, which have been paid, and should be of right canceled, to bid for and obtain control of and title to the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company upon the sale thereof by foreclosure under your orator's mortgage.

And your orator further shows, that in and by the mortgage hereinbefore described, and in addition to the other property therein conveyed to secure the holders of the first-mortgage bonds aforesaid, all the tolls, incomes, issues, and profits of said property and of the railroad hereinbefore described were mortgaged to your orator in trust for the bondholders aforesaid, to secure the payment of the interest and principal of their bonds. That the net income of the mortgaged estate is represented by Duncan & Elliott aforesaid to be only about thirty-eight thousand dollars for the six months preceding December 1st, 1875, while the annual interest payable on the bonds of which your orator is trustee is $360,000 per annum.

1021 That ever since the failure to pay the interest on the said bonds, the tolls and income of the said company have exceeded the expenses of operating the same, and large sums of money have properly accrued, as your orator is informed and believes, as net profits from the income and tolls of said railroad; but even the said tolls and income, such as they are, have not been applied to the payment of the interest or any part thereof upon the said bonds, and will not be so applied unless this honorable court intervenes in the premises, for the protection of the holders of said bonds, by the appointment of proper persons as receivers of said property and its tolls and incomes.

And your orator further shows unto your honors that all the property so conveyed to him and his co-trustees, and now vested in him as aforesaid, as surviving trustee, in trust for the holders of the bonds hereinbefore described, as well as that which was subsequently acquired by said company, together with all the corporate rights, privileges, and franchises of said company, and the tolls, rents, incomes, issues, and profits of the railroad above described, and the lands, claims, and demands of said company, are held and bound by said first mortgage first above set forth, for the payment of the bonds and coupons lawfully remaining unpaid as aforesaid, and they have priority over every other demand and claim whatsover in the premises.

And your orator likewise shows that he is totally remediless to enforce the said claims and liens at law, and without the intervention of and process of a court of equity.

In consideration of all the foregoing matters your orator prays process of subpœna against the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and against the said William D. Dunn, George H. Young and W'm Dickson, and against W. B. Duncan and A. F. Elliott as receivers, commanding them and each of them to appear and answer this your orator's bill of complaint.

1022 And to the end that the said defendant, the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, may, if it can, show why your orator should not have the relief hereby prayed, and may upon its knowledge and remembrance, full, true, direct and perfect answer make to such of the several interrogatories hereinafter numbered and set forth under its corporate seal, to wit:

I. Whether it did not, as hereinbefore charged, make, execute, and deliver to your orator and John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett the mortgage with the conditions and powers hereinabove mentioned.

II. Whether it did not make and negotiate its bonds and secure the payment thereof as hereinbefore set forth by said mortgage.

III. Whether the said bonds are not outstanding and unpaid, and the interest which became due theron, as hereinbefore alleged, does not remain unpaid or otherwise.

IV. Whether the said John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett are not deceased.

V. Whether it did not make application to a court sitting in Alabama during the existence of armed hostilities between the governments then styled the Confederate States and the State of Alabama, and the United States, and while your orator was residing in the State of New York, for the removal of your orator from the trusteeship of the first mortgage of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, upon the ground that your orator was a citizen of New York, and an alien enemy of the Confederate States, and did not thereupon obtain some order of such court purporting to remove your orator from the office of trustee aforesaid, upon the sole ground of his being an alien enemy to the Confederate States.

1023 VI. Whether the interest coupons of its first-mortgage bonds which became due before the first day of May, 1875, were not paid by it, and the said coupons surrendered to it.

And whether said coupons paid by it before the first day of May, 1875, were not afterwards delivered by it to Alexander Duncan and other parties, or to William B. Duncan for Alexander Duncan, and such other parties, or to some other person for them.

And whether said coupons are not now out of the possession and control of it, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, to the amount of $700,000 or thereabouts.

VII. Whether it is not destitute of the means of paying the overdue interest on the coupons of its first-mortgage bonds which fell due on the first day of May, 1875, and thereafter, and its affairs embarrassed as stated. And whether its property is not inadequate to pay its debts and liabilities.

And as to such of the defendants who may be out of the jurisdiction of this court your orator prays that process may be issued to make them parties, and compel them to appear and answer this bill of complaint, if they should come within such jurisdiction; and if not, such proceeding may be had in regard to such defendants, by publication or otherwise, as may be according to the forms of the statute in such case made and provided.

And your orator prays your honors to make such interlocutory and final orders, and orders of injunction, and decrees, and restraining orders as may be necessary to keep and sustain said railroad and its appurtenances in proper repairs, order, and condition for use, and to have the same used and operated until it can be sold and disposed of, for the benefit of the bondholders, and in the mean time the incomes and profits thereof paid, appropriated, and applied, according to the true meaning, purpose, and intent of the mortgage hereinbefore described.

1024 And until the final hearing of this cause can be had, and said mortgaged premises may be sold and disposed of for the benefit of the bondholders, and in the mean time be preserved and taken care of, and said railroad of said company operated, and the business of said company prosecuted and carried on to the best advantage of the holders of the bonds secured by the mortgage above described, and the incomes and tolls of the said railroad applied according to the tenor of the said mortgage and the rules of a court of equity, your orator prays that your honorable court appoint a receiver or receivers of all the property hereinbefore described, with such powers as may be adequate for such purposes, or may place your orator in possession of said mortgaged estate, under the terms of the conveyance to him.

And to ascertain, fix, and determine what amount is due and owing by said railroad company, for principal and interest upon its bonds issued by said railroad company, and secured by the first mortgage herein mentioned, and what is otherwise due and owing by said company, that an account may be made, taken, and stated before a master to be appointed by this court, of all the debts of said company, with power to report on the priorities of liens or said property, according to the course and practice of a court of equity.

And to the end that the said property may be applied to the satisfaction of the said liens and debts according to their lawful claims, that it may be ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the said railroad, its appurtenances, rolling stock, lands, franchises, rights, credits, and effects, and all the lands of the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company conveyed by said mortgage be sold, and the proceeds of said sale distributed among the holders of the said bonds, according to their respective rights, and as shall be found to be proper in a due and lawful execution of the trust to be executed by your orator.

1025 And on the final hearing and pendente lite, may it please your honors to grant your orator such other and further and different relief as may be equitable in the premises.

And your orator also prays this honorable court of equity, that it may instruct and direct your orator in the execution of his trust hereinbefore set forth, and for said purpose your orator herewith submits his said trust to this court.

And your orator will ever pray, &c.

Deed of trust.

This indenture, made this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, of the first part, and Morris Ketchum and John J. Palmer, of the city of New York and State of New York, and William R. Hallett, of the city of Mobile and State of Alabama, of the second part,

Witnesseth, whereas the legislature of the State of Alabama passed an act of incorporation, approved the third day of February, 1848, creating certain associates therein named, and their survivors, a body politic and corporate, by the name of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and by that name to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, to make and have a common seal, and the same break, alter, and renew at pleasure; vested with all powers, privileges, and immunities which are or may be necessary to carry into effect its purposes and objects; authorized and empowered to locate, con- 1027 struct, and finally complete a single, double, or treble railroad or way, from some suitable point in the city of Mobile, in a western or northwesterly direction to the mouth of the Ohio River, in such route as shall be deemed most expedient, and to transport, take, and carry property and persons upon said railroad or way, by the power and force of steam, of animals, or of any other mechanical or other power, or any combination of them which said company may choose to apply; and, for the purpose of constructing said railroad or way, the said company is authorized to lay out the road not exceeding one hundred feet wide through the whole length; and for the purposes of depots, cuttings, and embankments, and for the purpose of necessary turnouts, and for obtaining stone and gravel, may take as much more land as may be necessary for the construction and security of said road, with permission to make any lawful contract with any other railroad corporation in relation to the business of said company, and also to make joint stock with any other railroad corporation. Further, the State of Mississippi incorporated the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by act of its legislature approved the seventeenth day of February, 1848; the State of Tennessee did also incorporate said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by act of the legislature approved the twentieth day of February, 1848; and also the State of Kentucky invested said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company with corporate rights, by an act of its legislature approved the twenty-sixth day of February, 1848, constituting the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company a full and complete corporation through the said State, authorized to purchase, hold, and dispose of real and personal estate; to borrow money; to make contracts for the loan of money; and to give evidence of debt and securities for the payment of the same, by pledge, mortgage, or otherwise, as it shall deem necessary and proper.

And whereas said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in pursuance of the authorities vested by said charters, have surveyed and located the line of said road from the city of Mobile to or near the junction of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, secured the rights of way, obtained depot grounds and valuable assets, all of which are of record in the records of said company, and of record in the counties intersected.

And whereas the said roadway is under contract for the complete work of the road-bed from its respective termini, and in progress of construction, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, parties of the first part, resolved by vote of the board of directors, and in 1028 pursuance of the power and authority in said company vested, to raise a sum of money not exceeding six millions of dollars for the purpose of completing said road, viz, the purchase of the iron and laying the same, the necessary turnouts, depots, and equipments; and for the purpose to execute, issue, sell, and transfer the bonds of said company, in sums of two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling each, of even date with these presents, payable in thirty years from date, each with coupons attached for interest, payable semi-annually; each coupon being for £6 15s. sterling; both the principal and coupons, and interest on said bonds, until paid, payable at the counting-house of George Peabody & Co., bankers, in London, England, each of said sterling bonds being the same as one thousand dollars, money of the United States of America, and not exceeding six thousand bonds, each to be numbered respectively from number one to six thousand inclusive, and for security for the payment of said bonds to transfer to the said parties of the second part, all and singular, all the rights and franchises of said company, together with all its personal property of a fixed character, real estate, including its depots, warehouses, lots in town and country, and especially all lands donated by act of Congress, under date of the twentieth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, transferred in fee simple to the said company, party of the first part, by act of the legislature of the State of Alabama, approved December first, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one; by act of the legislature of Mississippi, approved January twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two; said lands having been duly selected, set apart, and confirmed to said railroad company, party of the first part, and designated by described tracts, as will appear by the act of the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, certified, affirmed, and ratified by the act of the honorable the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, one of the executive departments of the Government of the United States of America, dated Washington, D. C., February the fourth, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.

Now, therefore, this indenture further witnesseth that the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, the better to secure the payment of said bonds and every part thereof, with interest, according to the tenor thereof, and in consideration of the sum of five dollars unto the said company, well and truly paid by the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallet, at or before the ensealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof 1029 is hereby acknowledged, have granted, transferred, set over, and conveyed, and by these presents do grant, transfer, set over, and convey unto the said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett, the survivors or successors of them, in fee simple, all and singular of the rights and privileges of every name and kind as hereinafter set forth, being the first and only conveyance of title, grant, or mortgage, hereby guaranteeing and warranting the described items, assets, and real estate free from all liens or incumbrances done or suffered to be done by the said party of the first part.

The said items as set forth are as follows: All the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad lying between its respective termini, constructed and to be constructed, together with all and singular the railways, rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned, and which may hereafter be owned, by said company, including the said lands donated by act of Congress hereinbefore referred to, and which reference is to be taken as a full and correct description of the lands derived from Congress, amounting, as by the certificate of the Department of the Interior, to 419,528 56-100 acres in the State Alabama; to 737,130 36-100 acres in the State of Mississippi—total 1,156,658 92-100 acres; saving and excepting therefrom so much as lies in township four south, range one west, of lands subject to entry in the S't Stephen's land office, Alabama, being 692 78-100 acres, more or less; saving and excepting also the lots and tracts in the county of Mobile, State of Alabama, outside of the line of the railway, outside of its depots, and outside of the corporate limits of the city of Mobile, being lots and lands derived by private purchase not yet fully paid for, and not included in the list of lands in Mobile County derived under and by the act of Congress; and saving and reserving the rights and liens that may attach to the roadway and construction thereon in favor of the State of Tennessee, which will exist and attach as a prior lien by statute of that said State in the event of said State aiding in the construction of so much of the roadway as lies in said State, viz, one hundred and eighteen miles, which aid is provided for by law of that State, and, if used by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad, the said prior lien in favor of said State will be to the extent of said State aid, not exceeding ten thousand dollars per mile. To have and to hold the said premises hereinbefore set forth to the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, their survivors or successors, for the benefit, security, and advantage of the person or persons, or corporations, or any other party who shall or may be holders 1030 of the before-described bonds, or any of them, conditioned as follows:

The said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett shall at once have possession and control of the lands donated by act of Congress, and set forth in the before-mentioned certificate of the Secretary of the Interior of February fourth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, for 1,156,658 92-100 acres, and any other lands that may be obtained for the said company by the present or by future acts of Congress, with authority to devise and determine rules of management, of sale, of investing the net proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking fund for the redemption or payment of said bonds; said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett rendering an exhibit and account of their doings on or before the first days of January of each and every year during the period of the trust herein made, to the said parties of the first part. The said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett shall have full authority to appoint an agent or agents to attend to said land business, who shall account for his or their doings to them, paying over to them all the proceeds of sales or rents, or profits derived from said lands. It is provided, however, that unless the said railroad company should be in default on any obligations connected with said bonds no sale of said lands shall be made, except by and with the advice and consent of said company. The said party of the second part, themselves, or regularly constituted attorney, are hereby vested with authority to issue proper and sufficient deeds of muniments of title. As to other items of assets of real estate, tolls, or income of said company, they are to remain in the possession or under the control of the said company, except the said company become in default for the payment of said bonds or interest, or any portion thereof; in such case the said party of the second part is hereby vested with full authority to take possession and control of all and singular the entire estate and properties of whatsoever name or kind, and hold the same for the benefit of any and all creditors, with such other action and disposition as shall be equitable to all concerned, provided the said party of the second part shall not claim to take such possession and control unless said company remains in default of payment of the said bonds or interest for the space of three months after being due and payable.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company further covenant and agree to make to said party of the second part, their survivors or successors, any further assurance or instrument as may be necessary at any future time to carry out the equitable intentions of this deed; and the 1031 said company, for themselves, their successors, and assigns, do hereby covenant and agree with the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or their successors, in behalf of the bondholders, that the money received on the said bonds shall be applied in good faith, on the construction and completion of said road, and putting the same into operation.

And on the failure of the said company to do and perform any and all the covenants herein agreed, the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or survivors or successors, upon the request in writing of any one or more of the bondholders, may and shall take actual possession of all said railroad, and the other property and effects of said company hereby conveyed, transferred, and assigned, or so intended to be, and through the agency of such person or persons as they may from time to time appoint, may receive and collect the tolls, incomes, and profits of the same, for the purpose of the security hereinbefore declared, and may sell and dispose of the said road and other property hereby mortgaged, conveyed, or assigned, or so intended to be, and all benefit and equity of redemption of the said company therein, always with the benefit of franchise, and subject to the conditions thereof, at public auction, giving reasonable public notice of the time and place of sale, and as the attorney or attorneys of the said company for that purpose, by these presents duly constituted, to make and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance for the real estate, in fee-simple or otherwise, according to the title of said company therein, and good and proper transfer and assignment of the personal property, and out of the money arising either from the income or profits of the said road, and other mortgaged, conveyed, or assigned property or effects of the sale thereof, after deducting the expenses incurred in carrying on the business of the road, and in keeping the same in repair, together with the costs, charges, and counsel fees incurred in their proceedings, and a reasonable compensation to themselves for their services; in case of such sale, to apply so much of the residue as may be necessary to pay the principal and interest which may be due on said bonds issued as aforesaid, rendering the balance of said moneys, if any shall remain, to said company. And the sale so made shall be a perpetual bar against the said parties of the first part, and the persons claiming by, from, or under them. Provided, however, and it is hereby expressly understood and agreed, that neither of them, the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or their successors or assigns, shall in no manner be liable or responsible for any act of the other to which he does not expressly 1032 assent, and that they shall be accountable only for the exercise of reasonable care and diligence in their management in the premises.

And it is further covenanted and agreed between the said parties that if either of them, the said Ketchum, Palmer, or Hallett, shall at any time or times hereafter die, or become from any cause incapable of acting in the premises, or resign his office under these presents, then the said company and the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, or either of them, may select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and shall thereupon make, execute, and deliver all and singular such other and further instruments or assurances as may be necessary to enable such person or persons so selected to act in the execution of these presents. But until such selection of some person or persons to fill such vacancy or vacancies, and the execution of the papers requisite to enable him or them to act, the act or acts of the other shall, notwithstanding such vacancy, be in all respects legal and valid. And it is expressly understood that the conveyance made by this indenture is only on and for the present rights, interest, and property, and in the future to be acquired rights, interest, and property, and appurtenances of the parties of the first part as do or may exist on the line of said railroad from the city of Mobile to the mouth of the Ohio River. And it is hereby further provided, and these presents are upon the express condition, that upon the payment or satisfaction of the principal and interest of the aforesaid bonds, the estate hereby granted and conveyed to Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, their survivors or successors, and the property and effects mortgaged, conveyed, or transferred to them, shall cease and become void; and the said company shall thereupon be fully and immediately reinvested with the same both in law and equity, and in fact, without any entry or other act whatever.

In witness whereof the parties of the first part have caused these presents to be acknowledged by their president, and attested to in their behalf by their president and secretary, and their common seal 1033 thereunto affixed; and the said parties of the second part hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

MORRIS KETCHUM
vs.
MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD CO. ET ALS.

Comes William Butler Duncan, who, being duly sworn, on his oath saith:

He does not admit that complainant is the trustee of the first mortgage sterling bonds of the Mobile & Ohio R. R. Co.—said Ketchum was one of the parties originally appointed trustees in said deed. Deponent, on information which he believes to be true, states that said Ketchum did not faithfully perform the duties of the trust, but neglected the same and sought to use his powers as trustee to his private advantage; refused, upon the death of his co-trustees, to unite with said company in the appointment of proper successors, and demanded conditions of the company which were dangerous to the trust and injurious to the company and the trust property.

The said company then sought his removal from said trust, by bill in the court of chancery at Mobile, for good causes alleged in the bill and in the mode pointed out by the laws of Alabama; copies of the letters from the president of the company to M. Ketchum and M'r O. S. Beers, then auditor of the R. R. Co., which were furnished to counsel with instructions to file the bill, are herewith produced (A B). Upon said bill a decree was rendered removing said Ketchum and appointing new trustees, to wit, Charles Walsh, George H. Young, and Alexander 1047 Jackson, in the room and stead of said Ketchum and the deceased trustees; a full and not a partial copy of the record of said course and proceedings will be produced herewith. No appeal has ever been taken from said decree, and no proceedings have been had to vacate or in any manner quailify said decree, and deponent is advised that the same remains and is a valid and binding decree.

Said new trustees accepted the trust, performed the duties thereof, as valid and lawful trustees, without question or challenge by said Ketchum or any person whatever, till their resignation in April, 1875, when deponent and A. Foster Elliott were appointed trustees under said mortgage and deed of trust, by the then continuing trustee and the said corporation, in the mode and manner prescribed by said deed, and have executed the duties of the trust, with right and title unassailed by any person, and not at all by Ketchum, till the filing of his bill in this cause on the 14th March, 1876.

The charges of collusion and deceit made in the bill, as to the mode in which respondent and his co-trustee were appointed, are untrue; they were regularly, in good faith and for honest purposes, and upon resignation, in good faith tendered and accepted, appointed to their present position of trustees.

It is not true that deponent and Elliott were or are partners in business in New York; M'r Elliott was not a member of that firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and had no interest in its capital, profits, or business.

It is not true that the only ground alleged by the corporation for the removal of Ketchum from the trusteeship was the charge of his being an alien enemy to the Confederate States. Good causes for his removal existed in his own conduct with regard to the trust property.

Said Ketchum has at no time since the conclusion of the late war, and while the courts and the country have been fully open to him, in any manner whatever asserted his rights as trustee under said mortgage. 1048 He has performed none of the duties of the trust; he has not offered to perform any of them, has not sought to perform them and has, in fact, as this deponent is informed and verily believes made no communication or application on the subject to said R. R. company or any officer thereof, or to the said above-named trustees or any of them. He has taken no step, and has done no act of any kind whatever, in the nature of a single duty under said trust; said Ketchum, in plain fact, during all this time has abandoned the said trusteeship, and so far as he was concerned, has allowed the whole business to shift for itself, without any care or consideration extended to it by him.

This respondent is informed by the deposition of said Ketchum on file in this court, that said Ketchum is not the holder of any bonds of said corporation, or of its stock, so that this deponent saith that said Ketchum has no interest in this suit and trust fund either as trustee or beneficiary.

This deponent saith that, under the powers of the deed, with the assent of the corporation, and on the request of holders of coupons and first-mortgage bonds of said company, in May, 1875, he and his co-trustee took possession of all the property embraced in said mortgage, and have been in possession ever since. That by reason of the nature of the property, its location in four States, and the different liens thereon by mortgages of different dates, and judgments against the company, and the existence of debts of almost every conceivable variety of form, the trustees found themselves in absolute need of the instructions and protection of the courts having jurisdiction over the property, said trustees with the approval of the corporation and of many of the holders of the bonds secured by said mortgage, made that application by bills in equity to the several courts and for the security of all parties, offered to account as receivers, and under such sanction as the court might direct. Such orders have been made, and are part of the records 1049 of this court, and under them this deponent and his associate has been acting, they have filed reports and accounts as directed by the court, these accounts and reports are now under orders of this in process of examination by a master regularly appointed for that purpose.

This deponent denies all collusion in obtaining these orders; they were all obtained on notice to the parties of record, all the parties whom said trustees and receivers could put upon the record. No information has been withheld from persons entitled to knowledge and sought it. The best skill that could be obtained has been secured, and is now busy about the management of the trust property; the utmost economy has been used in the business thus confided to this deponent and his associate. Deponent attaches hereto a letter he addressed to some enquirers, bondholders, and shown to others, and which by their request has been published.

Deponent with this also presents to the court the written approval of a large number of bondholders, and a letter of approval by the agent of the English holders such as could be gathered at the short notice allowed to deponent.

This deponent denies all charges of mis-appropriation of the moneys of the trust; he denies all favoritism to any party or any class of creditors, and that he is seeking the advantage of any party or class. All charges and insinuations of that character he denounces as untrue and false, and known to be so by the parties making them.

The statements of the complainant as to the coupons due in May and November, 1874, are not true; said coupons were not paid by the company nor by deponent or his firm, or by any other person for the company; they were not, after payment, delivered to Alexander Duncan or any other person; they were never paid by or for the R. R. Co. at all. They were not payable in New York but in London, and those with a special agreement thereon at Mobile.

1050 The company knew they could not meet their interest in May, and applied to the firm of deponent to purchase the coupons for that month and retain them. Said firm agreed to do so; the directors of the company being sanguine that their business, then greatly depressed, would revive, and that a little time only was needed to enable them to redeem the coupons so purchased. To effect this, Duncan, Sherman & Co. purchased said coupons, and afterwards borrowed the money so used from Alexander Duncan and others, mainly from M'r Duncan, and subsequently transferred the coupons to them. The same hopefulness existed in the directors as to the interest falling due in November, 1874, and the same arrangements were made regarding them. Neither the coupons for May and November, 1874, were paid by the company at all, nor were they dealt with in the usual manner. At Mobile, after being verified as correct, they were returned by the treasurer of the company to the holder with the information that the Bank of Mobile would advance the value of them. At London those for May were purchased by the Union Bank of London, correspondents of Duncan, Sherman & Co., who charged the costs thereof to the account of that firm and remitted to them the coupons uncanceled. Those for November were purchased by the Credit Foncier of London, in like manner. Some were purchased by deponent's firm in New York, but usually at a discount for trouble of remittance and collection, and no attempt was made to mislead the holder, and any statement to the contrary is false. All said coupons for May and November, 1874, purchased by or for Duncan, Sherman & Co., Alexander Duncan, or any other party now the holder of the same, were afterwards presented to the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and payment demanded, which was refused.

Deponent cannot answer what knowledge complainant had of the matter. He doubts if he had any knowledge, and verily believes 1051 he took no interest in the matter, and now puts the gloss he applies to the transaction not on any knowledge at all, but at the suggestion of parties hostile to deponent and whose course is not dictated by regard for the bondholders, but to advance selfish schemes in the possession and management of this trust fund. But whether he knew or not, the fact that these coupons had not been paid by the railroad company, but now still outstanding, was distinctly stated in the last annual report to the stockholders at the annual meeting in April, 1875, and which was immediately thereafter published and extensively circulated among all persons interested. Deponent repeats that said coupons were not paid by the railroad company, nor by any moneys of the company, either owned by or loaned to the company; they were purchased at the request and from friendly regard to the company and by means in which the company had no interest and by independent parties, with the design not to press payment then, but holding them with all rights and liens belonging to them for their security, that the railroad company might have a reasonable time to recover its business and pay them off. Any other representation of the purchase of these May and November coupons, 1874, is entirely untrue, and as made in complainant's affidavit is false.

If it is intended, as seems from these statements of complainant, to charge these parties with the intention to pay this claim at the expense of holders of prior claims, or to use the trust power in their hands for that purpose, it is false.

The claims of the holders of these coupons has been brought to the attention of the court and the merits of these and all other claims upon the trust property in the hands of the trustees has been referred to the master for his examination and report. Deponent has been advised that such course was his duty, and he has cheerfully submitted this with all other questions of rights and priorities to the decision of the court, and will as cheerfully obey its instructions.

1052 Further, deponent admits that unsecured claims alleged to be for money, supplies, and materials have been presented to the trustees and pressed upon them. It is equally true that these claims have not been recognized by them. They have submitted the rights claimed to the court for its direction and instruction. The court has referred the facts for investigation to the master, who has returned his report thereon, and upon which the court will doubtless at a proper time make its judgment. Deponent denies that the receivers and trustees have thereby done anything other than they should have done. Their duty is not to pay any claim not clearly right and as such within the orders of the court. They have not paid the claims thus complained of. Said claims stand now as unrecognized by these receivers as they have always stood. Receivers are in no way committed to them or their recognition as to them; they propose to do what the court may direct after learning the facts on which the claims are based and in view of the mortgages and liens, all of which are fully set out in the bill they have filed in the cause.

Deponent denies that in their conduct in this respect they have done other than their duty as receivers of the property, which they hold for the benefit of such parties as the court may find and decree to be entitled thereto.

The statement that deponent has been a dealer and speculator in floating claims against the company is false; it is false that he has misapplied moneys which were remitted for payment of interest to the payment of floating claims held by him or his firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., and which had been purchased at discount.

Deponent, nor his firm, nor any connection of them or either, was never engaged in such business, and neither he nor W'm D. Shipman for him, in his right, nor any other person for him, holds any such claim.

1053 Deponent did at sundry times, by himself or firm, advance money for the company or the trust prior to 26th July, 1875. The item of $9,740 mentioned in the supplemental affidavit of Ketchum is for money advanced to pay interest on bonds known as convertible. To this amount his firm is a creditor of the company, and it must share the fate of claims of its class after payment of the first and second mortgage debts; neither deponent, nor his firm, nor any person for them, has advanced any other claim for its payment.

The item of $16,429.23 is money advanced to pay for iron purchased for trustees, for the use of the road, and is an item for necessary disbursement in the business of the trust.

The item of $29,945.57 is for money paid to the Government of the United States for a judgment obtained by them in compromise of a claim of over $60,000 principal for duty on iron imported by the R. R. company, and for which suit was pending when the trustees took possession, and for which the United States claimed a lien on the iron in the track. This payment was a necessary disbursement by the trustees and made with the approval of the court.

The item of $20,000 in schedule bills discounted, mentioned in complainant's affidavit, represents an unsettled overdraft on deponent's firm. No portion of this has been paid by receivers, and the amount and merits of the claim remain to be settled under the orders of this court, with the class to which it belongs.

The item of $78,968.78 Walsh, Crawford & Co., is an unfortunate mercantile debt, in no way connected with claims against the R. R. company, and is introduced without reason into this matter, and for malicious motive and intent.

The claims above were not obtained on speculation by this deponent, nor were any others. They were all in legitimate business and are original claims and not acquired from third parties.

Any attempt to implicate deponent or his firm with the dealing 1054 in floating debt of the company, or to obtain payment of the same for themselves or friends, by any influence or opportunity as trustees or receivers, is without any foundation in fact.

Deponent has not sought, attempted or intended any such thing. He and his co-receiver have sought to obtain the instruction of the court, not to advance their own claims but in good faith for the performance of their whole duty as receivers of the court, and upon presentation of the facts. The virtuous criticism of complainant upon their course is not justified by the facts, and his judgment upon the bearing of the settlement if proper to be made upon the success of a future reorganization of the corporation, has about the same value.

The reduction of the floating debt from $1,166,492.19 in January, 1875, to $529,598 in May, 1875, is not correctly stated, but if made, as alleged in said affidavit, was made before deponent and Elliot became trustees of the property or had the right to the possession on default of the R. R. Comp'ny, and therefore the inference attempted to be made of neglect of duty, and misappropriation of trust funds is false. No such application of the income of the trust property was made by them, and the statement that a large proportion of said payments were made to Duncan, Sherman & Co., for floating debt held by them, is false.

Deponent denies that the conduct of himself and co-trustee and receiver, with regard to this floating debt, and the application of trust money, has been at all wrong or objectionable; he denies that any of the trust fund, which has been received by them, has been wasted, or in any manner misapplied. He denies that anything but the strictest integrity, has been practiced by them, about the business of the trust fund and property and the floating debt of the company.

He denies all the statements of improper conduct, with regard to the coupons due in May and November, 1874. He avers that in all their conduct in these particulars, and all others connected with this trust, 1055 that he and his associate Elliot have conducted themselves and business with fidelity, integrity and care, and that they have in all respects been loyal to the duties of their position, and the interests confided to them. He denies that there is in their past management any reasonable ground to allege any risk or damage of loss or injury to the property in their hands, or that there is any cause to fear such. He denies that their character or past conduct justifies any suspicion or fear of any malpractice or breach of trust on their part, or that they or either of them will do other than deal justly and faithfully with all the interests entrusted to them by the court. He denies that they are so interested in the lower securities of the company as to render them, or either of them unfit to be continued in the trusts and confidence heretofore reposed in them by the court, or that the commercial misfortunes of deponent have placed him in any such position of dependence as unfits him to execute the duties of receiver of the Mobile & Ohio R. R. Company. He has not neglected the duties of his office, but has given them his regular attention and has frequently at Mobile, whenever his personal presence has been required for any purpose whatever, and the same is true of his associate Elliot, who resides within six hours' run of the chief office of the company, where its general business is transacted. Deponent is frequently on the line of the road, and keeps himself carefully informed of all the matters of its business. The daily details are in the care of competent clerks and subordinates, and the general supervision of the traffic and business of the line, as a common carrier of freight and passengers, is in the charge of a trained, experienced and educated railroad engineer and manager, with whom deponent, when not present personally, is in daily and almost hourly intercourse by mail and telegraph. The accounting department is in the care of a thoroughly trained, educated and experienced railroad accountant, and de-1056 ponent with pride points to the fact that perfect discipline and order prevails among the employees of the company. The trains are run regularly and safely. The road has been gradually improved with the rolling and locomotive stock, and is being brought to a condition of great efficiency, so as to ensure the largest returns with the smallest outlay. All employees and contractors are regularly paid their just demands, and the dwellers along the line are generally satisfied with the business and workings of the road.

Deponent admits that he has met with commercial misfortunes, and as is not usually the fact in such cases, he has been subjected to many harsh and unjust charges and suspicious, and has been subjected to some annoying suits and legal proceedings.

He denies that he has failed in the performance of any duty or obligation upon him in any fiduciary capacity; on the contrary, he avers that he has faithfully met and performed all such obligations, and with pride refers to the judgment of his character and integrity which has been formed of him by men of high commercial and financial character, who express their approval of his appointment as receiver, and their protest against the change prayed for in this complainant's bill in the paper herewith produced to the court. For a more particular answer to the several allegations of complainant's affidavit as to deponent's private business and that of his firm, this deponent refers to and adopts his answer on file in this court to the petition of Georgie Warnes, and the affidavits and documents therewith filed as to the late refusal of the supreme court of New York, or one of its judges, to vacate an order of arrest against this deponent, as alleged in complainant's affidavit, this deponent states an appeal has been taken to the general term of that court, with the approval and concurrence of the judge who made the order, who desires the law of the case settled. The matter in controversy is less than $2,000, and deponent is contending for principle and to prevent unscrupulous process of blackmail upon him.

1057 This deponent and his co-receiver, Elliot, have invited the fullest investigation of their dealings with this trust property, and with the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, and of their accounts therewith, and the same has been ordered by the court, with directions to the master, if desired, to inspect all the books of account of the receivers.

This deponent thus offers the fullest security against peculation and misappropriation which can be given. All the books, vouchers, accounts, and reports in the possession of the receivers are now at the service of the master appointed by the court, for examination and investigation.

Deponent denies that any means of concealment or deception on the master have been reserved to himself and associate, and denies that he or his associate have anything to conceal, and denies there is any ground or reason why any change should be made in the receivership or management of this property. This deponent and his associate have given all the bonds required by the court; their sufficiency has not been assailed by the complainant, and cannot be so assailed.

This deponent further states that said Ketchum is not a fit person for either the trusteeship or receivership, as is abundantly shown by the allegations of the bill filed for his removal, a copy of which the complainant does not give, and by the protest of the bondholders herewith produced.

W. B. DUNCAN.

Sworn, &c.

NEW YORK, July 20th, 1860.

MORRIS KETCHUM, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: After fully considering the construction you seem to put on our deed of mortgage, and the exercise of power you claim as surviving trustee under it, it becomes my duty to reply and state the conclusions of my mind on the subject.

1058 The mortgage gives no power to the trustees to sell lands or control the proceeds of sales, unless the company make default in payment of interest or principal of the mortgage-bonds, or be guilty of some fraud or misapplication of the funds. The mortgage provides that the trustees shall have power to make sales and direct the application of the proceeds as a sinking fund, and appoint agents to superintend the same. But this power is only conferred in case of forfeiture, for it is expressly provided that until default in payment no sales of land can be made except by the consent of the company. When, therefore, sales take place before default, they must be made in accordance with the mutual consent and agreement of the company and trustees, acting together for the benefit of all parties interested in the fund. In giving this consent and making this agreement as to the manner and terms on which sales are to be made, and the mode of investing proceeds are of course to be arranged. This is the way in which it was done in the sales heretofore authorized, and is the only way in which sales can be legally made. But now Mess'rs Palmer and Hallett being gone, and you being the sole surviving trustee, you propose to change the entire system, and claim a power which, if granted, would put an entire land fund under your personal control. You claim the power to appoint agents and conduct sales and invest proceeds without consulting the company, or obtaining their approval as to the mode of doing it. You have already informed me that you design to put a M'r Wilson (if I don't mistake the name) in possession of the land department. Whether his seat of power is to be at Mobile or at New York you did not inform me, but I suppose at New York, as that seems to be the point to which you intend in future to transfer the management of our land fund.

In the lifetime of your co-trustee, Col. Hallett, you refused to allow him, or any one else, to make deeds in Mobile for lands sold, by which much trouble and unnecessary expense to the company might have express great respect for my business capacity and integrity, and, taking advantage of this seeming confidence, I requested you to authorize me to execute deeds, and offered to give, if desired, bond in any amount you would name that everything should be correctly done. My object was to save the company unnecessary trouble and expense. But you declined this also, saying the deed must and should be executed in New York.
1059 been saved. Since I have been in this city you were pleased to

Under instructions from the board of directors, I proposed the names of M'r Charles Walsh, the successor of Col. Hallett in the presidency of the Bank of Mobile, and M'r Parker (another gentleman distinguished for his business capacity and integrity), as trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the deaths of Col. Hallett and M'r Palmer. You made no objection to the fitness of either of them for the faithful execution of the trust, but enquired what compensation or salary would be paid to them and you, in the event you consented to their appointment. I replied that no such question had been raised, but that whatever might be paid to either of them would, of course, be paid to you. That certainly no such question ought to be raised as a condition on which you would give your consent to their appointment. You seemed not to be satisfied with this, and took time to consider the matter until next day. At our meeting the next day you informed me that you had come to the conclusion to send a communication to the board of directors ratifying the appointment of either M'r Walsh or M'r Parker, but leaving the other out, and nominating myself in his place. To this I interposed candid and earnest objections, but you overruled my objections and said I need feel no delicacy about it, because the movement was your own, and would be most satisfactory to the bondholders. At last, at your apparent earnest solicitations, and in my extreme desire to put an end to further conflict, I consented that you might 1060 nominate me as one of the trustees. In giving this consent, I feel sure that Mess'rs Walsh and Parker, and all others who knew me, would appreciate my object and acquit me of all selfish motives.

As soon as I had distinctly given my consent, you said you would then address the board of directors, making the nominations, and proposing the "terms" on which they were to be confirmed. I promptly enquired what "terms" you alluded to. You replied that you thought it most proper that you and the board should arrange the matter between yourselves, and that the board should dispose of it in my absence and without my knowledge until after it was closed. I replied that this seemed proper enough, but that if any "terms" as a condition of my appointment were to be imposed, it was proper that I should know what these terms were. You then disclosed to me that the terms to which you referred were that the compensation to be given to the trustees should be first settled. I replied that, for myself, I intended to accept no compensation, and could not allow my name presented to the board with any such terms or conditions annexed. You then declined nominating me, and also declined to confirm the nominations of Mess'rs Walsh and Parker unless your compensation was fixed in advance.

I then appealed to you to consent that the company might sell lands for bonds, the bonds to be canceled and immediately delivered up, as this measure was of great importance as well to the bondholders as to the company; but you declined giving your consent, and our conference closed. I deeply regret this condition of things, but I have done my whole duty, and can do no more. To allow a trustee under a mortgage, every time a measure is proposed necessary for the success of our enterprise, to append, before he will give his consent, a condition for his personal benefit, would put us on "the road to ruin," over which so many American enterprises by similar means have gone.

1061 As to the question of compensation, the trustees have done nothing but sign the mortgage bonds and two or three papers authorizing the sale of lands. For years the company have appealed to you to give your assent to measures of the greatest importance to our success, but no response has been given, and we have been left to struggle on with no "aid" or "comfort" from you. During the last three years, if not longer, there is not to be found, and you cannot exhibit, a single act of the trustees in connection with the affairs of the company or its land fund. The mortgage requires annual reports by you to the company, and you never have made one. Regular reports of our sales have been made to you, and you have never acknowledged the receipt of one. It was your duty to make deeds, but not one has been made. By this our sales have been retarded, because purchasers feared they could get no titles. Purchasers of lands previously sold refused to make payments until deeds were ready for delivery, and we were thereby deprived of the use of money in times of our greatest need. Fifty thousand dollars would not compensate our company for the damage by this neglect.

The trustees saw proper to retain in their hands eighteen thousand dollars of our bonds, with back coupons to the amount of several thousand, making in all some twenty-two or three thousand dollars. This is far, very far, beyond any reasonable compensation for the services performed and hereafter to be performed, to say nothing of the positive damage inflicted on us by a total neglect of duty, to which I have referred. To buy peace and avoid an open rupture, I have proposed to give this up and let it be retained, provided no further claim for services is set up, now or hereafter. But this seems not to be satisfactory. You claim the right to decide on the value of your own services and to fix your own compensation. You further declare you will appoint your own agents, and, of course, fix their salaries and have them responsible to you alone. You further declare that the land-fund must pass 1062 through your hands and through the hands of agents appointed by you, and responsible to no one but you.

These facts and this extraordinary claim of power brings us to a crisis. To have an open rupture with our only surviving trustee is bad enough, for he has the power to do us harm, and force us to make an appeal to the courts of the country for protection and relief.

But to submit to this astonishing claim of power would be worse. It would transfer our entire land-fund from the control of our company, and put it in hands having no interest in the enterprise beyond the fees and emoluments to be extracted from it. The trustee would fix his own compensation from time to time, and the company must pay it. He would appoint his own agents without limit as to number, and fix their compensation, and the company must foot the bills. The expenses of our land system would be run up to ten times what it is now. The seat of power and responsibility would be transferred from Mobile to New York, and the assets of the company would be put beyond the jurisdiction of the courts of the States in which the trust was created and through which the road runs.

But I have extended this communication beyond my original design. In conclusion, I desire to make one more appeal to you, and request you to reconsider the position you have taken. I think there is not a bondholder in Europe or America who will not, when rightly informed of the facts, say that all we have requested you to do is reasonable and to their interests.

Respectfully, yours,

(Signed) MILTON BROWN,
Pres't M. & O. R. R. Co.

NEW YORK, July 21st, 1860.

M'r BEERS:

DEAR SIR: Your dispatch met me on my arrival here on the 18th, but the papers referred to have not yet arrived, but M'r Ketchum 1063 has read me his copy, and we have had two long interviews on the subject, besides dining together at his house. His first effort was an appeal to my fears as to the consequences, if I did not agree forthwith to fix his salary and pay up from the signing of the mortgage until now. This failed. He then changed his attack, by making it an appeal to my vanity. He praised my firmness, my ability, and my great success. He said that from the time of my election he knew the enterprise would succeed; that no man had built up such a reputation as I had, and concluded by inviting me to dine with him, saying that he had no doubt we could arrange all our differences satisfactorily. I ate his dinner and drank his wine, and with a warm and confiding shake of the hand we parted, to meet next day. We met accordingly, and he began to hope that by his appeals to my stomach, through his dinner and wine, and to my vanity, by his speeches, he had me in a good condition, and if he could also get my avarice enlisted by the hope of a salary as trustee, that he and I, acting together, "could make a good thing of it," as the Yankees say when they are about to do a smart thing by cheating somebody. The result of our interview, and the facts relating to the whole affair, are carefully stated in my written reply, a copy of which I herewith enclose. It presents a case of corrupt motive and dishonest purpose never before surpassed.

His character is worse than I supposed. No one who knows him has the least confidence in his integrity. In a conversation with M'r Osborn, president of the Illinois Central, the death of Colonel Hallett was referred to, and I remarked that it left M'r Ketchum the sole trustee under our mortgage. He replied, "Then you are in a hell of a fix!" He then went on to tell me that he was one of the trustees under their mortgage, and also a director in the road; that he managed first to get a fixed salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year. Then, not content with that, taking advantage of his position, he carried his frauds so 1064 far that the other two trustees had to take the trust into their own hands, and the board of directors refused to consult with him. In face of all this, he had the impudence to appear at a meeting of the board. On his entering the room he (Osborn) rose and said to him: "How dare you show your face at a meeting of this board?" He enquired if the board allowed the president to use such language towards him, and no reply was given. He then retired. But he still holds on to his office as trustee. The other two trustees perform the duties and he collects his salary.

Osborn thinks that he never will consent to fill the vacancies except upon conditions that will put the company in his power, or unless at least one of those to be appointed is under his influence, and will unite with him in his frauds. But I think he will soon find himself powerless, and if he can get no funds in his hands, as he certainly cannot beyond what he has, he will probably resign. Of course, we can agree to no appointments except such as are in Mobile, or on the line of the road, and are beyond his fraudulent influences. He is very uneasy about the danger of his paying costs in the bill filed against him and the company at Mobile and in other cases that may be commenced. Tell our counsel to see to the question of costs and make him pay them, and, if necessary, take proof as to his conduct. Tell M'r Hamilton to examine the facts contained in the copy of my letter to Ketchum, and other facts of the case, and write me to Jackson, Tennessee: 1st, as to the power of the Alabama courts to remove him; 2d, how we shall reach him for damage already done; 3d, how we can enforce the appointment of trustees to fill the vacancies, and such other suggestions as may occur to him. File the copy I send you for the inspection of our board and counsel, and any that may desire to see it.

Yours truly,
(Signed) MILTON BROWN,
Pres't M. & O. R. R. Co.

1065 P. S.—I understand Ketchum is now hunting up your report of sales, and says he will stop the suit at Mobile by making a deed, and that he will make deeds in all cases. But if he does, costs already incurred he must pay, for he could have made these deeds long before suit as well as now. By setting up to do things himself, without consulting us, he will be apt to make great mistakes. To execute the deeds he will have to advance the fees. He is getting into trouble.

M. B.

A transcript of the record and proceedings had in a certain cause heretofore pending in the honorable court of chancery held at Mobile, for the first district of the southern chancery division of Alabama, wherein the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, a body politic and incorporate, was complainant, and Morris Ketchum, a citizen of the city and State of New York, was defendant.

Original bill.

To the Hon. N. W. Cocke, chancellor of the southern chancery division of the State of Alabama, presiding at Mobile:

1. The Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, a body politic and incorporate, chartered by the laws of Alabama, and also by the States of Mississippi, Kentucky and Tennessee, respectfully shows to your honor that by virtue of its powers so granted by said States respectively, it has constructed a line of railway from Mobile to the mouth of the Ohio River, and is now running and operating the same.

2. The said company further shows that under and by virtue of purchases, and by grant from the Congress of the United States of America, it has obtained title to and possession of a large quantity of land and real estate. Among this property so owned by the company is a large quantity of vacant land in the States of Alabama and Missis-1066 sippi which this company obtained from the source above named for the purpose of aiding said company in the construction of said road.

3. The said company further shows that to enable it to proceed and complete its said railway, said company has been compelled to borrow large sums of money for the payment of said loan, and also in some instances in payment for work and materials furnished the company by sundry parties, it has issued its bonds for the sum of two hundred and twenty-five pounds, of the currency of Great Britain, each, which are commonly known in the market as sterling bonds. These bonds are made payable in London, England, in the year 1883, at the office of George Peabody & Co., and bear interest at the annual rent of six per cent., which is payable semi-annually at the place aforesaid on the first days of May and November. Six thousand of these bonds have been executed, amounting to the sum of thirteen hundred thousand six hundred and fifty pounds sterling, English currency.

4. Further your complainant respectfully shows to your honor, that on the first day of November, 1853, said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, by its deed of that date, conveyed to Morris Ketchum and John J. Palmer, of the city and State of New York, and to William R. Hallett, of the city of Mobile, and State of Alabama, the better to secure the payment of the bonds hereinbefore described and every part thereof, with interest accruing thereon, the following described property, to wit: All the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad lying between its respective termini, constructed and to be constructed, together with all and singular the railways, rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned and which may hereafter be owned by said company, including the said lands donated by the Congress of the United States, that is 419,528$\frac{56}{100}$ acres of land in the State of Alabama, and 737,130$\frac{36}{100}$ acres of land in the State of Mississippi, total 1,156,658$\frac{97}{100}$ acres; saving and excepting therefrom 1067 so much as lies in township 4 S., R. 1 W., of lands subject to entry in the S't Stephen's land-office, being 692$\frac{78}{100}$ acres, more or less; saving and excepting also the lots and tracts in the county of Mobile, outside the line of railway, outside of its depots, and outside of the corporate limits of the city of Mobile, being lots and lands derived by private purchase not yet fully paid for, and not included in the list of lands in Mobile County derived under and by the act of Congress, and saving and reserving the rights and liens that may attach to the railway and construction therein in favor of the State of Tennessee, which will exist and attach as a prior lien by statute of that State in the event of said State aiding in the construction of so much of the roadway as lies in said State, viz, one hundred and eighteen miles, not exceeding ten thousand dollars per mile. All which will more fully appear by reference to said deed, which is on record in the office of the judge of probate of Mobile, and a copy whereof in print is herewith filed as an exhibit to and part of this bill.

5. Said deed was executed to said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett, their survivor or successors, for the benefit, security and advantage of the person or persons, or corporations, or any other party who shall or may be holders of the before described bonds, or any of them, in trust for that purpose, and with certain powers over said property in said deed fully set forth.

It was therein provided that of the said 1,156,658$\frac{97}{100}$ acres of lands donated by the said Congress, the said trustees should be deemed to be in immediate possession, with authority to devise and determine rules of management, of sale, of investing the net proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking fund for the payment of said bonds, said trustees to render annually, on 1st January of each year, to the said railroad company, accounts of their doings in the matter of the trust. Said trustees were authorized to appoint an agent to 1068 attend to said land business; but that no sale of said lands should be made so long as said grantor was not in default on any obligations connected with said bonds, except by and with the advice and consent of said company. The other property named in said deed was to remain under the control of said company, unless said company became in default for the payment of said bonds or interest.

6. Your orator further shows to your honor that said deed also contains a provision that if either of the said trustees should at any time or times thereafter die or become, from any cause, incapable of acting in the premises or resign his said office, the said company and the surviving or continuing trustees should select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and should thereupon make, execute and deliver such other instrument or assurances as might be necessary to enable such selected person to act in the premises.

7. Your orator shows that said trustees assented to said deed and took upon themselves the burthen of its execution; that since then two of said trustees have departed this life, to wit, William R. Hallett, of Mobile, who died in July, 1860, and John J. Palmer, who died before the said Hallett, and that the only surviving trustee is the said Morris Ketchum, and that said Ketchum is a resident citizen of the State of New York and an alien enemy of the Confederate States of America.

Your orator also shows that at sundry times before the 15th April, 1861, your orator, in pursuance of the terms of said deed of trust, applied to the said Ketchum to unite with your orator in the appointment of trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the death of said Hallett and Palmer, but said Ketchum has refused to unite in the appointment of such trustees, and the places of said deceased trustees still remain vacant.

8. Your orator charges that said conduct on the part of said Ketchum is a breach of the spirit and letter of said trust deed, and that it 1069 has proceeded from selfish and interested motives on his part, and that he has pursued a course of conduct in relation to the trust that has embarrassed and operated to the injury of your orator.

Your orator shows that no provision is made in said deed for compensation to the trustees except in event of a forfeiture thereof, which has not occurred, and which your orator hopes will not occur. No services have been rendered by said trustees beyond the simple acts of signing the mortgage-bonds and a few other papers directing and authorizing the sale of a smill portion of the lands. Said trustees have not made any of the annual reports called for by the deed. It was the duty of the trustees to have directed the sale of lands, but they have failed to do so, except to a small extent hereinafter named; such plain duties they have disregarded, whereby great injury has been done to your orator and to the bondholders, retarding and preventing the sale of lands, and thereby impairing the market value of the bonds which were to have been received in payment for lands. The said Hallett, before his death, resided in Mobile, but when applied to he declined acting, stating that the active management of the trust was with his co-trustee, Ketchum; always referring your orator to said Ketchum, and professing to refer all communications to him. Thus having the active management of said trust business, the said Ketchum has used his power oppressively to your orator and for selfish purposes.

When said bonds herein described were signed, the said Ketchum, in the name of himself and co-trustees, retained eighteen thousand dollars, on the pretence of compensation for signing said bonds, and this against the wishes of your orator; and notwithstanding the protest of your orator, which was then made and been repeatedly renewed, said bonds with all the coupons for interest thereon have been withheld from your orator. Said Ketchum has in addition also demanded regular 1070 salaries at high rates. While your orators would not object to reasonable compensation for actual services, it has refused to accede to the demands, because they were exorbitant, and could not be yielded to without submitting to gross wrong. Since the death of his said co-trustees said Ketchum has refused to unite in the appointment of new trustees, except on condition that he shall retain what he has already obtained, and also have a fixed salary at some high rate, to begin about the year 1855, and continue till the maturity of the trust in 1883. Said Ketchum also claims the right to move the management of the land department from Mobile to New York, and then to organize it by committing it to officers appointed by himself, and has notified the president of this company of his having appointed the chief agent or superintendent thereof Your orator, to induce said Ketchum to consent to the appointment of new trustees, has obtained the request of a majority of the bondholders for that purpose, but without avail; said Ketchum has still persisted in his refusal to unite in the appointment of such new trustees.

Your orator charges that these actings and doings of said Ketchum are in violation of his duties as trustee, and that he is an unfit person to continue in his position of trustee.

9. Your orator further shows that by a writing under date of 10th January, 1855, the said Ketchum and other trustees advised and directed the sale of lands embraced in the trust, not exceeding 100,000 acres, in such terms as to price and time of payment as said company by its board of directors should approve, and promise to ratify such sale and execute proper deeds to the lands so sold. In pursuance of said authority your orator has sold a large quantity of land to sundry purchasers, who have complied with the terms of sale, and paid most of the purchase money. Your orator has made due reports of said sales to said Ketchum, and has in all things performed the conditions on which such sale was to be made, and called for deeds for the 1071 purchases from him as trustee holding the legal title, but he has refused to ratify the sale and has failed to make deeds for the purchases; said purchasers have demanded of your orator deeds for their lands, and one has filed his bill in this honorable court, to compel the specific performance of the contract with him. Others of said purchasers are threatening to pursue a similar course, and so your orator has been subjected to annoyance and cost, and is likely to be still further injured by the misconduct of said Ketchum in his said office of trustee.

These matters have been urgently presented to said Ketchum by your orator, but he has given no heed to their applications, and not even acknowledged its report to him, and when personally applied to, refused to execute the necessary deeds, except on condition of his demands for past compensation and future salary being complied with.

10. Your orator shows that it is highly important that further sales of land should be made; that such was originally intended to be made, for the purpose of completing said road; and it was expressly declared that the said sterling bonds so issued by the company should be received in payment of lands to be sold. This can only be done by the agency of trustees under said deed of trust. That the lands lie in the States of Alabama and Mississippi, and their management should be confided to persons who can and will superintend their management in those States, and in the city of Mobile, where the trust deed was executed, where the chief business of your orator has necessarily to be executed, and where the trust will have to be executed, and that the removal of the control and direction of this business should be to the manifest detriment and injury of your orator and all others concerned.

It shows that the security of the bondholders requires the active agency of suitable and a full board of trustees to look after their interest in this property, and that interests so large should not be 1072 left in the control of one person alone, and that the deed was originally to three, and good faith to the creditors of your orator, the cestuis que trust, requires that the office shall be full.

Your orator charges that said Ketchum has proved himself an improper person to manage the property as trustee thereof; that he has been unfaithful to said trust. It also charges that said Morris Ketchum is an alien enemy; said property is wholly in the Confederate States, and consists of real property and franchises and personal property, whose chief value arises from its connection with the realty, and can be properly managed only by resident citizens of these Confederate States.

11. Your orator prays that said Morris Ketchum may be removed from his said position as trustee under the said deed of trust herein described; that the vacancies created by the deaths of John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett may be filled, and that some suitable person be also appointed trustee in the place of said Morris Ketchum, and that said trustees so to be appointed be clothed with all the powers conferred by said deed upon the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett.

Your orator prays that said Morris Ketchum be made a party hereto, and that publication be made as provided by the statute in the case of application for the appointment of trustees and for such other and further relief as may be consistent with equity and the nature of its case, and, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

Whereas W'm R. Hallett and J. J. Palmer, two of the trustees under our first mortgage, executed to secure our sterling bonds, have departed this life; and whereas Morris Ketchum, the surviving trustee, has attempted, and, so far as in his power, practised gross fraud on this company and the bondholders; and whereas said Ketchum is a citizen of the State of New York, and an alien enemy, and in all respects disqualified and unfit to act as a trustee:

Therefore, resolved, That our counsel be instructed to apply to the chancery court, or such court as may be most suitable, to have three trustees appointed to act under said mortgage, with power to order sales of land, directing, if they deem it best, the taking of sterling bonds in payment, and to make deeds for lands already sold and to be hereafter sold, and to do all and everything necessary and proper to be done in the due execution of said trust; and be it further resolved, that we recommend the appointment of Charles Walsh, of Alabama, George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of Tennessee, said trustees, under said mortgage.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of a resolution passed by the board of M. & O. R. R. Co. at a meeting of said board on the 5th December, 1861.

Decree of reference, &c.

At a special term of the court of chancery aforesaid, held in the city of Mobile, commencing on the first Monday of April, 1863, being the 6th day of said month, Honorable Nathaniel W. Cocke, chancellor of said court, present and presiding, and on the 7th day of April, 1863, 1076 the same being a regular day of special term, the following decree was rendered in this cause, to wit:

MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY
vs.
MORRIS KETCHUM, TRUSTEE.

This cause was submitted on the bill, exhibits, and decree pro confesso. The object of the bill is to appoint trustees under a certain deed of trust exhibited by the complainant, of the date of 1st November, 1853, a copy of which is attached to the bill, in place of William R. Hallett and John J. Palmer, who are dead, and also to remove the surviving trustee, Morris Ketchum, for breaches of duty as trustee, and also because he is an alien enemy and incompetent to act, The court is satisfied of the death of said Palmer and Hallett, and of the fact that said Ketchum is an alien enemy; it is therefore ordered, adjudged, and decreed that said Ketchum be removed from his said trusteeship, and further that the prayer of the bill be granted for the appointment of trustees in place of said Ketchum, Hallett, and Palmer be granted.

And the said complainant suggests as proper persons to be appointed in place of the former trustees, Charles Walsh, George H. Young and Alexander Jackson, all citizens of the Confederate States. It is referred to the master to ascertain and report whether the above-named parties be suitable persons to receive the said appointment of trustees aforesaid.

Master's report.

And on the 8th day of April, 1863, the same being still another 1077 day of the said special term of said court, the following report was read by the master in this cause, to wit:

MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD CO.
vs.
MORRIS KETCHUM.

The master came into court and reported as follows:

This cause comes before the master with instructions to ascertain and report whether Charles Walsh, George H. Young, and Alexander Jackson are suitable persons to be appointed trustees in place of William R. Hallett and John J. Palmer, former trustees, who are dead, and of the defendant, who has been removed.

The master reports that he gave notice of the time and place of considering the matter referred to him, and was attended by complainant's solicitors; that he examined reliable witnesses introduced, and is satisfied from their testimony that the said Walsh, Young, and Jackson are fit and proper persons to be appointed trustees under the deed of November 1st, 1853, and in place of the former trustees, Hallett, Palmer, and Ketchum.

Respectfully submitted.

Master.

APRIL 8TH, 1863.

And thereupon it is ordered that said report lie over one day.

Final decree.

And on the 9th day of April, A. D. 1863, the same being another of the special April term aforesaid, honorable Nathaniel W. Cocke, chancellor of said court, present and presiding, the following decree was rendered in this cause, to wit:

1078 MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD CO.
vs.
MORRIS KETCHUM.

In this cause, the master, in pursuance of the former order of this court, having made his report at a former day of this term, and the same having been read in open court more than one day, and no exceptions being filed, it is ordered that said report be in all things confirmed. It is thereupon ordered, adjudged, and decreed that said Charles Walsh, of Alabama, George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of Tennessee, who consent thereto, be appointed trustees under the deed described in the bill of complaint, in room and in place of William R. Hallet and John J. Palmer, former trustees, deceased, and of Morris Ketchum, former trustee, who has been removed by decree of this court. It is further averred, adjudged, and decreed that said trustees hereby appointed be clothed with all the rights, powers, and privileges named in said deed of trust, and that they be charged with all the duties by said deed imposed upon the trustees in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were the original appointees, and that they proceed and execute the trusts declared in said deed according to the terms and provisions thereof, and as to all other matters of complaint and prayers in said bill contained, it is ordered that said bill be dismissed without prejudice to complainant's rights to relief therein, or to any matter of account.

It is ordered that the complainants pay the costs of this proceeding.

D.

NEW YORK, 30 March.

DEAR SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your esteemed favor of the 27th ult., which reached me when I was absent in Mobile. I only returned from there a few days since. I am giving my careful personal attention to the affairs of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. The present situation is as follows:

As you are aware in my last, on the demand of some of the holders of the first-mortgage bonds and coupons, the latter being in default, the road was delivered into the custody of the trustees of the said mortgage, Duncan and Elliot, who subsequently applied to the circuit court of the United States, and were clothed by it with the powers 1080 of receivers, which consequently placed the road under the protection of the said court, thus freeing it from the interference of local courts, and affording a complete protection until the claims at issue shall be determined. This was of vital importance, for there is no estimating the confusion and damage that would have arisen had this property become subject to the jurisdiction of such local courts, and for this purpose it was also essential that the proceedings should be taken ab initio in the United States court, it being the highest authority.

I enclose you herein the original order (marked "A,") with the supplemental order in Tennessee and Kentucky, (marked "B.")

When the road came into my possession, as trustee, it had a large floating debt, partially unsecured; but of this we were instructed by the court to pay a portion, namely, that due for labor and supplies maturing within three months of the beginning of these proceedings; at that period of the year, however, the receipts of a southern railroad are at their minimum and the experience of the Mobile and Ohio 1081 Raiload is that the receipts of those months barely equal the current expenses, and this was especially the case in 1875.

With southern railroads the summer months is the period when, the days being long and the road comparatively free from traffic, extraordinary repairs, if required, should be made, and under all circumstances these roads should then be put in good condition for the pressing business of the autumn months, as such repairs and betterments can be then most economically done.

It became, therefore, necessary to apply to the court for authority to borrow money to make the payments ordered by the court, and such authority was also intended to cover the making of extraordinary repairs, which latter should and would have been made had not I been notified by some of the parties in interest, that they were entirely opposed to such extraordinary repairs, however requisite, being paid out of other than the receipts of the road itself. I accordingly availed of the authority granted by the court to a limited extent, for I appre-1082 ciated these objections to receiver's liens, and, as the betterments were not absolutely necessary, I preferred to conform to the views of the parties objecting. The order permitting the issuance of receiver's certificates is enclosed (marked "C").

The result has been that I did not issue these certificates under this authority to any great extent, at any one time, and they are now all repaid and will not be reissued.

I enclose (marked "D") the report to the court of the operations of the road to October 31st, 1875, and ere long I expect to issue a report of its operations for the entire year of 1875, both under the management of the company from January 1st to May 1st, 1875, and subsequently from May 1st to December 31st, under the management of the trustees.

The statement will show:

Gross receipts for 1875	$1,914,342
As against " 1874	2,391,016
Decrease	$476,674

This decrease is to be accounted for among other causes by the general depression existing throughout the whole country; by the fact that after the first of January, 1875, the shipments of cotton almost 1083 entirely ceased; the receipts of November and December, 1874, showing a relative increase, and showing also that the crop of that season had been hurried to market; by the fact also that in the autumn of 1875, the rivers competing with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad were in navigable order from the middle of September, while in 1874 they were naviagble for only a very limited period; and by the reductions in rates which have been made by the trustees, as it was hoped that such reductions would increase the volume of business and attract settlers on the line of the road; and lastly, though by no means least, by the loss in business resulting from the extension of the N. O., S't L. & C. R. R., from Jackson, Tennessee, to Cairo. The opening months of 1876 are encouraging, showing that even at these reductions the business is improving, and the gross receipts show a monthly increase over last year. The experience of other roads also show that the decrease of 1875 was not exceptional.

As furnished in the text of the enclosed report, I am now engaged in putting the road in good order and remedying many of the 1084 neglects of past years. The important expenditure to accomplish this is mainly in the cost of new rails. As you are aware, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad is an unballasted road, there being no gravel or stone ballast on its line, and to obtain such would entail considerable expense, an expense which would sooner or later be incurred, but which can for the present be deferred.

Under this state of things it is imperative, to the economical operation of the road, that it should be put into good serviceable condition. The road-bed, originally well constructed, had been allowed to somewhat deteriorate. The ties are in fair condition, but the iron is defective and badly worn. To remedy this it will be necessary to relay about one hundred and twenty miles, and I am engaged in laying from six to seven thousand tons of iron during the coming summer.

The same expenditure in 1877 would repair the entire road, and thereafter the replacing of ordinary wear and tear, say three thousand five hundred to four thousand tons per annum, would maintain the road in excellent condition; and such a result would ensure its economical 1085 working more effectually than by any other course, especially in repairs to rolling-stock and machinery, which, you will notice, are at present large.

To exemplify this, let us take ten miles of road, the first mile being perfect in every particular, the second mile being less so, and so on until the last mile shall be a common dirt road; now start a first class engine on the first mile, and say that it can haul a train of forty cars at a minimum cost; the second mile it would be obliged to drop five cars and the cost would increase, and so on until the last mile, at which point it would not be able to haul itself, no matter at what expenditure. So much for mere traction; but on smooth iron and good road-bed the engine would run with scarcely appreciable wear.

As the iron and road became worse and rough, the machinery and cars would pound themselves to pieces, while destroying the road itself still further; in fact it really needs no argument to prove the entire economy of such expenditure. Thus much are the trustees doing in the care of the property.

Next, as to what shall be done in reorganizing or taking the 1086 property out of the custody of the court. No one contends that it is the legitimate duty of a court to run and operate a railroad, and it can only be excused for so doing pending the determination as to who are the real owners of the property when that is questioned, and pending the legal proceedings necessary to a judicial foreclosure and sale, or until the success of negotiations for a re-organization without a foreclosure.

The trustees of the first mortgage, claiming their rights, have commenced proceedings for foreclosure and sale of the property and the distribution of the proceeds to the parties entitled to the same. The first step was to file a bill for that purpose, making all the parties interested parties to the bill. This has been done.

In the answer of some of the parties defendant, it is set up that there are questions as to who are entitled to the proceeds of the property; accordingly the court has appointed a master to take the evidence submitted, and to report to the court the nature of such evidence. I enclose a copy of the order, which explains itself (marked "E").

Previous to this, however, some of the holders of the floating 1087 debt, amounting in the aggregate to about five hundred and fifty thousand dollars, secured by a pledge of the securities of the company, including some of the first and second mortgage bonds, the property of the company, applied to the trustees to have their claims recognized as preferred claims, claiming, amongst other things, that the money had been so borrowed for the purpose of enabling the company to pay the interest on its bonds, and to purchase material and supplies necessary to the life and existence of the road. The trustees having no discretion to deal with these claims, appealed to the court, and the court appointed a master to report (marked F) thereon, and he has so reported, his report being now on file subject to exceptions of any of the parties interested.

There is some force in the argument used, more especially where it would result in turning over to the trustees valuable securities affecting their trust, which would otherwise be sacrificed to the detriment of the trust itself; and another important consideration is, that this debt is held by parties residing on the line of, and who are daily dealing 1088 with, the road, and if it can be disposed of by compromise for a small percentage it would undoubtedly be most desirable. This, however, is a matter for the court to determine, and the trustees and receivers must and will abide by its decision.

You will observe that the master is required to report in October next. The regular sessions of the United States court are in June and December; and the time fixed is the earliest possible within which the report can be acted upon. Arguments may be made before the master or upon exceptions taken to his report.

You will also observe that the master is asked to report any plan of reorganization which shall have the endorsement of three fourths of the parties interested. This property must some day or other be reorganized, and it will either be by the purchaser who shall purchase under foreclosure sale in his own right, or by the purchaser who shall purchase under foreclosure sale for a scheme of reorganization which shall have been agreed upon, or by a scheme of reorganization which, with the consent of all parties, shall obtain from the court the surrender 1089 of the property before and without a foreclosure sale.

This latter is, of course, the most to be desired, as the simplest and speediest. There may be difficulties in the way of its accomplishment; but, with the assistance of the court under these proceedings, these difficulties may be overcome.

My first effort has been to secure the good management of the property, so that when it has resorted to the sanction of the court, by purchase or amicable arrangement, it will be in condition to avail itself of the new life which a new organization will bring to it.

As an officer of the court, I regard myself as stakeholder, as it were, for all the parties in interest; but, as trustee of the first-mortgage bonds, I do not hesitate to urge, in the interest of those whom I represent, the recognition and payment of their just dues, and with the view of reaching this these proceedings in foreclosure have been commenced.

Under the most favorable circumstances such a foreclosure suit, involving so many adverse interests, is subject to many and tedious delays, but the proceedings are being pressed with all the speed possible.

1090 As I have before stated, it seems to me that the best result can be reached by means other than hostile foreclosure; but while I am of this opinion, my duty as trustee compels me to proceed with such foreclosure with all diligence, while at the same time expressing a hope that its final consummation will be unnecessary, or, if it be necessary, that the purchase under it be made for the purpose of a reorganization which shall have been agreed upon by and between all or a majority of the parties at present interested. And it is with this hope that the board, in their circular of March 8th, which I enclose, have suggested that the several classes of securities be represented by committees whose duty it shall be to provide a scheme and recommend it for adoption. Such recommendation would, without doubt, be accepted by all.

The chartered rights and franchises of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co. granted within the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, are extremely valuable, and I do not myself doubt but that they would pass to a purchaser under foreclosure. The fact, however, that in some quarters there is an inclination to test this question is one of the many considerations which induced me to urge so strenuously an amicable readjustment, if such be possible. The circular of March 8th gives the general principles which should govern such reorganization, and I am in hopes it will result in the adoption of some practical scheme. 1091

I remain yours, truly,

W. BUTLER DUNCAN,
Trustee & Receiver, M. & O. R. R.

MORRIS KETCHUM
vs.
WILLIAM B. DUNCAN, ANDREW F. ELLIOT, the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co., et al. } In equity.

Plea in bar of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, defendant.

The Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, defendant in said cause, by protestation, not confessing or admitting any of the statements, allegations or charges in the bill of the said complainant to be true in manner and form as therein set forth, and as to the discovery and relief in said bill prayed for, doth plead and say in bar of the same that he, the said Morris Ketchum, complainant at the time of the filing of said bill, and from thence hitherto was not a trustee under the deed of trust and mortgage bearing date on the first day of November, in the year eighteen hundred and fifty three, executed by the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to the said Morris Ketchum, John J. Palmer, and William R. Hallett, as is in said bill set forth and averred, nor is he now, nor was he then entitled to have or to possess any property, things, or interest therein described, or to accrue thereby, nor is he now, because this defendant, the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company being directly interested in the property and estate in said deed described, and in the fulfillment of and execution of the trusts and duties prescribed 1097 thereby, did file its bill in the court of chancery of the State of Alabama, for the first district of the southern chancery division of Alabama in the city of Mobile, in which this company was made complainant, and the said Morris Ketchum was made defendant, in which bill it was charged that the said Morris Ketchum had failed to perform his duties as trustee, as provided by said deed; that he had been unfaithful in the performance of his duty as such trustee, and that he was not trustworthy as such trustee, and was an unfit and improper person to hold said office; that he had fraudulently withheld the property of said company in his hands from their custody, and that he resided beyond the limits of the State, and in a territory at the time hostile to the State in which the property was, and that he could not execute and carry out the duties of said trust, nor perform the duties required thereby. That the said court had then and there full authority and jurisdiction to hear and determine the said matter of complaint, and to decree the removal of said Ketchum as such trustee by the laws of the State. And further, this defendant says that said court did then and there take and assume, and did exercise its jurisdiction in respect to said matter of complaint, and did, by its order made in said cause, cause publication to be made according to the laws and practice of the said State, requiring the said Morris Ketchum, as defendant to said bill, to appear in said court, and to defend against the same, which publication having been duly made, the said court did proceed to hear, consider, and determine the said matter of complaint according to law, and thereupon such proceedings were had that, at the April term, 1863, it was considered, ordered, and decreed, by the chancellor in said court of chancery at Mobile, that said Morris Ketchum, defendant in said cause (and now complainant), should be, and he thereby was, removed from said office as trustee; and by said decree a successor to said Morris Ketchum was appointed, and who from that time did hold 1098 and execute the duties of the said office of trustee, as the successor, and in lieu and stead of said Ketchum, until the time when the co-defendants of this company, William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliot, were appointed such trustees. And this defendant avers and says that said chancery court had full authority, power, and jurisdiction to make and render said decree, and of the subject-matter thereof; and further says that the said decree is still of record in said court, as by exemplification thereof and of said proceedings will appear, and that the same is still of full force and effect, not in any manner impaired, reviewed, reversed, nor set aside in any particular; nor has any new trial or rehearing thereof been applied for nor had, as provided by the law of said court, nor any appeal, but the same has been fully executed by the removal of said Ketchum from said office and his discharge therefrom and his place supplied; and that he, the said Ketchum, well knowing that he had been so discharged and removed, has, from the rendition thereof to the date of the filing of his said bill in this court, acquiesced in the said decree, and has not during said time done or performed any of the acts or duties, or done anything whatsoever in the execution of said trust duties.

And thereupon this defendant now pleads the said record and proceedings in the said cause, and the judgment and decree thereon of said court, and the execution of said decree, and the submission and acquiescence of said Morris Ketchum, then defendant and now complainant in the same, as a bar to the discovery and relief prayed for in said bill, and prays judgment of the said bill; and whether this defendant should be required to make any other or further defence or answer thereto; and that the same may be dismissed at the cost of said complainant.

GEORGE N. STEWART,
Sol. for Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co., Def't.

1099 I, George N. Stewart, solicitor for defendant, the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, do hereby certify that in my opinion the foregoing plea is well founded in point of law.

GEORGE N. STEWART,
Sol. for Def't.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendant, adopts the foregoing plea in the above-entitled cause, and certifies that the same is true in matter of fact, and that it is not interposed for delay.

Circuit court of the United States, fifth judicial circuit, southern district of Alabama.

vs.
THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
W'm Butler Duncan, et als.
} In equity.

The demurrer of William Butler Duncan, defendant, to the bill of complaint as amended, filed in this hon. court by said Morris Ketchum against this demurrant and others.

This defendant by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in said complainant's bill to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, doth demur thereto, and for cause of demurrer showeth:

1st. That said complainant, by his said bill, states that he claims under and by virtue of a certain deed of trust bearing date the 1st day of November, 1853, and made and executed at Mobile, in the State 1101 of Alabama, by the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, which is shown to be a corporation created by the laws of the State, and existing by virtue thereof, and a citizen of said State, and having its principal office in the city of Mobile, in said State, of property in the said State situated, whereof he is one of the trustees in said deed named, and the survivor thereof; that his co-trustees in said deed named had departed this life on or before the 5th day of January, 1861, and their places had not been filled till on or about the 7 April, 1864; that upon a bill in chancery filed by said corporation in the year 1861, after the death of his said co-trustees, in the court of chancery for the State of Alabama, against said complainant, praying for the removal of him, the said complainant, from said trusteeship, and the filling of said vacancies therein by the appointment of suitable persons therefor; such proceedings were had that on the 7 April, 1864, which was a day of a regular term of said court, a decree was made on said bill by said court 1102 of chancery at Mobile, whereby said complainant was removed from said trusteeship, and other persons were by said court appointed trustees of the property in the said of trust described, in the room and place of said complainant and his said deceased co-trustees; of all which said complainant had knowledge in the year 1865, and yet took no steps to set up his alleged right within the time and in the manner provided by law, or to apply for a rehearing, examination, or service of said proceedings and decree of said court of chancery, either by said court of chancery itself or by any court having appellate jurisdiction over said court; and said complainant does not show that said proceedings and decree of said court of chancery mentioned in said bill of complaint have been in any mode or manner annulled or vacated, or in any manner impaired, and that the same are not now in full force and effect; wherefore it appears that said complainant has no 1103 standing in this court to demand the relief he, in and by his said bill of complaint, seeks to obtain.

2nd. That said complainant in and by his said bill of complaint shows that before the filing of his said bill of complaint that he was removed from the position of trustee of the property in his said bill of complaint named and described, and conveyed as in his bill of complaint alleged by the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by the order and decree of the court of chancery in Alabama, which had plenary jurisdiction of the subject and which took and excersised jurisdiction over the same, and made and pronounced its said decree of removal against this complainant upon bill filed and service of process thereon made, and in the mode and manner directed by the laws of said State, more than ten years before the filing by the complainant of his bill in this cause, to wit, on the 7 April, 1864; and during all that time he made no application to said court to open said decree and proceedings 1104 and defend against the prayer of the bill which, by his said bill of complaint he shows the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company filed against him, said complainant, and whereby said corporation prayed for his removal from the said trust, and on which the decree of removal aforesaid was rendered against said complainant by the said court of chancery of the State of Alabama; but said decree of removal remains in full force and effect against him, the said complainant, not in any wise annulled or in any manner impaired. Wherefore said complainant shows to the court that he has no title to the relief he, in and by his said bill of complaint, seeks to obtain.

3rd. That said complainant in his said bill of complaint shows to the court that he was removed from his said position of trustee of the property in his bill of complaint described, and which was conveyed for 1105 the other purposes and trusts in said deed of trust declared, but in which said complainant declares he has no interest, which was executed by said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, at Mobile, on 1 November, 1853, by the court of chancery of the State of Alabama, on 7 April, 1864, in a bill filed against said complainant, praying that he might be so removed, and the vacancies mentioned in said bill might be filled by said court of chancery; and that he had knowledge of the same upon the cessation of the hostilities mentioned in his said bill of complaint in the year 1865, but does not show that there has been any obstruction or hindrance to prevent him from asserting the right and title he now sets up to the property conveyed by said deed, and to have the decree rendered for his said removal from said trusteeship reheard, re-examined, and set aside, and his title thereto established. If the same had been improperly created by said decree and does not show that he has at any time applied to said court of chancery for a rehearing 1106 or examination of said decree, and the opening thereof, within the time allowed and directed by the laws of the State of Alabama, whereby the said decree has become unimpeachable and is valid, but does show that he acquiesced in said decree, and thereafter, prior to the filing of this bill, made no claim to said trusteeship, and did no act, and attempted to do no act, about the performance of the duties of said trusteeship. Wherefore said complainant by his said bill of complaint shews no equity as to the relief in and by his said bill of complaint prayed for.

4th. That said complainant by his said bill of complaint shows he was removed from the said position of trustee, under the deed in his said bill described, in 1864, by decree of the court of chancery of the State of Alabama, at Mobile, on a bill in that court filed against said complainant, and praying his removal from said trust and the filling of 1107 vacancies then existing in said trusteeship, which said court of chancery had plenary jurisdiction of the subject-matter of said suit, under authority of the laws of the State of Alabama, wherein said deed was made and said property located, and which said court took jurisdiction of the cause, with service of process, on the said complainant in mode and manner as directed by the laws of said State, and which decree has been affirmed by the sovereign authority of the State of Alabama in convention assembled, and by the acts of the general assembly of said State, subject to be removed on application of the said complainant to said court on or before the 26 June, 1869, and still remain in full force and effect, in no way annulled or impaired; and said complainant does not show that he at any time since he confesses that he had knowledge of said proceedings and decree of said court of chancery in the year 1865, after the cessation of the hostilities in 1108 his said bill mentioned, and before the filing of this bill, make application to said court of chancery to have said decree opened or repealed, or that any modification or change of any kind has been made in said decree by said court of chancery or any other court having jurisdiction of said matter; and it appears that said decree of removal of said complainant from said trust in his said bill by him claimed remains in full force and effect, and complainant is without right or title in the premises.

5. That said State of Alabama has full, exclusive, and plenary power over the appointment and removal of trustees of property within its jurisdiction, and by law has confided the same full, exclusive, and plenary jurisdiction to its court of chancery, and by acts of sovereign authority has confirmed and ratified all the judgments and decrees of its said court of chancery made and rendered between the 11th day of 1109 January, 1861, and the 28th day of September, 1865, unless such judgment and decrees were opened or upon the application of the defendant thereto by the court as rendering such judgment or decrees made on or before 26 June, 1869.

It appears from the statements of complainant's bill that on 7th April, 1874, he was by decree of said court of chancery of the State of Alabama, at Mobile, on a bill filed against him by said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, removed from the trusteeship, he now by his said bill claims, and he does not show that he at any time applied to said court of chancery before before the filing of this bill to have said decree opened, set aside or in any manner modified, and he does not show that said decree has been at any time since its rendition in any manner or at all annulled, vacated, or modified by said court of chancery which rendered the same or by any appellate tribunal, although it does appear from his said 1110 bill that he had knowledge of said decree of said court of chancery at Mobile for his said removal, to wit, in the year 1865, wherefore it appears that said complainant has no equity, or rights and title as against this defendant have or maintain his said bill of complaint in this honorable court; wherefore this defendant demands the judgment of this honorable court whether he shall be compelled to make any further or other answer to the said bill or any of the matters and things therein contained, and prays to be herein dismissed with his reasonable costs in this behalf expended.

P. & T. HAMILTON,
For Demurrer.

The undersigned, of counsel for defendant in the above-entitled cause' hereby certify that in their opinion the foregoing demurrer to the bill of complaint is well founded in point of law.

JUNE 10, 1876.

In this cause it is ordered on motion of the complainant's counsel that the cause be set down argument on the plea of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and demurrer of W'm B. Duncan on the first 1114 day of the next term of this court.
June 10, 1876.

Circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama.

MORRIS KETCHUM, COMPLAINANT,
vs.
THE MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY & others, defendants.

The seperate plea, answer, & demurrer, of William D. Dunn and William Dickson, to the bill of complaint of Morris Ketchum against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and these defendants and other defendants.

These defendants by protestation, not confessing all or any of the matters and things in the complainant's said bill contained and set forth in manner and form therein alleged to be true, for plea to so much and such parts of said bill as allege that the complainant was, at the time of filing of said bill, a trustee by and under the deed of trust
1115 made by the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company to the complainant, and the late John J. Palmer and the late William R. Hallett, dated November 1st, 1853, mentioned and referred to in said bill and exhibited therewith, doth say and plead that the complainant, Morris

Ketchum, at the time of the filing of said bill, was not and is not now a trustee under the said deed of trust, and had not then and has not now any right, title, or interest in or to the property described in and conveyed by the said deed of trust, because these defendants say and aver that long before the filing of said bill, to wit, on the sixth day of January, 1862, the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company did exhibit and file its bill of complaint in equity, against the said Morris Ketchum, in the court of chancery of the State of Alabama, in and for the first district of the southern chancery division of the said State, holden in and for the county of Mobile, charging and alleging in its said bill, 1116 that the said Morris Ketchum had failed to perform his duties as trustee under said deed of trust, and had been unfaithful in the performance of his duties as trustee, and that he was an unfit and improper person to hold the office of such trustee, and that he had fra'dulently withheld from such railroad company property of said company to the pos'ession of which it was entitled, and that he resided out of the State of Alabama, to wit, in the State of New York, at the time in hostility to the State of Alabama, and he could not execute the duties required of him as trustee under said deed of trust, and in said suit such proceedings were afterwards had in said chancery court that notice of the filing of said bill was duly given to said Ketchum by publication, according to the laws of the State of Alabama, and the rules and practice of said chancery court, and the said Ketchum having failed to appear, plead, answer, or demur to said bill, a decree was made in said suit, by said chancery court, taking said bill as confessed 1117 as against said Ketchum, and afterward, to wit, at the April term, 1863, of said chancery court, a final decree was rendered in said cause by said chancery court, whereby said Ketchum was removed from his office as trustee under said deed of trust, and other persons were appointed trustees to execute the said deed of trust, in lieu of the said Ketchum, and of the said J. J. Palmer and William R.
Hallett, who had died before the filing of said bill, all which will appear by the record of said decree and of the proceedings in said case remaining of record in said chancery court, to an exemplification of which these defendants beg leave to refer and to produce as may be requisite; and these defendants further say that the said chancery court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of said suit, and of the practices thereto, and that the said decree therein remains in full force and effect, in no wise revised, opened, set aside, or annulled.

1118 And so these defendants pray judgment of this court whether they are bound further to answer the bill of complaint of said
Ketchum in this case, and that the same may be dismissed.

And for a further plea to said parts of said bill of complaint in this case, these defendants say that soon after the rendition of said final decree hereinbefore mentioned, to wit, in the year 1863, the persons thereby appointed trustees to execute the provisions of said deed of trust in lieu of said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett did enter upon the discharge of their duties and the excersise of their powers as such trustees, and they and their successors have ever since that time continued to act as such trustees, and that the said Ketchum, some time in the year 1865, had actual notice and knowledge of the rendition of said final decree, and that the persons thereby appointed as trustees had entered upon the discharge of their powers and duties as such trustees, and the said Ketchum took no step, as he might have done under 1119 the laws of the State of Alabama and the practice of said chancery court, to have the said decree opened and the said cause re-heard, but on the contrary thereof said Ketchum requienced in said decree, and with notice and knowledge of said decree and of said action thereon, the said Ketchum, for more than ten years thereafter, took no steps whatever to assert and maintain any right to act as trustee under said deed of trust.

And these defendants further say and aver that some time in the month of May, A. D. 1875, William Butler Duncan, of the State of New York, and A. Foster Elliott, of the State of Louisiana, acting as and claiming to be trustees under said deed of trust, demanded of and obtained from the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company all the property conveyed by said deed of trust, and afterwards, to wit, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1875, the said Duncan and Elliott, as such trustees, filed their bill of complaint in equity in this honorable court 1120 against the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and these defendants, and others, defendants, alleging and showing that they, as trustees as aforesaid, had taken pos'ession and were then in pos'ession of all the property mentioned in and conveyed by said deed of trust, and stating divers other deeds of trust, mortgages, and liens existing or claimed to exist on said property, and praying this court to take jurisdiction of said trust and of said property, and to direct the management and control and dispose of the same, and in said case, which is still pending in this court, this court did take jurisdiction thereof, and made orders for the management of said property before the filing of the said bill of said complainant Morris Ketchum, all which will more fully appear by the proceedings in said case remaining of record in this court, to which these defendants beg leave to refer as may be necessary.

Wherefore these defendants pray judgment whether they should 1121 be further required to answer the said bill of complaint.

And these defendants, not waiving their said pleas, by protestation, not confessing all or any of the matters in said bill contained to be true, do demur to so much and such parts of said bill as alleges that the complainant is entitled to the property in said deed mentioned, and prays for discovery respecting the same, and they say the same is not sufficient in equity to entitle the complainant to such discovery, and for grounds and causes of demurrer they assign the following:

1st. That it is not shown by said bill that the complainant as trustee is entitled to the said property in said bill mentioned.

2nd. That it is shown by said bill that said complainant had previously to the filing of said bill been removed from the office of trustee.

And these defendants, not waiving their foregoing pleas and demurrers, for answer to so much and such parts of said bill are are not so pleaded or demurred to, or to so much thereof as they are 1122 advised it is material for them to answer, say that they are informed and believe and so admit the making of the several mortgages or deeds of trust in said bill mentioned. They admit that they have been appointed trustees in lieu of Robert A. Baker, deceased, and Samuel Williams, deceased, under the deed of trust known as the second mortgage of said railroad company mentioned in the complainants' bill, and they and their ex-defendant, George H. Young, are now trustees under said last-mentioned deed of trust.

These defendants, as trustees as aforesaid, have not now, and have never had, any possession or control of the property in said deed mentioned; they have not such knowledge or information as to the said property or its management, or as to the state and accounts of said railroad company, as would enable them to answer respecting the same; as to the other matters alleged in said bill, these defendants have 1123 not such knowledge or information as would enable them to answer the same, and they insist on due proof thereof.

And these defendants, having answered, pray to be hence dismissed with their costs, &c.

W'M D. DUNN.

W. G. JONES,
Sol. for Def't.

Before me, Henry S. Skaats, a U. S. commissioner, this day appeared the said defendant William D. MORRIS KETCHUM
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, A. Foster Elliott, W'm B. Duncan, et al.
} In chancery.

The separate demurrer and the plea and answer of Andrew Foster Elliott to the bill of complaint, filed against the said respondent, in the circuit court aforesaid of the title aforesaid.

The said defendant, not confessing the statements of the bill or any portion thereof, except that he is in posession of the line of railroad of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, with his co-trustee W'm Butler Duncan, under the orders of this honorable court and con-1133 formably to the deed of trust and claiming to be a trustee, duly appointed thereunder, which deed of trust was made by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company at Mobile 1st November, 1853.

And for plea to so much and such parts of the said bill as charges that the said plaintiff at the time of filing the said bill is a trustee under the deed of trust aforesaid, or had any right, title, or estate in the property described therein, or that he is entitled to execute the trusts thereof, or to any ownership or control of said property, this defendant declares and pleads in bar, that in the month of January, A. D. 1862, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, having its domicil in Mobile of that State, and being the place where the principal office of the corporation is kept, and business transacted, and where the said deed 1134 of trust was executed, filed a bill in the court of chancery of the State of Alabama held at Mobile for the first district of the southern chancery division of that State against the said Morris Ketchum as defendant, wherein he was charged with having violated his trust as trustee; and had neglected his duty; and resided beyond the jurisdiction and limits of the State; and was an unsuitable person to be continued as a trustee, and prayed that he might be removed therefrom. The bill also stated that W'm R. Hallett and J. J. Palmer, two of the trustees, were dead, and that their offices were vacant.

The said defendant was made a party according to the articles of the code of Alabama of 1852, and the rules of practice of the said court as long established therein. And such proceedings were had in the 1335 said court of chancery that the said court at its rules in March,
1863, pronounced a decree pro confesso upon the failure of the defendant to appear and to answer the bill according to the order of the court; at its April term, 1863, the court decreed that the said Morris Ketchum was incompetent to act as trustee, and that the offices of trustees under the said deed of trust were all vacant, and made the appointment of three persons to fill the vacancies occasioned by the removal and death aforesaid at the term of the court aforesaid.

And this defendant avers that the court of chancery aforesaid had full and plenary jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the cause under the constitution and laws of the State of Alabama; and that the said defendant was made a party according to the law and practice of the court, in cases of non-resident defendants; and that the causes 1136 for the removal were such as the statutes of the State approved as sufficient, and that the decree is in full force and effect; that no appeal has been taken therefrom by any party thereto; that no application of any kind whatsoever has been made in the said court to open the said decree, or to have a new trial thereon, or to review the same, or in any manner to impugn its validity.

And the said defendant avers that the said decree was fully executed, and from the date thereof until the date of the filing of this plea, the trustees appointed in the same, and their successors, have been continuously in possession of the said office, and have performed every function and duty imposed by the deed of trust, and the conditions of 1137 the company, without opposition, let or hindrance of the said plaintiff, or from any bondholder, but with the acquiescence and submission of the said plaintiff and the approbation of the bondholders protected by the said deed.

And the said defendant avers that said Ketchum had full notice of his removal aforesaid, and of the decree aforesaid, in the year 1865, and might have availed himself of the remedial laws of the State of Alabama, to have obtained a new hearing, or a review of the decree, at any time from the 28th September, 1865, until the 26th June, 1869, had he been disposed to contest the allegations of the bill or the validity of the application of the plaintiff for his amotion from an office which he was not a suitable or proper a person to fill.

And the said defendant further avers that in May, A. D. 1875, under the order and decree of this honorable court, in a suit com-1138 menced by this defendant and his associate trustee, W'm Butler Duncan, against the said corporation as the trustees, who were placed in possession of the property of said corporation with the consent of the corporation and the mortgagees of the said corporation who held liens on the property, and with the approval of the holders of the bonds, and from thence and at the filing of this plea, have possession of the same, all of which this defendant is ready to maintain by proofs to be submitted to the court as the court may direct, and plead the same to so much of the bill of the plaintiff as is not herein particularly excepted, and respectfully submit to the court whether he is required to make any further answer to so much of the said bill as he has not pleaded to.

And this defendant, not waiving his said plea, but relying 1139 thereon for answer to the residue of the bill, as far as it may be necessary to sustain his defence by plea as aforesaid, answering, says:

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was incorporated by the State of Alabama, to have its domicil at Mobile, and received authority from the States of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky to construct its railroad through those States to Columbus, in Kentucky, and a grant of lands from the United States to aid the corporation to complete the same; that the deed of trust was made to facilitate their work, and a board of trustees was important and necessary for the negotiation of the bonds and sale of the lands in 1862. In the month of January, 1862, John J. Palmer and W'm R. Hallett had died, and 1140 Morris Ketchum was and had long been a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and of the States through which the railroad passed. In the years he had remained in office he was not only an absentee from the States aforesaid, and beyond the jurisdiction of the States, but negligent, overreaching, and untrustworthy in the performance of his duties. He had violated his obligations as a trustee, and his principal study seemed to be to create conditions by which the trust funds should pass through his hands and pay extravagant and unnecessary charges to him, and unprofitable to the company, but largely and unnecessarily profitable to the trustee, and that he had actually converted to his own use, without license, the trust funds which had come to his possession.

The bill filed by the corporation in January, 1862, contains a 1141 clear, distinct, and truthful account of his misdeeds, and represents faithfully how entirely unsuitable he was for the office.

The act of his removal was an administrative act of the chancellor of the district aforesaid, upon grounds defined by the code of Alabama then in force, and upon grounds clearly specified in the statutes. The bill was taken as confessed for a failure to appear and to answer, and a decree pro confesso was, by the code of the State, the equivalent of an admission of the charges and allegations of the bill.

The defendant, for further answer, says that the plaintiff, Ketchum, was made a party by publication, according to law and the practice of the court, and the decree confirms to the allegations and prayer of the bill.

1142 But the defendant says that the civil code had provided that when a party was a non-resident, and the decree made without personal service, that the defendant might, within 18 months, apply for a rehearing, and obtain the same upon an exhibition to the court that there was a defence; and the decree rendered under such conditions was not considered as final or absolute till the expiration of that term under the law of the court and the code. The defendant further answers and says that in 1865 the convention of the State, and afterwards, in 1866, 1867, and 1868, the legislature of the State, recognizing the fact that civil commotions had existed in the State from January 11th, 1861, until the close of hostilities in the spring of 1865, and that orderly administration had been much interrupted, and that there were cases 1143 which might, for the ends of justice, require another examation, by a series of acts and ordinances prolonged the period until the 26th June, 1869, in which any party might apply to the court to re-open the orders, judgments, and decrees during that period, and made it the duty of the courts to grant rehearings and new trials precisely as they might have been obtained in a time of peace, and while the court had full possession of the cause and the parties.

In respect to the decrees in chancery, it was a prolongation of the period for an application for a rehearing which had been allowed to non-residents in time of peace who were not personally served with process. And the defendant avers that the said Ketchum had notice of the terms of the decree of the court of chancery, in October, 1865, and of 1144 his removal from office by the said decree, and that successors had been appointed to supply the vacancy created by the death of his associates and his own removal by the decree, and the question came plainly before him and to him what was to be done, and he deliberately concluded and persisted in the determination from that date to the date of the filing of this bill to allow the decree to stand in full force. The motive for this determination is rather to be found in the fact that had the decree been opened he would have been required to answer for the violation of trusts and to account for the bonds he had embezzled. But so it is that he made no attempt to obtain a revision of the decree in the State or federal courts by any sort of proceedings. Nor did he make any application to the court of chancery to rehear or to 1145 modify or set aside its decree. Nor did he make any claims upon the corporation for a restoration of his rights, supposed or actual. Nor did he make any claim on his successors till this bill was filed, but for the whole period continuous and adverse possession of the estate and rights derived under the deed have been held by his successors, and the corporation and the defendant claims the benefit of the statutes of limitation, as well in respect to the bringing of suits for property as well as the statutes in respect to appeals, rehearings, and other acts for modifying or contesting decrees of courts of chancery, in answer to the pretensions of the said plaintiff.

And the defendant denies that the said plaintiff was moved to 1146 commence this suit by any considerable number of the holders of bonds, or the holders of any considerable amount of the debt of the company. On the contrary, it has been shown by his own affidavit and that of E. L. Andrews, his solicitor in this suit, that he was incited to bring this suit at or about the first of March, 1876, by the barratrous instigations and interference of the said attorney, E. L. Andrews. That he had no expectation of coming into the State of Alabama to fulfil a single duty it imposed, and that he simply lent his said attorney his name to bring a suit in the courts.

The personalities in the bill, the special mention of a supposed creditor (Alexander Duncan), without any sort of propriety, or of decorum, in the bill, the late period at which the suit was brought, and the 1147 conditions under which, between Ketchum and Andrews, it was instituted, demonstrate a conspiracy to levy some sort of contribution from some of the parties as hush-money, and that the said suit was commenced and is prosecuted adversely to the interest of the corporation, the bondholders, and the trustees, for the hope of gain, between the client and his attorney. While the holders of bonds to more than $1,500,000 in amount have afforded their support and expressed their confidence in the defendant and his associates, no one holder of bonds, either produced or proved, has given any expression of support or confidence to the said Ketchum so far as is shown by any proof shown to the court. The defendant denies all manner of fraud, collusion, contrivance, with which he is charged, and refers to the orders and 1148 decrees of this honorable court for the proof of the regularity and propriety of his entry into possession of the property described in the deed of trust.

And to the residue of the said bill to which the plea and answer does not apply and which claim a discovery and relief from the trustees and the possession of the property to be surrendered to the said Morris Ketchum, and refers to the administration of the trustees, the defendant demurs, and for cause of demurrer assigns that the plaintiff has not stated in his said bill a case to entitle him to the relief or discovery prayed for against this defendant.

He therefore demands judgment from this honorable court whether he ought to make any other plea or answer than he has already made; and he prays of the court that because the said plaintiff is with- 1149 out a just claim to any relief or discovery that his bill be dismissed and that he be condemned to pay all costs.

1151 Plea, answer, and demurrer of S. L. M. Barlow.

Circuit court of the United States for southern district of Alabama.

MORRIS KETCHUM
vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL. } In equity.

The separate plea, answer, and demurrer of Samuel L. M. Barlow, to the bill of complaint filed in this hon. court by Morris Ketchum, against the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, the said Barlow and others, defendants.

This defendant by protestation, not confessing any of the matters and things in said bill of complaint set forth, in manner and form therein alleged to be true, for plea to so much and such parts of said bill as allege that the complainant was at the time of filing said bill a trustee by and under the deed of trust made by the Mobile and Ohio 1152 Railroad Company to the complainant, and to John J. Palmer, and William R. Hallett (both now deceased), dated November 1, 1853, mentioned and described in said bill, says Ketchum was not, and is not now, a trustee under said deed, and had not then, and has not now, any right, title, or interest, in or to the property, rights, or privileges described in and conveyed by said deed of trust, because this defendant doth aver and say, that long before the filing of said bill, to wit, on the 6th January, 1862, the said railroad company did exhibit its bill of complaint in chancery against the said Morris Ketchum, in the court of chancery, at Mobile, for the first district of the southern chancery division of the State of Alabama, in and for the county of Mobile, charging therein that the said Ketchum had failed to perform the duties of trustee imposed on him by the said deed of trust, and had 1153 been unfaithful in the performance of his duties as such trustee, and was an unfit person to hold said office of trustee, and that he had fraudulently withheld from said corporation, the grantor in said trust-deed, property thereof, to the possession of which it was entitled, and that he resided out of the State of Alabama, to wit, in the State of New York, at that time in hostility to the State of Alabama, and could not execute the duties of trustee aforesaid, and in said suit such proceedings were afterwards had in said court of chancery, that notice of said bill was given to said Ketchum, according to the laws of the said State of Alabama, and the rules and practice of said court of chancery; and the said Ketchum failed to appear, plead, answer, or demur to said bill of complaint, and thereupon a decree was made by said
1154 court, in said suit, which declared the charge in said bill confessed by said Ketchum.

That afterwards, to wit, at the April term, 1863, of said court of chancery, a final decree was rendered in said cause by said court of chancery, and thereby said Ketchum was removed from the said office of trustee under said deed, and other persons were appointed trustees, to execute the provisions of said deed in the room and stead of the said Palmer and Hallett, who had previously departed this life, and of the said Ketchum who had been removed by the decree of said court of chancery, all which will appear by the record of said bill, proceedings, and decree of said court of chancery in said cause remaining of record therein, to an exemplification whereof to be produced by him as may be required, this defendant begs leave to refer as often as may be 1155 required.

And this defendant avers, that said court of chancery had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of said suit and of the parties thereto, and said decree therein remains in full force and effect, in nowise reversed, opened, set aside, annulled, or in any manner qualified, and this defendant prays the judgment of the court, whether he is bound further to make answer unto the bill of said complainant, and that the same may be dismissed.

And for a further plea in this behalf, this defendant saith that soon after the rendition of said final decree hereinbefore mentioned, to wit, in the year 1863, the persons thereby appointed trustees as aforesaid, in the room and place of the said Ketchum, Palmer, and Hallett, entered upon the discharge of their duties as trustees under said appointment 1156 and decree, and upon the exercise of their powers as such trustees, and that they and their successors have ever since that time to the day of the filing of said bill and since continued to act and perform the duties of such trustees, and that said Ketchum some time in the year 1865 had actual notice and knowledge of the rendition of the said decree of removal of himself and appointment of other trustees as aforesaid, and that said appointed trustees had entered upon the discharge of their said duties, and the execution of their said powers, yet said Ketchum took no proceedings, as by the laws of Alabama and the rules and practice of the said court of chancery he might have done, to open said decree and have said cause reheard, but on the contrary acquiesced in said decree, and for more than ten (10) years thereafter has taken no steps in the premises to assert or maintain his said alleged right to said 1157 office of trustees, under the said deed of trust.

This defendant further avers that some time in the month of May, 1875, William Butler Duncan, of the State of New York, and Andrew Foster Elliot, of the State of Louisiana, acting as trustees under said deed and publicly claiming to be such trustees, under authority of said deed of trust, obtained from said railroad company possession of all the property conveyed by said deed, for the purposes and uses of said deed; and afterwards, to wit, on the 11th May, 1875, as such trustees filed their bill of complaint on the equity side of this honorable court, against the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company and others defendants, alleging and showing that as such trustees, they had taken and were then in possession of all the trust property conveyed by said 1158 deed, and therein also bringing to the knowledge of this court other trusts, mortgages, and liens which were alleged against said property, and thereby prayed this hon. court to take jurisdiction of said trust and of said property, and to direct the management, control and disposal of the same as equity and justice might declare.

That thereupon this honorable court did take jurisdiction of said bill and of said cause, which is still pending undisposed of in this honorable court, and has made orders for the management of said property and the administration of said trust, and recognized and still recognizes the said Duncan and Elliott as trustees and receivers of said property, under its orders and directions and charged with the duty of accounting to this court, for the use, management, and income of said property, for the purposes which may be established by its decree, and all this 1159 before the filing of his said bill of complaint by the said Ketchum, as fully appears by the record of the proceedings in said cause remaining in this court, and to which this defendant beg' leave to refer as may be necessary.

Wherefore this defendant prays judgment, whether he should be required to make further answer to said bill.

And this defendant not waiving his said pleas above pleaded, by protestation, not confessing any of the matters and things in said bill alleged, to be true, demurs to so much and such parts of said bill as alleges that said complainant is entitled to the property in said deed of trust described and prays discovery respecting the same, and says the same is not sufficient in equity to entitle the complainant to the discovery and relief he prays because it is not sufficiently shown in and by said bill that complainant as trustee is entitled to said property in his bill 1160 mentioned, and because it is shown by said bill that said complainant before the filing of his said bill, had been by competent authority removed from the said position of trustee.

And this defendant not waiving but insisting upon his said pleas and his said demurrer for answer to so much of said bill as he is advised it is material for him to answer, answering says, from information, he believes the said deed of trust or mortgages mentioned in the bill were made by said railroad company.

He does not admit that said complainant is a trustee under any of said deeds, or that he has claimed to be, or acted as such trustee under any of said deeds, for more than ten years.

He admits from information that said railroad company is in default in payment of interest upon its obligation, and from like informa-1161 tion states that such default began in May, 1874, and has continued from that date.

Respondent admits that he was appointed a trustee of the deed dated the 1st January, 1874, executed by said railroad company, but he shows that he has never had and has not now possession of any of the property therein described, or in complainant's bill mentioned; that he has no knowledge of the management of the said property, or of the accounts in relation thereto by said railroad company or any agent or trustee therefor, to enable him to make any answer in relation thereto.

And as to the other matters in said bill alleged this defendant has not such knowledge or information as will enable him to answer the same, but this defendant insist' on full proof of all said allegations.
1162 And having fully answered, this defendant prays to be hence dismissed with his costs.

In the circuit court of the United States of the southern district of Alabama, in the fifth circuit.

MORRIS KETCHUM, AS SURVIVING TRUSTEE OF the first mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, v. THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, William Butler Duncan and A. Foster Elliott,	In equity.

This case was heard upon the plea in bar of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, defendant, and upon the demurrer of William Butler Duncan, defendant, to the complainant's bill.

The facts as they appear from the allegations of the bill and plea in bar may be briefly stated as follows:

That complainant, Morris Ketchum, is a citizen of the State of Connecticut. That on the first day of November, 1853, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, a body corporate, organized under the laws of Alabama, and authorized by law to purchase, hold, and dispose of, real and personal estate, to borrow money, and to give evidences of debt and securities for the payment of the same by pledge, mortgage, or otherwise, as it shall deem necessary and proper, executed its deed of trust conveying to Morris Ketchum and John J. Palmer, then of New 1165 York, and William R. Hallett, then of Mobile, and to the survivors and successors of them in fee-simple, all its railroad property and franchises, in trust to secure six thousand bonds, each for the sum of two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling, and payable in thirty years from date thereof, with coupons attached for interest payable semi-annually. There was included in said conveyance one million one hundred and fifty-six thousand six hundred and fifty-eight and $\frac{92}{100}$ acres of land, and as provided in the deed of conveyance, complainant and said Palmer and Hallett are "to have and to hold the said granted and demised premises, property, and franchises, in trust nevertheless for the benefit, security, and advantage of the person or persons or corporations, or any other party who might become holders of the bonds hereinbefore described, or any of them issued, or to be issued by said company, and for the payment of the interest coupons thereon as the same shall respectively fall due."

That said Ketchum, Palmer and Hallett accepted the trust and became the mortgagees of the said property in trust for the holders of the bonds above described. That the railroad company did afterwards sell and negotiate the bonds to bona fide holders thereof, the same being made negotiable by delivery. That most of them are now outstanding and are valid claims against said company, and valid liens against and upon the property and income and assets of said company. That John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett, co-trustees with complainant, both died about January 1st, 1861, leaving complainant, Morris Ketchum, the sole surviving trustee of the first mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Complainant alleges that he is informed that about the 5th day of December, 1861, and nearly nine months after the State of Alabama had adopted an ordinance of secession from the United States, and after the commencement of armed hostilities, the directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company applied to a court of chancery then sitting in the Confederate States, so-called, and within the territory of the State of Alabama, for an order declaring his removal from the trusteeship of the said mortgage.

1166 That he is informed that "on the 7th day of April, 1862, an order or decree was granted by said court to remove him from said trust on the sole ground that he was a citizen of New York and an alien enemy of the Confederate States."

He alleges that he never heard of or had any knowledge of the pretended proceedings to remove him until after the termination of armed hostilities between the Confederate States and State of Alabama and the United States in the year 1865; that he has from the time of his appointment as original trustee under said mortgage, down to the present time, continued to act as such trustee, and perform the duties of said office, and has acted with and concerted with his cestuis que trust during all of said time for the protection of the rights of the bondholders.

He alleges that he has no personal interest in the said bonds; that his sole object, purpose, and desire is to perform his duty as trustee towards the bondholders and to protect their interest and defend the trust; that he has been requested by a number of the holders of said bonds owning bonds to a large aggregate amount, to institute these proceedings upon the default in the payment of interest, which default he alleges has been made.

He alleges that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company is largely indebted, embarrassed in its business affairs, utterly insolvent and unable to pay its debts.

He says that he is totally remediless to enforce the said claims and liens at law without the intervention and process of a court of equity.

The prayer of his bill is, that the property conveyed in the deed of trust may be sold for the benefit of the bondholders; that a receiver be appointed to take charge of and administer the property until a sale can be made, and for general relief.

To this bill is interposed a plea in bar by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company setting up the proceedings and decree of the court of chancery of the State of Alabama for the first district of the southern chancery division of Alabama, in the city of Mobile, in which the company was complainant and Morris Ketchum was made defendant, in which bill it was charged "that said Ketchum had failed to 1167 perform his duties as trustee, as provided by said deed; that he had been unfaithful in the performance of his duty as such trustee; that he was not trustworthy as such trustee, and was an unfit and improper person to hold said office; that he had fraudulently withheld the property of said company in his hands from their custody; that he resided beyond the limits of this State and in a territory at the time hostile to the State in which the property was, and that he could not execute and carry out the duties of said trust nor perform the duties required thereby.

"That said court did assume and exercise its jurisdiction, and did, by order, cause publication to be made according to the laws and practice of said State, requiring the said Morris Ketchum, as defendant to said bill, to appear in said court and to defend against the same; which publication was made, and the court did proceed to hear and determine the matter of the complaint; and, at the April term, 1863, it was ordered and decreed by the chancellor, in said court of chancery at Mobile, that said Morris Ketchum, defendant in said cause, should be, and he thereby was, removed from his said office as trustee, and by said decree a successor to Morris Ketchum was appointed, and who from that time did hold, and execute the duties of, said office of trustee, as the successor and in lieu of said Morris Ketchum, until the time when the co-defendants of said company, William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliott, were appointed such trustees.

"That said decree is still of record in said court, of full force and effect; that it has not in any manner been impaired, reviewed, reversed, or set aside; nor has any new trial or rehearing been applied for or had, as provided by the law of said court, nor any appeal; but the same has been fully executed by the removal of said Ketchum from said office and his discharge therefrom, and his place supplied.

"And that he, the said Ketchum, well knowing that he has been discharged and removed, has, from the rendition thereof to the date of his filing said bill in this court, acquiesced in said decree, and has not during said time done or performed any of the acts or duties, or done anything whatever in the execution of said trust duties."

1168 The ground of the demurrer to the bill of complaint by William Butler Duncan is: That the bill shows that Ketchum had knowledge of his removal and the appointment of new trustees, and shows no compliance with the laws which gave the court jurisdiction to review, nor any attempt to have the decree reopened within the time named by the several statutes on the subject.

Substantially the same questions are raised by the plea and demurrer, and they will be considered together.

George Hoadley, D. C. Labatt, and Edward L. Andrews, for complainant.

John A. Campbell, George N. Stewart, and Peter Hamilton, for defendants.

BRUCE, J.:

This statement of the issue made in the pleadings presents directly the question as to whether the decree of the court—which, for the sake of brevity, may be called the State chancery court at Mobile—is a bar to the relief sought in complainant's bill. In other words, did the proceedings and decree of the State chancery court at Mobile, in law, remove Morris Ketchum from his position as trustee in the deed of trust? This depends upon the question of the jurisdiction of that court to hear and determine the cause brought by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, in 1863, against Morris Ketchum to remove him from his trusteeship in the deed of trust set out in the complainant's bill.

No question is made as to the general jurisdiction of the chancery courts of Alabama prior to the war of the late rebellion.

It may also be assumed that this jurisdiction continued during the existence of the State of Alabama as one of the so-called Confederate States of America; that is, so far as such jurisdiction, and the decrees of such courts, can be now recognized and held as valid by the courts of the United States, State and Federal.

1169 The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company is a corporation, organized under the laws of Alabama, with its chief place of business in the city of Mobile, Alabama, and the portion of its property within the State of Alabama was within the territorial jurisdiction of the State chancery court at Mobile.

But, did the said chancery court have jurisdiction of the defendant, Morris Ketchum? For the legal principle is that there must not only be jurisdiction of the subject-matter, but of the parties as well. Notice, and an opportunity to be heard, are essential to the jurisdiction of a court to hear and determine a cause. A party defendant must have his day in court. It is a fundamental legal maxim that no one shall be condemned in his person or estate without an opportunity to be heard in his own defence. (Windsor v. McVeigh, Opinion of U. S. Supreme Court; Albany Law Journal, January 6, 1877.)

It is not claimed that Morris Ketchum had actual notice of the proceedings in the chancery court at Mobile. But it is claimed that he had constructive notice; that he was at the time a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that under section 3335 of the revised code of Alabama—which was the law of Alabama at the time of the suit— a publication was made in a newspaper printed in the city of Mobile.

It is not questioned that this publication of notice was made in accordance with the statute law of Alabama in force at the time, and that a proper return of such publication was made to the court.

The fact is, however, that Ketchum did not appear in said court to plead or answer to the bill filed against him, either in person or by attorney. He made default, and a decree pro confesso was taken against him; and, in due course, a final decree for his removal as trustee.

He says, in his bill of complaint, that he never heard, or in any way had any knowledge, of the said pretended proceeding to divest him of his property as trustee as aforesaid until after the termination of armed hostilities between the so-called Confederate States and the State of Alabama and the United States, in the year 1865.

1170 Courts are bound judicially to know the public history of the country.

On the 11th day of January, 1861, the State of Alabama, in convention assembled, passed what is known as the ordinance of secession, purporting to dissolve her connection with the Federal Union as one of the States thereof.

Immediately thereafter a State government was organized in hostility to the Government of the United States, and declared itself to be a State of the so-called Government of the Confederate States of America, which was organized in all its departments, executive, legislative, and judicial, with its seat of government in the city of Montgomery and State of Alabama.

On the 15th day of April, A. D. 1861, the President of the United States, by executive proclamation, recognized the existence of armed insurrection against the United States by Alabama and her confederate States.

At and before the time of these proceedings in the chancery court in the city of Mobile war was flagrant between the two sections of the country. Ketchum was at that time a resident citizen of the State of New York. In actual fact military lines were established and organized armies lay between him and the place where the court was held in which he was cited to appear. Moreover, he was at the time a citizen of the United States, and his duty of allegiance to his government made it unlawful for him to cross the military lines—even if that were possible—and to appear in a court organized by the government of the enemy and in a country at the time held by the enemy.

In July, 1861, Congress passed what is known as the non-intercourse acts, by which all intercourse and correspondence with persons within the enemy's lines was interdicted and made unlawful.

Under these circumstances, whatever jurisdiction might be accorded to a court of one of the Confederate States of America during the war of the rebellion—such as was this chancery court of Alabama sitting in Mobile—as between citizens of Alabama, or as between citizens 1171 of the Confederate States, the proposition seems clear that such a court could acquire no jurisdiction of citizens of the United States residing and being at the time in the States adhering to the Government of the United States.

In Hanger vs. Abbott (6 Wall., 535) it is held by the Supreme Court, opinion by Justice Clifford, that "war, when duly declared or recognized as such by the war-making power, imparts a prohibition to the subjects or citizens of all commercial intercourse and correspondence with citizens or persons domiciled in the enemies' country." Also, Cuyler vs. Ferrill, 1 Abbott, 180.

These views are sustained in later cases in the Supreme Court of the United States. (Dean vs. Nelson, 10 Wall., 172; Lasere vs. Rochereau, 17 Wall., 437.)

The precise point seems to have been passed upon by Chief Justice Chase while on the circuit, in the case of Livingston vs. Jordan (10 Amer. Law Rep.), in which he says:

"As between parties residing in the State of South Carolina and parties residing in the States which adhered to the National Government, between whom war made intercourse impossible, there could be no jurisdiction in the courts of South Carolina while the war continued, by which the rights of non-residents could be injuriously affected."

These authorities are irreconcilable with the idea that there was in the chancery court of Mobile at the time these proceedings were had any jurisdiction as to Morris Ketchum which could authorize it to render a decree which can now be recognized as valid in the courts of the United States.

But it is said that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad is a corporation organized under the laws of Alabama, with its principal place of business in the city of Mobile, and that Morris Ketchum knew when he accepted the trust, or will be held to have known, what the laws of Alabama at the time were in reference to service upon non-residents by publication, and that by section 3455 of the Code of Alabama it is 1172 provided that "upon the petition or bill of any person interested in the execution of a trust, the court of chancery may remove any trustee who may have violated or threatened to violate his trust, or who from any other cause is an unsuitable person to execute the trust."

No law of Alabama is shown making it illegal to settle a trust upon a non-resident of the State. From the mortgage-deed it appears that Ketchum was, at the time the trust was created, a citizen of New York. He did not become a non-resident of Alabama, for from aught that appears he never at any time was a citizen or resident of Alabama. The deed was made to three persons, two of whom are described in it as residents of New York; and from this fact, taken in connection with the nature and purpose of the trust, it is fair to presume that their residence at the acknowledged money-centre of the country was a part of the scheme intended by its authors as inducement to parties to become purchasers of the bonds.

But it was urged in argument that when a condition of affairs in the country arose, which, as is said, rendered the duties of the trust impossible of performance by him, by reason of his separation from the property, he should have resigned his position. The fact is, however, he did not resign, and it is his legal rights we are now dealing with.

It is claimed that the suit in the chancery court of Mobile was a suit in rem and not in personam.

It is not clear that it was in any strict legal sense a proceeding in rem, but I do not deem it necessary to discuss this question, for if it was so, still the defendant was entitled to notice and an opportunity to be heard, which was, as we have seen, an impossibility, in the then condition of the country, Ketchum then residing in the State of New York, one of the adhering States of the Federal Union, while Alabama had joined her fortunes to the Confederate States, and war was flagrant between the two sections of the country. (Earle vs. McVeigh, 1 Otto, p. 503.)

If this view is correct it is decisive of the case, for without jurisdiction of this sole defendant the court, though it may have been legally constituted, could render no decree competent to divest Ketchum 1173 of the title to the property (real estate) which he acquired under the deed of trust.

The next enquiry is as to the competency of this court, constituted as it was, to make a decree which can now be held conclusive as to the rights of complainant.

Before entering upon this question, it is proper to inquire what this trust really was. A trust is defined to be an "estate held for the use of another." The deed shows the conveyance of the title in fee simple to the trustees, and it also contains specified duties to be performed by the trustees. It is then more than a mere office. It is an estate. It is more than a simple trust. It is a special trust, with active duties to be performed, and with powers in the nature of a trust.

It appears that Ketchum does not own any of the bonds, but it cannot be questioned that he, by the acceptance of the trust, became invested with an estate and held a position of responsibility to the bondholders, from which he could not release himself by a resignation or any voluntary act on his part; for after the purchase of the bonds they, the bondholders, became parties in interest in the transaction. With this view of the nature of the trust, and the relation of Ketchum to it as trustee, the question of the competency of the State chancery court of Alabama, sitting in Mobile during the war, to pass a decree to be taken and held as valid and conclusive as to the rights of the complainant herein, can be more clearly considered.

The question, then, is, what validity is now to be accorded to the acts, legislative and judicial, of the Confederate States during the period of their existence as States of the so-called Government of the Confederate States of America, and while the Confederate States were at war with the United States.

Before passing to the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States upon this subject, I call attention to the law as it has been held and declared in this circuit.

In the case of Van Epps vs. Walsh et al., reported in 1st Woods, 609, the court, Woods circuit judge, says:

"The decree of the chancery court of Mobile County, directing 1174 Dorgan and Walsh to enter satisfaction of the mortgage made to them by Van Epps, the guardian, was also made coram non judice.

"The main party in interest was the minor Van Epps, who was in the State of New York, and prohibited by the laws of the United States from making any defence.

"It is not pretended that any actual notice was served, or could be legally served, upon him, and, even if served, he could make no defence, and the purpose of the decree against him was to deprive him of the security which the guardian had given him to protect his estate.

"It was a decree depriving him of his just rights, and in rendering it the court was no court, and the decree is ineffectual." (Citing Cuyler v. Ferrill, and other authorities.)

In the case of Lockhart v. Horn, in this circuit, reported in 1 Woods, 628, afterwards affirmed in the Supreme Court of the United States, and reported in 17 Wallace, p. 570, Justice Bradley, speaking, as it seems to me, with much care, uses this language:

"As a general rule, in my judgment, all transactions, judgments, and decrees, which took place in conformity with existing laws of the Confederate States, between citizens thereof, during the late war, except such as were directly in aid of the rebellion, ought to stand good."

From these authorities it appears that the law, as held in the fifth circuit up to this time, is, that judgments and decrees of the State courts of the Confederate States, rendered during the war, are to stand good as between citizens thereof; but as to citizens residing in the adhering States they are not valid, and the court, as to them, is no court.

I now pass to a review of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, to see if these views and authorities heretofore cited are borne out by the decisions of that court, which is the ultimate judicial authority by which we are bound.

The question of the validity of the acts, legislative and judicial, of what may be called the Confederate States during the war, is not a new question in that tribunal. There are many cases, and I have to extract from them the true rule of decision, and apply it to the case at 1175 bar. An early and a leading case, to which reference is often made, is the case of Texas v. White (reported in 7 Wallace, 733). In that case the court, by Chief Justice Chase delivering the opinion, says:

"It is not necessary to attempt any exact definitions within which the acts of such a State government must be treated as valid or invalid. It may be said, perhaps, with sufficient accuracy, that acts necessary to peace and good order among citizens, such, for example, as acts sanctioning and protecting marriage and the domestic relations, governing the course of descents, regulating the conveyance and transfer of property, real and personal, and providing remedies for injuries to person and estate, and other similar acts which would be valid if emanating from a lawful government, must be regarded in general as valid when proceeding from an actual, though unlawful, government, and that acts in furtherance or support of rebellion against the United States, or intended to defeat the just rights of citizens, and other acts of like nature, must in general be regarded as void."

In some of the later cases decided by the Supreme Court, the rule is stated with more brevity and exactness, but they are all on a line with the case of Texas v. White.

The leading authorities are: Texas v. White, 7 Wallace; Lockhart v. Horn, 17 Wallace, 57; University v. Finch, 18 Wallace, 107; Sprott v. United States, 20 Wallace, 459; United States v. Insurance Companies, 22 Wall., 99.

The latest case brought to my notice upon this subject is the case of Taylor v. Thomas (reported in 22 Wallace, 491). After a review of some of the former decisions on the subject, the court, speaking by Justice Clifford, quotes from the case of Horn v. Lockhart, in which case Justice Field, delivering the opinion of the court, said:

"Order was to be preserved, police regulations maintained, crime prosecuted, property protected, contracts enforced, marriages celebrated, estates settled, and descent of property regulated precisely as in times of peace. No one that we are aware of," say the court, 1176 "seriously questions the validity of judicial or legislative acts in the insurrectionary States, touching these and kindred subjects, where they were not hostile in their purpose or mode of enforcement to the authority of the National Government, and did not impair the rights of citizens under the Constitution."

In the case of the United States v. Insurance Companies, cited by defendants' counsel, the same doctrine, substantially, is laid down.

The case was that of two insurance companies, corporations created by the legislature of Georgia in 1861 and 1863, while the State was in armed rebellion against the United States, and the errors assigned were:

1st. In holding that claimants had a legal existence.

2nd. In holding that the rebel legislature of Georgia could create a corporation capable of suing the United States after the suppression of the rebellion.

In the opinion of the court, delivered by Justice Strong, after quoting from the former decisions of the court on the subject, he states the rule thus:

"All the enactments of the de facto legislatures in the insurrectionary States, during the war, which were not hostile to the Union or to the authority of the general government, and which were not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States, or of the States, have the same validity as if they had been enactments of legitimate legislatures." He proceeds: "Any other doctrine would work great and unnecessary hardship upon the people of those States without any corresponding benefit to the citizens of other States, and without any advantage to the national government."

This case illustrates the rule clearly, and shows the principle upon which it rests.

The incorporation of insurance companies had no element of hostile legislation. They could not, in carrying out the legitimate purposes of their organization, give aid to the rebellion, or affect the rights of citizens of the United States. Their incorporation pertained purely to the domestic affairs of the State, and was just such legislation as would have been called for in times of peace.

1177 The Confederate State governments were, during the war, charged with the duty of protecting civil society within their respective States. This was to be done, not by the suspension of the functions of the legislative and judicial departments of these governments, but by their continued exercise. Law was to be administered, social order preserved, and this could only be done by the activity of the agencies provided for that purpose.

The proposition then is that the acts, legislative and judicial, of these de facto State governments during the war, within certain limits, are to have the same validity as if proceeding from State governments de jure. And this rule rests upon public policy and is to have its full scope and effect, but the limitations are to be steadily kept in view.

Though these limitations may not be capable of expression in precise language applicable to every case, they may be thus stated:

First. That the acts were not in aid of the rebellion, or hostile in their purpose or mode of enforcement to the national authority.

Second. That they did not injuriously affect or impair the legal rights of citizens of the United States residing at the time in the adhering States of the Union.

Tested by this rule, with these limitations in view, what shall we say of the decree of the State chancery court at Mobile, rendered in 1863, removing Ketchum from his trusteeship in this deed of trust?

There may be some difficulty in applying the first of the rules above laid down because the purpose or motive for action may not be apparent, and the rule is perhaps to be limited to cases where hostility is apparent.

A railroad is a very important agency in carrying on military operations, and it is a matter of history that this particular road was of great service to both parties during the late war, but it does not clearly appear that the removal of Ketchum was intended as a war measure in aid of the rebellion, or that in its effect it made the southern portion of the road any more valuable to the Confederacy, or the north-1178 ern portion of it any less valuable to the Government of the United States in the actual prosecution of the war then going on.

The chancery court, however, seems to have based its decree on the ground that Ketchum was an alien enemy of the Confederate States, which implies a purpose to place this trust in the control of some one at least not an enemy to the Confederate States, and when Ketchum's residence in one of the adhering States of the Union is considered, the presumption arises that some benefit to the Confederate States, present or prospective, was sought by the change, though that presumption, perhaps, may not be conclusive.

It is suggested that it was sought to divest Ketchum of the lands in order that sales might be effected for Confederate money, but that also rests upon inference and is not conclusive.

But the question recurs, was this decree of the State chancery court at Mobile, in its effect if accorded validity, an impairment of the rights held by Ketchum, "a citizen of the United States, under the Constitution?" to use the language employed by the Supreme Court in case of Taylor vs. Thomas, (22 Wallace.)

I do not understand the phrase "rights of citizens under the Constitution" to mean exclusively Federal rights as such, but legal rights—just rights—rights for the infraction of which the law furnishes remedies. And it is such rights of citizens of the United States which it was not competent for this court to impair or injuriously affect.

The argument seems to be that the judgments and decrees of the State courts of the Confederate States during the war are to be held and regarded as of the same validity as the judgments and decrees of the courts of the States adhering to the Federal Union, and when regularly rendered cannot be attacked collaterally, but only in a direct proceeding.

The cases cited do not, in my judgment, sustain that doctrine, and some of the opinions of the Supreme Court of the United States 1179 express dissent from such a view; the predicate for such a doctrine was destroyed when the Confederate power and Government was overthrown.

But it is claimed that this decree has been ratified and validated by the action of the State conventions of the State of Alabama, held after the war, to restore the State to its proper relations to the Union, and that this deed of trust was made with reference to the laws of Alabama and is to be governed by those laws alone.

If I am right in my conclusion that this decree was void as to the rights of Ketchum, as trustee in this trust, it follows that it could not acquire validity from such acts, as it was incapable of legal life. But this scheme for raising money upon bonds secured by deed of trust upon the property of the railroad company located (in part) in Alabama, with its principal place of business in the city of Mobile, looked for its execution and accomplishment beyond the limits of the State of Alabama.

It was not expected to raise six millions of money in this State, and the form of the bonds and coupons, as negotiable securities, payable to bearer, for so many pounds sterling at the banking-house of George Peabody & Co., London, shows the purpose to have been to reach the money centres of the world. When the bonds were sold the purchasers acquired an interest in this security, and the transaction became a contract between the parties. The bondholders have never been parties to any judicial proceedings for, or given consent to, the removal of Ketchum as trustee. To remove the trustee and substitute another in his place in any other way than by a proper judicial proceeding was to change and impair the obligation of the contract. This the State of Alabama, neither by its constitutional conventions nor by its legislature had any power to do. Hence, it could not ratify and make valid that which was beyond its power to do in the first instance. (Knapp v. Railroad Company, 20 Wallace.)

It is further claimed that, after the war, when the proceedings of the chancery court at Mobile were brought to the knowledge of 1180 Ketchum, he should have availed himself of the time that was given by the constitutional conventions of Alabama to apply for a rehearing of this decree, or have taken an appeal from it, time having been given for these purposes.

If I am correct in my conclusion that this decree was void as to him, then he was under no obligation to pay any regard to it. The effect of an application on his part after the war, to open the decree or to take an appeal, time for which was amply extended by the law-making power of the State, it is not important to discuss; for the fact is, he did not make any such application. The doctrine of estoppel is also invoked as to the complainant. He admits that he acquired knowledge of the proceedings and decree in the State chancery court, at Mobile, in the year 1865, after the close of the war. It is claimed that from that time to the time of the filing of this bill (1876), he has taken no steps to assert his rights as trustee, and has thereby acquiesced in what has been done, and is estopped from asserting any right as trustee in the deed of trust.

It is to be observed that, by the terms of the deed of trust, after specifying the duties of the trustees as to the lands covered by the deed, it goes on to say: "As to other items of assets of real estate, tolls, or income of said company, they are to remain in the possession or under the control of the said company, except the said company become in default for the payment of said bonds or interest, or any portion thereof. In such case the said party of the second part is hereby vested with full authority to take possession and control of all and singular the entire estate," &c., &c. And again, "Said party of the second part shall not claim to take possession and control, unless said company remains in default of payment of said bonds or interest for the space of three months after being due and payable."

This default in the payment of interest occurred in May, 1875, so that, up to that time, by the terms of the deed, the railroad company was entitled to the possession and control of the property, except the lands, and as to them, until the default, no sales could be made "without the advice and consent of the company."

1181 The trustees were at once, however, to have possession and control of the lands donated by Congress, with authority to devise and determine rules of management of sale; of investing the nett proceeds in such funds as will suitably and safely create a sinking fund for the redemption or payment of said bonds, &c., &c. This suit was brought in May, 1876, so that as to the property other than the lands. Ketchum's duties arose in fact only a few months prior to the bringing of this suit.

But with regard to the land grant the matter is quite different; for, by the terms of the deed, the trustees had duties to perform as to the sale of the lands, with a view to the creation of a sinking fund with the proceeds thereof.

This indicates a neglect of duty on the part of Ketchum, and might afford good cause, in a court of competent jurisdiction, in a proper proceeding, and upon proof, to depose him from his trust, but that is all. A mere neglect of duty as trustee will not and cannot, ex proprio vigore, divest his title to the trust-estate.

This is not a plea of the statute of limitations. It is acquiescence since the year 1865. Acquiescence implies something to be acquiesced in, and the plea is that "he acquiesced in the decree," meaning the decree of the State chancery court at Mobile.

The rule of law upon this subject is thus stated by the supreme court of the State of Alabama, in the case of Ware et al. vs. Cowles (reported in 24 Ala., p. 446), Goldthwaite J., delivering the opinion, says:

"The first question presented upon the record is, whether upon the case made by the bill Cowles was estopped from asserting his title against Seales and Jones.

"It is clear, both upon principle and authority, that the conduct or admission which concludes a party, must be plainly inconsistent with the right which he afterwards sets up." Again:

If the act or admission be susceptible of two constructions, one of which is consistent with the right, the party would not be concluded by its assertion, because to do so might operate to defeat a man's right by argument or inference, which is not allowable.

1182 Again the court says, "So, too, the admission, however unequivocal it may be, will not operate as an estoppel unless the other party has acted upon it," citing authorities.

Now apply this rule:

Did Charles Walsh, when he became trustee under the appointment of the court, act upon any conduct or admission of Morris Ketchum? Was not the decree of the court the acknowledged foundation and source of whatever rights he acquired?

The plea says that "by said decree," meaning the decree of the chancery court of Mobile, "a successor to Ketchum was appointed, and who from that time did hold and execute the duties of said office as successor in lieu of and stead of said Ketchum until the time when the co-defendants of this company, William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliott, were appointed such trustees." Manifestly, then, the decree was the basis and source of the alleged rights of the present trustees, not any acts or admission of Ketchum, for he was then living in the State of New York, and without the opportunity or right of intercourse with the parties.

The most that could be said is, that the silence of Ketchum may have increased the confidence of the trustees in their position, but that mere silence under such circumstances could operate to divest the title to a trust estate, is, to my mind, untenable. The result of these views is, that the plea in bar and the demurrer are overruled.

1183 Order overruling demurrer & plea.

United States circuit court in and for the fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

MORRIS KETCHUM, AS SURVIVING TRUSTEE OF the first mortgage of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company,
vs.
THE MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, W'm Butler Duncan et als.
} In equity.

At a regular term of the circuit court of the United States in and for the southern district of Alabama, commencing on the fourth Monday of December, A. D. 1876, and holden on the 3rd day of February, 1877.

This cause came on to be heard at the stated term of this court on the bill and exhibits of the complainant Morris Ketchum, and on the plea in bar of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and on the demurrer of William Butler Duncan, defendants.

1184 The cause was argued on behalf of Morris Ketchum by George Hoadley, D. C. Labatt, E. L. Andrews, esquires, and on behalf of the defendants above named, by John A. Campbell, Peter Hamilton, and George N. Stewart, esquires.

The court being duly advised in the premises, and having fully deliberated thereon, it is hereby adjudged and decreed that the demurrer of the defendant William Butler Duncan, to the entire bill, and the plea in bar of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the entire bill, be, and the same are, and each of them is hereby overruled, to abide the result of the suit.

N. W. TRIMBLE, Clerk.

1185 Circuit court of the United States, fifth judicial circuit and southern district of Alabama.

MORRIS KETCHUM
agst.
MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY AND OTHERS.

The separate answer of William Butler Duncan to the bill of complaint in this honorable court, by Morris Ketchum against the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, this respondent, and others.

This respondent, not in any manner or at all waiving the demurrer by him heretofore filed to said bill of complaint, but insisting thereon, and upon the benefits and advantages thereof, and reserving to himself all benefits and advantages of exception to the many errors and uncertainties in complainant's said bill of complaint contained, for an-1186 swer thereunto, or unto so much and such parts thereof as this defendant is advised it is necessary or material for him to make answer unto, answering, saith:

This respondent does not admit that said complainant is a citizen of the State of Connecticut. Said complainant, in his original bill, which purports to be sworn to by him, asserts himself to be a citizen of the State of New York; in amendments which have been filed to said bill by said complainant, which also are sworn to by him, he declares himself to be a citizen of the State of Connecticut. Said complainant is engaged in business in the State of New York; but upon the conflicting allegations of the record, this respondent insists that said complainant shall prove his citizenship to be in the State of Connecticut, otherwise that his said bill be dismissed for want of jurisdiction in this court.

Respondent admits the allegations of the bill that the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company is a body politic and corporate, constituted under the laws of Alabama, and recognized in the laws of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, and has its domicile and principal office and place of business in the city of Mobile and State of Alabama, and holds property in all of said States. Respondent refers to the several acts of the several legislatures of said States for the authority and powers of said corporation, and the duties imposed upon it.

This respondent admits that on 1st November, 1853, said corporation at Mobile, in said State of Alabama, did execute its mortgage or deed of trust upon the property and rights therein described, to secure the payment of bonds therein described to the amount of not exceeding six millions of dollars, with interest thereon, payable semi annually, as provided by interest-coupons attached to said bonds, and that for the due and proper administration of the trusts for the benefit of the 1187 parties beneficially interested therein in said deed described, Morris Ketchum, John J. Palmer, and William R. Hallett were nominated therein trustees under said mortgage. For a full and accurate description and understanding of the said deed and the rights of persons and parties thereunder, this respondent refers to the said deed, and prays the same may be produced before this honorable court.

Respondent admits that after the execution of said deed, said corporation did issue a large number of bonds thereunder, and intended to be secured by it; and from information states there is still outstanding of the principal of said bonds about the sum of five million six hundred and nine thousand dollars, with a large amount of unpaid interest thereon, which now exists in the form of bonds heretofore issued for the funding of interest before that time matured and unpaid, and in the shape of the original interest-coupons which have matured on and since 1st May, 1874.

Respondent admits that the said Palmer and Hallett are dead; he is informed, and therefore so states, that said Palmer died prior to 1st March, 1859, but the exact time is not known to this deponent; that Hallett died on or about 20th June, 1860, and thereupon the said Ketchum became surviving trustee under said deed of mortgage and trust, and it became and was his duty to unite with said corporation in filling the vacancies which had been created by such deaths.

Respondent is informed and believes, and therefore states that said Ketchum would not unite with said corporation in filling such vacancies, except on condition that said corporation would assent to his demand for compensation which it deemed unjust and excessive; upon like information respondent states that two gentlemen every way fit for the position, to wit, Charles Walsh and G. M. Parker, were in the year 1860 proposed by said railroad company to said Ketchum to be appointed to said vacancies. Said Ketchum intimated that he 1188 would accept one of said nominees, and proposed himself to communicate to the directors of the corporation his selection, and with him to nominate the then president of the company, Milton Brown, for appointment to said vacancies, but insisted upon naming the terms on which he would so co-operate with said company, which were that his demand for compensation should first be assented to. M'r Brown declined to be a party to any such scheme, and thereupon said Ketchum declined to accept the said nominees or either of them so proposed on behalf of said railroad company, and thereafter refused to make to said corporation any nomination to fill said vacancies, and asserted his right to act as sole trustee under the said deed; and said corporation did then consider and determine that the purposes of said Ketchum were overreaching and extortionate, and proceeded from motives of personal gain and advantage not for the benefit of the trust, and that he was untrustworthy.

Respondent, upon information which he believes, further states, that upon the preparation of the bonds intended to be secured by said mortgage, the said trustees had retained eighteen of the said bonds for their own compensation; said corporation did not assent to such application of said bonds, and insisted they should be returned; that the sum so withheld was much greater than should equitably be demanded for the services rendered, which consisted solely in certifying said bonds; this objection of the corporation was not regarded, but said bonds were never returned to the company, but with the coupons thereon were retained against the will of said corporation for their said compensation as trustees to the 1st November, 1857, and they continued to demand thereafter an annual salary as such trustees. The recognition of this demand of said Ketchum was made by him the condition on which alone he would perform his duty of uniting with said corporation in the appointment of new trustees to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths aforesaid.

1189 This respondent, upon information and belief as aforesaid, denies the allegation of the complainant, that he, said complainant, offered to the directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to comply with the terms of the mortgage in reference to the appointment of new trustees, and made every effort in his own behalf and with said directors to prevail upon them to conform to the requirements of the mortgage, and to fill the vacancies in the board of trustees thereof.

Said allegation is not true, but on the contrary said Ketchum, in utter disregard of his said duties as trustee aforesaid, sought to use the power which had arisen from the death of the said co-trustees to compel the company to grant terms of payment which were oppressive and which it disapproved and were to the undue personal advantage of him the said survivor.

This respondent, upon information which he believes to be true, further states that while by the terms of the trust-deed the general management of the lands of the corporation was entrusted to the trustees, no sale thereof before default in payment of interest could be made except with the assent of said corporation. The sale of said lands was a matter much desired and greatly to the interest of said company; and with its approval during the life of complainants' co-trustees, but with much opposition from him, an economical mode of sale had been devised and acted upon whereby a considerable quantity of land had been sold. When said Ketchum acquired the position of sole trustee, he refused to carry out the arrangements previously made; refused to permit deeds to be made to purchasers except by himself, and threatened to appoint agents and managers in his own interest, and to inaugurate a scheme under his own control, and at great and unnecessary expense, to the great injury of said corporation and of the cestuis que trust, who were secured by said deed of trust. By his conduct he retarded or pre-1190 vented sales of land and stopped the making of titles to purchasers who had in good faith paid their money for said lands, and caused great distrust among parties disposed to make purchases. He paid no attention to the remonstrances of said corporation, and refused to fill vacancies and advance sales of said lands as desired by the corporation and as intended by said deed of trust, but placed himself in an unfriendly and hostile attitude to the interest and wishes of the creator of said trust and parties interested therein, and all this to advance his own power, and to secure advantage to himself at the expense of the trust and of said corporation.

By his said conduct in the trust, and his management of said trust property, said Ketchum, after the death of his co-trustees, showed that he was an unfit person to continue in said trust. He had not made any report of his acts and doings during the three years preceding the death of M'r Hallett; had not acknowledged reports which were made to him of sales of lands by the agents before that time appointed by the trustees, and failed to perform the duties required of him as such trustee. The said company had made every reasonable offer to induce him to perform his duties and advance the interest of the trust, and unite in the appointment of suitable persons as trustees, but he refused to perform said duties and accede to said reasonable requests as it was his duty to do.

Respondent, upon the facts aforesaid, of which he is informed and verily believes them to be true, denies the allegation of the bill that said corporation or its directors sought to obtain by request or otherwise, of complainant, to be permitted to exercise power and control in the premises, in contravention of the terms of the mortgage. Answering upon information and belief, respondent says that all the charges of the bill of proposed action by said directors for the disposition of the lands or the appointment of trustees to the injury of the cestuis que trust or for the violation of the trusts of the settlement are untrue. It 1191 was complainant who sought to violate said trusts and use his power under said deed, for his personal advantage, in disregard of his duties as trustee for the protection of said railroad company, and the advancement of its interests as well as of the holders of its bonds.

This settled purpose on the part of said Ketchum, was fully developed by his acts and assumptions of right and power after the death of M'r Hallett, which occurred in June, 1860. By the death of M'r Hallett, who was a resident citizen of Alabama, the advantage and convenience of a trustee resident in Mobile, or near the location of said railroad and lands, easy to be consulted, and who could give personal attention to the property and duties of the trust, which advantage and convenience had been secured by said deed, was lost to the said corporation; and if the demands of said Ketchum had been recognized the property and control of the trust would have been wholly in the hands of a non-resident, against the policy of the settlement and of the law of the State where the settlement was made and where was the home of the corporation.

Said Ketchum was at the time plainly notified that he had lost the confidence of the said railroad company, and had proved himself an unfit and untrustworthy trustee, and that the protection of the courts would be invoked against him and against his improper and oppressive demands, and to secure the appointment of suitable persons as trustees in the management of this property.

Respondent, upon information which he believes to be true, states that from the death of said Hallett in 1860, to this time, said Ketchum has not performed, and has not offered to perform any act as trustee under said deed of trust, nor has he at any time claimed to be such trustee until he permitted to be filed the bill in this case; that before the death of said Hallett he had neglected the duties required of him by said deed; that during all that time he has been non-resi-1192 dent of this State, or of any of the States in which the railroad and property of the trust is situated and located, and as respondent verily believes, has not at any time since the execution of said deed been within the limits of any of said States nor upon the line of said railroad.

The respondent admits, that upon these facts thus imperfectly detailed, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company did take legal steps for the removal of said Ketchum from said trusteeship, and for the appointment in the place of said Ketchum, who had acted so improperly and was non-resident of any of the States wherein said property was located, and in lieu of the former trustees who were then deceased, of other persons who would faithfully execute the trust as it had plainly notified him it would be constrained to do; and as it was its duty and right to do for the protection of its creditors by said bonds, for whose payment the property and rights described in said deed of trust had been pledged.

And for defence to so much and such parts of complainant's said bill as charge that said plaintiff at the time of filing his said bill, was and is a trustee under said deed of trust, or had or has any title or estate in the property described therein, or that he is entitled to execute the trusts thereof, or to any ownership or control of said property, this defendant answers and shows to the court that in the month of January, 1862, the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, incorporated by the laws of the State of Alabama, and having its home and chief place of business at Mobile, in the State of Alabama, in which said State the said deed of trust had been and was executed, did file its bill in the court of chancery of the State held at Mobile, being the court of chancery for the first district of the southern chancery division of the State of Alabama, against the said Morris Ketchum as defendant, and 1193 therein did charge that said Ketchum had violated his duties as trustee, and was an unfit person to continue in the position of trustee; had proved himself an improper person to manage said property as trustee; that he had been unfaithful to his trust, and resided beyond the limits of the State where the services of residents were required, and was an unsuitable person to be continued as trustee; said bill also showed that his co-trustees J. J. Palmer and W'm R. Hallett had died and their said office was vacant.

The said Ketchum was made a party defendant to said bill by publication in the mode and manner directed by the laws of the State of Alabama, and the rules of practice of said court, which had been in force from before the date of the said deed of trust; and such proceedings were had upon said bill in said cause, that at its rules in March, 1863, a decree "pro confesso" was pronounced by said court, upon the failure of said defendant to appear and answer said bill according to the order of the court made at regular rules on the 6th January, 1862. At the regular term of said court of chancery in April, 1863, the said court decreed that said Ketchum was incompetent to act as trustee aforesaid, and that the offices of trustee under said deed were all vacant, and made the appointment of three persons, to wit, Charles Walsh, George H. Young and Alexander Jackson, to fill the vacancies caused by the removal of said Ketchum, and the death of said Palmer and Hallett; a certified transcript of which record of proceedings will be produced as this honorable court may direct. This defendant shows that the said court of chancery had full and plenary jurisdiction of the subject matter of said cause, under the constitution and laws of the State of Alabama, and that said Ketchum was made a party to said cause according to the laws of the State and the practice of the court in the case of non-resident defendants; that the causes of the removal of said Ketchum from said trusteeship were such as the statutes of the State declared to be sufficient for his removal; that the court took and ex-1194 ercised jurisdiction of the case; that the decree is in full force and effect; that no appeal has been taken therefrom, and the decree has been fully executed. No application of any kind has at any time been made in or to said court, to open said decree as authorized by the laws of Alabama, or to have a new trial or rehearing thereof, or to review or modify the same, or in any manner to impugn its validity.

This respondent refers to the various public statutes of the State of Alabama which afford remedies to non-residents who have been made defendants in judicial proceedings in the said State under the laws thereof, for the examination, review, rehearing and opening of decrees rendered against them in such proceedings, and pleads the same as part of this answer in defence of this bill of complaint, and avers that said Ketchum has had full opportunity given to him to make defence to said decree of removal, if he had any defence to make, but has utterly failed and refused to make any objection, or dissent thereto.

This respondent shows that said decree was fully executed, and from the date thereof until the date of the filing of this bill, the trustees appointed by said decree, and their successors, have been continuously in possession of said office, and have performed every function and duty imposed by said deed of trust and the condition of the company without opposition, let, or hindrance of said plaintiff, or from any bondholder, but with the acquiescence and submission of said plaintiff and the approval of the bondholders protected by said deed.

This respondent shows that said Ketchum had full notice of his removal as aforesaid, and of said decree in the year 1865, and might have availed himself of the provisions of the laws of Alabama to have obtained a rehearing or a review and opening of said decree at any time from the 28th September, 1865, to the 26th June, 1869, had he been disposed to contest the allegation of the bill filed in that cause, or 1195 the propriety and validity of the application of the plaintiff, for his amotion from an office which he had abused, and which he was not a suitable or proper person to fill; and the said defendant avers that during the whole period, from the month of May, 1861, to the month of May, 1870, the said railroad company was more or less in default in the payment of interest on the said bonds mentioned in the said deed of trust, and that at the termination of the war in 1865, and from then until 1869, there were negotiations for the funding anew of said overdue coupons or warrants for interest on said bonds, and that there was direct intercourse between the holders of the said bonds and the said corporation and the trustees appointed by said court of chancery, and that these negotiations resulted in the capitalization of coupons for interest to the sum of $2,302,120; and that during all that time said Ketchum did not assert any claim or connection with said deed, nor did said corporation recognize any right in him, but, on the contrary, all such claim and connection was repudiated and disavowed by both parties.

Further, this respondent shows to the court that, in May, 1875, he and his associate trustee, A. F. Elliot, filed their bill in this honorable court against the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and others, claiming and asserting themselves to be the trustees of the said deed described in plaintiff's bill, and successors therein of the appointees of said court of chancery as aforesaid, and prayed the foreclosure and sale of said property described in said deed of trust; they are now in possession of said property, of which, as such trustees, they took possession in May, 1875, with the consent of said railroad company, and of the mortgagees of said corporation, who have liens upon said property, and under the order and decree of this honorable court, made upon their filling of their said bill. Said suit so begun by this respondent and his associate in May, 1875, is still pending and undecided in 1196 this court. The defendants thereto have filed their answers to said bill, and the same has been referred by order of this court on 6th March, 1876 (a date prior to the filing of the bill of complaint in this cause) to a special master appointed by the court to report upon the debts due under said deed of trust and other liens created by said corporation, the holders thereof, the property subject to said liens, the priority of the parties, and a proper mode of sale or other disposition of the said property; all which is of record in this court, and will be produced as the court may direct.

This respondent with his said associate still so remains in the possession and control of said property, as trustees aforesaid, with the relation to this court, and the duty and accountability of receivers appointed by the court. So that this honorable court is now in possession by its own officers and appointees of all the property named in said deed of trust, and of the litigation connected therewith, for the purpose of executing the provisions of the deed, of settling the rights of parties thereunder, and applying the proceeds of said property to the persons and parties who are rightfully entitled thereto as holders of the obligations secured by said deed.

This respondent, further answering, shows to the court that the existence of a board of trustees under said deed has been a matter of necessity since the execution of the said deed of trust, and of such a character as could be accessible to the company, and be active in protecting the property, and performing the duties named in the deed, and this was not less so in the year 1862 than at any other time. At that time two of said trustees were dead, and said Ketchum was, and always has been, non-resident of the States wherein the trust property was situated, and had shown himself more intent upon advancing his own interests than those of the trust, and of creating for himself contrivances to con-1197 trol the property of the trust, and benefit himself at its expense, and to the injury of the railroad company and the holders of its bonds. The death of his co-trustees only added to the power of said Ketchum over said property and over the said railroad company, and he used his said position to compel the yielding to demands which were unjust and oppressive to the corporation and injurious to the trust. The controversy caused by his misconduct was such that harmonious action between him and the corporation had become impossible before the filing by it of its said bill for his removal, and which was a matter of plain necessity by it, in its duty to its creditors. The said bill for his removal is a truthful statement of the facts of the case, and justified the action of that complainant.

The removal of said Ketchum thereon by the court of chancery was an act in conformity to the laws of Alabama, in such case made and provided, and in the proper administration of power conferred upon that court by the laws of the State for the protection of interests represented by a trustee or agent, over whom that court has special control. The complaint against him was for failure to appear thereto, taken, as required by the laws of Alabama, to be a confession of its allegations; he was made a party thereto by publication as required by the laws of the State, and the decree and proceedings conformed in all respects to the prayer of the bill and the legal practice of the court.

This respondent further shows to the court that the law in relation to non-residents made the said decree of the chancellor provisional as to said Ketchum only, and to be opened upon his application at any time within eighteen months of it rendition; and the legislation of the State, by the ordinances of sovereign conventions, and acts of the general assembly, continued that character to said decree till 26th June, 1869, after which it became absolute, for failure to make application to the court for a rehearing thereof. This respondent shows to the 1198 court that said Ketchum had knowledge of said decree, and of his removal thereby from his said trusteeship, and the appointment of other trustees in place of himself and his deceased associates at least as early as October, 1865; with this knowledge the matter was plainly brought to his attention as to the course he would take in relation this trusteeship. It was a notorious fact that said corporation had not paid the interest upon the bonds secured by the deed of trust during the years 1861–'5. It did not pay its interest which matured in November, 1865, nor at any time during the years 1866–'7–'8 and '9, during which years negotiations were pending for the funding the overdue coupons for interest which had matured since 1860, and were still unpaid or unprovided for, which negotiations were not completed until some time in the year 1868 or 1869, and no payment of interest was made by the company until the year 1870. This condition of things was known to said Ketchum, and that the contingency had occurred which authorized the taking possession of the road and property by the trustees, and which certainly required of him, if he believed himself to be the only surviving trustee, to put himself in such condition with regard to the property that he might perform his duty to the beneficiaries of the trust, the holders of the said first mortgage bonds, if they required him to execute the trust, as they had the right to demand of the trustees. Yet the said Ketchum took no steps in the execution of the trust, or to claim the right to execute the same, but concluded and determined to allow the said decree of removal against him to stand in full force, not in any way by him challenged or questioned, and he persisted in that determination to the time of the filing of his bill in this cause.

During this period of more than ten years after he had knowledge of said decree, and his said removal thereby from said trusteeship under said deed, he had acquiesced in the said decree, its propriety, and 1199 its validity, and by such acquiescence has permitted it to ripen into a perfect decree beyond the power of impeachment or question.

He has made no attempt to obtain a revision of said decree, or any vacation, alteration, or modification thereof by any court, State or Federal, by any kind of proceedings. He made no application to the court of chancery which rendered said decree to rehear or modify the same, or set it aside.

He has made no application to the said corporation for restoration of his rights, real or pretended; all the application he is known at any time since 1865 to have made to any officer of said corporation, was to know what the company was disposed to do about his compensation (on pretence of which he had appropriated some of its bonds), accompanied by the declaration that he was "damned tired of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company!" He has made no claim upon his successors in the trust, and has made no demand on them in relation to said property, and has at no time, in any manner, intimated to them that he disputed their right, till the filing of his bill in this cause on the 14th of March, 1876. During all this time continuous and adverse possessions of the estate, and right derived under said deed, have been held by his sucessors and the corporation. And this defendant insists that said Ketchum has, by his said acts and conduct, acquiesced and submitted to said decree, and the state of things which has grown up under it, and that he is bound thereby, and it does not lie with him now to assert any right to the trusteeship he claims, and the power to execute the trusts declared by said deed of trust of 1st of November, 1853.

This respondent further shows that said Ketchum has in fact deliberately abandoned said trusteeship, and renounced all right and authority to execute the duties and powers thereof, and the same are now lawfully and properly vested in this respondent and his associate.

1200 This respondent and his said associate have been appointed to fill said position, and to perform said duties, by the joint action of said corporation and the then only acting member of the former board of trustees, with the full approval of said company, with its assent and the assent of the majority of the bondholders secured by said trust-deed; they are performing the duties of said position, have taken and are in possession of said property; as hereinbefore stated, they have filed their bill in this honorable court for the administration of said trust, and which is still pending; have been recognized as such trustees by this court, and are now in possession, and under its orders and decrees are administering the same, and are proceeding to obtain, as early as consideration of the interests involved will permit, the decree of this court for the final execution of the trust and the application of the proceeds thereof as they were intended by said deed to be appropriated.

Respondent, on inquiry and information, which he verily believes to be true, further answers, that from the time of the death of said Hallett, in June, 1860, said Ketchum has done nothing about the duties of said trust; that he has made no reports to the corporation, even of the acts of said trustees, which had been done before the death of said Hallett, nor of his own acts afterwards, as required of him by said deed of trust; he has called for no information of any kind from said corporation in relation to any property covered by said deed of trust, nor of sales of land, though sales of portions of said land have been made; he has made no deeds for any lands so sold; has not in any manner concerned himself about the protection or disposition of said trust property; that in and during the years 1865, '66, '67, '68, and '69, while said corporation remained in default in payment of its interest, which had matured on and after 1st May, 1861, and before arrangements were completed with its creditors for the funding thereof, he made no communication of any kind to said corporation in 1201 regard to said trust, or the condition of its affairs, and held no intercourse of any kind with it; that he took no part in such arrangement, and was not connected therewith; that he took no interest in and made no objection to the claim of right, made by said Walsh, Young, and Jackson, the trustees appointed by said court of chancery, and who, during all that time, he knew claimed to be such trustees, and were acting as such, and were, by themselves and agents, making sales of land, as authorized by agreement between them and said corporation, under the terms of said deed of trust, making deeds therefor and cooperating with said corporation and said bondholders to effect a safe and satisfactory settlement and funding of said interest in arrear.

From all these things, and from all other matters concerning said trust and said trust property and the administration thereof, he held himself entirely aloof, exactly as if he had no right or interest therein, or had resigned and been discharged therefrom by proper authority; and continued this entire abstinence by word and act, after this respondent and his associate, as such trustee, had taken actual possession of said railroad and other trust property, publicly and notoriously claiming to be trustees, and, as such, displacing said corporation, its officers and agents, from the possession and management thereof, for the uses and purposes declared in said deed. To no act or claim of this respondent and his associate, or their predecessors, after their appointment by said court of chancery, did the said Ketchum make any objection; he gave no notice or warning to any of said parties that he objected to their acts or claims, or that he pretended any interest therein, or that he had anything to say upon the subject, or that it was a matter of any concern to him, till service of subpœna in this cause, more than ten years after he knew of his removal as trustee, and that other persons had been appointed in the place of himself and of his deceased associates, and that 1202 they claimed to fill his place as such trustees, and were doing those things about the trust property which, if he were trustee, it was his duty to offer to do and to do, and more than six years after a default had been made by said railroad company, which distinctly notified him of the active duties he might be required, as such trustee, at any moment to perform, and which plainly called upon him, if he deemed himself to be such trustee, to inform the railroad company and his acting successors that he was such trustee, and to claim his right and his readiness to perform the duties of that office, so that no question of right or title could thereafter arise to embarrass the execution of the trusts of the deed, or breed litigation upon the right of parties to execute them at the hazard of costs, delay, and confusion to the parties for whose protection his said office was created. To the contrary of his duty in the premises, if he still claimed to be such trustee, this respondent shows that said Ketchum, though well knowing the facts, and that from his own acts he was by the said railroad company and his said successors in the trust, and the beneficiaries therein, regarded as having abandoned the trust, and resigned the same, and as entirely discharged therefrom, he stood by and held his peace, and without dissent or objection from him permitted adverse claimants of said office to exercise and perform the duties thereof, and on the contingency declared by said deed to obtain possession of the trust property under said deed; and, finally, as the proper sequence of his conduct during the preceding ten years, by his silence encouraged them to file their bill of complaint in this court against the mortgagor and all parties holding liens for the foreclosure and sale of said mortgaged property; and for its protection and the instruction of the court to said plaintiffs in the administration of the property obtain answers from said defendants, admitting the right of said parties as such trustees to maintain their said suit, and execute the trusts of said deed, and so far proceed as to obtain 1203 orders for the protection of the property, for the instruction of the trustees, and finally an order of reference to a master of the court to report upon all the matters presented by the pleadings, in order to a final hearing and decree; all without one word of precaution or warning or objection from this plaintiff Ketchum, whereby they might be advised that he considered himself to have an interest or a duty in the premises.

This respondent is advised, and therefore respectfully shows to the court, that this complainant, by his conduct, has estopped himself from the assertion of right which he now seeks to make; that the great object of said deed of trust was the protection of the holders of the bonds secured thereby in the payment of their said debts, and not to create a personal right in any trustee to commission or emoluments, which are only allowed incidentally as compensation when services are actually performed by him, for the advantage of the beneficiaries; that the said trusteeship was in no proper sense, in the eyes of a court of equity, an estate, but a mere agency or instrumentality for the benefit of the parties who hold the bonds, and who are the real owners of the trust property; that no rule of equity or justice requires that the interests of the latter should be subordinated to the claims of the former; and that in this case said Ketchum has so conducted himself that he has forfeited all right to administer the trust and to claim the emoluments thereof; and though he may be personally liable to said bondholders for any damage to them from neglect of duty and malfeasance in the office to which he was appointed, he has in fact and in law abandoned and resigned the said trusteeship, and has now no standing in this court to maintain this bill of complaint as a trustee under said deed.

This respondent pleads in further defence of the said bill of the said Ketchum, that said complainant is barred by the statute of limitation of ten years, as declared by the code of Alabama, which requires 1204 all actions founded upon any contract or writing under seal, and all actions for the recovery of lands, tenements or hereditaments, or the possession thereof, to be brought for the assertion of the right or title so claimed within ten years from the time when the right of action therefor accrued, and avers that the possession of the lands and rights conveyed by said deed of trust, and of office of trustee thereby created, has been held for more than ten years continuously by this respondent and his associate and the trustees whom they have succeeded, and by said corporation, the said railroad company, adversely to the claim now asserted by said Ketchum; and this defendant, in further defence of this suit, pleads the statutes of Alabama in respect to opening and rehearing of decrees in courts of chancery, and in respect to appeals therefrom, and bills for the review of such decrees, and shows to the court that more than the period prescribed by the said statutes in bar of such rehearing, opening, appeal from and review of the said decree of removal by the court of chancery of the State of Alabama of said Ketchum from said trusteeship had elapsed before the filing of his bill of complaint in this case, and the said decree has thereby become absolute, final, and complete, and is a perfect bar against any and all right and title of said Ketchum, as trustee under the said deed of mortgage and trust, executed as aforesaid by said railroad company, and bearing date the first day of November, 1853.

It is not true that said complainant disregarded and ignored the proceedings and decree of said court of chancery at Mobile; he did know of them and did acquiesce in them and submit himself thereto. It is not true that said plaintiff, as he alleges, has continuously and from the time of his appointment as an original trustee, down to the filing of his bill in this case, continued to act as such trustee, and perform the duties of his said office; it is not true that during all said time he has 1205 acted with and concerted with the cestuis qui trust under said deed for the protection of the rights of the bondholders; on the contrary he has, and did abandon the position to which he had been originally appointed, after he had done all he could to obtain personal benefits to himself, not warranted by his duties, and in fraud of the rights of parties whom he should have protected. It is not true that respondent and his associate trustee have intruded themselves into the trusteeship under said deed, under color of void and fraudulent proceedings, as falsely stated in complainant's bill of complaint, and the pretence by plaintiff alleged, of consulting counsel and the proper preparation of proceedings by him in excuse for his conduct in the premises, and for the palpable abandonment by him for years of his position as trustee, now claimed by him, has no foundation in fact.

This respondent denies the allegation of complainant that his action is based upon the request of a number of the holders of bonds, holding bonds to a large aggregate amount. The facts of the case, as they are already of record in this court, show that said Ketchum, till just before the filing of this bill, remained in the position he had assumed for the ten years preceding, of acquiescence to the decree of removal rendered against him as aforesaid; that he had given no sign of dissent thereto, and had intimated no objection to the rights of the respondent and his associate, and to the course they had undertaken for the protection of the parties interested in said trust, and was not at all disturbed with any scruples of conscience as to the duty required of him in the premises.

Respondent, upon the statements of said Ketchum, shows that about the 1st March, 1876, the attention of said Ketchum was called to the condition of said railroad company by an attorney, who was then engaged in a proceeding hostile to this respondent and his associate Elliot, in the petition of one Georgie Warnes, and which had been filed in the suit theretofore begun by this respondent and his said associate as 1206 hereinbefore stated, and who was seeking means to support the same; said Ketchum had not before that time known said attorney, his experience or professional standing, but then upon his instigation allowed said attorney to use the name of him, Ketchum, to facilitate the object of the said proceeding. Even then said Ketchum did not contemplate proceedings to execute the trusts now set up by him, but supposed that the proceedings then by him permitted, would be merged in that of the said Georgie Warnes, and the assertion of right now made by said complainant, was not made by him in the exercise of his own judgment for the performance of his duty as trustee, used to secure the proper administration and application of the trust property, his said bill and proceedings in this cause did not originate in an intelligent consideration and purpose on the part of said Ketchum, for the performance of his duty as trustee, and did not arise from purpose on his part to invoke judicial aid in the performance of that duty; as to the performance of that duty, he continued to the last moment entirely inactive and quiescent, as he had been for the ten years and more next preceding, and did not pretend to assume the responsibility of a trustee, which he had in fact long before abandoned.

The statement of the bill, that the interval between the alleged default of said corporation in payment of interest in 1875 and the filing of this bill, was occupied in consulting counsel, and cestuis que trust, in preparation for this suit, is not true. It was a proceeding hastily devised, not in the intentional and considerate discharge of duty for the benefit of the parties entitled under the deed, but upon the instigation of a stranger and of parties for purposes of speculation and advantage to themselves; and said Ketchum, weakly, and without any honest purpose to perform his duty, lent his name for that object and purpose, with knowledge of the suit of this respondent and his associate trustee, then nearly a year pending in this honorable respondent or his associate, or to said corporation, or any officer thereof, and though he had long acquiesced in his removal from said trusteeship, and had abandoned and resigned the same.

This respondent shows that said complainant is nearly eighty years of age; has declared he will not come to Alabama for the purpose of this suit, if he can avoid it; and his dealings with the attorney who instigated this proceeding, his long delay, if he was acting with an honest purpose, his singling out for particular attack, and himself undertaking to decide against and exclude from the benefit of the trust, the claims of a specified holder of securities, without knowledge of the facts and without making him a party to the suit, show that said Ketchum is an unfit and improper person to be trustee under this deed, and justify the decree of removal that was made against him by said court of chancery. These facts show that his suit in this case is dictated not by an honest desire to perform his duty in the premises, but by a weak, if not corrupt, acquiescence in and co-operation with persons who are seeking private advantage and speculative profit to themselves at the expense of the trust and the parties entitled therein; that his said suit is for private gain and not in the interest of the bondholders.

Holders of claims, first-mortgage sterling and interest-arrearage bonds, secured by said first mortgage of 1853, to the amount of $5,200,000 of principal-money and upwards, are supporting the proceedings of this respondent and his associates, while it does not appear that said Ketchum, at the time of filing his bill, or now, has the support of any but a small dissentient minority, who think they see in his proceedings hopes of gain to themselves at the expense of the trust.

This respondent denies that said suit of said Ketchum is brought in good faith, and to secure the cestuis qui trust, but asserts it to be a proceeding for purposes of speculation and gain, to which said complainant has weakly or corruptly lent himself, and without merit in him-1208 self or his associates; that it is in plain and direct contradiction of the position assumed by the said Ketchum, and maintained by him for ten years proceding its commencement, with knowledge of the facts, and by which he had invited the said corporation and this respondent and his associate trustee to believe that he had abandoned all claim of right to administer said trust, and induced them to act upon that belief.

This defendant denies all manner of fraud, collusion, combination, and contrivance as to his entry into the possession of the property described in the deed of trust, with which he is charged, and refers to the orders and decrees of this honorable court and the proofs in the cause in support of the regularity and propriety of his proceedings in the premises.

Further answering, this respondent admits that said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company did fail to pay the interest upon any of said first-mortgage bonds, which fell due on the first of May, 1875, and has continued so in default since that date upon all its interest since then maturing; that it is embarrassed and greatly indebted for bonds secured by a second mortgage upon the property described in the said first mortgage, and for bonds secured by lien upon what is known as the Gainesville branch of its said road, and for bonds secured upon that portion of the road which lies within the limits of the State of Tennessee, and by bonds secured by a third mortgage, and by a large unsecured floating debt, and that all of these liabilities, except that secured by lien upon the road and property in Tennessee and upon said Gainesville Branch Railroad, are subordinate to the lien of the said first mortgage; as to the bonds known as the Tennessee substitution bonds, and secured by lien on the property in Tennessee, this respondent does not admit they are inferior and subordinate to the said first mortgage debt, except as to the property and road without the limits of the State of Tennessee. As to the road and property 1209 within said State, this respondent is advised, and so answers:
Said bonds are secured by liens superior to the lien of the first mortgage to the extent of the reservation named in said first mortgage, and lawful interest thereon; and he is advised that said property and its proceeds should be so applied. As to the allegations of the bill that the coupons which matured in May and November, 1874, were paid by said railroad company, and were by this respondent and the directors of said railroad company, after said payment, and when the said coupons should have been canceled, delivered to Alexander Duncan and others, as pretended security for certain claims against said corporation, this respondent states that the same are false. No portions of said coupons that fell due in the year 1874 were paid by said railroad company, or by any money in any manner furnished by it, or advanced to it, by any person or persons whatever, or by any person for said corporation. A portion of the coupons which fell due in 1873 were paid by money advanced to said corporation by this respondent and his then firm, Duncan, Sherman & Co.; as to these, no claim has been made that they are outstanding; that payment was made by money loaned the railroad company. But the coupons of 1874 were not so paid, and have not been extinguished; they were, with the assent of the corporation, purchased from the then holders thereof, with the distinct agreement that they were not canceled or impaired by such purchase, but still remained in the hands of the purchasers valid coupons of the first mortgage bonds, with all the rights and remedies by which they were originally protected, to be enforced at the discretion of the holder. This purchase was an act friendly to said railroad company; it was made at a time of general and wide-spread distrust in the money-market of the country, and of extraordinary depression in all commercial business. the object being to have these evidences of debt in hands of 1210 friends, having also other interests in the property, and, by the gratuitous allowance of reasonable time, enable the corporation to see whether its affairs would not so improve that it could, in 1875, resume the regular payment of its interest from its own resources. This hope, which was entertained by the directors of said railroad company, was not verified in the experience of the corporation, and the holders of said coupons so acquired, with others, demand, as respondent is advised they had good right to do, of this respondent and his said associate, that they should execute the powers of the mortgage for the protection of themselves and the other creditors of said corporation secured by said first mortgage.

The statement of the bill as to the facts attending these coupons due in 1874 are not true. The attempt to exclude the holders of these coupons from the protection of said mortgage by not making them parties to said bill, that they might defend their rights, is a malicious attempt of said complainant and his advisers and instigators to injure beneficiaries whom, if a trustee, as said Ketchum now claims to be, it was his duty to protect and permit to be heard in vindication of their rights. It is a part of the scheme concocted by others, and to which said plaintiff has weakly, if not corruptly, lent his name to advance the speculative objects of those by whom he is led, and is not in the bona fide performance of the duty of a trustee. By virtue of the orders of this court, made in said cause now pending therein, in which this defendant and his associate Elliot are complainants as above stated, a contest has been raised by one Belloni, a first-mortgage bondholder, acting by the same solicitor and counsel by whom said Ketchum appears in this cause, as to the right of the owners and holders of said coupons of 1874, or the claimants thereof, to enforce or collect the same, which contestation, involving all the questions of fact and of law raised in that regard by the complainant's bill, is still pending, undetermined, in this court.

1211 This respondent submits that it plainly appears the object and purpose of this litigation, which was suddenly inaugurated by permission of this complainant, upon a pretended allegation of right, upon which he had willfully, and with knowledge of the facts, slept for more than ten years, at the instigation of an attorney whom he had not before known, and who approached him and obtained employment by sufferance, in connection with proceedings which recognized the validity of this respondent's title as trustee, is not in the interest of the bondholders under the deed. It is not a proceeding in the honest discharge of a fiduciary duty, but at their expense, to advance the interest of parties who have taken advantage of the depression of the bonds produced by their own litigation to increase their holdings and obtain for themselves and their coadjutors large gains from said trust property, its manipulation and management.

This respondent further shows to the court that the value of the property and franchises which are covered by said deed of trust and mortgage is great; that to realize the value of said property by sale for cash is difficult by reason of its magnitude; that to realize its value by providing for payment of the purchase money in part in bonds and obligations of the corporation can only be done by concert of action among a sufficient number of the parties, holders of said securities—this is plainly the best mode by which a substantial appropriation of said mortgaged property to the payment of the debts secured thereby can be effected.

To secure such appropriation of this trust property, in discharge of its debts, and at the same time effect such reorganization of the affairs of said corporation as will render these investments safe and remunerative, respondent shows to the court that the holders of the greater part of each of the liens created by said corporation, and declared in the several deeds of mortgage and trust executed by said corporation, 1212 both of principal and accrued interest, have with the consent of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company entered into an agreement whereby it may be effected; a copy of said agreement is herewith presented to the court, as a part of this answer.

By its terms William H. Hayes, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins Du Puy have been appointed assignees of said bondholders to carry the same into effect. Said parties are now, by assignment to them of the bonds and securities of said corporation, the assignees of the larger part of the original sterling bonds described in said mortgage trust deed of which said Ketchum claims to be the trustee, and of the coupons belonging thereto; and of the several classes of bonds known as interest bonds into which the unpaid interest maturing prior to 1870 has been funded, i. e. of first mortgage sterling bonds, £774,225 sterling, or at the rate of $1,000 for each bond of £225, $3,441,000; and of first mortgage funded interest arrearage bonds, £152,500 sterling, or at the rate of $1,000 for each bond of £200, $762,500; and of first mortgage funded interest arrearage bonds, $1,094,300, with all the outstanding and unpaid coupons attached to, or detached from said bonds; also all the detached coupons which matured in 1874, and remain outstanding and unpaid, detached from the bonds of the like issues as the abovementioned sterling and interest arrearage bonds, which bonds are in the hands of holders not represented by committee, which detached coupons amount in the aggregate to exceeding the sum of $250,000; also 1213 of bonds known as the Tennessee substitution bonds, with all the outstanding and unpaid coupons attached thereto or detached therefrom, $1,473,000; also of bonds secured by second mortgage, with all the outstanding and unpaid coupons attached thereto or detached therefrom, $897,861; also of bonds secured by the third mortgage, known as the convertible bonds, with all the unpaid interest due thereupon, $398,025.

This respondent is advised and therefore shows to the court that the said Hays, Pierson, and Du Puy are the chief beneficiaries of the said first mortgage or trust deed, and also interested in the equity of redemption of the property and franchises in said deed described, to an amount greater than the combined interest of all the other holders of the securities of said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, and are proper and necessary parties to the bill of this complainant. They have made themselves parties to the bill filed in this honorable court by this respondent and his associate trustee, by making proof of claims before the master on the reference therein ordered. They deny the right alleged by this complainant to be entitled as trustee, and have, as far as was in their power so to do, removed the complainant from his office of trustee, and suspended him from the exercise of any function pertaining to such office, and have ratified the aforesaid proceedings in said chancery court of Alabama, and they, with numerous other bondholders not represented by them, have ratified and approved the acts and doings of this respondent and his associate; and the bill filed by this respondent and his associate trustee, and the proceedings thereunder, are with their approval and concurrence. And this de-1114 fendant denies all and all manner of fraud, collusion, and unlawful practices and contrivances, and unlawful combination and confederacy, wherewith he is, by the said bill, charged; without this, that any other matter, cause, or thing in said complainant's said bill of complaint contained, material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, is true, to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove, as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed, with his reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

vs.
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ET AL. } In chancery.

To the honorable the judges in said court presiding:

The answer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the bill of complaint of Morris Ketchum in this honorable court, filed against said corporation, and against William Butler Duncan, Andrew Foster Elliott, receivers and others.

1216 The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, for answer to said bill, and to so much thereof as it is advised it is material to answer unto, reserving all legal matter of exception answering, says:

1. That this defendant does not know of what State the said Morris Ketchum is a resident or citizen. That he was formerly known to this defendant as a resident citizen of the State of New York, but now this defendant cannot answer, as in his bill filed, in this cause, he represented himself as a citizen and resident of the State of New York, and made oath on the 1st of March, 1876, that his said allegation was true; but that on the 5th of April, 1876, by amendment to his bill, when apparently on second thought it appeared to him to suit his interest and purposes better (although no change in his residence and citizenship had intervened), he therein declared that he was a resident and 1217 citizen of the State of Connecticut, and made oath to this averment, in direct contradiction to his former oath. This defendant cannot consequently answer as to what State he is or was a resident citizen, and if material to shew that he was a citizen of Connecticut, this defendant prays that he be required to make legal proof of said fact, as his citizenship of Connecticut is not admitted by this defendant.

2. This defendant admits it to be true that said company was authorized by its charters to construct a railroad from the city of Mobile to a point in the State of Kentucky near the mouth of the Ohio River, that it did construct said road and put it in operation. That in order to do so it became necessary to obtain from capitalists large sums 1218 of money which were used in the construction and equipment of the same, and that it did obtain a grant of land from the Congress of the United States in aid of said undertaking, as set forth in the complainant's bill.

3. That among other loans obtained was the one referred to in the complainant's bill. That a deed of trust and mortgage was made by said company at Mobile, Alabama, on the first day of November, in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-three to said Morris Ketchum, John J. Palmer and William R. Hallett as trustees, by which the property in said deed described and intended so to be was conveyed to them, and which deed is the one of which a copy is set forth in the complainant's bill and for the terms and conditions of said trust and of the 1219 property conveyed and bonds to be secured thereby, this respondent prays reference to the original deed aforesaid and to a correct copy of the same for the full information of the court.

4. Your respondent admits that at the time of the execution of said deed, the company did suppose that the said Morris Ketchum was a fit and proper person in whom they could place confidence for the correct performance of the duties of such trustee, but they soon found that they had made a great mistake in this respect; that instead of promoting the interest of the company and of the beneficiaries in said deed intended to be protected, the said Ketchum appeared disposed to move in the matter always with the view to his own interests more promi-1220 nently than any other; disagreements very soon put an end to all his usefulness to the company, as unreasonable exactions on his part, for unwarrantable demands for compensation were constantly made conditions by him before he would act in relation to the performance of his duties.

5. And this defendant says said Ketchum performed very little service for the company other than the signing of the bonds which the company had prepared to be issued, that is to say, six thousand bonds, dated on the date of said deed, with coupons, each bond for the payment of two hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling. There was but little service performed afterwards other than the signing of a few papers.

1221 6. The said Ketchum first managed to get the whole control of the trust into his own hands by inducing the other two trustees to refer all matters to him, they taking no active part in it themselves; which arrangement was very unsatisfactory to this company, and enabled him to act oppressively, and tended to the accomplishment of his selfish purposes.

7. That without the consent of the company, and against its protest and remonstrance repeatedly made, and made without lawful right, said Ketchum retained from the said bonds eighteen of them, with coupons, as he said, for compensation to the trustees for signing the bonds; the said bonds and coupons amounting to between twenty-two and three thousand dollars, and the company never have been able to regain the possession thereof from him.

1222 8. That the said Ketchum, by his course of conduct, thwarted the company, to its great injury, in obstructing the sale of lands granted by the United States to the company. He claimed full power in himself alone to dispose of the lands, refused to allow the sale of them at Mobile, the headquarters and place of business of the company, or in Mississippi, where the greater part were located; and insisted that the land-office for the sale of the lands should be kept in the city of New York, by agents appointed by him and under his control; and he named as such a principal agent there, who was not accepted by this company; and which course was not deemed by the company advantageous for the sale of the lands. That he was applied to for 1223 consent to receive first-mortgage bonds for the price of lands to be sold for bonds, which would have been of much advantage, but he refused his consent to this proposal. It is true said complainant did consent to the sale of a small part of the lands, say one hundred thousand acres to be made at Mobile, but when the lands were sold as agreed on and he was applied to for signature of deeds, when terms of sale and all things agreed on were complied with, he refused to execute the deeds, and put the company to great embarrassment, so much so, that a bill was actually filed by a purchaser for failure to make title, and many others threatened to do the same. This perverseness and breach of duty on his part put such a damper on the sale of the lands, 1224 that sales were prevented and great loss to the company was occasioned thereby.

9. Your respondent further shews that said Hallett and Palmer died as stated, said Hallett in July, 1860, and said Palmer before that time. That after the death of said Hallett, your respondent insisted that suitable persons should be appointed to fill those vacancies, and here again, the same spirit of obstruction was manifested by said Ketchum to everything which did not conduce to the profit and interest of said trustee. Objections were interposed; proper and fit persons were proposed by the company, namely, Charles Walsh and Marsena Parker, the former for many years president of the Bank of Mobile, and the latter a gentleman who has filled the office of mayor, both persons of the 1225 best business character and capacity, but they never were able to obtain the consent of the complainant to fill the vacancies unless on the condition, always interposed, that the company should consent to pay him an annual salary, at a high rate, during all the time of and until the expiration of the trust.

10. In the endeavor to procure judicious co-operation of said complainant with the company in a proper manner, the president of the company, Milton Brown, went to New York in 1860, as said complainant never would or did come to Mobile, but he was not able to arrive at any just terms with complainant. By a letter addressed to said Ketchum by said Brown, he remonstrated with him as to his course of conduct, and made known to him the grounds of complaint of 1226 the company; a copy of which letter is herewith filed as Exhibit

No. 1, with this answer. But no change in the conduct of the complainant was obtained, and from thenceforth all intercourse between him and the company ceased.

11. Your respondent shews that the deed of trust expressly provides that the trustees should "render an exhibit and account of their doings on or before the first days of January of each year during the period of the trust made to the said parties of the first part." (The company.) But not a single report as required by said condition of the trust ever was made.

12. It was further expressly provided in the contract, that if either "the said Ketchum, Palmer, or Hallett should at any time or times thereafter die, or become from any cause incapable of acting in the premises, or resign his office, under these presents, then the said 1227 company and the said Ketchum, Palmer, or Hallett, or either of them, may select some other person to fill the vacancy occurring, and shall thereupon make, execute, and deliver all and singular such other and further instruments or assurances as may be necessary to enable such person or persons so selected to act in the execution of these presents."

And your respondent shews that a civil war occurred between the United States and the Confederate States, in April, 1861, whereby the said Morris Ketchum, being a citizen of New York or Connecticut, as the case may be, and resident there, became incapable of acting in the premises; his office of trustee became vacant under the terms of his appointment, if not already vacated before, and was subject to be filled as a vacancy in respect to him.

1228 13. Your respondent further shews that the said Milton Brown, then president of the company, in July, 1860, being unable to come to any agreement with said complainant, made his report thereof in a letter directed to Oliver S. Beers, auditor of the company, to be communicated to its board of directors, shewing to them the breach of duty and unfitness of said complainant to perform the duties of trustee, and recommending that steps be taken for his removal, which information led to the passage of a resolution by the board of the company on the 5th of December, 1861, declaring their conviction of the unfitness of the complainant to act as trustee, directing a bill in chancery to be filed for his removal, a copy of which report to the auditor is herewith filed, marked "Exhibit No. 2," and also a copy of the resolution of the board of directors is herewith filed, marked "Exhibit No. 3."

1229 14. And your respondent shews that on said 5th of December, 1861, the said company under the authority of said deed, the death of the two trustees having occurred, and the survivor, by reason of the war, having become unable to perform the trusts required by it, did proceed by said resolution to designate who should be the persons to fill the vacancies and nominated Charles Walsh, of Alabama, George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of Tennessee, to be trustees under said mortgage deed, as they had full right to do, as they are advised; those persons being in all respects fully competent, qualified, and worthy of all confidence.

15. To confirm said appointment and to cause a proper record to be made of the determination of the office of trustee of said 1230 Ketchum, your respondent did cause to be filed their bill in the chancery court of the southern chancery division of Alabama, and first district, at Mobile, against the said Morris Ketchum, on the third of January, in the year 1862, praying for his removal by a decree of the court, and the appointment of said Walsh, Young, and Jackson as trustees.

16. Your respondent shews that at the time when said bill was filed, the war existed between the United States and the Confederate States;
that by reason of the said war and of the residence of said Ketchum, no other party could act to fill the vacancies but the company itself; that it was indispensably necessary for the protection of the interest of the bondholders, that they should be represented; the interest of 1231 the public and of the company also required it; and if the construction of the deed did not permit the company alone, under the circumstances, to fill the vacancies, then there was no other mode of doing so but by application to the court of chancery, and in order to run no risk on that question, that course was adopted.

17. Your respondent shews that by the laws of Alabama the said court of chancery had full power and authority to remove and to appoint trustees; that it had full power and authority to act and to make decrees in respect to property, and to decree respecting the possession thereof; that it had full power and authority to entertain jurisdiction against absent persons and to make decrees respecting them in relation to and connected with property, and to cause absent parties to 1232 be made by publication; and also to decree in respect to them and the property, on failure of such party to appear when so required by the laws and rules of the court, as resulting from the fact that property was within the jurisdiction of the court.

18. And your respondent shews that by said bill it was charged, that this defendant had at sundry times before the year 1861, in pursuance of the terms of said deed of trust, applied to said Ketchum to unite with them in the appointment of trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the decease of said Palmer and Hallett, and that he had refused to do so. That his course of conduct in relation to the trust had been one proceeding from selfish and interested motives; that his conduct 1233 was a breach of the spirit and of the letter of the deed, which had operated to the injury of the company. That no services had been rendered by him beyond the simple acts of signing the mortgage bonds, and a few other papers directing and authorizing the sale of a small portion of the lands. That no annual reports had been made as were called for by the deed. That the trustees had failed to direct the sale of the lands, except to a small extent. That they had disregarded plain duties to the great injury of the bondholders, retarding and impairing the market value of the bonds, and refusing to allow them to be received in payments of the lands. That Ketchum had the active management of the trust, and used his powers oppressively and for selfish purposes. That he had retained for himself, and, as he said, for his co-1234 trustees, eighteen of the bonds, of the value of eighteen thousand dollars, with interest coupons thereon, against the wishes and repeated protests of the company, and withheld them. That he demanded in addition regular salaries at high rates, which were exorbitant demands, and could not be yielded. That he persistently refused to unite with the company to appoint trustees, although requested do so by application made at the request of the bondholders. He made it a condition that he should retain what he had already obtained, and also have a fixed salary at some high rate, to commence in 1855, and to continue till the expiration of the trust in 1883; without which he would not act. That he insisted on moving the management of the land department from Mobile to New York, and to organize it there by 1235 committing it to officers appointed by himself, and that he appointed a chief superintendent there. That he had one time consented that sales should be made of a small portion of the lands, and that when that had been done according to the agreement made, and when purchasers were entitled to deeds, and demanded them, he refused to execute the deeds, to the great injury of the sale of the lands, &c.

19. The defendant further shews, that in said bill it was charged that said Ketchum was an unfit person to continue in the position of trustee; that he had proved himself to be so, and had been unfaithful to the trust, and it was also averred that he was an alien enemy, the property being in the Confederate States. The prayer of the bill was 1236 that he should be removed from the trust, and that the vacancies in the trust should be filled, and for general relief.

20. And your respondent shews that on the filing of said bill, which was duly sworn to by the president of the company, an order of publication was made by the court to require the defendant to appear in said court to answer said bill on or before the first day of March, 1862. That the said publication was duly made, and a copy of the order of publication was posted at the court-house door. That the said Ketchum having failed to appear, the bill was taken pro confesso, and on the 7th day of April, 1863, a day of a regular term of said court, a decree was rendered by said court, removing the said Morris Ketchum from the 1237 office of trustee; and on the 9th day of April, 1863, another day of said term, a further decree of said court was made, appointing Charles Walsh, of Alabama, George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of Tennessee, trustees to execute the trusts of said deed; the said parties having, on reference to the master, been reported as proper persons to be appointed as such. All which proceedings were had in accordance regularly with the law, the rules and the practice of said court, and by virtue of its power, authority, and jurisdiction in all respects. And your respondent shews that said decree remains in said court in full force and effect, not impeached, reversed, set aside or impaired in any manner, and that the said complainant has not in 1238 any way availed himself in proper time of any of the various and successive statutes of the State passed since the termination of the war, by which authority was given to parties situated as the complainant was to open said decree, to have the matter thereof reheard and reviewed, and to allow all matters of objection or defence against the same considered; but the same was carried into full execution and effect, that the said then newly appointed trustees accepted the said offices of trustees, and immediately, publicly, and notoriously, entered upon the discharge of their duties under said deed and decree so soon as appointed, and continued in office until March and April in the year 1875, when on their resignation respectively, William Butler Duncan and Andrew Foster Elliott were regularly appointed
1239 their successors, and upon which appointment as successors, they also entered upon the discharge of the duties of said trust, whereby the said Morris Ketchum was superseded from the date of said decree as trustee.

21. And for further answer and defence against said bill, this defendant further shews, that inasmuch as all intercourse between said complainant and this company had ceased as above stated, from the time of the interview between him and the said Milton Brown, president of the company, in the year 1860. That in the year 1863 the new trustees

Walsh, Young, and Jackson, having been appointed and having entered upon the duties of trustees adversely to the right claimed by said Ketchum, of which he had full notice in 1865 (as he admits), if 1240 not before, and the duties of said trust having required active attention from that time, but said Ketchum having since that period made no claim whatever to the office of trustee, and pretended none, and having taken no steps of any kind, either in pais or of record to claim or give notice or cause it to be supposed that he claimed the same, until the year 1876, when this bill was filed, and did not commence any action for the recovery of said property or of his rights therein before that time; wherefore, this defendant says that after such long delay and acquies'ence in the possession and action of said trustees, acting adversely to his claim, the complainant after such delay and abandonment, does not shew to the court a case in which the court, by its 1241 rules can entertain such a bill, it being for a State demand, not prosecuted with due diligence, wherefore said defendant prays that said bill be dismissed for this cause.

This defendant denies the allegation of the complainant to be true, wherein he says that "he has always and continuously, from the time of his appointment as an original trustee under said mortgage down to the present time, continued to act as such trustee, and performed the duties of said office, and has acted with and connected with his cestuis que trust during all said time for the protection of the rights of the bondholders."

Your respondent shews the truth to be that from and including the year 1861, and from thence to the year 1865, no interest was paid by the company on its coupons; that in 1865, after the war, a large 1242 accumulation of interest had fallen due, and the holders of them became pressing for payment, but the company could not pay them; that thereupon much difficulty intervened, and various negotiations were undertaken and carried on both in New York and in London so as to obtain the consent of the bondholders that the company should carry on its business without foreclosure of the mortgage; that the negotiations were difficult, and required the aid and active exertions of the company and of the trustees; that they were protracted for a long period of time, and by means of these active negotiations an arrangement was finally perfected by which the bondholders agreed to fund the interest coupons by the issue of new bonds of the company on a 1243 deposit of the coupons in the hands of trustees, to be held until the new bonds were paid, and thus the matter was adjusted in Mobile, New York, and London up to the years 1806, 1807, and 1808.
But subsequently new difficulties intervened by reason of the failure to pay the interest on these new bonds, when new negotiations had to be undertaken, by means of which the said interest was finally arranged for. These several negotiations continued until the year 1869.

In all these duties of difficulty the said Ketchum took no part whatever, gave no aid in accomplishing. And your respondent says that the coupons on the bonds which he had retained from the company and held were funded and paid as the others were, and he, knowing of all these difficulties, never offered any aid, or claimed any right to act in any manner as trustee, nor claimed to be such during any part 1244 of the time of said disturbance from the end of the war, in 1865, until the year 1870, when the company resumed payment of its coupons, nor did he give any signs of life as trustee since, until after the bill of Duncan and Elliott was filed.

And for further defence against said complainant's bill the defendant answers and says that by the statute laws of Alabama it is enacted that civil causes of action shall be brought within certain specific times, and not afterwards; that by section 2900 of the revised code of the State it is declared that actions founded on any contract or writing under seal, and actions for the recovery of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or the possession thereof, shall be brought within ten years after the cause of action has accrued, and not after; that by section 2901 it is enacted that actions for trespass to real or personal property, or for the 1245 detention or conversion of personal property, or for the recovery of money, or for the use and occupation of lands, shall be brought within six years; also, by section 2905, that civil actions for any injury to the person or rights of another, not arising from contract, and not specifically enumerated in said code, shall be brought within one year. And by section 3381 of said code it is enacted that all the statutory provisions aforesaid shall be applicable to suits commenced by bill in chancery as well as to suits at law. All which statutes are in full force and effect, and have been since the termination of the war, in 1865, and for many years before, and from thence hitherto. Wherefore, and because of the continuous adverse possession of the trustees 1246 appointed in place of said original trustees for a term of time longer than that limited by said statutes of limitations before the time of the filing of complainant's bill, the same is barred.

And this respondent further answers and says that on the first day of May, in the year 1874, owing to great losses and immense expenses incurred in rebuilding the road and supplying it with running stock after peace was restored, whereby heavy debts were necessarily incurred, the company was again compelled to suspend the payment of interest due on its coupons, being unable to do so and to meet expenses and other demands. In this emergency, and in the hope and expectation that the depression of the times would pass over and that the 1247 business of the road would improve, and in order to prevent a multiplicity of suits by holders of the coupons, it was deemed advisable to avoid disappointment to those bondholders; as the best which could be done in respect to the coupons due on that day and on the first of November of that year, the company made arrangements with capitalists that they should take up said coupons at maturity and hold them as subrogated parties or purchasers for a short time until they could be paid by the company, as is hereinafter stated.

This arrangement was made in the hope that the payment of them could soon be made, and they were taken up under said agreement and held uncancelled by said parties who took them up. But owing 1248 to new embarrassments in the financial affairs of the country the expectations of the holders for payment of said coupons could not be realized, and default of payment of coupons having continued until the eighth day of May, 1875, the said Wiliam Butler Duncan and Andrew F. Elliott, trustees, on that day, under the provisions of the said deed of trust of the 1st of November, 1853, demanded of the company the delivery to them of possession of the railroad, and of all the property and assetts in their custody and under their control, including the lands, by reason of the forfeiture of the condition of said deed of trust in the failure to pay said coupons on the first of May, 1874, and of those due after said day, none having been paid, and the said demand being lawful, the company, in compliance with its duty, did deliver the 1249 same into the possession of said trustees, since which time the said company ceased to operate said railroad and branches, and to hold or possess any of the property.

24. And your respondent shows that on said day the said trustees took charge of said railroad and carried on its operations; and that on the eleventh day of May, 1875, for the purpose of executing the trusts in said deed provided, and to foreclose the said mortgage and distribute the proceeds of the property when realized according to the priorities and rights of creditors, the said trustees filed their bill in equity in this honorable court against this defendant, and against William D. Dunn, George H. Young, and Thomas Williams, as trustees of a second mortgage made by the company on the 15th of February, 1860, and 1250 against said said William D. Dunn, John Reid, jun'r, and Robert
C. Crawford, as trustees of another mortgage which this company had made on the Gainesville branch of the road, by which bill they shewed to the court that they were the proper trustees under the deed by which said complainant now complains; that by reason of said default of payment of interest on the first mortgage bonds which occurred on the first day of May, 1874, as aforesaid, and had continued ever since, they had demanded the possession of the railroad and of its property and effects, and that the same had been surrendered to them as provided in said deed, and praying for the orders and decrees of this court for the foreclosure of the said mortgage and sale of the road 1251 and property for the payment of the said first mortgage bonds to satisfy the same, and interest thereon, according to the rights of the parties as secured by said deed of trust and mortgage, and of all other parties, and for all such relief in the premises as was proper; that process was duly served on said defendants; that this defendant and others have filed their answers to said bill, and that thereupon this court took jurisdiction of said cause, and that on the 19th of May, 1875, an interlocutory decretal order was made in said suit, as follows:

"The court orders that William Butler Duncan and Foster Elliott, the plaintiffs in the bill and the trustees under the deed of mortgage or trust of the date of the 1st November, 1853, and being filed as Exhibit C to this bill, shall, until the further order of this court, 1252 possess, occupy, and employ the railroad and railways of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company within the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky, including the rails, bridges, fences, warehouses, fixtures, real estate, rights, privileges, faculties, and other property embraced within the terms of said deed of trust of the first of November, 1853, and to operate and manage the same by their superintendents, managers, officers, agents, conductors, and employés, and that they exercise the franchises and faculties granted to the company, conduct the business of the said company, and receive the tolls, freights, incomes, profits, rents, and proceeds from said property, and with the amount to pay the taxes, assessments, charges which 1253 affect the same in their hands, and such expenses and charges of the laborers, hands, employés, and for supplies and materials, as may be in arrear for three months prior to their entry, and which, in the judgment of the said trustees, shall be essential and necessary to the maintenance of the business of the said road; also, to make necessary repairs, improvements, and alterations where the same will facilitate and secure business for the road, or preserve the property from delapidation and waste, and the residue to hold subject to the order and disposition of this court.

"The court further orders that the plaintiff aforesaid, until further orders in the case, custody, control, and management of the property, be regarded as holding to the court the relation of receivers, and 1254 that the responsibility of accounting required of them, and the same protection of the property in their custody, will be extended to them, and for this they will each give bonds to the judge of this court for their fidelity and accountability in their trusts in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, and also for obedience to the orders and decrees of this court."

And it was further ordered that said plaintiffs should have leave to apply to the court for instructions and orders from time to time, as they may be advised is proper, by motion or petition; and also, that prior to the 1st of next October an inventory should be returned by said plaintiffs of all property, &c., which should come to their hands under said deed, and of the debts and liabilities of the said railroad com-1255 pany having liens on the property, and also should file their accounts of receipts and expenditures, and also do the same every four months after said day in respect to their management of the road. That by a further order of the court, that the said receivers should have authority to raise money by loan to carry on the business, and that they should severally give an additional bond as receivers in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, all which duties they have fully performed.

And your respondent further shows that various other orders have been made in said cause to bring the same to a hearing; that all inventories and reports were duly made as required of said receivers, and that finally, on the 6th of March, 1876, the said cause was submitted 1256 to the court on the bill, answers, replications, exhibits, and orders, with the reports; whereupon it was ordered by the court that the same should be referred to James Gillette, who was appointed special master, and directed to examine the said mortgages and property and the rights arising therefrom; to report the said mortgage-deeds, agreements, judgments, and other instruments creating charges, liens, and incumbrances on the property, as to each, and on the property entitled to payment; also, to report what bonds were secured by said encumbrances, the amount and interest, and also the names of the holders and of the securities. He was also required to report the best mode of disposing of the property, and his opinion as to the value to be affixed for a foreclosure without sale, and also to consider of a plan for reor-1257 ganization of the company should three-fourths of the different classes of the creditors and of the stockholders of the company agree to such proposition. And your respondent says that the said Gillette has proceeded under said reference to investigate the subjects referred to him, and is now ready, as this defendant is informed, to report fully on the same to the court.

And this defendant shews that the records of said proceedings are found in this court; that the cause is nearly ready for a final decision and decree, and the same is for the same subject matter as the bill of the complain't in this cause; wherefore this defendant says that this court having first taken jurisdiction of said subject and of the disposal to be made of the property now in the custody of the court in 1258 said cause, the present bill of complaint cannot be entertained in this court.

This defendant admits that a second mortgage was executed by the company to secure an issue of bonds for debts due from it, and also a mortgage to secure bonds issued to parties who held a lien originally existing on that portion of the road lying in the State of Tennessee, and which by stipulation was to have a lien, claimed to be paramount to said first mortgage, in that State; and also another mortgage subsequently made to trustees to secure the payment of purchase-money for the Gainesville branch of the railroad, and likewise another mortgage to secure bonds consolidated, and the company also owes debts which are unsecured, and called floating debts. It shews that the mort-1259 gage made on the 1st of November, 1853, has a prior lien on the property of the company for satisfaction of the said first-mortgage bonds, except as to the lien therein specified in favor of the loan made by the State of Tennessee, and except the lien of the mortgage on the Gainesville branch, which is not excepted in the first mortgage, but which was for purchase-money.

It admits that it is unable to pay all said debts, and says that the bill for foreclosure is the proper proceeding for the bondholders to obtain payment of their debts, and for the settlement of all questions of priority between them. This company does not undertake to decide those questions, and leaves the parties respectively to set forth their respective rights, and the court will no doubt decide them correctly.
1260 This defendant cannot do so.

This defendant wholly denies all right in the said Morris Ketchum to interfere in any manner with the property of said railroad which is now in the custody of the court in process of realization and distribution, and says that it is under proper administration by the proper representatives of the parties interested, who are themselves attending to their interests and to their rights of priority, the majority of said bondholders having become parties to the suit first instituted as aforesaid by filing their claims for distribution, and introducing in that suit their particular allegations for inquiry and report, to settle their rights and priorities; and who have no use for the services of said complainant, and do not recognize him as the representative of their interests. This company denies that said Walsh, Young and Jackson, were 1261 irregularly appointed trustees as charged by the said complainant, and denies that said Duncan and Elliott were not lawfully and regularly appointed, and say on the contrary that they were appointed to fill vacancies by resignations in strict and exact conformity with the terms of said deed of trust, and in precisely the mode and manner by it provided.

28. This defendant in respect to the charges of fraud alleged against said Duncan and Elliot, by said complainant, say that it is not apparent to this defendant that any fraud whatever has been committed or suffered by them. They have in all things acted under the orders of the court, and conformed thereto. They say the affairs of the trust have been managed with skill, strict integrity, and active diligence, so 1262 far as has come to its knowledge. That the charge that the coupons due on the first of May and first of November, 1874, were paid by the company, is entirely false. This defendant says that those coupons were not paid by the company and are not paid yet. That at the time when said coupons fell due, the company had not the means of payment, that no funds of the company either before or since have ever been applied to pay the same or any one of them, as the books of the company will fully shew. That in order not to disappoint the coupon holders, and to prevent a multiplicity of suits on the said coupons, and in the belief that the stress of business affairs would pass over, and enable the company soon to pay them, they made an arrangement with the mercantile firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co., a house in New York at that time of large means and credit, to step forward and take 1263 up said coupons as purchasers, with their own moneys, with the expectation that they might soon be paid to them. This they did, and no part of said coupons have been paid to them. The said coupons are outstanding and still due from the company.

This defendant shews that after said coupons were so taken up by purchase they have been assigned and transferred by said Duncan, Sherman & Co. to Alexander Duncan, a capitalist, and others; that they have been duly and properly proved before said Gillette by the holders as subsisting debts secured by said mortgage, and have been since assigned to the commissioners appointed to reorganize the affairs of this company as hereinafter mentioned, and are now held by them as holders. This defendant says that many questions of difficulty have 1264 arisen in the adjustment of all the conflicting interests of parties to this fund; that the trustees have endeavored in all cases, as this defendant believes, to act correctly, and with proper regard to the rights of all; and as to any charge of fraud by them, it is utterly denied by this defendant. By proper orders made by this court, means have been provided in the prior cause now pending, for any party in interest who might have any claim or right to assert, to do so, by application to the special commissioner, so that the same might be heard, investigated, reported and properly decided by the court. That parties have availed themselves of this privilege, and among others, as to the said coupons of 1874, and pretended payment thereof, which subject has been fully investigated on copious evidence of the facts; and 1265 also the question of the pretended payment of the Tennessee bonds has been laid before the said special commissioner for investigation. The Tennessee bonds have not been paid as charged in the bill; whether they have a paramount lien, and if so, for how much, are questions which the court may be called on to decide between parties interested.

29. This defendant cannot admit the allegation of the complainant's bill to be true, that he, the said complainant, "has been requested by a number of the bondholders of said bonds, owning bonds to a large aggregate amount, to institute these proceedings upon the default in the payment of the interest as aforesaid."

They deny this allegation, and their denial is based on an investigation of that subject, when the said Morris Ketchum, and 1266 his counsel, Edward L. Andrews, were examined on their oaths, to disclose how and under what circumstances this suit was brought. On said examination taken in New York, in the months of March and April, 1876, the said Ketchum made oath that "M'r Andrews came to me (Ketchum) to inquire in relation to my trusteeship, and in the course of it he stated that he had a suit begun or pending for the removal of the present receivers; to which I stated that a number of persons had been there to see me on the same subject, and I hoped he would proceed with it." On being questioned, "Did you request him to draw papers for you?" his answer was, "I don't think I did; I think he inferred it from what I said." To the question made to him, "How came he to draw the papers?" his answer was, "I think he drew 1267 them from the remarks I made at the time. I don't think I employed him specifically."

He further deposed: "He (meaning Andrews) did not solicit employment of me. I supposed that this suit in which he was using my name would be merged in the suit which he had already commenced."

When questioned in relation to the expenses of the suit, his answer was, "I expect the bondholders to pay the expenses of the suit, having no interest myself except as a trustee."

He further stated, "I am under no obligation or liability to M'r Andrews for his fees." When he was pressed to state the names of the bondholders who had applied to him to institute these proceedings, his answer was, "I don't know that I can name any of these bondholders except one person who said he represented several hundred bonds, 1268 M'r Belloni." But he said the bonds were not shewn to him.

On being questioned if he meant to incur any personal expense or liability in the business, his answer was, "Not if I can help it. I do not mean to go to Alabama to attend to the suit."

On cross-examination of the complainant by M'r Andrews, when asked if the present suit was brought at his instance, his answer was, "Well, yes; it was brought at my instance, though, as I said before, I at first thought it was then merged in the other suit; that it was to the same point."

On being asked on re-examination, "Had you made any inquiries respecting his (meaning Andrews') professional character and qualifications before you permitted him to use your name in that proceeding?" his answer was, "I had not."

The further question was asked, "What did you ascertain to 1269 be M'r Andrews' professional character and experience and pecuniary responsibility, age, and extent of practice when permitting him to bring suit for the execution of a $6,000,000 trust without promise of pay to him, or indemnity to you?" To which interrogatory his answer was, "I decline to answer, under the directions of counsel; at the same time I will answer that I had not known M'r Andrews until he brought this case to my knowledge, the case he was then prosecuting."

This last fact was corroborated by M'r Andrews, who deposed on his examination, in reply to a question as to how long he had known M'r Ketchum, answered, "About the time of the initiation of these proceedings." From which extracts from the examination of said Ketchum, this defendant submits that the court will be enabled to judge of the objects and motives which led to the filing of this bill, with the 1270 additional explanation that the said Belloni has become a party to the suit of Duncan and Elliott before mentioned, by shewing that he was the holder of six bonds of the company, and by prosecuting and maintaining in said cause by his counsel, the same E. L. Andrews, a contestation for determining how much he shall be entitled to by the decree of the court in respect to his shares, and as to which he has in said cause submitted evidence before the special master, Gillette, to be reported to the court.

And further, as to the previous suit referred to by said Ketchum and said Andrews, it was a petition filed by said Andrews on behalf of one Georgie Warnes, in which it was alleged that she was the owner of ten bonds of this company, setting forth her grievances to this honor- 1271 able court, and praying that she might be admitted to become a party complainant in the said suit of Duncan and Elliott, receivers, making many offensive charges against said receivers, and praying their removal, &c., which petition was duly answered and dismissed by the court on the 24th of February, 1876, with the costs taxed against said Attorney Andrews. The charges made by said Georgie Warnes were withdrawn by her, as is shewn by the correspondence, a copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Exhibit No. 4" to this answer.

Your respondent thus shews the nature of the bill filed by this complainant, and the manner in which it was gotten up. Your respondent does not know whether or not any other or what parties may be aiding or promoting the prosecution thereof. The complainant well 1272 knew, as well as his counsel, that the previous bill was pending, to which the complainant could have become a party if he had any question to litigate in respect to the property in contest, but disregarding all the law and rules of equity courts, he has thought proper to file another independent bill, which can create no other impression on this defendant than the belief that it is done for speculative purposes, with the object and effect to embarrass the proper proceedings to settle the affairs of the company, to delay the same, to prevent the laudable object of compromise and reorganization of the company, and to depreciate and put down the value of the bonds so that they may fall into the hands of railroad wreckers.

1273 This respondent further shews that the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, like all other similarly situated, owing to the disturbances of the war, and late revolution in financial affairs of the country, so fatal to all enterprises of that nature, fell into difficulties, but, being a road well located and of great usefulness to the country, the parties concerned in interest have not believed that its condition was such as to fall into the hands of wrecking speculators; that they have entertained and do have hopes that, with proper care, good nursing and management, it may be able, with time and the increase of population of the country, to reinstate itself in good credit and settle all difficulties; that, in this belief, the creditors have determined to make the necessary compromises and arrangements with the company
1274 for the reorganization thereof and settlement of its affairs, under the sanction of this court, to effect a final close of the said suit of Duncan and Elliott by an amicable decree.

A proposition has therefore been made for this purpose, the terms of which have been discussed, settled, and agreed, and put in the shape of articles of agreement and compromise in writing, bearing date on the first of October, 1876, a copy of which is herewith filed as exhibit number 5, by which three trustees have been selected, namely, William H. Hays, of the State of New York; William S. Pierson, of the State of Connecticut; and T. Haskins Du Puy, of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of effecting such settlement, by which each class of creditors, by the terms of said agreement, are to make conces-1275 sions in diminution of their full rights, until the receipts and profits of the road could furnish means of full payment. That, to effect this, it is stipulated that the holders of the several bonds of the company shall be assigned, transferred, and delivered to the said trustees, who by said stipulation are to become the lawful holders of said bonds, with full power and authority to control and dispose of the same as may be necessary to accomplish said final settlement, by which, when carried into effect, the said trusts created by said mortgage deeds and the duties of trustees and of receivers are to cease, and the affairs of the company are to be carried on as provided by said agreement, which agreement this defendant is ready to produce as the court may direct.

And this defendant says that the said agreement for settlement 1276 has been accepted, executed, and adopted already by a very large majority in value of the secured credtiors, who have actually assigned and delivered into the possession of said trustees their bonds, which said trustees now hold under their control, for the purpose of settlement as aforesaid, whereby the services of said complainant, as trustee, are not in any manner needed, as very clearly appears, they, the said new trustees being now the true representatives of the wishes of the majority of the bondholders.

Your respondent prays leave to refer to the schedule herewith filed as exhibit marked "No. 6," as part of this answer, by which the situation of the bonded debts will appear.

And this defendant, in conclusion, shews that this company has 1277 taken final action in relation to the complainant by its most recent act, when it considered of the subject set forth in his said bill by its resolutions, adopted by its board of derectors on the 19th of February, 1877, by which it denies all the rights claimed by said complainant of whatever kind, and protests against all and any interference by him, and declares that the matters prayed by him by his said bill, if allowed, would be most deleterious and injurious to the company and to its creditors; a copy of which resolutions is hereunto annexed, marked "Exhibit No. 7," as part of this answer.

By reason of all which matters and things in this answer set forth, which this defendant avers to be true, it prays that the said bill be dismissed and this defendant allowed its costs in this behalf.

1278 All which is respectfully submitted.

1280 EXHIBIT NO. 1.

Filled with the answer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to the bill of Morris Ketchum against Duncan and Elliot, the said company and others, in the circuit court of the United States at Mobile, referred to in said answer.

Copy of letter.

NEW YORK, July 20th, 1860.

MORRIS KETCHUM, Esqr.:

DEAR SIR: After fully considering the construction you seem to put on our deed of mortgage, and the exercise of power you claim as surviving trustee under it, it becomes my duty to reply and state the conclusions of my mind on the subject.

The mortgage gives no power to the trustees to sell lands or control the proceeds of sales, unless the company make default in payment of interest or principal of the mortgage bonds or be guilty of some fraud or misapplication of the funds. The mortgage provides that the trustees shall have power to make sales and direct the application of the 1281 proceeds as a sinking fund, and appoints agents to superintend the same. But this power is only conferred in case of forfeiture, for it is expressly provided that untill default in payment, no sales of land can be made except by the consent of the company.

When, therefore, sales take place before default, they must be made in accordance with the mutual consent and agreement of the company and trustees, acting together for the benefit of all parties interested in the fund. In giving this consent and making this agreement as to the manner and terms on which sales are to be made, and the mode of investing proceeds, are, of course, to be arranged. This is the way in which it was done in the sales heretofore authorized, and is the only way in which sales can be legally made.

But now, Mess'rs Palmer and Hallett being gone, and you being sole surviving trustee, you propose to change the entire system, and claim a power which, if granted, would put an entire land fund under your control; you claim the power to appoint agents, and conduct sales, 1282 and invest proceeds, without consulting the company or obtaining their approval as to the mode of doing it. You have already informed me that you desired to put M'r Wilson (if I don't mistake the name) in possession of the land department. Whether his seat of power is to be at Mobile or at New York you did not inform me, but I suppose at New York, as that seems to be the point to which you intend in future to transfer the management of our land fund.

In the life-time of your co-trustee, Col. Hallett, you refused to allow him or any one else to make deeds in Mobile for lands sold, by which much trouble and unnecessary expense to the company might have been saved. Since I have been in this city you were pleased to express great respect for my business capacity and integrity, and taking advantage of this seeming confidence, I requested you to authorize me to execute deeds, and offered to give, if desired, bonds in any amount you 1283 would name, that everything should be correctly done. My object was to save the company unnecessary expense. But you declined this also, saying the deed must and should be executed in New York.

Under instructions from the board of directors I proposed the names of M'r Charles Walsh, the successor of Col. Hallett in the presidency of the Bank of Mobile, and M'r Parker (another gentleman distinguished for his business capacity and integrity), as trustees to fill the vacancies occasioned by the deaths of Col. Hallett and M'r Palmer.

You made no objection to the fitness of either of them for the faithful execution of the trust, but inquired what compensation or salary would be paid to them and you in the event you consented to their appointment. I replied that no such question had been raised, but that whatever might be paid to either of them would of course be paid to you; that certainly no such question ought to be raised as a consideration on which you would give your consent to their appointment.
1284 You seemed not to be satisfied with this, and took time to consider the matter until next day.

At our meeting next day you informed me that you had come to the conclusion to send a communication to the board of directors, ratifying the nomination of either M'r Walsh or M'r Parker, but leaving the other out, and nominating myself in his place. To this I interposed candid and earnest objections, but you overruled my objections, and said I need feel no delicacy about it, because the movement was your own, and would be most satifactory to the bondholders.

At last, at your apparent earnest solicitations, and in my extreme desire to put an end to further conflict, I consented that you might nominate me as one of the trustees.

In giving this consent I feel sure that Mess'rs Walsh and Parker, and all others who knew me, would appreciate my object and acquit me of all selfish motives.

1285 As soon as I had distinctly given you my consent you said you would then address the board of directors, making the nominations, and proposing the "terms" on which they were to be confirmed. I promptly inquired what "terms" you alluded to. You replied that you thought it must be proper that you and the board should dispose of it in my absence and without my knowledge until after it was closed. I replied that this seemed proper enough, but that if any "terms" as a consideration of my appointment were to be interposed it was proper that I should know what these terms were.

You then disclosed to me that the "terms" to which you referred were the compensation to be given to the trustees should be first settled. I replied that for myself I intended to accept no compensation, and could not allow my name presented to the board with any such terms or conditions annexed.

You then declined nominating me, and also declined to confirm 1286 the nominations of Mess'rs Walsh and Parker unless your compensation was fixed in advance.

I then appealed to you to consent that the company might sell lands for bonds, the bonds to be cancelled and immediately delivered up, as this measure was of great importance, as well to the bondholders as to the company; but you declined giving your consent, and our conference closed.

I deeply regret this condition of things, but I have done my whole duty and can do no more. To allow a trustee under a mortgage every time a measure is proposed necessary for the success of our enterprise to append, before he will give his consent, a condition for his personal benefit would put us on "the road to ruin" over which so many American enterprises, by similar means, have gone.

As to the question of compensation, the trustees have done nothing but sign the mortgage-bonds and two or three papers authorizing the sale of lands.

For years the company has appealed to you to give your as-1287 sent to measures of the greatest importance to our success, but no response has been given, and we have been left to struggle on with no "aid" or "comfort" from you.

During the last three years, if not longer, there is not to be found, and you cannot exhibit, a single act of the trustees in connection with the affairs of the company or its land fund.

The mortgage requires annual reports by you to the company, and you never have made one. Regular reports of our sales have been made to you and you have never acknowledged the receipt of one. It was your duty to make deeds, but not one has been made. By this our sales have been retarded, because purchasers feared they could get no titles. Purchasers of lands previously sold refused to make payments until deeds were ready for delivery, and we were thereby deprived of the use of money in times of our greatest need. Fifty thousand dollars would not compensate our company for the damage by this neglect.

1288 The trustees saw proper to retain in their hands eighteen thousand dollars of our bonds, with back coupons, to the amount of several thousand dollars, making in all some twenty two or three thousand dollars. This is far, very far, beyond any reasonable compensation for the services performed and hereafter to be performed, to say nothing of the positive damage inflicted on us by a total neglect of duty, to which I have referred.

To buy peace and avoid an open rupture, I have proposed to give this up and let it be retained, provided no further claim for services is set up, now or hereafter. But this seems not to be satisfactory. You claim the right to decide on the value of your own services and to fix your own compensation.

You further declare you will appoint your own agents, and of course fix their salaries, and have them responsible to you alone. You 1289 further declare the land fund must pass through your hands, and through the hands of agents appointed by you and responsible to no one but you.

These facts and this extraordinary claim of power brings us to a crisis.

To have an open rupture with our only surviving trustee is bad enough, for he has the power to do us harm, and force us to make an appeal to the courts of the country for protection and relief. But to submit to this astonishing claim of power would be worse. It would transfer our entire land fund from the control of our company and put it in hands having no interest in the enterprise beyond the fees and emoluments to be extracted from it. The trustee would fix his own compensation from time to time, and the company must pay it. He would appoint his own agents without limit as to number, and fix their compensation, and the company must foot the bills. The expenses of our land system would be run up to ten times what it is now.
1290 The seat of power and responsibility would be transferred from Mobile to New York, and the assets of the company would be put beyond the jurisdiction of the courts of the States in which the trust was created and through which the road runs.

But I have extended this communication beyond my original design.

In conclusion, I desire you to reconsider the position you have taken. I think there is not a bondholder in Europe or America who will not, when rightly informed of the facts, say that all we have requested you to do is reasonable and to their interests.

Respectfully, yours,
(S'gn'd) MILTON BROWN,

1291 EXHIBIT NO. 2.

NEW YORK, July 21st, 1860.

M'r BEERS:

DEAR SIR: Your dispatch met me on my arrival here on the 18th, but the papers referred to have not yet arrived, but M'r Ketchum has read me his copy, and we have had two long interviews on the subject sides dining together at his house.

His first effort was an appeal to my fears as to the consequences, if I did not agree forthwith to fix his salary and pay up from the signing of the mortgage until now.

This failed. He then changed his attack by making it an appeal to my vanity. He praised my firmness, my ability, and my great success. He said that from the time of my election he knew the enterprise would succeed; that no man had built up such a reputation as I had, and concluded by inviting me to dine with him, saying he had no doubt we could arrange all our differences satisfactorily.

1292 I ate his dinner and drank his wine, and with a warm and confiding shake of the hand we parted to meet next day. We met accordingly, and he began to hope that by his appeals to my stomach, through his dinner and wine, and to my vanity by his speeches, he had me in a good condition, and if he could also get my avarice enlisted by the hope of a salary as trustee, that he and I, acting together, "could make a good thing of it," as the Yankees say when they are about to do a smart thing by cheating somebody.

The result of our interview, and the facts relating to the whole affair, are carefully stated in my written reply, a copy of which I herewith enclose. It presents a case of corrupt motive and dishonest purpose never before surpassed. His character is worse than I supposed. No one who knows him has the least confidence in his integrity.

1293 In a conversation with M'r Osborn, president of the Illinois Central, the death of Col. Hallett was referred to, and I remarked it left M'r Ketchum the sole trustee under our mortgage. He replied, "Then you are in a hell of a fix."

He went on to tell me that he was one of the trustees under their mortgage, and also a director in the road; that he managed first to get a fixed salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year. Then, not content with that, taking advantage of his position, he carried his frauds so far that the other two trustees had to take the trust into their own hands, and the board of directors refused to consult with him. In the face of all this, he had the impudence to appear at a meeting of the board.

On his entering the room, he (Osborn) rose and said to him, "How dare you show your face at a meeting of this board?"

He inquired if the board allowed the president to use such language towards him, and no reply was given. He then retired.

But he still holds on to his office as trustee. The other two trustees perform the duties and he collects his salary.

1294 Osborn thinks that he never will consent to fill the vacancies except upon conditions that will put the company in his power, or unless at least one of those to be appointed is under his influence, and will unite with him in his frauds. But I think he will soon find himself powerless, and if he can get no funds in his hands, as he certainly cannot beyond what he has, he will probably resign. Of course, we can agree to no appointments except such as are in Mobile or on the line of the road, and are beyond his fraudulent influences.

He is very uneasy about the danger of his paying costs in the bill filed against him and the company at Mobile and in other cases that may be commenced. Tell our counsel to see to the question of costs and make him pay them, and, if necessary, take proof as to his conduct.

Tell M'r Hamilton to examine the facts contained in the copy of my letter to Ketchum and other facts of the case and write me to 1295 Jackson, Tennessee, 1st. As to the power of the Alabama courts to remove him; 2nd. How we shall reach him for damage already done; 3rd. How we can enforce the appointment of trustees to fill the vacancies, and such other suggestions as may occur to him.

File the copy I send you for the inspection of our board and counsel, and any that may desire to see it.

Yours truly,

1296 EXHIBIT No. 3.

(Copy.)

Whereas W'm R. Hallett and John J. Palmer, two of the trustees under our first mortgage, executed to secure our sterling bonds, have departed this life; and whereas Morris Ketchum, the surviving trustee, has attempted, and so far as in his power, practiced gross fraud on this company and the bondholders; and whereas said Ketchum is a citizen of the State of New York, and an alien enemy, and in all respects disqualified and unfit to act as trustee:

Therefore, Resolved, That our counsel be instructed to apply to the chancery court or such court as may be most suitable, to have three trustees appointed to act under said mortgage, with power to order sales of lands, directing, if they deem it best, the taking of sterling bonds in payment and to make deeds for lands already sold and to be here-1297 after sold, and to do all and everything necessary and proper to be done in the due execution of said trust; and be it further resolved, that we recommend the appointment of Charles Walsh, of Alabama, George H. Young, of Mississippi, and Alexander Jackson, of Tennessee, said trustees under said mortgage.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of a resolution passed by the board of M. & O. R. R. Co., at a meeting of said board on 5th December, 1861.

E. L. Andrews, counsel of Miss Georgie Warnes, having taken proceedings against Duncan and Elliot was subsequently required to withdraw the same, as will appear by the following correspondence:

(Copy.)

3RD APRIL, 1876.

E. L. ANDREWS:

DEAR SIR: I am advised that I have made a mistake by signing a petition for the removal of M'r W. B. Duncan and M'r Elliot from the receivership of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and if they are removed and M'r Ketchum substituted, the interests of that road would suffer by the change.

I have lost much by investing in the bonds of that road and cannot afford to run the risk of losing more by such a change.

I therefore wish to withdraw that petition for the removal of Messrs Duncan and Elliot, and hereby request and authorize to do so.

(S'gn'd) GEORGIE WARNES.

NEW YORK, 3rd April, 1876.

Mess'rs DUNCAN & ELLIOT:

GENTLEMEN: Your friends say that I have made a great mistake in signing a petition for your removal from the receivership of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and that if you are removed you will thereby be deeply wronged, and that I can avert that wrong by withdrawing my petition for your removal.

As my object in signing that petition was not to injure you, but simply to protect my rights as a bondholder, and as I am now advised that you can and will protect those rights, I have sent a note, of which the within is a duplicate, to M'r E. L. Andrews, requesting and authorizing him to withdraw that petition.

Trusting that you will prove worthy of the trust your friends repose in you,

Yours, very respectfully,

(S'gn'd) GEORGIE WARNER.

Memorandum of agreement and transfer, made the first day of October, 1876, by and between the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, a corporation by that name existing under the laws of Alabama, and operating also under the laws of the States of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky respectively, party of the first part, and the various other parties whose names are subscribed hereto, being creditors of said company, some holding security as hereinafter specified and others unsecured, each subscriber for himself and neither for the other, parties of the second part, and William H. Hays, of the city of New York, William S. Pierson, of Windsor, in the State of Connecticut, and T. Haskins DuPuy, of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, parties of the third part.

Whereas the said railroad company, originally incorporated by the State of Alabama, and operating under the laws of that State, has, by the legislation of the several States of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky respectively, obtained valuable corporate rights and privileges, as well as important exemptions, in those respective States:

And whereas owing to a succession of misfortunes, the said corporation has fallen into arrear in the payment of its bonded and other indebtedness, to such an extent that proceedings for the foreclosure of mortgages executed by it are now pending, which proceedings have gone to an advanced stage and are still being pushed, and, in addition, the day of payment named in some of its mortgages is near at hand;

And whereas differences and disputes have arisen between the different classes of holders of the securities and evidences of debt issued by said company, which differences and disputes, if persisted in, are likely to lead to protracted litigation and to the sacrifice or deterioration of the property of the said company, and to great delay in the resumption of regular and legitimate operations on its road; and it is therefore deemed expedient that a scheme should be devised, to be assented to by the various classes of claimants upon the said company, for the harmonizing and compromise of their respective claims, without ending the corporate existence or corporate powers of said company and without putting an end to or limit upon its corporate privileges;

And whereas the secured indebtedness of the said company now exists in the form of bonds and coupons secured by mortgage liens, as specified in the schedule hereto annexed, and as appears by the books of the company, exclusive of interest on said coupons;

And whereas, in addition to said mortgage indebtedness, judgments have been recovered against said company, which are claimed to constitute liens upon some of its property, subject to its mortgage indebtedness, but a large part of which judgment indebtedness is presumed by lapse of time and otherwise to have been in fact satisfied; and in addition thereto the said company owes a considerable amount of floating or unsecured indebtedness; and the undersigned, holders of claims of the various classes against said company, as well those specified in the said schedule hereto annexed, as judgment creditors and unsecured creditors, have agreed to compromise and compound with said company upon the said company's issuing new securities for all the said indebtedness in the manner hereinafter agreed upon, to the end that, if practicable, said foreclosure suits may be discontinued and the property affected thereby restored to the custody and control of the said company under the conditions of this agreement, and the stipulations accompanying the same;

But whereas it is understood by said creditors that if such scheme shall be found to be impracticable because not assented to by a sufficient number of creditors, or for other reasons, that then the said foreclosure proceedings shall be prosecuted to either a sale or a strict foreclosure, and a purchase or acquisition of the property of the said company consummated for the benefit of the subscribers hereto, who are such creditors as aforesaid, and that a new corporation or corporations shall be created, and new securities issued for the benefit of such creditors:

1302 Now this memorandum witnesseth that the said parties hereto have covenanted, agreed, and tranferred, and do hereby covenant, agree, and transfer to and with each other in manner and form following, that is to say:

First. The said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins DuPuy are hereby constituted assignees in trust, agents, managers, and attorneys of the said parties hereto, who are creditors of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or holders of any of the securities specified in said schedule hereto annexed, for the purpose of receiving the several demands of said creditors who become parties hereto, and of realizing, converting, managing, and controlling the same, for the purposes, in the manner, and with the powers hereinafter specified.

Second. Each of the parties hereto, being a creditor of the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company at the time of the execution of this instrument, assigns, transfers, delivers, and makes over to the said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins DuPuy, all the evidences of debt issued by said company and claims against said company now held by such subscriber hereto, whether in the shape of bond, coupon, note, judgment, open account, unliquidated demand, unpaid voucher or otherwise, to be held by the said Hays, Pierson, and DuPuy, as such assignees, agents, managers, and attorneys, in the manner and for the purposes and upon the trusts so hereinafter declared concerning the same. Upon this instrument being subscribed by all the creditors of said corporation, holders of evidence of debt issued by said corporation, or of other claims against the same, the said assignees, agents, and attorneys shall have and hold the claims and evidences of debt of such creditors with full power and authority to cancel, surrender, release, and discharge all such evidences of debt, claims, and demands so transferred to them upon receiving from said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company new evidences of debt and securities to the extent and in the manner hereinafter provided.

Third. Upon the request of the said Hays, Pierson, and DuPuy, or their successors, the said corporation hereby agrees to execute and deliver, or cause to be executed and delivered, to the said William H. Hays, William S. Pierson, and T. Haskins DuPuy, or their successors or appointees, new bonds and obligations, or acknowledgments of indebtedness, secured respectively by a new mortgage and trust-deed to be made by said corporation as hereinafter provided, and containing such stipulations and clauses for the security of the creditors of said company as the said assignees and attorneys shall advise and require not in conflict with the provisions of this agreement.

Fourth. The said new mortgage shall be called the first mortgage, and shall constitute a first and primary lien on all of the main line of the said Mobile & Ohio Railroad, lying at and between the city of Mobile and the city of Columbus, in the State of Kentucky (exclusive, however, of the several branches now possessed or to be acquired or constructed, those now possessed being known as Aberdeen Branch, Columbus Branch, Starkville Branch, and the Gainesville Branch), covering all and singular the chartered rights, railways, sidings, turnouts, and all connected therewith, bridges, fences, warehouses, depot and office buildings, machine shops, tools, iron, timber, and all materials necessary in the repair of the road, rolling-stock, or machinery, and all wood and coal and other materials necessary in running said road, and all fixtures, privileges, rights, real estate, and all other property owned, and which may be hereafter owned, by said company, and which shall be necessary to the business of said company or for the purpose of carrying freight and passengers upon said main line, but not including any lands granted to said company by any State or by the United States, nor lands which may be situated apart from the line of the road and not actually required for the use or running of the road. The said trust-deed shall be in the form and shall have the effect and operation of a conveyance in trust to trustees of the lands granted to said company by any State or of the United States, as well as all lands belonging to the company and not necessary for the operation of the railroad of said company, and also so much of the net income of said company as shall remain after payment of current expenses, cost of maintenance, improvement, and repairs, and interest on said new first mortgage, and on the debentures, as hereafter more particularly specified.

Fifth. The first mortgage mentioned in the last preceding paragraph shall be made for the security of the holders of the present out-1303 standing issue of first-mortgage bonds of said corporation, and of the coupons issued with said first-mortgage bonds, whether such coupons are now detached from such bonds or are now attached thereto, and for the benefit and security of the holders of the issues known as the sterling arrearage interest-bonds, the funded arrearage interest-bonds, and the coupons detached from or attached to such bonds, matured and unpaid, and also for the benefit and security of the holders of the issue known as the Tennessee substitution bonds, and coupons detached therefrom or attached thereto, matured and unpaid, all upon an equal footing as to grade of new security (provided such holders become parties to this agreement, and transfer the securities held by them respectively pursuant hereto), and for the purpose of providing funds for necessary expenses and outlay under this agreement. The total amount of principal money secured by bonds issued under the new first mortgage is to be seven millions of dollars, payable in the city of New York, in gold coin of the United States, on the first day of December, in the year 1927, bearing interest payable in lawful money of the United States, in the following manner: Two per cent. on the first day of December, 1877; two per cent. on the first day of June, 1878; three per cent. on each first day of December and June thereafter, and the bonds to be issued under said first mortgage may be in sums of either $1,000, $500, $300, or $100 each, and shall have negotiable interest-warrants or coupons attached thereto, payable in New York. But the holders of the present first-mortgage securities are to be interested in the new securities issued under the new first mortgage, as next hereafter stated; that is to say:

Sixth. Each subscriber hereto, who shall have transferred to the said assignees, agents, and attorneys a first mortgage bond of said company shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to four hundred and forty dollars for each one thousand dollars, or each £225, of the principal sum payable upon such bond so transferred, in a bond or bonds to be issued under the said new first mortgage hereinabove provided for, to be taken at par; and every subscriber hereto who shall have so transferred first-mortgage coupons of said company heretofore issued (provided the due date originally mentioned therein shall not have been later than the first day of November, 1877), shall receive an amount equal to the value of such coupons, as below estimated, in a bond or bonds, to be issued under said new first mortgage hereinabove provided for, each such coupon to be estimated for this purpose as being worth, and as securing the payment of, thirty-six dollars, except coupons maturing November 1, 1877, which shall each be estimated as worth only six dollars; and each holder of sterling interest bonds who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and shall have transferred his bonds in pursuance hereof, shall be entitled, in lieu of each bond so transferred, to a bond or bonds for the principal sum of four hundred and forty dollars each, to be issued under said new first mortgage, for each £200 of the principal amount of the bonds so transferred by him under this agreement; and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with any such sterling interest bond, (provided the original due date named in such coupon shall not be later than the first day of November, 1877,) shall be entitled in lieu thereof to a bond or bonds to be issued under such new first mortgage for the amount of the coupons so transferred, valuing each such coupon at the sum of thirty-six dollars, except coupons maturing November 1, 1877, which shall be valued at only six dollars; and each holder of bonds generally known as arrearage-interest bonds, who shall have become a subscriber to this instrument, and shall have transferred his bonds pursuant to the terms hereof, shall be entitled to a bond or bonds to be issued under said new first mortgage for the principal sum of three hundred and ten dollars for each $1,000 of the principal amount of the bonds so transferred, and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with such arrearage-interest bonds, (provided the original due date of such coupons shall not have been later than the first day of November, 1877,) shall be entitled to new first-mortgage bonds for the amount of the coupons so transferred, valuing each such coupon at thirty-six dollars, except that coupons of which the original due date was the first day of November, 1877, shall be valued at six dollars each; each holder of bonds known as Tennessee substitution bonds, who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and who shall have transferred his bonds as aforesaid to said assignees and attorneys, shall receive in lieu of the bonds so transferred a bond or bonds to be issued under said new first mortgage for the par amount of $626 for each bond so transferred, and each holder of coupons heretofore issued with any such Tennessee substitution bonds, (provided the original due date of such coupons was not later than July 1st, 1877,) who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement, and who shall 1304 have transferred his coupons to said assignees and attorneys,

shall be entitled in lieu thereof to receive a new first mortgage bond or bonds for the amount of his coupons so transferred, estimating each such coupon at thirty-six dollars, except the coupons maturing July 1, 1877, which shall be valued at only thirty dollars each.

Seventh. The trust deed hereinabove provided for shall be in part for the security of the same class of present creditors who, as above agreed, are entitled to be secured by the said new first mortgage, to the extent of the difference, as below stated, between the amount of new bonds to be issued to them or for their benefit, as above provided, and the principal amounts of the bonds now outstanding and transferred by them respectively, and also for the benefit of the remaining creditors of said company who shall become parties to this agreement and become entitled to the benefit thereof; and to that end it is now provided—

Eighth. Each bond now held by any such present first-mortgage creditor as last aforesaid for the principal sum of one thousand dollars gold or lawful money, or for the principal sum of £225, £205, or £200, shall, for the purpose of ascertaining such difference, be estimated as worth one thousand dollars; and each bond payable in dollars, gold or lawful money, for a less sum than $1,000, shall be estimated at its face, without interest, and each bond payable in sterling money for less than £200 shall be estimated at the rate of five dollars for each pound sterling of principal money payable by the terms of such bond. And after charging to each subscriber hereto who shall have transferred bonds as above agreed, the principal amount of the bonds to be issued to him as above provided in the sixth paragraph, not taking into account any bonds issued in lieu of coupons transferred under said sixth paragraph, he shall be entitled to a preferred income and sinking-fund debenture or debentures, of the first series to be issued under said trust deed, as hereinafter provided, for the difference between the principal sum of the new first-mortgage bonds so charged to him and the principal sum of the bonds so transferred, valued as above provided.

Ninth. The preferred income and sinking-fund debentures issued under said trust deed may be in sums of $4,000, $500, $300, or $100 each, and shall not have any interest coupons attached thereto, and shall not be payable absolutely, but only out of the sinking-fund hereinafter provided; and shall be registered and shall be transferable only on the books of the company, at the office of the company, in the city of New York, and shall not otherwise be transferable, and shall be issued in successive series, the first series to be known as first-preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, the second series to be known as second-preferred income and sinking fund debentures, the third series to be known as third-preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, and the fourth series to be known as fourth-preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, and such debentures shall be so expressed as that interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum shall be payable thereon yearly, that is, on the first day of February in each year after the year 1878, upon the conditions herein specified, that is: on or before the first day of December, in the year 1878 and each year thereafter, said company shall ascertain as closely as practicable the net earnings of such company remaining after paying the expenses of the corporation, cost of maintenance and proper repair, and the interest on the new first mortgage bonds, up to the first day of September next preceding, that being the end of the fiscal year; and in case there shall remain on such first day of December a residue of earnings for the year ending on the first day of the September next previous, and if it shall then be ascertained that up to the first day of September next preceding that first day of December, the earnings of said company, after making provision for such expenses, interest, and the proper maintenance of the property in good order, leave any sum applicable to the payment of interest on such debentures, then such net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest on said first-preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, not exceeding seven per cent. in lawful money of the United States, and such application and payment shall be made on or before the first day of February in the next succeeding year; and after payment of interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the first series, what remains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest on said debentures of the second series at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum; and after payment of interest at that rate on said debentures of the second series, what remains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the third series; and what then re- 1305 mains of said net earnings shall be applied to the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent. per annum on said debentures of the fourth series; but in case the earnings of any one of such years shall not be adequate to the payment of seven per cent. interest for that year on all or either series of said debentures, then the deficiency shall not have any claim upon the net earnings of any succeeding year. And the net earnings shall only be applicable to the payment of interest on either series of debentures in case such earnings shall amount to at least one per cent. or a multiple of one per cent. on the total amount of the debentures belonging to such series, so that fractions of net earnings exceeding such one per cent. or a multiple of one per cent., need not be included in the payment of interest for that year, but shall be carried to the credit of the earnings for the succeeding year.

Tenth. The aforesaid second preferred income and sinking fund debentures shall be issued for the benefit and security of that class of the present creditors of said corporation, who are known as second mortgage bondholders, all to be upon the same footing with each other as to security and priority. Each second mortgage bond of said company, and each coupon thereof, now outstanding shall be considered as of the par value represented on its face in currency, provided the due date originally specified therein shall not have been later than the first day of March, 1878, except coupons maturing March 1, 1878, which when for $80 on their face shall each be estimated as worth only twenty dollars, or in that proportion for any coupon of any smaller amount than $80. Each holder of a present outstanding second mortgage bond or coupon of said company, who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement and shall have transferred his bond or coupon pursuant to the terms hereof, shall be entitled to receive dollar for dollar for the principal of his bond and coupon so transferred as aforesaid in a second preferred income and sinking fund debenture.

Eleventh. The said debentures of the third series shall be for the benefit and security of the holders of the present outstanding bonds of said corporation, known as convertible bonds, and shall be for an aggregate amount sufficient to represent the aggregate amount of now outstanding convertible bonds, and the interest thereon up to the first day of June, 1877. Each holder of a convertible bond who shall have become a subscriber to this agreement and shall have transferred his bond as and in the manner aforesaid, shall be entitled in lieu thereof to a debenture of the third series for the par amount of the bond so transferred, estimating the same at its face value in currency, and the accrued interest on such convertible bond, to be computed up to the first day of June, 1877, shall be replaced by a debenture of the third series for the actual amount of such interest up to that date.

Twelfth. The said debentures of the fourth series shall be for such amount as said assignees and attorneys shall determine to be necessary for the purpose of satisfying such judgment and unsecured indebtedness of the said company as they shall deem to be morally obligatory, in their discretion, so far as the same shall be held by subscribers to this instrument who shall have transferred their claims to the said assignees and attorneys, subject to adjustment by said assignees and attorneys, but the same shall not exceed the sum of the face value of such judgments or indebtedness, and no unsecured or judgment creditor shall be admitted as a subscriber to this instrument, nor entitled to the benefit thereof, for any amount exceeding that which may be adjusted and allowed to him by said assignees and attorneys; and each such judgment and unsecured creditor who shall so become a party hereto, shall be entitled to a debenture of the fourth series for such sum as said assignees and attorneys may adjudge to be justly due to him.

Thirteenth. In case all the holders of the unsecured or judgment indebtedness of said corporation shall not have become parties hereto, or shall not have assented to the adjustment of their claims by the said assignees and attorneys, and the reduction thereof to the amount which said assignees and attorneys shall deem to be justly and equitably due thereon, then said assignees and attorneys, instead of cancelling and surrendering all of said mortgage bonds now outstanding, transferred to them under this agreement, shall hold said mortgage bonds or so much thereof as may in their discretion be necessary for the security of the new securities against said unsecured and judgment indebtedness, except that the new mortgage and trust deed issued by said corporation shall have priority over such old mortgage bonds; but such 1306 original mortgage bonds shall be held by the trustees in the new first mortgage, in trust for the benefit of the holders of the new securities of the said corporation, according to their order and priority, prior to and to the exclusion of the unsecured and judgment creditors who shall not have assented to this agreement. And each of said present mortgage bonds transferred under this agreement and held by said trustees, as before stated, shall be stamped by the assignees and attorneys with the following words: "In pursuance of the terms of agreement made between the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and its creditors, bearing date October 1, 1876, this bond is not negotiable, being held subject to the provisions and for the purposes mentioned in said agreement."

Fourteenth. The said assignees and attorneys shall not be authorized to cancel or surrender any of the existing obligations or evidences of debt of the said corporation, transferred to them under this agreement, unless all the present holders of the mortgage securities of said company shall have become parties to this instrument, and transferred the securities held by them on or before the first day of March, 1877, or at or before such time as the said assignees and attorneys shall have fixed, as in their discretion they may, by successive extensions of not more than sixty days each; nor until said corporation, or its stockholders, through legal and proper action of its stockholders, if such action be necessary, or otherwise according to law, shall have entered into an adequate and sufficient arrangement or agreement with said assignees and attorneys, and with the holders of said debentures, enabling the holders of such debentures or the trustees under said trust-deed to vote at elections for directors of the said company, and irrevocably represent such stock or a majority thereof, at all stockholders' meetings until such debentures shall be extinguished; and upon that privilege of representation being acquired by and vested in or secured to the trustees in said trust-deed, or to the holders of the said debentures, by the proper and legal action of such corporation or its stockholders, and upon all the new mortgages and securities above called for being issued, then such cancellation and surrender may be fully completed and consummated (except in the contingency provided in paragraph 13 of this agreement), and the property and management of the corporation may be restored to it, and said foreclosure suits may be discontinued.

Fifteenth. Any surplus of new securities created under this agreement, not required for the satisfaction of the claims of existing creditors, may be applied and appropriated by said assignees and attorneys to the payment of the expenses of making this agreement and carrying the same into effect, as well as the expenses of said foreclosure suits; and the said assignees and attorneys, as transferees and assignees of the subscribers to this instrument, shall have the same rights and relations to the foreclosure suits now pending, and to the complainants in said foreclosure suits, and to the receivers in said suits, and to the funds in their hands, which the subscribers to this agreement now have or would have if they continued to be holders of the bonds and claims subscribed hereto, and shall be entitled to the same share of the proceeds of the present management of the property of said company, and to the same share of the proceeds of the sale of such property which their assignors would have upon a discontinuance of said foreclosure suits, or upon an accounting, or upon a sale or distribution of the proceeds; their several assignors to be considered, in relation to such proceeds, as being upon the same grade of priority and security, as between and among each other, upon which the provisions of this agreement would place them in relation to the new securities to be issued by said company.

Sixteenth. In case a sufficient number of subscribers shall not be obtained to this agreement on or before the time prescribed herein, to put it within the power of said assignees and attorneys to carry into effect the foregoing clauses and stipulations of this agreement, then this agreement shall be binding upon the subscribers thereto, provided it shall have been subscribed by holders of at least a majority in amount of the existing first mortgage indebtedness and Tennessee substitution bonds of said company, as recited in the schedules hereto annexed; and thereupon said assignees and attorneys shall have power and authority to appropriate the bonds, coupons, moneys (if any), and evidences of debt which shall have come into their possession, under the provisions of this agreement, towards the purchase of the property of said railroad corporation, under such decree or decrees of foreclosure as shall be obtained in said pending suits, and shall have power and authority, and it shall be their duty, to aid the complainants in said suits in 1307 speeding said suits to their conclusion, by decrees of foreclosure and sale, or of strict foreclosure, in the interest and for the benefit of the subscribers to this agreement, and they shall have power to turn the securities, received by them under this agreement, into court in payment for said property, upon the purchase thereof by them upon the foreclosure; and in the event of its becoming necessary for the protection of the interest of the parties subscribing hereto, that any cash or other payment than the securities in their possession should be made into court, said assignees and attorneys shall have the power to make such payment for the account of and at the risk of the parties subscribing hereto, or by obtaining the amount thereof upon the security of the bonds and coupons in their hands; and shall likewise have power to apply for and receive dividends upon the bonds and coupons received by them under this agreement from the funds in court in the hands of the receivers, or of any master or marshal or clerk or otherwise to the same extent as the original holders of the bonds and coupons retained and held by them would have been; and while no authority is given to them to make any subscribers hereto personably responsible for the payment of any debt incurred by them, they are authorized with the assent of the trustees of the present first mortgages, or a majority of them, to pledge the bonds and coupons in their possession for the purpose so far as necessary of obtaining means to expedite and bring to a conclusion this compromise or said foreclosure suits.

Seventeenth. The parties subscribing hereto and transferring any evidence of debt or claim according to the terms of this instrument, shall be entitled to certificates, specifying their contributions respectively and their interests respectively to and in this agreement and the benefits thereof; and each certificate shall be transferable and deliverable to bearer without a transfer being required to be made in any book or in writing, and shall represent on its face the securities deposited therefor.

Eighteenth. Upon the purchase of the property of said company by said assignees and attorneys at any sale or sales under decree of sale or strict foreclosure, it shall be their duty to avail themselves of any existing law in either of the States of Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi or Kentucky, or to procure legislation, so far as may be necessary, for the purpose of creating a new corporation or new corporations to which it shall be their duty to transfer the property so purchased by them as early as practicable upon receiving from such new corporation the new bonds, debentures, mortgage and trust-deed hereinabove specified for the same amount which would be required to carry the above proposed compromise into effect, such mortgage and trust-deed to be made to one or more trustees in each case to be selected by said assignees and attorneys, and to be properly framed for the security of the several classes of creditors to be benefited thereby; and so far as the evidences of debt to be issued under such new mortgage or trust-deed, whether by said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation, shall not be required to be issued or delivered in exchange for securities which shall have come into and remained in the hands of such assignees and attorneys under this agreement, such surplus securities shall be sold, or so much thereof as in their judgment may be necessary for the purposes hereinafter named; and the proceeds thereof, and also any sums received by them in cash from the receivers, or from any officer of the court, shall be applied, in the first place, in repaying any sums advanced, or procured to be advanced, by said assignees and attorneys for the purpose of meeting the expenses of said foreclosure suits and of carrying this agreement into effect, and the expense of making such purchase and reorganization; and then the surplus, if any, remaining from such disposition of such new securities, as well as any new securities which may remain unsold or undisposed of, and any sums realized by said assignees and attorneys from the receivers or managers of said property in said foreclosure suits, or from the management or running of the road, shall be accounted for by said assignees and attorneys to said new corporation, which said new corporation is to consist of and be created by the subscribers to this agreement, so far as they are entitled to the benefit of the same; and said new corporation, or said existing corporation, in case the compromise above specified shall be carried into effect, shall be considered as subrogated to all the rights of the subscribers to this agreement for the purpose of calling the said assignees and attorneys to account. The said assignees and attorneys shall be allowed out of the fund, for compensation for their services and responsibility, such amounts as 1308 shall be reasonably just according to the character of such services and responsibility; but there is no personal responsibility on the part of any subscriber hereto for any part of such compensation; and said assignees and attorneys, and their necessary clerks, book-keepers, and their employees of any grade or description, shall be entitled to a lien upon the new securities and upon the cash received by said assignees and attorneys, and the cash proceeds of such of the same as they are authorized to dispose of, for their compensation, liabilities and disbursememts, whether absolute or contingent, until their account shall have been duly and properly settled with such organization; and such existing corporation, or such new corporation or corporations, as the case may require, shall, before payment of interest on any of the new securities, assume and pay any excess of such compensation, liabilities and disbursements above the amount realized by said assignees and attorneys from funds in their hands.

Nineteenth. The subscribers hereto, who shall respectively have transferred to said assignees and attorneys their several claims, provided such claims shall remain under the control of such assignees and attorneys and available for the purpose of purchasing the property now mortgaged in said foreclosure suits, shall be interested in the property after such purchase and so long as the title thereto remains in said assignees and attorneys, as beneficiaries and cestui que trust, in the same proportions, and shall have the same relative rights and interests, as against each other, as in the new securities to be created under this agreement.

Twentieth. The trust-deed hereinabove provided for, whether executed in pursuance of the compromise above agreed upon or by a new corporation or corporations to be created after a foreclosure, shall contain provision for the creation of a sinking fund for the benefit of the holders of said debentures in the order in which the interest on such debentures is as above specified payable.

Such sinking-fund is to consist of the proceeds of all lands owned, and which may hereafter be owned by said company, with the exception of such as are covered by the above-mentioned first mortgage, and with the exception of the railway, rails, bridges, fences, warehouse and other fixtures, rights, privileges, and real estate belonging to the above-mentioned branches, but including all lands not so covered but conveyed to the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company by any State or by the United States. The trustees under said trust-deed are to have power of sale over said lands from time to time, and such trust-deed shall contain clauses properly framed conveying to the trustees under such deed the same powers of sale in respect to the lands conveyed thereby as are possessed by the trustees under the now existing first mortgage; and the first mortgage to be created under this agreement is not to apply to or cover such lands, and the proceeds of sales of said lands are to be free from the lien of said new first mortgage, and are to constitute a fund for the exclusive benefit of the holders of said debentures. But such new trust-deed shall also contain a provision by way of covenant, declaration, grant, or otherwise, as said assignees and attorneys may direct, in substance and effect that the amount of principal and interest payable upon said debentures shall constitute a lien upon the railway property of said existing corporation, or of said new corporation or corporations as the case may require, to such an extent that in case of a foreclosure of said new first mortgage and a sale thereunder, the trustees in said trust-deed, for the benefit of holders of said debentures according to their order and priority, shall be entitled to the surplus proceeds of such sale next after payment of said new first mortgage, to the amount of the aggregate principal sum due on such debentures, and so that in case any lien upon said railway property, or any part thereof, shall arise, subsequent to the making of said trust-deed, by the act or sufferance of such existing or new corporation, and such subsequent lien shall be enforced to the extent of depriving said existing or new corporation of the possession of such railway property, or any part thereof, then the trustees in said trust-deed may enter into possession of such part of said railway property, and sell the same, clear of all subsequent liens, for the benefit of holders of said debentures according to their order and priority, or may exact redemption and payment in full of the principal amount of such debentures before surrendering such property to such subsequent lienors; and said trust-deed shall also contain proper covenants and securities for the ascertainment and application of the income of the property of said existing or new corporation and its successors, as the case may require, according to the provisions of this agreement; and there shall also be paid into the sinking-fund all the interest accruing on debentures bought for the sinking-fund, until all the debentures shall have been bought, satisfied, or extinguished; and there shall also be paid into the sinking-fund a further amount equal to the dividend which may hereafter be declared upon the capital stock, now existing or hereafter to be 1309 created, of such company, which dividend shall not be declared or paid except an amount equal thereto is also paid in at the same time out of the net revenue into the sinking-fund.

The trustees making sales of said lands are to deposit the proceeds thereof in the Bank of the State of New York, in the city of New York, or such other depository as the trustees in said trust-deed may select in the the said city of New York; and each six months, that is, on the first days of May and November, the trustees shall advertise, in the cities of Mobile and New York, stating the amount so deposited and at the disposition of the sinking-fund, and asking for tenders therefor in the first series of said debentures then outstanding, awarding the amount so deposited to the holders of debentures, tendered at the lowest grades of price, in succession. In default of any bids or tenders therefor at less than par, the trustees shall thereupon draw by lot a sufficient number of debentures of the first series, then outstanding, to absorb such deposits, and shall apply such deposits to the purchase of the debentures so drawn by lot at par. After purchase of the said debentures of the first series, the said sinking-fund shall be applied in like manner, and by the same means, to the purchase of each other of the said several series of debentures in succession.

Twenty-first. In case a prosecution of said foreclosure suits to a sale or to a strict foreclosure is found to be necessary, and it shall also be found necessary to create a new corporation or corporations, then the capital stock of such new corporation or corporations shall be fixed at not exceeding the sum of ten million dollars, to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be in the first instance issued to said assignees and attorneys as a part of the funds in their hands for the purposes of this agreement; and they shall so place a majority of such stock as to secure to the holders of said debentures directly or through the trustees in said trust-deed the control of the management of the corporation; and any surplus of such new stock remaining after that disposition of it, and after the trust under said trust deed shall be fully executed, shall be treated in like manner with any surplus bonds, or other securities, to be issued by the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation or corporations, under the provisions of this agreement.

Twenty-second. Bonds, securities, claims, and evidences of debt transferred to said assignees and attorneys under the provisions of this agreement, shall be deposited at the option of the parties transferring the same, either in the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. in the city of New York, or in the Bank of Mobile, at Mobile, in the State of Alabama, or with C. M. Lampson & Co., in the city of London, or at the Frankfurter Bank Verein, in the city of Frankfurt, or with Lombard, Odier & Co., in the city of Geneva, who shall respectively be authorized to give therefor the certificates above provided for, or their receipts exchangeable for said certificates; and the securities so deposited shall remain in the several depositories, subject to the order of said assignees and attorneys, until the same shall be required for cancellation, surrender, exchange, or delivery into court by said assignees and attorneys, or for other purposes of this agreement, in which case the same shall be transmitted from the depositories thereof to such attorneys and assignees, either at the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. in the city of New York, or at the Bank of Mobile, in the city of Mobile, as said assignees and attorneys may direct, from which depositories the same may be taken by said assignees and attorneys when required for any or either of the purposes aforesaid; and securities and cash funds received by said assignees and attorneys, under the provisions of this agreement shall be deposited by them either in the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. in the city of New York, or in the Bank of Mobile, in the city of Mobile.

Twenty-third. In case of a vacancy in the office of assignee or attorney under this agreement, arising from death or resignation of either of the parties, or from his incompetency to act, the vacancy may be filled by the unanimous agreement of the trustees acting under the existing first mortgage of said corporation, and the remaining assignees and attorneys under this agreement.

Twenty-fourth. The said assignees and attorneys shall have an office in the city of New York, and shall keep regular accounts and books of account, showing their transactions, which shall be open to the inspection of certificate holders at reasonable times during business hours; and a majority of said assignees and attorneys shall be competent 1310 to transact business at any meeting of which all three of the assignees and attorneys shall have been notified, and any substituted assignee or attorney, duly appointed pursuant to the provisions of this agreement, shall have the same power, authority, and control which his predecessor had; and all the provisions of this agreement, and all the powers conferred thereby, shall apply to and be vested in such assignee and attorney so far as his predecessor had such power, or was subject to such provisions; but so far as any discretionary power is conferred by this agreement, no such discretion shall be or can be used without the consent of all the attorneys and assignees acting at the time under this agreement, and each assignee and attorney shall be responsible only for his own acts and not for the acts of others; and neither assignee or attorney shall be responsible for any error of judgment, nor for any error or negligence of any subordinate officer or agent, unless such officer or agent shall be employed or continued in employment negligently by such assignees and attorneys.

Twenty-fifth. The new securities to be issued by said Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, or by a new corporation or corporations to be created under the terms of this agreement, shall be in the first instance delivered by the said company to said assignees and attorneys, or their successors, who shall deposit the same in the said The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., or in the said Bank of Mobile, and no subscriber hereto, or his successor in interest, shall be entitled to any portion of such new securities except upon a return or surrender to said assignees and attorneys at one or other of the said places of deposit of the certificate or certificates held by such subscriber. In case, in the original distribution of the new securities to be issued in pursuance of this agreement, any party shall become entitled to a fractional part, less than $100, of a bond or debenture, a certificate therefor may be issued, which, when united with other fractional certificates, so as to make an entire bond or debenture, for either one of the even amounts in which said bonds or debentures are above authorized to be issued, may be funded in such bonds or debentures of even amounts, as the case may require.

Twenty-sixth. The assignees and attorneys acting under this instrument are hereby invested with full power and authority to execute the provisions of this plan; to supply any and every defect, in any and every case which is unprovided for in its terms, and to do anything and everything that is proper in their judgment to carry out its provisions.

Twenty-seventh. The said assignees and attorneys may, in the transaction of business, call themselves "The Committee of Reorganization of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company," and when acting in that name, shall be considered as acting as attorneys, agents, managers, and assignees under this agreement. In the adjustment of their accounts they shall be allowed such payments and expenditures as shall have been made by them in good faith, in the belief of the necessity of making such payments and expenditures for the benefit of the subscribers hereto, and for the purpose of carrying this agreement into effect.

Twenty-eighth. All bonds, securities, and evidences of debt, &c., transferred under this agreement, shall be in the first instance deposited for the purposes of this agreement in one or the other of the depositories herein named, or in others selected as authorized by this agreement; and all new securities to be issued by the present corporation, or by a new corporation, shall, in like manner, be deposited with one or the other of said depositories, to be by such depository distributed to the parties entitled thereto, under the order and with the assent and approval of the assignees and attorneys; and in the transmission of either the present or future securities in fulfillment of this agreement, the assignees, attorneys, and depositories, using due diligence, may, in their discretion, insure or otherwise protect such securities at the expense of the fund, and in case of loss shall be relieved from liability.

Twenty-ninth. Any duplicate or other copy of this agreement which shall be subscribed by any holder of the said bonds, securities, liens, claims, judgments, or stock, and delivered to and accepted by said assignees and attorneys, shall have like effect as if such signatures were herewith subscribed.

1311 In witness whereof the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals or otherwise attested the same as the case may require.

1312 Schedule annexed.

FIRST-MORTGAGE BONDS.

1. Sterling bonds, £225 each (by deed of trust stated as "each of said bonds being the same as $1,000"), issued 1853, due 1883.
2. Arrearage interest bonds, B & C, £200 or £100 each, issued 1867, due 1883.

3. Interest bonds, O P Q, $1,000, $500, $200 each, issued in 1866, due 1876.

4. Arrearage interest bonds, F, F_1, F1, F2, F3, F4, $1,000, $500, $300, $100 each, issued 1868, due 1883.

5. Sinking fund gold bonds (Tennessee substitution), £205 or $1,000, issued 1871, due 1901.

6. The interest coupons on the above first-mortgage issues appear by the books of the company to have been paid up to and including those which matured January 1, 1874, leaving outstanding and unpaid all the coupons on the above issues which matured on or after May 1, 1874.

The foregoing principal and interest to be exchanged for first-mortgage bonds and first preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

SECOND-MORTGAGE BONDS.

Several issues, L, R, S, T, Rr, Ss, Uu, $1,000, $500, $300, $100 and irregular amounts, issued in 1867, 1871, 1872, 1873.

The interest coupons on the above second-mortgage bonds appear by the books of the company to have been paid up to and including those which matured March 1st, 1874, leaving outstanding coupons on above second-mortgage bonds from and including those which matured March 1st, 1876. The principal and interest of these to be exchanged for 2nd preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS.

Secured next after the above mentioned first and second mortgages by a mortgage known as the consolidated mortgage; also by a deposit of the stock of the M. & O. R. R., 4 shares for each $100 in trust. Of these bonds there were issued in irregular amounts $977,550, but of this issue there remain unused by the company $471,000. The interest upon these bonds appears by the books of the company to have been paid up to and including that which matured December 1st, 1874, leaving outstanding unpaid the interest from that date. The principal and interest of these convertible bonds to be exchanged for 3rd preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

CONSOLIDATED MORTGAGE.

These bonds have been issued only to a very limited amount as security to previously unsecured creditors, to give to them, as far as lay in the power of the company, a lien upon the property of the company after the lien of the first-mortgage (Tennessee substitution), second-mortgage, & convertible bonds above enumerated. The original issue was contemplated to be $15,000,000 for the purpose of consolidating all the previous issues, but none were issued beyond the above amount; and the amount so issued was intended to cover all the floating and otherwise unsecured indebtedness except judgments against the company. In the scheme of reorganization they are not recognized.

FLOATING DEBT AND JUDGMENTS.

The total amount of judgments outstanding appears, by the records of the several counties through which the railroad runs, to be about $170,000; but from various considerations it is inferred that many of them have been settled, or for other causes are no longer a claim against the company. The receivers are now engaged in examining into this matter. The total amount of floating debt outstanding, exclusive of interest, appears by the books of the company to amount to $538,702.78 (Aug. 1st, 1876).

This may be increased by other unsettled claims or reduced by realization of securities pledged. The principal and interest of judgments and floating debts is to be exchanged for fourth preferred income and sinking-fund debentures, as provided by the scheme of reorganization.

1314 EXHIBIT No. 6.

Schedule of the situation of the bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company having liens on the property of the company by way of mortgage.

	Total issue outstanding.	Amount in hands of comm.
First mortgage sterling bonds	$5,609,000	$3,422,000
Interest arrearage funded bonds	2,287,920	1,849,300
Tennessee substitution bonds	1,668,000	1,473,000
Second mortgage bonds	1,451,207	894,861
Convertible bonds	476,000	395,025
	$11,492,127	$8,034,186

It thus appears that out of a total issue of bonds outstanding amounting to $11,492,127, there are now in the possession of the committee, for compromise and settlement and under their power of disposal and control, a very large majority of the amount of said issue of bonds, say $8,034,186 of principal, besides the unpaid interest on said bonds.

Filed with the answer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in the circuit court of the United States at Mobile, in the suit of Morris Ketchum vs. said company and others, as Exhibit No. 6, and part of said answer.

1315 EXHIBIT No. 7.

Extract minutes special meeting of the board of directors held February 19th, 1877.

The following preamble and resolutions were presented and read, and each resolution being separately considered and approved, on motion of M'r Henry Hall, seconded by M'r Moses Waring, the whole were unanimously adopted:

This board of directors being informed that proceedings are being made in the U.
